KING GEORGE FAILS TO RALLY

SPEECHES BLOCK VOTE ON BONUS TILL TOMORROW

Greenback Payment Plan Voted Down.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—A scheduled vote on the "baby bond" bonus bill by the senate was postponed until Monday when the senators late this afternoon became wearied with oratory and apprehensive that they might be late for their dinner engagements.

The principal development during the five hour debate over the distribution of 45 million bonds in $50 denominations to the veterans was the squashing of an amendment to pay the bonus in greenbacks to be churned out by the printing presses. This scheme proposed by Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.], arch senate inflationist, was beaten by a vote of 64 to 27.

Amendments Voted Down.

Other minor amendments were stricken without a record vote. Only one proposal, that of Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah], to pay the veterans' adjusted service certificates at their present surrender value instead of face value, remains to be disposed of Monday before the senate votes. King's amendment would save 800 million dollars for the taxpayers as contrasted with the pending bill.

The vote will be reached Monday for sure, according to Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], chief author of the bill and chairman of the senate finance committee. The house is expected to concur in a day or two and the measure will be sent to the White House.

Harrison declared that the bill would be enacted into law whether the President vetoes it or not. In other words, congress would pass it over his veto. Last year Mr. Roosevelt vetoed the Patman bonus bill which carried an inflationary method of payment.

Hastings Attacks Spending.

The galleries, packed and overflowing with veterans, listened to a vitriolic attack on the Roosevelt administration by Senator Daniel O. Hasting [Rep., Del.] this afternoon. Charging that the President should have stated his position to congress and the people on the bonus, Hastings issued a solemn warning that the swollen expenditures of the Rooseveltian régime might endanger the value of the proposed bonds for the veterans.

The new bonus bill, Hastings declared, was the payment of an obligation due 9½ years hence at an extra cost to the taxpayers of $1,300,000,000. Cost of the bonus plan is estimated at $2,491,000,000.

Cites Mounting Debt.

"This comes at a time when 10 or 11 million people are out of jobs," cried Hastings, "when the public debt is greater than ever before and the demand for relief comes from all sections of the country."

The stocky little senator from Delaware moved toward the center of the chamber and recited the history of the national debt under Roosevelt. He pointed out that it was nearly 21 billion dollars when Roosevelt took office.

"Then the President sent us a message saying that the deficits were increasing rapidly and unless something were done about it the nation was headed for bankruptcy," shouted Hastings. "He sent us his economy bill and I voted for it."

Points to Mounting Debt.

Hastings then called the attention of the senate to the fact that the public debt had now risen to $30,557,324,062 and that it would rise to $35,563,000,000 by July 1, 1937, without taking into account the taxes that may be paid back to the processors, taxes collected under the Agricultural Adjustment administration invalidated by the Supreme court.

"I don't know how soon this government will repudiate all its bonds," declared Hastings, "including these bonds to be given to the soldiers. If I were a soldier I wouldn't take the chance, I would want the cash."

Senator W. Warren Barbour [Rep., N. J.] told the senate that four years ago the treasury had reported that a two billion dollar expenditure for the veterans would wreck the country economically.

"But since then a new administration with gay recklessness has spent almost six times as much," asserted Barbour.

'MAN, NOT MACHINE,' BELIEVED CLEW TO CRASH OF AIR LINER

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 18.—(AP)—As federal investigators studied the "human element" angle today in the crash of the transcontinental plane "Southerner" in Arkansas, American Airline pilots were ordered to keep doors between their compartment and passenger cabins locked during flight.

Hugh Smith, the air lines' southern division superintendent who issued the instructions, declined to comment on published reports this action was taken because of the "growing belief that man, not machine" was responsible for the accident Tuesday night in which 17 persons, all aboard the plane, died.

Maj. R. W. Schroeder, United States Airlines inspector, described as a "broad statement" the published reports concerning the possible cause of the accident.

He said air line officials planned to drain land at the place where the huge liner drove into the swamp near Goodwin, Ark. He said a minute search also would be made for the pistols carried by pilot and co-pilot and which have not yet been found.

Rescue of Girl in Hotel Fire Thrills Crowd

Smoke rolling from the 19th floor windows of the Allerton hotel, 701 North Michigan avenue, and a girl crouching on a ledge just beneath the smoke brought rush hour trafic to a dead halt late yesterday afternoon. Hundreds lining the sidewalks watched while fire apparatus broke through the jam of automobiles and a rescue squad hurried into the hotel.

While hosemen found the source of the fire, Lieut. Thomas Burns and members of engine company No. 98 were taken to the 19th floor in an express elevator. The corridor was filled with smoke, but employés led the firemen to the door of the room nearest the girl's precarious perch. The lieutenant seized the knob—and found the door locked.

Smash Door with Axes.

With no pass keys immediately available, Burns ordered his men to smash the door, and heavy blows with axes soon splintered the wood around the lock. The window of the room was open and immediately beneath it, on the ledge, the girl was still crouched.

Lieut. Burns reached down to complete the rescue, but the girl cried "No! No!" and shrank in terror on her perch.

"Come now, give me your hands," said the fireman firmly, again reaching down. The girl, apparently paralyzed with fear, could not respond.

"Get Me a Bath Towel!"

"Get me a bath towel!" Burns ordered one of his squad. There were several on a bathroom rack, and the lieutenant was soon ready to finish his job. Holding the towel by its ends, he leaned out, looped it under the girl's arms and yanked her to her feet. An instant later she was in the room.

When a physician had quieted her hysteria the young woman gave her name as Madeline Britain, 18 years old, of Salem, Ill. She had smelled smoke, she said, and upon opening the door had found heavy billows filling the corridor. In panic, she closed the door—and locked it—to keep the smoke out, then dropped from her window to the ledge.

As for the fire, flames in the hotel's incinerator had ignited paper caught in the flue and the smoke had poured out into the hotel. Damage was slight.

LAKE TO REPEL ZERO WAVE FROM CHICAGO, SAYS WEATHER MAN

A wind shift frustrated the efforts of the weather man to give Chicago a really heavy snowfall yesterday, and last night Forecaster J. R. Lloyd concluded that Lake Michigan would turn back the expected zero wave, which was sweeping in from the northwest. He predicted a probable minimum today of 15 degrees, with tomorrow "continued cold."

In the city the snow reached a depth of 3.2 inches, while some of the suburbs reported a 4 inch covering. After intermittent snowfall Friday night the storm rose to almost blizzard proportion at 7 a. m. yesterday. Trafic slowed down appreciably but snow crews of the surface lines and the buses kept service going without interruption.

High drifts blocked roads in the northwest part of Cook county, but snow plows broke through and a shift in the wind from the east to the northwest stopped the flakes' descent about noon. Air travel resumed in the afternoon. To the south and southwest, ice added to the peril of motorists.

BREWERY TOLD TO SCRAP CALENDAR PICTURING QUINTS

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Arnold Smith, deputy liquor commissioner of Ontario, said today he had written an Ontario brewery complaining of a calendar the company issued bearing pictures of the Dionne quintuplets. He asked it be withdrawn.

Smith said there was no mention of beer on the calendar, but it advertised ice manufactured by the brewery.

"We don't object to a brewery giving a wholesale customer a calendar to hang in his beverage rooms," he said. "There is nothing illegal in this case but it is a matter of poor taste. Seeing that the guardians of the quints object, I am backing them up."

Malcolm MacDonald Gets Black Eye at Vote Meeting

DINGWALL, Scotland, Jan. 18.—(AP) Malcolm MacDonald's effort to reenter parliament brought him a black eye tonight. The son of former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was being cheered by his supporters at a meeting when a snowball flung by a foe hit him in the right eye, breaking his spectacles and cutting his nose. MacDonald's eye was heavily bandaged when he addressed the meeting later.

PRESIDENT SEES 'BOONDOGGLING' AS TRADE SPUR

Pretty 'Good Word,' He Declares.

Rap New Deal

New Deal is attacked by ex-Senator James A. Reed and ex-Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, two Democratic leaders, before Ohio lawyers. Story on page 9.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.
[Photographed as he started speech last night.]
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Newark, N. J., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt came to the defense of "boondoggling" today in the course of an impromptu address to some 500 petty chieftains of the New Deal, to whom he gave campaign instructions which are expected to be a model for the entire governmental army for the next few months.

"It's a pretty good word, this boondoggling," he remarked. "If we can boondoggle our way out of this depression the word will be enshrined in the hearts of Americans for years to come."

"Walking Encyclopedias."

In effect, the President told the representatives of the numerous alphabetical agencies each one of them must be a press agent for the New Deal—"walking encyclopedias" was the phrase used by the chief executive.

A vast portion of the public is lamentably ignorant of the beneficent features of the Rooseveltian recovery program, the President remarked, and "fool stories" flood the country which tend to excite suspicion in the people concerning the benefits of the New Deal. It will be the duty of all employés of federal agencies to combat these "untrue reports," Mr. Roosevelt said, and they must cooperate in spreading the truth about the administration's efforts.

See State Rights Safe.

He concluded with an assertion that the government was not interfering with state rights.

"We are still carrying out the principles of home rule," he asserted.

Addressing his listeners as "fellow workers," the President spoke earnestly of "your relations to the public."

"I know that all of you, like myself, are constantly hearing all sorts of fool stories about our work," Mr. Roosevelt said. "Let us be charitable and say that these stories spring from a lack of information. It is our duty to correct this ignorance. We must explain what it's all about."

Trying to Be Helpful.

"We are filling a current need," he continued, "but we are trying to do it in such a way that it will be useful to the generations to come. These projects are suggested by local authorities themselves, from governors and mayors and county supervisors.

TODAY IN THE WANT AD SECTION

Bar Cartoons of Roosevelt Out of Mails

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Three of the cartoon stamps issued by the National Republican council of New York were held unmailable in a decision given to Postmaster General James A. Farley today by Karl A. Crowley, solicitor of the postoffice department.

This decision was given as the result of an inquiry by the postmaster in New York, who this week held up thousands of letters bearing such stamps which hold up to personal ridicule the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

This organization has printed five stamps, two of which, the decision declared, are mailable, "as they relate solely to abstractions."

Frankenstein Portrayed.

The three stickers held to be unmailable are described in the decision as follows:

"1. This is an illustration having as its foundation Mary Shelley's story, 'Frankenstein,' a man who made a monstrous and destructive being. The illustration shows in the lower right hand corner an astonished and frightened individual bearing an intended resemblance to the President observing a giant labeled 'Burocratic Government,' dressed in Russian costume, treading upon industrial plants, labeled 'United States Business,' the sticker bearing the title 'Frankenstein [?] D. Roosevelt.'

"2. This shows a caricature of the President flippantly lighting a cigaret from a taper composed of a scroll labeled 'Constitution of the United States.'

"3. This is a caricature of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt seated on the Democratic donkey at the very edge of a precipice, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt both portrayed as laughing while the former holds before him a microphone and Mrs. Roosevelt holds aloft a communistic banner: 'Utopia' in the distance."

Text of Postal Law.

The law under which the stamps were barred reads as follows:

"All matter otherwise mailable by law, upon the envelope or outside cover or wrapper of which, or any postal card upon which, any delineations, epithets, terms, or language of an indecent, lewd, lascivious, obscene, libelous, scurrilous, defamatory or threatening character, or calculated by the terms or manner or style of display and obviously intended to reflect injuriously upon the character or conduct of another, may be written or printed or otherwise impressed or apparent, are hereby declared nonmailable matter and shall not be conveyed in the mails nor delivered from any postoffice nor by any letter carrier, and shall be withdrawn from the mails under such regulations as the postmaster general shall prescribe.

"Whoever shall knowingly deposit or cause to be deposited, for mailing or delivery, anything declared by this section to be nonmailable matter, or shall knowingly take the same or cause the same to be taken from the mails for the purpose of circulating or disposing of or aiding in the circulation or disposition of the same, shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars or imprisoned not more than five years, or both."

Hint Impeachable Actions.

The decision traced the enactment of this law and court decisions bearing upon mailable matter, and added:

"The stickers which I have described as numbers 1, 2, and 3, appear to me to fall within the prohibition of the statute in that they attribute to the President certain impeachable actions and unpraiseworthy attitudes, as well as a lack of foresight, i.e., things contributing in no small measure to one's character.

"To be likened to Frankenstein as a creator of something maleficent certainly reflects no credit upon one's character.

"In my opinion, to intimate, as does sticker number 2, that one sworn to uphold the constitution, holds that obligation so lightly, as nonchalantly to employ its destruction as a means to facilitate the procurement of the slight personal pleasure to be derived from the smoking of a cigaret, is to reflect seriously upon one's morality and mentality, and therefore upon his character."

Asked Reason for 156 Foot Jump; 'You'd Be Surprised'

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 18. — (AP) — Marcus Jacobson, 20, jumped 156 feet from the Delaware river bridge today, then swam 800 feet to the Philadelphia shore.

He was taken to a hospital where he was reported to have suffered a strained back.

Police asked him why he did it.

"You'd be surprised," was the answer.

BRITISH RULER'S HEART WEAKER; NATION STUNNED

Doctors and Royalty Keep Palace Vigil.

BULLETIN.

SANDRINGHAM, Jan. 19. (Sunday).—(U. P.)—At 7:50 a. m. (1:50 a. m. Chicago time) there was no indication of a change in King George's condition. The morning broke gray and extremely cold, the lawns of Sandringham house blanketed with frost. No one had left the house since early in the night.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The life of King George V. of Great Britain hangs on slender threads. The gravest fears were felt about his surviving the night after bulletins today announced that his heart weakness had grown worse.

The 70 year old monarch's bronchial catarrh, contracted since Wednesday, has affected his lungs and nose, causing hoarseness, feverishness, and sore throat, it was revealed. The pulmonary inflammation, presumably, has been carried to the heart. Fresh tanks of oxygen were speeded to Sandringham, where the king is fighting for his life tonight.

Sleeping at Midnight.

A bulletin issued shortly before midnight asserted that the king was sleeping peacefully. It reported no change in his condition.

At 10 o'clock tonight it was announced the king's condition was the same as that reported in the bulletin issued at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, which said the king's heart condition was worse.

The 10 o'clock pronouncement was called an official statement, not a bulletin signed by the doctors. It was apparently a verbal announcement from one of the doctors or nurses and was taken to be slightly more reassuring than the last bulletin, or at least indicating that the king had not lost ground.

Barring a sudden change for the worse, it was announced that no further statements on the king's condition will be issued tonight, but a statement or bulletin will be issued tomorrow morning.

Three Doctors Stand By.

Three doctors, Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Stanley Hewett, and Sir Frederic Willans, are remaining all night at Sandringham house—about 100 miles northeast of London—so they can be called instantly by Nurses Black and Davis, who are sharing the night watch. It was Nurse Black who cared for the king during his almost fatal illness of 1928-'29.

The attention of the whole empire tonight was turned toward the quiet room in the west wing of Sandringham house in Norfolk, where the king lies ill.

Despite the cold and unpleasant weather, crowds stayed before the gates at Buckingham palace here in London for the latest bulletins. As they waited five women, fashionably dressed, got out of a car, kneeled on the pavement before the grilling of the palace and prayed.

Other Crowds at Sandringham.

Other crowds waited outside the Sandringham palace gates in the snowbound, wind swept countryside of Norfolk watching the palace lights and waiting for news.

Throughout the empire, stunned by the sudden onslaught of the king's illness, there was tense anxiety.

At Sandringham in anxious waiting were, besides Queen Mary, all the king's children except the duke of Gloucester, the third son, who is ill at Buckingham palace in London, and the duke of Kent, the youngest son, who was rushing to Sandringham tonight from the home of friends in the country, where he was spending the week-end.

The princess royal, wife of the earl of Harewood, and who is the king's only daughter, arrived at Sandringham this morning.

Princesses Sent Away.

The fact that the little princesses, Elizabeth, 9, and Margaret Rose, 5, daughters of the duke and duchess of York and granddaughters of the king and queen, were sent away from Sandringham to London was seen as an indication of the gravity of the king's illness.

The two girls had been making snow men in the palace yard all morning. They were told at lunch time that their grandfather was ill and that they would have to return to London, but they were taken to his room to say farewell before they were put on a train.

When a bulletin was issued at 7:30 p. m. that Sir Maurice Cassidy, famous heart specialist who was called into consultation this morning, had left Sandringham, that Queen Mary had visited the king, and that later the prince of Wales and the duke of York, their eldest two sons, went to the sick room, it was thought to be an ominous sign.

Oxygen had been administered during the night, but its use had to be abandoned later because of the king's heart weakness. After consultations again the king's three physicians summoned Dr. Cassidy, who arrived at Sandringham from London shortly after noon. He left later in the afternoon.

"The king had some hours of restful sleep. The cardiac weakness and embarrassment of the circulation have slightly increased and give cause for anxiety."

From then on the whole country has been waiting anxiously for further tidings, and messages and inquiries about the monarch's health are pouring in from all parts of the world. One message came from Adolf Hitler, Nazi, dictator, who sent his "sincerest wishes for a full recovery."

Meanwhile Sandringham house was ablaze with lights. As Norfolk laborers returned over snow covered roads to their homes they read bulletins at the public houses and gathering places, and collected together to discuss the news.

Watch West Wing Lights.

Crowds stood outside the king's palace late tonight to watch the lights in the room in the west wing. Villagers in silent knots gazed up the long drives flanked by snow banks. From time to time the figure of a nurse or doctor, shadowed against the window pane, could be seen moving about in the sick room.

Folk in the nearby hamlets, to whom the king is a familiar figure because of the frequency of his visits to Sandringham, were staying up tonight and lights twinkled in most of the cottages.

Many of the king's servants live in nearby Dersingham. When they return to their home eager questions are asked. For miles around Sandringham police on trafic duty are questioned about the latest news. A special guard of police was also stationed around the house tonight.

Illness a Surprise.

The suddenness of the illness came as a surprise to most people on the royal estate. They had seen the king only Wednesday riding on his white pony and did not believe their "squire," as he was known to the countryside, was ill.

In London, however, there had been persistent reports for three weeks that the health of the king, whose silver jubilee as British monarch was celebrated last year, was failing. At Christmas time a conference between a number of the royal princes and the king's doctors was held at Buckingham palace. The doctors reported on the king's health and made precautionary observations.

When the king did not appear at a local function at Sandringham on Christmas day, rumors again spread, and it was reported his Christmas day broadcast had been given by means of a phonograph record.

Because of the gravity of the king's condition, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin canceled plans to spend the week-end at Chequers and stayed at Downing street in constant communication with Sandringham.

Papers Ready for "Extras."

Newspapers throughout the country tonight adopted "emergency measures." They have plates ready to feed the presses for special editions and lines of trucks are waiting outside the pressrooms in the event of serious news from Sandringham.

Tomorrow will be a day of prayer throughout the kingdom for King George's recovery. Special prayers will be offered in the little church at Sandringham where the king himself worships.

Prayers were said today at Canterbury cathedral and the archbishop prefaced his address by saying:

"It would be foolish to deny there is ground for anxiety, but there are also grounds for hope. Let us pray that the life which means so much to this realm will be restored to full health and vigor."

The Catholic archbishop, Peter Emanuel Amigo of Southwark, issued an order that a prayer for the king be read in all churches tomorrow.

King Never Dies.

In the event of the king's death, the prince of Wales automatically becomes king. The theory of English law is that a king or queen never dies, which substantially means that the throne is never vacant. A meeting of the privy council is held immediately after the crown's demise, usually the next day, to give directions for proclaiming the new sovereign and to swear in members of the new privy council.

The proclamation occurs at London in St. James's palace, Charing Cross, Temple Bar and the Royal Exchange two or three days later.

The coronation of the new sovereign by the archbishop of Canterbury takes place a year later. It is one of the most colorful ceremonials in England.

ONE PHONE LINE LINKS WORLD TO PALACE OF KING

DERSINGHAM, Norfolkshire, England, Jan. 18.—(AP)—One lone telephone line linking this medieval village on the Norfolk heathland—one of the most isolated spots in England—with the outside world carries the burden of thousands of words flashed out to the four corners of the earth on King George's illness.

Dersingham is three miles from Sandringham house and the nearest village to the royal mansion, where the sovereign lies stricken.

As a result, at least 60 newspaper men are forced to line up before a single telephone booth, like Saturday night queues before a theater in America.

FIGHT MEYERING APPOINTMENT AS PROBATION CHIEF

Loesch and Judges Act to Upset Decision.

Opposition to the appointment of William D. Meyering, former sherif of Cook county, as chief probation officer was voiced yesterday by Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission, several judges and court attachés. The recall or revocation of the appointment may be asked, it was indicated.

Meyering was named to the post on Friday after his name was submitted by Superior Judge James J. Kelly who announced that Meyering was the unanimous choice of a group of judges acting as a joint committee of the judges' committees on probation. Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan is chairman of the Circuit court committee on probation and Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court acted for a committee of his court, it was explained. The Superior court has no committee on probation, so Judges Finnegan and Sonsteby were said to have acted with all the members of the Superior court in making the appointment.

No Notice of Meeting.

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude, speaking for his court, said he had no knowledge of any meeting to consider a successor to John W. Houston. Municipal Judge Edward Casey also said he and other Municipal judges had no notice of such a meeting.

Judges Trude and Casey said they would request a rehearing at which all circuit, superior, and municipal judges might participate and vote on the appointment. There is no definite term for the apointment, they said, and the chief probation officer may be replaced at will.

Mr. Loesch and others of the crime commission objected to Meyering acting as chief probation officer because, Mr. Loesch explained, "he made a poor record as sherif." Several judges made the same statement.

Removal Action Hinted.

"I don't wish to call the appointment bad—only poor," said Loesch. "Meyering's record as sherif certainly did not qualify him for the probation post, and I don't think he is a competent man for the place. The crime commission, at its meeting next Thursday, may discuss possible action toward his removal."

Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the crime commission, said he didn't wish to be quoted regarding the appointment, in view of the possibility of action by the commission next Thursday. He said, however, that Meyering's conduct as sherif was not to his credit; that Meyering's appointments of deputies and special deputies in some instances were not of the best character, and that he left the county jail in a deplorable condition.

Mr. Loesch, Col. Chamberlin, Judges Trude and Casey, and several persons on the present staf of the probation service said the selection of a chief probation officer should not be political. A man should have special qualifications and training for that position, they added.

Politics a Bad Precedent.

Attorney Henry P. Chandler, president of the Civil Service Association of Chicago, said it is bad precedent to fill the office of chief probation officer through politics. The appointee should be selected on merit, he said, recalling that a similar position in the Juvenile court was filled several years ago after an examination of the civil service type, and the man selected has given excellent service.

Meyering was an alderman with a good record prior to his election as sherif, it was conceded, and his present appointment was attributed to his affiliation with a wing of the Democratic party which includes Judge Kelly, his sponsor, and United State's Attorney Michael L. Igoe. To them, it was reported, Meyering had made promises of attention to duty if given the position, which he is said to need and which pays $5,000 a year.

Faces Death Chair

MRS. DOROTHY SHERWOOD.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—An electric chair verdict was returned today against Mrs. Dorothy Sherwood, 27 years old, who thrust her 2 year old son, James, under the waters of Moodna creek last Aug. 20 in what she described as a "mercy drowning" to save him from starvation.

The jury's finding was "guilty of first degree murder, with a recommendation of mercy."

Judge Jonathan Wilson immediately announced that a first degree murder verdict made it mandatory for him to impose the death sentence, and that only Gov. Lehman can extend clemency. He said he would forward the jury's recommendation to the governor.

Mrs. Sherwood, former burlesque dancer and one-time Salvation Army lassie, sat dry-eyed and stunned as the blow fell.

But sobs burst from many women in the packed courtroom. Even several of the jurors were tearful.

PRINCE DISOWNS WISH TO BECOME KING OF AUSTRIA

Starhemberg Says Time Not Ripe for Monarchy.

VIENNA, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, Austria's powerful vice chancellor, made plain today that a Hapsburg restoration to the Austrian throne is not imminent and at the same time disclaimed ambitions, long attributed to him, to assume the regency or even the monarchy.

Von Starhemberg, who by virtue of his control of his private army, the Fascist heimwehr, is probably the most influential man in Austria, declared:

"Reports that I want to be king or regent are nonsense which shrieks to high heaven. Nothing of the kind is being planned.

"Time Not Ripe for Monarchy."

"If and when a monarchy is to be reëstablished remains a question of time. The present moment is not the time. And I can tell you that the emperor, Otto, is of the same opinion.

"I can also say that as long as such an effort might endanger the peace of Europe there will be no attempt to restore the monarchy."

Some diplomatic observers asserted that the statement would do much to remove political uncertainty in central Europe where it has long been felt a restoration of the Austrian monarchy, either with Archduke Otto or Von Starhemberg on the throne, might badly upset the present delicate balance.

Supports Present Régime.

The statement came on the eve of the first general assembly of leaders of the patriotic front, the coalition of the various groups supporting the government of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg. The vice chancellor declared that there would be "no surprises tomorrow" and added that the assembly would adopt a firm resolution to support the present régime.

MacVEAGH HIT IN NEW ACTION BY MISS HAGEN

EAMES MacVEAGH.

Eames MacVeagh, 60 years old, son of the late Franklin MacVeagh, pioneer Chicago grocer, was named defendant in a new action filed in the Municipal court yesterday for $3,250 by Miss Louise Hagen of New York City, charging breach of contract. On Sept. 15 Miss Hagen was awarded a judgment of $2,500 on a similar suit filed Dec. 14, 1934.

Shortly after the suit had been filed by Attorney Herbert R. Stoffels, representing Miss Hagen, Deputy Bailiff Lucius Barnett served the summons in the suit at the MacVeagh apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue by posing as an art collector from Cleveland. Barnett reported that the household furnishings, including several objects of art, are being disposed of by the MacVeaghs who will make their home at Washington, D. C.

Appointed by Ickes.

MacVeagh, it was reported yesterday, has received a federal appointment in the capital under Secretary Ickes. Dispatches from Washington, however, said there was no record of it. The defendant's father held the post of secretary of the treasury under President Taft.

Miss Hagen, now 47 years old, testified in the trial of the first suit that Mr. MacVeagh was the father of her 24 year old son. She asserted that for 25 years he lavished gifts and attentions upon her.

Following his marriage in 1929 to Miss Zelie Barthelmy, daughter of Antonin Barthelmy, for ten years French consul general in Chicago, he made a contract agreeing to give her an allowance of $250 a month for the rest of her life, she declared. The suit filed yesterday, according to Attorney Stoffels, is for the payments accumulated since the first suit.

Bailiff's Service Ruse.

Bailif Barnett yesterday called the defendant's wife on the telephone and made an appointment to come to the apartment to purchase several art works. Mrs. MacVeagh recognized the process server when she opened the door yesterday and attempted to slam it shut when Barnet put his foot in as a wedge.

According to Barnett she then called him a "nasty man" and said it was a dirty way to get in some one's private home.

The judgment awarded Miss Hagen last September is being appealed by MacVeagh through his attorney, Senator James J. Barbour. After the verdict in the Municipal court, Mr. Barbour asserted that the judgment was worthless, as his client is penniless.

N. J. DETECTIVE ASKS LIFE TERM FOR HAUPTMANN

Mt. Holly, N. J., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Ellis Parker, chief of Burlington county detectives, suggested today that "because of the uncertainty that prevails in this case," Bruno Richard Hauptmann's sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

"Society would not be injured," he said in a statement, "and the ends of justice would be met."

Parker said Gov. Harold G. Hoffman's motive in granting Hauptmann a 30 day reprieve was "solely one of justice," because "down in his heart the governor feels sure there is something wrong with this case."

"The star witnesses . . . have since testified to things or given statements that were entirely contrary to the testimony at the trial," Parker said. "I am sure the governor, as well as myself, have the highest regard for the courts of our land and would not say anything that would cast a reflection upon them. The courts unquestionably did their duty as they saw it and perhaps could do nothing else. But if the courts were not acquainted with different things that might have occurred that would change the complexion or the whole affair, they could only render their verdict on what was presented to them.

"I know there is something wrong in this case and it would be a shame to have this man's life taken," he said.

HOFFMAN SILENT ON NEXT STEP IN LINDBERGH CASE

Report New Inquiry to Start Tomorrow.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Just what Gov. Harold G. Hoffman is doing to clear up those angles of the Lindbergh kidnap-murder case which he believes are unsolved still was a mystery today, two days after he granted the convicted Bruno Richard Hauptmann a reprieve.

In his statement yesterday in which he defended his action and hit back at newspapers and citizens who are demanding his impeachment, Gov. Hoffman said: "I intend to direct the state police to continue their search for any other person or persons involved in the crime."

Order Expected Monday.

There was a report today that an order directing the New Jersey state police to reopen the case would be issued Monday.

Hauptmann's reprieve is for thirty days. When that period is over he must be resentenced and the execution date at that time must be set at least four weeks in the future.

This gives the governor two months in which to untangle to his satisfaction the mystery on which the crime detection agencies of the state and the government spent two and a half years before Hauptmann's arrest and another six months before his conviction.

Hint Woman Is Suspect.

Among rumors about his inquiry was one that a German closely resembling Hauptmann in appearance was being sought and another that there was a woman suspect. Neither story has any official confirmation.

EDSEL FORD FORMS FOUNDATION; ACTUAL PURPOSE KEPT SECRET

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Articles of incorporation for the Ford Foundation of Dearborn have been filed with the corporations and securities commission, it was learned here today. No information was vouchsafed by those filing the papers, however, as to the actual purposes of the new organization.

Edsel B. Ford, son of Henry Ford, motor magnate; Bert J. Craig, and Clifford Longley are listed as incorporators. Edsel Ford is understood to be out of the state and Craig refused to comment on the matter.

Purposes stated in the articles include: "To receive and administer funds for scientific, educational, and charitable purposes, or for the public welfare." Headquarters are given as the Ford engineering laboratories at Dearborn.

ONCE NORFOLK RECTOR NAMED VICAR BY KING

LONDON, Jan. 18.—[U.P.]—Announcement was made today that King George of Great Britain had approved the appointment of the Rev. Harold Dobson-Peacock to be vicar of St. Barnabas' church in Derbyshire.

The Rev. Dobson-Peacock, formerly rector of Christ church, Norfolk, Va., may be remembered as a principal of the Norfolk, Va., angle of the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

He aided John Hughes Curtis after the latter claimed he had established contact with the kidnapers.

CONVICTED TAX FIXER ON PAROLE DOES COMEBACK

David D. Beyers, who is on parole from the Joliet penitentiary, to which he was sentenced for tax fixing, has gone back to his old racket, according to charges being investigated yesterday by the state's attorney's office.

Beyers was sent to prison in 1930 for fleecing wealthy holders of Chicago real estate, through a pretentious loop office. This time, according to the complaints, he has been operating in a saloon which he owns in Niles Center, taking $1,170 from realty owners of the suburb on the pretense he could get their taxes cut, according to the complaints.

His suburban victims include Mrs. Ida Harms, mother of Police Magistrate Percy Harms; Raymond C. Klehm, 7835 Niles Center road, owner of a stationery store, and Beyers' landlord; Klehm's brother, Harold K., and John Schoeneberger, who owns a dry goods store.

Admits Diverting Money.

Although the victims were reluctant to discuss the matter, an outline of the case was given by Assistant State's Attorney William C. Rotchford, who questioned Beyers yesterday.

"Beyers admits he got the money," Mr. Rotchford explained, "but he insists the amount is nearer $1,100. He says he was given the money to adjust real estate and personal property taxes but that instead he used the money to renovate his tavern. Even now Beyers claims to have a plan whereby he can repay the money. I understand he promised to have the taxes reduced one-third.

Beyers' tavern, at 8212 Lincoln avenue, was operated by Fred W. Kohlmann until his death four months ago. After Kohlmann's death Beyers took over the tavern, which is now known as the 'Town Pump."

Picks Landlord for Victim.

Raymond Klehm owns the building in which it is located. Beyers persuaded him his taxes were exorbitant, and offered to have them reduced "through his connections," according to Mr. Rotchford. The other "victims" were drawn into the alleged swindle later.

On Dec. 22 Klehm caused Beyers' arrest on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. The amount stated in the formal complaint is only $43. Beyers' preliminary hearing will be before Magistrate Harms, who is Klehm's brother-in-law, as well as son of one of the other victims.

"I wouldn't exactly call it tax fixing," said Magistrate Harms. "The reductions were to be made 'legally through the board of tax appeals.' But I shouldn't talk about this case. After all I'm to hold the hearing."

It's Surprise to Chief.

Chief of Police A. C. Stolberg expressed surprise that Beyers was an ex-convict. He disclosed that Beyers had applied for a 1936 tavern license in the name of his wife, Grace. He added that under the circumstances he doubted if the license would be granted.

Beyers' conviction in 1930 followed a long search for him after he fled from his elaborate suite of offices at 40 North Michigan avenue in 1929. It was said then that he had derived between $100,000 and $150,000 through a tax adjustment racket. After many continuances he was finally brought to trial and sentenced to 1 to 10 years in prison. He was granted a parole late in 1934.

DIES ON STREET OF HEART ATTACK.

Joseph Trier, 48 years old, 2930 Fletcher street, owner of a tavern at North Troy and Elston avenues, died yesterday of a heart attack in front of 3231 North Albany avenue.

PARENTS WILL DRAW JUNE TRAVIS' PAY; GIVE PART TO HER

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 18.—(AP)—June Travis will continue to work in the movies, but she will not see her salary checks. An arrangement by Miss Travis, her parents, and her studio [Warners] puts the 20 year old actress on an allowance. The deal made today will send her salary check to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grabiner of Chicago, and they will send her $75 weekly. The remainder will go to a bank. Her salary is said to be about $350 weekly.

On her 25th birthday June's money will be turned over to her. But, if she marries before that, the deal ends. June says if she marries she hopes her husband will be able to look after her financial affairs. Grabiner is an executive of the Chicago White Sox baseball team.

DARE NYE TO ASK MORE CASH FOR MUNITIONS QUIZ

Refuses to Tell Peace Talk Earnings.

BY CHESLEY MANLY.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—The senate imbroglio over the slurring of President Wilson's war record by the munitions committee flared up again today and the Democrats indicated their determination not to give the investigators another dollar.

Senator Gerald P. Nye [Radical, N. D.], chairman of the munitions committee, who enraged the Democrats four days ago by saying President Wilson "falsified" concerning his knowledge of secret European treaties, was challenged on the senate floor to offer for immediate consideration a resolution for more funds.

Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], chairman of the audit and control committee, told Nye that such a resolution would be reported out immediately and put up to a vote of the senate. Byrnes knew very well what the senate would do and so did Nye, for he declined the proposition, saying the munitions committee would have to meet first and determine how much it needed.

Nye has said that he would need about $9,000 to complete the investigation of J. P. Morgan & Co., fiscal agents for Great Britain during the war, and the preparation of recommendations for neutrality and "war profits" legislation. He hopes that after a few days the indignant southern Democrats will "cool off," but the talk in the cloakrooms indicated little possibility of this.

Senator Nye backed out today on his promise made yesterday to give the senate a list of his earnings from "peace" lectures given all over the country before church and pacifist organizations. Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.], who had exacted this promise from Senator Nye, asked whether he was ready to tell the senate how much he had made.

"Will the senator join me in a resolution calling upon all senators to report annually all their outside income?" Nye asked.

"I will not," Connally replied, "but I'll tell the senate how much I have made."

Nye admitted again that he had received "honorariums" for speeches made in his capacity as chairman of the munitions committee and added: "If honorariums are offered I'm going to keep on accepting them."

"We know that," Connally retorted.

Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.], then demanded a detailed expense account, showing how the committee had spent $124,600, including personal expenses of committee members, and Senator Byrnes instructed the disbursing officer to prepare this information.

With the emotions of the Southern Democrats at the boiling point—as evidenced yesterday by Senator Carter Glass' vehement denunciation of Senator Nye—there is an increasing tendency to question the motives of the committee members, their political philosophy and their war records.

Neutrality Law Believed Lost.

The indignation of the overwhelming Democratic majority is so strong that the pending permanent neutrality legislation is threatened and little hope is seen, even by its sponsors, for the bills to "take the profits out of war."

Senator Bennett Clark [Dem., Mo.] took cognizance in a senate speech today of rumors and published stories that he had a personal reason to be prejudiced against President Wilson.

"For the last several days," Clark declared, "a studious effort has been made by some newspapers to make it appear that my part in the conduct of the munitions committee was actuated by personal animus because President Wilson defeated my father [the late Champ Clark] for the Democratic nomination for President in Baltimore in 1912.

Animosity for Bryan.

"That matter is easily disposed of. There was never the slightest animosity between my father and President Wilson or between the memory of President Wilson and any member of my father's family. My father was a candidate, as he had a right to be, and he received a majority on nine ballots. He was defeated subsequently by President Wilson, who also was a candidate and had a right to be and so far as I ever was informed did nothing improper or blameworthy in connection with that fight.

"Such animosity as my father had and such animosity as I have felt was directed toward another man, a delegate instructed as a delegate, under a law which he drew himself, for my father, and who betrayed my father at the Baltimore convention, namely, William Jennings Bryan."

Quiz Favorable to Bryan.

This was the most effective reply Senator Clark could make to the charge of personal animosity, for the course of the munitions investigation has been signally favorable to Secretary of State Bryan, who resigned because he did not agree with President Wilson and Robert Lansing respecting loans and credits to the allies.

Another conjecture heard in senate circles is that Senator Clark is seeking to defend the memory of the late Senator William J. Stone [Dem., Mo.], war time chairman of the foreign relations committee, who cast one of six senate votes against the war resolution. Documentary evidence placed in the record by Senator Clark has included correspondence relating to differences between the Wilson administration and Senator Stone, who was strongly pro-German and vigorously opposed loans and credits to the allies.

Senator Clark, in a summation of the record today, said it showed that "our neutral rights were flagrantly and repeatedly violated by great Britain," and that repeated protests from this country were ignored. He quoted Secretary of State Lansing as saying the protests to Great Britain were "submerged in verbosity" and that this was done with "deliberate intent."

Emphasizes "Before War."

Senator Clark closed with the statement that he did not believe President Wilson "had personal knowledge of the secret treaties before we entered the war." He emphasized "before we entered the war." Much of the evidence on which Senator Nye based his charge of falsification related to the period immediately after America entered the war.

Senator Glass responded briefly to Senator Clark's summation of the record, saying he had listened with interest and adding:

"There is not a member of this senate with reasonable intelligence who wasn't familiar with every fact in that summation and I submit that the record doesn't justify the expenditure of $125,000, nor of twenty-five cents."

Records of Investigators and Leaders in Munitions Inquiry Revealed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Because the course of the senate munitions committee's survey of world war causes has been more favorable to Germany than to Great Britain and because two of the investigators have German names, southern Democrats suspect that the committee is pro-German in sympathy. Whatever merit there may be in this suspicion, there is no question that the atmosphere and background of the whole inquiry are pacifistic and socialistic.

The resolution for the senate investigation was drafted under the direction of Dorothy Detzer, national secretary of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, who shopped around the senate looking for some one to introduce it until she found Senator Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota radical.

Nye put it over by threatening to filibuster the 1934 revenue bill in favor of his amendment calling for a 98 per cent tax on all incomes above $10,000 in event of war. Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], chairman of the finance committee, anxious to get his tax bill passed with dispatch, made a deal with Nye whereby the munitions inquiry was voted.

Committee Hand Picked.

Miss Detzer states in her report that "the committee which finally was chosen by the vice president, consisting of Senators Bone, Vandenberg, Nye, Pope, Barbour, Clark, and George, was no accident, nor was the choice of the chief investigator, Stephen Raushenbush."

This "league" Miss Detzer represents and which sponsored the senate munitions inquiry has as its purpose to "study, make known, and abolish the political, social, economic, and psychological causes of war and to work for a constructive peace."

Something of the political philosophy of Raushenbush is indicated by an article he wrote for the "Socialism of Our Times" which Senator L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.] introduced in the congressional record last June.

Points "Way" to Students.

"The students coming from the colleges today can do something more than be filled with wholesome and cleansing indignation," he wrote. "They can be of enormous use to the movement as government officials, starting in small and definitely working on the reasonable hope that in the course of another 10 years we shall have government control of a much more definite kind over our trusts, banks, and general industries.

"One good man, with his eyes, ears, and wits about him, inside the department can do more to perfect the technique of control over industry than a hundred men outside.

"This side of revolution [Russia, Italy, Germany], we can only take what opportunities we can make ourselves or are suffered for illustrations in Socialist practice, to convince both the workers and the middle class that we are right, that the abolition of the profit system is to their interest. . . ."

Son of a German.

Raushenbush says he is registered Republican but Senator Dickinson, who was elected as a Republican, was mildly horrified by the above quotations. Raushenbush is of German descent, his grandfather having settled in Missouri in 1840. He is from Duncannon, Pa., and was graduated from Amherst college in 1917.

Immediately after graduation he was enlisted in the army and went to France with an ambulance unit, serving in that capacity until the close of the war. After the war he worked in the Pennsylvania coal mines, in Mexican and Venezuelan oil camps, became secretary of two radical unofficial organizations—the National Committee on Coal and Power, and the New York state committee on power. He taught economics at Dartmouth in 1929 and 1930 and from 1931 to 1934 was director of the bureau of industrial relations of Pennsylvania. He has written two books, "Power Control," in 1928, and "The Power Fight," in 1932.

Too Young for War.

The other investigator of German extraction is Robert Wohlforth, who was too young for service in the world war, but resigned his commission in the army two years after graduation from West Point [in 1926] and wrote a book, "Tin Soldiers," which did the academy no credit. Wohlforth is from Richfield, Conn., and also professes to be a Republican.

A third investigator says his ancestors came over on the Mayflower, that his great-great-grandfather was killed in the American revolutionary war. He is Lawrence Brown, Harvard '26. He worked for a while in a New York bank and later for the "New Republic," a radical magazine until Raushenbush put him to work investigating the nation's defenses.

A fourth investigator is Miss Josephine Burns, who scrutinized the secret diplomatic files in the state department and laid the foundation for the committee's conclusion that the financial intrigues of J. P. Morgan & company, and not Germany's submarines, put the United States into the world war. Miss Burns, an articulate young woman of deep convictions, is a product of Mount Holyoke college, which gave to the world and the New Deal Madame Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Senator Nye was 24 years old when America entered the war, was married and had one daughter. He says, the question of enlisting or staying at home gave him no little mental distress and that he actually hoped he would be drafted, but was not called. He did not volunteer, he says, because his only income was from a small newspaper in North Dakota and his wife and child had no other means of support. He was everything from publisher to printer on the paper and if he went to war it would have gone out of existence. However, Senator Nye declares he was chairman of the Billings county Liberty loan drives, county food administrator, director of the war savings stamp sales in his county and chairman of the joint charity drive put on by churches and the Y. M. C. A.

Clark an Army Colonel.

Besides Senator Nye, the most active member of the munitions committee is Senator Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.], who introduced into the records the documentary evidence on which Senator Nye based his charges that Woodrow Wilson and Robert Lansing, war time secretary of state, were "falsifiers."

Senators Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] and Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] have indicated in their questioning of Senator Clark a suspicion that the record was doctored in favor of Germany, but they can not question the senators' war record.

He resigned his place as house parliamentarian, under his father, Speaker Champ Clark, and joined the army when war broke out. He went to an officers' training camp and became a lieutenant colonel, went to France and became a colonel. He was one of the founders of the American Legion.

PATMAN SPEAKS HERE PRECEDING FOOD EXPOSITION

Senator Wright Patman of Texas, speaking last night before 500 members of the National Food Brokers' association in convention at the Stevens hotel, predicted passage of his bill at this session of congress which would give independent merchants a fair chance to compete with chain store competitors. Independent dealers are asking only equal rights, the senator said.

The food brokers are here for Chicago's first international food show, which will open tomorrow morning in the Palmer house with displays arranged by 60 exhibitors of food, beverages, and time saving kitchen equipment. The show will continue five days, during which many thousand food men will be in Chicago for their trade association conventions. These include the National Canners' association, the American Wholesale Grocers' association, National Retail Owned Grocers' association, and the food brokers.

At the canners' convention, which held its first session at the Stevens hotel yesterday, milk bottled two months ago at the University of Illinois experimental dairy farm through a new steam vapor process was sampled and declared to be fresh. The inventor of the process, William P. White of Chicago, explained that the milk is passed through a special capping machine with a chamber containing hot dry steam.

A well dressed robber last night entered the Hanover shoe store, 129 West Madison street, robbed the assistant manager, John Sangard, 6437 South Green street, of $95 and forced him to take off his trousers to discourage pursuit.

HULL REQUESTS INVESTIGATION OF 20 ARMS FIRMS

Unregistered Companies Face U. S. Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today sent to the department of justice for investigation a list of more than twenty companies suspected of making munitions without registering with the government as required under the neutrality act. The names of the companies were not made public.

In making his request to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, Secretary Hull recalled that all companies making arms or munitions were required to register with the state department within 90 days after the enactment of the neutrality law. The ninety days expired Nov. 29.

On Dec. 3, when 86 companies and persons had registered, Hull issued a warning to more than 50 companies and persons who had failed to comply with the act. Today after a lapse of a month and a half since the warning, more than 20 of the companies had not registered. The state department made public a list of 29 persons and companies registering since the Dec. 3 warning.

BURGLARS POUND AT SAFE IN VAIN; CART IT AWAY

Four cracksmen who wore masks and gloves crawled through an open coal chute into the Wagner Pie company plant at 1751 Austin avenue last evening and kept three employés prisoner while for two hours they vainly tried to smash the combination of a small safe with sledge hammers. Finally they dropped their hammers, trundled the safe into one of the company trucks, and drove away.

The employés, Lee Carroll, 120 North Keeler street, the engineer; Joe Moore, 1215 Fry street, the watchman, and James Martin, 715 South Claremont avenue, were bound and forced to lie on the floor of the office.

PARAGUAY AND BOLIVIA AGREE ON PEACE PACT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 18.—Bolivia and Paraguay were reliably reported tonight to have empowered their delegations to sign an agreement for an exchange of Chaco war prisoners, a renewal of diplomatic relation, and guarantees against resumption of war along the lines suggested by the Buenos Aires peace conference. The agreement is expected to be formally signed at the government house here Tuesday.

It is estimated that Paraguay has 20,000 Bolivian prisoners and that Bolivia holds several thousand Paraguayans. They have been held in prisons since a truce last June 14 ended the Chaco war between the two countries.

Representatives of six neutral countries—the United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, and Uruguay—produced the agreement.

PATROL WAGON STOLEN WHILE POLICE BATTLE

Dozens of squads scouted through west side streets for more than two hours last night hunting a Maxwell police station patrol wagon stolen by pranksters in front of the emergency relief shelter at 1310 South Ashland avenue. They finally found it at 13th and Loomis streets, two blocks from where it was stolen.

Policemen William Thieme and James Dwyer, the crew of the wagon, were sent to the shelter after Henry Page, an attendant, complained that two inmates had stolen his overcoat. Dwyer remained on the driver's seat while Thieme went inside and found the accused inmates, Harry Webb, 48 years old, and John Ahlgren, 57 years old, full of liquor and fighting spirit. Unable to subdue them alone, he summoned Dwyer and with his aid put the pair under arrest. While the struggle was going on some one got into the patrol wagon and drove away with it.

ARGENTINE WIFE SUES TO DIVORCE D'ORSAY PALMER

Cruelty Bill Puts Second Romance on Rocks.

The marital difficulties of the Potter d'Orsay Palmers, which have caused three temporary separations since their marriage in Paris in 1930 led to the divorce court yesterday when Mrs. Maria Martinez de Hoz Palmer filed suit for divorce in the Superior court, charging cruelty, and asking suitable alimony.

Attorney J. Frederick Reeve, who filed the bill, and Attorney Theodore Hardeen Jr., who represents Palmer, indicated that a property settlement is being reached out of court. They declined to reveal what the basis of the agreement might be.

Harsh Tactics Alleged.

The divorce bill asserts that Palmer struck his wife in the face on several occasions, and that he used abusive language against her. It specifically sets forth that he struck her on June 15, 1933, and on July 10 in the same year—both incidents in Chicago.

D'Orsay Palmer, who is the grandson of the late Potter Palmer, pioneer Chicago capitalist, married Mlle. Maria Eugenia Martinez de Hoz five years ago in Paris. Argentine born, she is the niece of E. Martinez de Hoz, a noted race horse owner. Shortly after their marriage difficulties were reported, but after each of three separations there followed reconciliation.

Mrs. Palmer, who is 27 years old, separated from her husband in September, 1934, according to her suit, and now is living in the Palmer house. D'Orsay Palmer was in Chicago yesterday, but was reported preparing to leave for the east.

First Romance in Florida.

The Paris marriage was D'Orsay Palmer's second, and it followed shortly after a short lived romance with Eleanor Goldsmith, 16 years old, the daughter of a Florida truck driver, whom he married in 1928.

Young Palmer met the girl as he was serving as game warden on his father's Florida estate, and he married her despite the difficulties put in his path by his family, which wired 67 county judges in all parts of Florida not to grant him a license. The marriage ended in a Paris divorce in 1929. The young wife charged desertion.

D'Orsay Palmer, who is 30 years old, has been a world traveler in addition to his social activities. In 1927 he nearly lost his life in an attack of sleeping sickness while on an African hunting trip, but a new drug discovered by a German scientist saved him.

'L' AND BUS LINES BEGIN SWAPPING THEIR TRANSFERS

Free transfers between the elevated lines and the Chicago Motor Coach company went into effect at midnight last night at 27 elevated stations specified in the recent order of the Illinois commerce commission. Last September similar intercompany transfer service was inaugurated between the elevated and the surface lines.

Lee A. Freeman, assistant counsel for the commerce commission, yesterday answered criticisms of alleged overcrowding of passengers on the elevated trains because of the new transfer services. He produced data to show that the company has added cars and increased the number of train schedules by 6,000 car-miles daily to handle the increased patronage.

James Garrity of Highwood, a junior in the Deerfield-Shields High school in Highland Park, filed suit for $15,000 damages in the Lake county Circuit court at Waukegan yesterday against C. C. Eiker, an instructor at the school. Garrity charged that last September he was riding on the rear of a school bus being driven by Eiker to the football practice field when it struck a parked car. The student said he was thrown to the pavement, breaking his leg.

Leaves Dog to Guard Her Luggage; Both Are Gone

Willoughby, O., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Miss Erma Alford was looking for her bulldog tonight. She left the dog in her car to guard her suitcase, she told police, and when she returned the suitcase and the dog were missing.

TRAIN DESTROYS STALLED CAR; 2 LEAP TO SAFETY

Crash Victim Aided by Mayor Dies.

An automobile which stalled on the tracks of the Milwaukee railroad at a private crossing south of Everett road in Lake Forest was demolished last night when it was struck by a northbound passenger train.

A man and a woman, who were in the car, leaped out and escaped injury. They left the scene before their identity was established. The license for the automobile was issued to William Duncan of Lake Villa.

John Johnson, colored, 35 years old, 406 East 51st street, died in the County hospital yesterday of a skull fracture incurred Monday when his automobile collided with a street car at 35th street and South Park way. Three other colored persons, including an 8 year old boy, who were riding with Johnson, were seriously injured and are in the hospital.

Mayor Kelly was passing the scene of the accident shortly after it occurred and he halted to aid the victim. Told that the street car had passed a red light, he ordered the arrest of Frank Wagner, 2912 West 39th street, the motorman, on a charge of criminal negligence. His case will be up in the Automobile court on Feb. 28.

Steel Official Injured.

Leroy Kimball, 36 years old, 6200 Kenwood avenue, advertising manager of the Acme Steel company, 2840 Archer avenue, incurred fractures of both legs yesterday when an automobile struck him at about 4100 south in the Outer drive while he was outside his machine investigating a slight collision with another car. Frank Marshall, 54 years old, 6820 Chappel avenue, president of the William H. Pool advertising concern, and driver of the car which struck Kimball, was slightly injured.

County Death Toll Is 57.

Numerous minor accidents were reported on the Outer drive during the morning as slippery pavements increased driving hazards. At a point near the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive, it was reported that there were eleven collisions and that seventy-nine cars spun completely around in the course of an hour.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 57 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. During the same period 49 were killed and 704 injured in trafic accidents within the Chicago city limits.

Other Cook county trafic deaths:

Mrs. Lena Edelstein, 79 years old, 5345 Harper avenue. Died in the South Shore hospital of injuries incurred Dec. 6, when she was struck at 70th street and South Shore drive by an automobile driven by Walter Zelinski, 34 years old, 2252 East 84th street.

Arthur Teck, 18 years old, of Hillsdale. Fatally injured late last night when an automobile in which he was riding collided with a machine driven by Joseph Lakawitch, 22, of 2303 St. Charles road, Bellwood. Teck died as he was being taken to the Westlake hospital in Melrose Park.

Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

DE KOVEN, LATE BOOK MERCHANT, SEEKS DIVORCE

Seymour De Koven filed suit yesterday in Superior court for divorce on the ground of desertion from his second wife, the former Miss Fay Hart of McComb, Miss., whom he married in 1933. A book store which De Koven formerly operated in the loop was raided by police for improper literature several times at the instance of the Rev. Philip Yarrow, superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance association. De Koven now conducts the Seymour Music bureau, 75 East Wacker drive. He is 31 years old, and lives at 1425 North La Salle street. His father is Dr. Bernard De Koven, the physician. De Koven's first wife, Mrs. Rae De Koven, was divorced from him in 1931. Yesterday's suit was filed by the law firm of Turner & Turner.

BANDITS GET $150 IN DIME STORE; OVERLOOK $2,000

Two armed robbers held up employés in the cashier's office of the W. W. Woolworth store, 16 North Michigan avenue, last night, and escaped with $150 in a bag. They failed to pick up a second bag containing $2,000 pay roll money. Miss Violet Kozel, 3001 North Central Park avenue, and Miss Ann Hoffman, 2724 Armitage avenue, were in the glass enclosed office on the first floor when the men entered. One of them pulled a sawed-off shotgun from beneath his overcoat and the other levelled a revolver. They escaped in the Michigan avenue crowds.

FREES TEXAN OF ASSAULT

A charge of assault and battery against Jacob P. Awalt, 39 years old, furniture salesman of Dallas, Tex., was dismissed yesterday by Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli when the complaining witness failed to appear.

NEW AUTO TAGS FAULTY, HUGHES INFORMS MAKER

Specifications Not Met, Secretary Charges.

Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes yesterday notified the C. H. Hanson company, 303 West Erie street, manufacturers of the 1936 state automobile license plates, that the plates were not manufactured in accordance with contract specifications and that steps will be taken to protect the rights of the state and of the public.

In his letter the secretary of state says the contract calls for manufacture of plates that will withstand ordinary usage for a year without deterioration in appearance.

"It appears that certain license plates furnished the state under the contract have shown evidence of faulty manufacture and are deteriorating when placed upon motor vehicles exposed to the weather," wrote Hughes.

Free Duplicates Offered.

Hughes announced that there would be no interruption in the sale of license plates. He said that motorists whose plates deteriorate may obtain duplicates without cost by sending notice to the Springfield office of the secretary of state or his Chicago branch at 120 South Ashland avenue.

C. H. Hanson, head of the company, said it will fulfill its contract and that he will confer with Hughes to learn the "extent of the situation." The Hanson company was awarded the contract on competitive bids.

Last year similar difficulty was experienced with the automobile license plates when they began to rust as early as May. Last year's plates were manufactured by Illinois prison labor.

Sale of Tags Slows Down.

John Nash, chief clerk of the Ashland avenue branch of the state automobile department, reported a sale of approximately 3,000 plates yesterday. His offices are equipped to handle 18,000 applications daily. Peter J. Brady, city clerk, reported 2,018 city vehicle tax sales. He said his office could handle several thousand more customers daily. To date 304,453 city vehicle licenses have been issued this year. Last year 484,000 city vehicle licenses were issued.

Robert B. Upham, city controler, stated that a campaign to issue summonses for arrest of persons driving without 1936 licenses may be started at any time without further warning. Nash reported that although no arrests of license violators have been made downstate, a similar campaign may start there without notice.

DRIVERS' LICENSE LAW IS TERMED A SAFETY NEED

Better Court Records Urged in Report.

A drivers' license law is a vital automobile safety need, George W. Fleming, general secretary of the Keep Chicago Safe committee, told Mayor Kelly yesterday in the annual report of the committee.

In the report, which showed a decrease in automobile accidents here last year of approximately 20 per cent compared with 1934, Mr. Fleming pointed to the benefit of such a law in making it possible for courts to keep complete records of each individual appearing before a trafic judge so that repeating offenders can receive increased punishment.

Deems Success Only Partial.

"Despite our intensive educational and law-enforcement campaign, the trafic problem is still a most vital one and is a long way from being solved," said Fleming. "It is certainly obvious that, had we not exerted the effort of the campaign, the toll taken in automobile deaths and accidents would be much greater."

Judge John Gutknecht of the Trafic court, whose work was praised by the safety committee, said yesterday that he planned to confer tomorrow with Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court on a plan to catalog trafic law violators by a card index system so repeaters might be properly punished.

Judge to Discuss Plans.

Judge Gutknecht is to discuss the proposals for a card index system, for a drivers' license law, and for other improvements in handling the trafic situation on Wednesday night in the Morrison hotel at the presentation of the Junior Chamber of Commerce award for meritorious public service to Lieut. Franklin Kreml, former head of the Evanston accident prevention bureau.

DENOUNCES RAIDS ON TREASURY FOR SPECIAL GROUPS

Raids on the United States national treasury for the benefit of special interests, with the ensuing inflation, follow the path by which Europe has arrived at Fascism, according to Dr. William Yandell Elliott, head of the department of government at Harvard university.

"And the beneficiaries of these raids really are special interests," he declared yesterday at the forum of the Cook County League of Women Voters at the Palmer house.

"Fascism," he said, "has always come from the desperation of feeling that there is no way to control raids on the treasury and from the inflation that always follows such raids and wipes out a whole middle class. The middle class then revolts."

TWO GET LIFE FOR MURDER.

Marion, Ill., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Circuit Judge D. F. Rumsey today sentenced Herbert Mezo and John Morgan, alias Spiller, to the penitentiary for life for the holdup murder of Will Hill, Herrin grocer, last Nov. 19.

ITALIANS CLAIM 125 MILE GAIN IN SOUTH ETHIOPIA

5,000 of Enemy Killed, Rome Reports.

ROME, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Italy's southern army was reported driving ever deeper into Ethiopia today, with Emperor Haile Selassie's warrior defenders fleeing before it.

An official communique said 5,000 Ethiopians have been killed. Fascist newspapers estimated 3,000 prisoners have been taken captive in what was described as one of the most important battles of the nearly five months old war.

The southern army has advanced 200 kilometers [about 125 miles] into the barren country, it was claimed in a communique.

Capture Abandoned Munitions.

"The victory of Gen. Graziani's troops on the Ganale Dorya proved to have yielded increasingly more decisive results," the communique said.

"The pursuit continued all day yesterday without meeting any real resistance by the fleeing adversaries.

"At noon Jan. 17 our armored car columns had advanced altogether about 200 kilometers from their base.

"Our detatchment captured prisoners and munitions abandoned by the adversary, whose dead up to yesterday were ascertained to have reached 5,000.

"Aviation, coöperating actively in the pursuit of the adversary, has bombarded supply centers of Ras Desta Demtu at Neghelli.

"On the Eritrean front there is nothing to report."

Adopt American Tactics.

WITH THE ITALIAN SOUTHERN ARMY AT DOLO, Ethiopia, Jan. 15 [Delayed]—(AP)—The tactics of American Indian fighters were mixed today with mechanized warfare in a big battle near here.

Taking a page from American history, the Italians improvised a circular fort of trucks. The scene recalled the way American western pioneers used prairie schooners in setting up defenses against the Indians. The Italians held their fort after 20 minutes of hot fire on both sides.

Ethiopia Fights Revolt.

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Two of Emperor Haile Selassie's generals have been rushed to northwest Gojjam province to put down a serious revolt, it was learned today from reliable sources in Addis Ababa.

News of battles between loyal troops and rebellious forces have reached Addis Ababa, it was said, but a strict censorship kept it from the public. Ethiopian officials were described as seriously concerned over the situation.

Kenizmatch Sahle, who is known as the "revolt killer," recently went to Gojjam at the head of several thousand troops to aid Dedjazmatch Habte Miriam, who was dispatched from Addis Ababa several weeks ago in an attempt to restore order. The uprising began late in November.

Charge Italy Stirs Uprising.

If Habte Miriam is successful in downing the revolt, it was expected to enhance greatly his suit for the hand of Princess Tsahai, daughter of Haile Selassie.

Revolutionaries were said to be holding many towns, although loyal forces have entered Debra Markos, the capital of the province.

Dedjazmatch Hailu, a nephew of the Italo-Phile Ras Hailu, who was deposed as ruler of Gojjam province and imprisoned by the emperor, is trying to regain his uncle's domains.

Ras Hailu, who has been held in chains on Zwai island, in a lake south of Addis Ababa, was poisoned to death, according to recent unconfirmed reports.

Italian Claims Denied.

ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The Ethiopian government officially denied today Italian claims that the Fascist invaders on the southern front had routed the forces of Ras Desta Demtu. The government's statement termed "utterly fantastic" Fascist claims of Ethiopian casualties approximating 5,000 men.

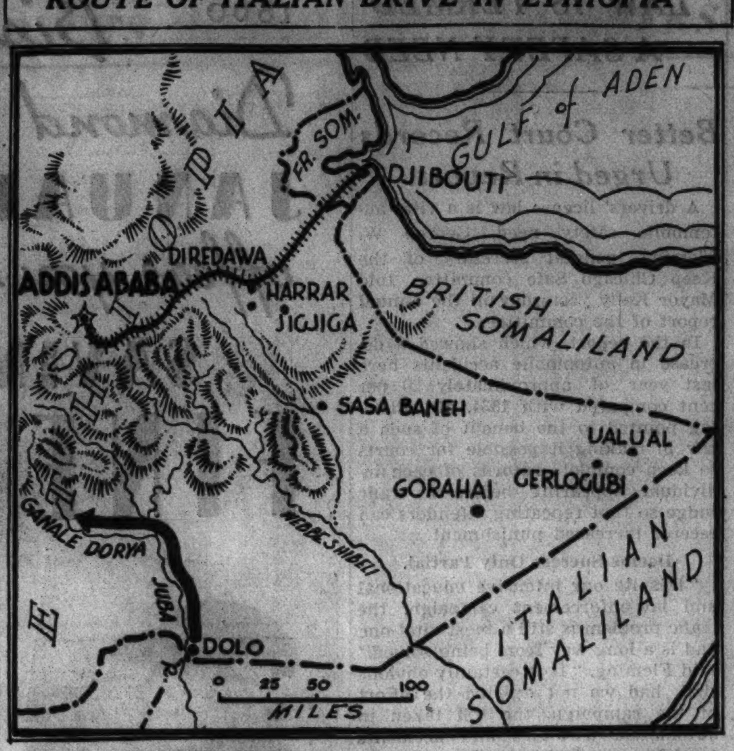
Territory through which the Italians advanced was reported by the official statement to be only lightly held by the defending troops.

New motives were disclosed for the aerial assault on a Red Cross field hospital at Waldia last Wednesday when it was reported Emperor Haile Selassie's baggage had already been installed in the town.

Three planes swooped down on the hospital and destroyed tents and surgical instruments at the institution, supervised by a British major, Gerald Burgoyne, the Ethiopians claimed.

A protest against the bombing was declared unlikely when it was disclosed that Maj. Burgoyne's only Red Cross insignia was a mile outside the town and probably invisible from the air.

ROUTE OF ITALIAN DRIVE IN ETHIOPIA



Black arrow indicates where Italian army has pushed 125 miles into southern Ethiopia, according to claims made by the government at Rome. The Italians say 5,000 Ethiopians have been killed in the drive.

13 BURN TO DEATH AS PASSENGER PLANE CRASHES IN BOLIVIA

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Julio Guitierez, an eye-witness, reported to authorities here today that thirteen persons were burned to death in the crash of an airplane at the small town of Challavinto, near Cocha Bamba, yesterday.

The plane, bound from Cocha Bamba, on the plain at the foot of the Andes mountains, to La Paz, fell in a region surrounded by flood waters and a relief party was reported as experiencing difficulties in getting to the scene.

The dead included ten passengers, the pilot and two mechanics, all those aboard. It was not learned immediately if any of the victims were of United States nationality.

ARTHUR STRAUS' WIFE IS GRANTED DIVORCE IN RENO

Mrs. Marion L. Straus, of the Shoreland hotel, was granted a divorce yesterday on grounds of desertion from Arthur W. Straus, wealthy Chicago and New York investment banker, according to dispatches from Reno, Nev. An out of court settlement was reached here recently, according to an announcement by attorneys.

Straus first filed suit for divorce on Nov. 13, accusing his wife of cruelty and desertion. She replied with a counter complaint, alleging cruelty, desertion, and adultery. On Jan. 2 an amended complaint was filed by Straus describing his domestic life as discordant, and asserting that his wife called him "a cur, bum, loafer, vile creature, and even worse."

Mrs. Straus obtained an injunction tying up her husband's assets, which were valued in the bill at $1,000,000. This restraining order was dissolved yesterday and Mrs. Straus was granted a decree on the single charge of desertion.

Straus is president of the A. W. S. corporation and was formerly associated with S. W. Straus company, New York financial firm.

DUFFY FAMILY FINDS MONEY LYING IN GUTTER

Malvern, Pa., Jan. 18.—(AP)—William Duffy's wife and daughters didn't think much of the necklace he brought home. Bill says he didn't either, for he found it in the gutter.

An advertisment, however, offered $2,000 reward for the return of a necklace—71 pearls and a diamond clasp.

Duffy, a machinist's helper, got the reward yesterday. Today the Duffys—ten altogether—are "too excited to eat." Up to three months ago Duffy had been without a steady job for four years.

Mrs. John Barnes Townsend, who lost the necklace near the Paoli railroad station just west of Philadelphia, placed a value of $30,000 on it.

EGYPT UNEASY AS BRITISH LAND MORE TROOPS

Army Around Suez Area Continues to Grow.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Jan. 18.—Three companies of the East Lancashire regiment landed today to join those landed two days ago to constitute a new division of British troops forming in Egypt under the command of Maj. Gen. G. W. Howard.

The transport continued to Port Said, where tomorrow it will land another battalion of men, who will proceed to Moascar camp, near Ismailia, in the Suez canal zone.

The units landed during the week included, besides the East Lancashire companies, the First battalion of York and Lancaster troops, the Second Cheshires, and the Second Gloucesters.

Egyptian Public Uneasy.

The Cheshire troops already have reached Cairo and are quartered in the Abbassieh barracks in the heart of the capital.

Continued British military activity is making the Egyptian public uneasy. It knows that the possibilities of water supply will allow no more reinforcements of the Libyan border, and wonders what the British idea is.

Nervousness was increased by the circulation of rumors that the Italians are planning not only an air raid on Alexandria naval stores, but also to divert their army in northern Ethiopia from the task of subduing Ethiopia to an attack upon the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Plan Gas Defense.

The public was further alarmed by a report that the total strength of the British army in Egypt is 75,000 men. Less than half that amount is correct, it was said on sound unofficial authority. Officials refused to make any comment.

Nerves were made still more jumpy as a result of the announcement that the government intends shortly to issue instructions to the whole population for gas defense.

Circulars will be printed in Arabic and also in English and in French to reach Egypt's 200,000 foreign residents. Gas defense specialists are to travel through all the provinces instructing local doctors and village headmen on measures to take in event of an air attack and for the treatment of gassed persons.

MONGOLS SET UP PRO-MANCHUKUO REGIME IN CHINA

KALGAN, Chahar Province, China, Jan. 18.—(AP)Proclaiming restoration of the vanished glory of the Mongol khans, whose armies once swept over most of the known world, troops from Inner Mongolia marched today into Changpei, capital of the North Chahar territory recently seized by a Manchukuoan army.

Simultaneously, the forces of the Japanese-advised state of Manchukuo began to withdraw, leaving the Mongols to set up a pro-Manchukuo Mongolian government over the captured area, which comprises about 2,500 square miles and is populated largely by Chinese settlers.

The new régime adopted the Mongol calendar, making the present year the 730th of Genghis Kahn, the mighty Mongol conquerer who held all Asia and part of Europe in his sway. The new administration was expected to be connected with the Mongolian political council, dominant inner Mongolian organ which is nominally loyal to the central Chinese government.

Consulates of Panama Hit in $400,000 Scandal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 18.—Panamanian consuls pocketed $400,000 during the past three years, representing a major part of the funds collected for registering ships under the Panamanian flag, which means the ships have United States protection, it was learned today. The consulates under fire include those at Los Angeles, Cal., Hamburg, Germany, and Argel, France. The Panamanian consul at Bilbao, Spain, was dismissed recently after it was proved he had pocketed $4,000.

AMERICAN ARMY ENVOY SEIZED BY ETHIOPIAN BAND

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Jan. 18.—(AP)—A report from an American source at Addis Ababa which reached here today said Capt. John Meade, American military attaché, had narrowly escaped with his life in a recent encounter with shiftas [bandits] during a recent muleback journey in the interior of Ethiopia.

Capt. Meade was en route from Addis Ababa to Dessye to join Emperor Haile Selassie at the latter's field headquarters when twenty shiftas, apparently mistaking him for an Italian officer, surrounded his party pointing cocked rifles.

Apparently a remark of one of Meade's fifteen muleboys heightened the suspicions of the tribesmen and things looked bad until a veteran caravaner with the party explained the significance of the captain's uniform. Meade was released and later won the friendship of his visitors by medically treating one of them whose eye was infected.

Capt. Meade, whose home is in Wilmington, Del., was appointed to the Ethiopian post last November and arrived in Addis Ababa early in December. He formerly was stationed at Fort Hoyle, Md., with the 6th field artillery. He entered the army in 1925 after his graduation from Princeton university the preceding year. Mrs. Meade, who did not accompany her husband to Ethiopia, is the former Eudora Hummer of Baltimore.

Bingham Sails for U. S. on Belated Christmas Holiday

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—With the international naval conference again moving forward, after a six week talemate, Ambassador Robert W. Bingham sailed aboard the Bremen today for a belated Christmas vacation in the United States. He will be gone about two months. He postponed his customary trip in December because of uncertainty over the naval conference, from which Japan has now withdrawn, as well as the international situation.

GENEVA ADMITS ITALIAN OIL BAN SCHEME IS DEAD

Now Fears Ethiopia May Give Duce a Whipping.

GENEVA, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Officials of the league of nations predicted tonight that the proposed oil embargo against Italy would not see the light of day at a meeting of the council beginning Monday.

Great Britain, they pointed out, seems opposed to any British initiative toward imposing new sanctions. Premier Laval of France has always regarded the oil sanction with disfavor.

Soviet Russia is occupied with its appeal to the league against Uruguay's action in breaking off diplomatic relations. Others powers, it was said, are likely to follow the lead of the big ones.

New Trend Favors Italy.

Two impressions prevail at Geneva toward Monday's session.

The first is that existing economic sanctions are slowly but surely hindering Premier Mussolini's capacity to wage war.

The second opinion heard—a new and quiet one—is that after all it would not be wise to permit the Ethiopian armies to defeat the armies of Italy in any disastrous manner.

Behind this opinion is the idea that such a victory for the Ethiopians might excite all the races of Africa to revolt against European powers with colonies there.

There also is the lurking idea that Il Duce's campaign is not advancing and that a stalemate, if not a defeat for Italy, remains a possibility.

See Duce Ready for Peace.

Linked with these opinions come reports from Italians in a position to know governmental thought that Mussolini is willing to examine seriously any new peace proposals.

Geneva is glad that Il Duce's diplomatic lieutenant, Baron Pompeo Aloisi, is coming to the council session and continues to hope that negotiations for a settlement of the war may be started.

The council has an unprecedented problem to tackle in the Russian-Uruguayan dispute. Russia has hailed Uruguay before the council for severing diplomatic relations, which Uruguay contends she was forced to do because Montevideo was becoming a nest of communist activities. This Russia denied.

The council must decide whether it is competent to deal with the question as a dispute within the meaning of the covenant and whether the breaking off of diplomatic relations can be said to threaten peace, an argument Russia advanced in bringing the matter to Geneva.

Italy Fines Money Changer $400,000; 31 Others Seized

NAPLES, Italy, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The government fined an exchange broker, Francesco Guadisio, 5,000,000 lire [about $400,000], tonight, for illicit operations. Thirty-one other members of an alleged exchange ring were fined between 500 and 150,000 lire each. Thirteen exchange offices were closed. Two men charged as ringleaders will be sent to Prison islands.

BRITAIN REVEALS BILLION DOLLAR DEFENSE SCHEME

Army, Navy, Air Force to Be Enlarged.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 18. — After four meetings of the cabinet's special defense committee, Great Britain's gigantic billion dollar rearmament plan has been completed in detail and is ready for submission to parliament before the end of this fiscal year on March 31.

The plan includes:

FIRST—Mechanization, reëquipment, and increase in the size of the army.

Air Force to Be Enlarged.

SECOND—Reorganization of the air force to make it the equal in power and speed of all the other continental aviation forces.

THIRD—Reorganization of the navy, with an increase of twenty-five cruisers, bringing the cruiser strength up to seventy-five. With the fleet increase will go coördination and strict coöperation of the various imperial defense services.

Plan New Bases.

FOURTH—Modernization of the present naval and aerial bases and the creation of new ones. This step will affect Singapore, Malta, Cyprus and Haifa, Palestine, and also Hong Kong, whose fortifications have not been touched for sixteen years under the terms of the Washington treaty, but which will now be fortified in view of the expiration of the Washington treaty.

To defray expenses, it is expected a billion dollar national defense loan shortly will be offered.

BLAME INSANITY FOR SUICIDE.

A verdict of suicide while temporarily insane was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury in the death of Herbert Blauner, 16 years old, 2309 Thomas street, who shot himself Friday. Blauner's mother said he was an avid reader of detective, adventure, and spiritualistic books.

GERMAN CELEBRATION OF 'EMPIRE DAY' IS FORBIDDEN BY HITLER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—Celebration of the glories of the German empire set up by Bismarck at Versailles on Jan. 18, 1871, must be merged with the anniversary of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's assumption of power on Jan. 30, 1933, the Nazi government has decreed. Consequently, the universities were forbidden to celebrate the old empire day today in the traditional manner.

In a circular, Minister of Education Bernhard Rust ordered the rectors of universities to see to it that no festivities took place today, but that preparations be made for impressive celebrations on Jan. 30.

Nationalists in the days of the republic always made it a point to demonstrate their allegiance to the empire in special university celebrations. Today they carefully heeded the orders of Hitler's men.

COUNTERFEITER 'GETS' G-MAN, BUT G-MAN GETS AWAY

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 18.—(AP)—A two state manhunt spread through Texas and Oklahoma tonight for the youthful kidnaper of a G-man.

State and federal officers sought Leonard W. Johnson, 26 years old, alleged counterfeiter, who yesterday seized Operative William G. Morgan's pistol while en route to jail at Paris, Tex., forced the federal agent to accompany him on a thirteen hour ride, then fled in the officer's car after the latter escaped at Bokchito, Okla.

Morgan told his chief here, F. V. Sorels, that Johnson wrested a pistol from him on the outskirts of Paris, Tex.

FRENCH CABINET TOTTERS; HERRIOT AIDS DROP LAVAL

Premier Expected to Give Up Rule This Week.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 18.—After two days of political confusion unprecedented even for France, it was definitly ascertained tonight that Edouard Herriot, minister of state, and probably the other five Radical Socialist ministers in Premier Pierre Laval's cabinet, will resign. The resignations are expected to become effective as soon as Laval returns from Geneva, probably on Wednesday.

This move will virtually oblige Laval to turn in his own resignation to President Albert Lebrun, who will thus have one more political crisis on his hands. Though Laval's personal position is uncertain, one thing is sure—that President Lebrun will reappoint him to form a new government.

Leaves for Geneva Today.

Experts believe he will succeed in forming a cabinet, but of course it is impossible to predict whether or not he will find a working majority in the chamber of deputies for the new government. It is not impossible that he will, in which case his personal situation only will have been consolidated by the crisis.

Apparently unworried by all the political agitation going on, Laval left tonight for his country home at Auvergne. He announced he would proceed to Geneva tomorrow night according to schedule to attend the meeting of the council of the league of nations.

As for Herriot, he still insists that he will not accept reëlection as president of the Radical Socialist party tomorrow. He declares he is willing to leave the job to his enemy, former Premier Edouard Daladier, who, incidentally and ironically, has views on foreign policy almost identical with those of Laval and very different from those of Herriot.

Herriot's Party Divided.

The Radical Socialist party is bitterly divided between pro-Laval deputies and left winger who are supporting Daladier. It is quite possible that one result of the present crisis may be the severance from the party of some forty moderate Radical Socialist deputies who would provide Laval with the nucleus of a new center coalition opposed to the left wing Popular Front. To avoid the split, Herriot at the last moment may allow himself to be persuaded to resume the presidency of his party.

In the opinion of most observers, no immediate change in foreign or domestic policy is anticipated from the crisis. The main effect, it is believed, will be further to weaken the franc, which already is under some strain.

HORNER SHELVED BY A 2 TO 1 STATE COMMITTEE VOTE

E.V. Champion, Lewis Long Backed for Congress.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Gov. Horner's forces yesterday lost their fight to keep the Democratic state central committee from indorsing Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, who was the choice of the Cook county committee and a group of downstate leaders to succeed the governor.

Dr. Bundesen, Senator James Hamilton Lewis, and all state candidates picked last Sunday were approved by the state committee by a vote of 16 to 9. In the committee's balloting each of the 25 members cast the number of votes which his district gave to the party's candidate in the 1934 primary election. On that basis, the organization slate polled 806,466 and Gov. Horner 351,208.

The Slate as It Stands.

Thus, both the powerful Cook county organization and the somewhat less effective downstate organization now stand committed to the nomination of Senator Lewis, Dr. Bundesen, State Treasurer John Stelle for lieutenant governor, John C. Martin for treasurer, and Secretary of State Hughes, Auditor Edward J. Barrett, and Attorney General Otto Kerner to succeed themselves.

The state committee endorsed also Edward V. Champion of Peoria and Lewis Long of De Kalb for nominations for congressmen at large. The Cook county committee's approval is expected as a matter of course, the understanding last Sunday having been that downstate would have these places.

Gov. Horner had support from 8 of the 15 downstate committeemen but those who voted for the organization slate cast a greater vote. The eight Horner men cast 284,075. The seven for the slate cast 290,901 votes.

From his Congress hotel suite, where he is planning his battle for renomination against the Bundesen-Kelly-Nash slate, the governor received word of the committee action.

Machine Politics, Says Horner.

"The Chicago committeemen, except one, Daniel Sullivan of the Second district, were controlled by Mayor Kelly and voted under the lash," Mr. Horner commented. "Every man who had a free choice, voted for me. The downstaters who were not for me, did not speak for their districts, as a canvass will show."

Mr. Horner reiterated his determination to fight for renomination. He expects to open headquarters within a few days.

Besides the governor Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan and Congressman at Large Martin A, Brennan of Bloomington were shelved. Former Judge Charles Bliss of Taylorville had been offered one of the congressional seats, but refused it. His refusal led to reports that Mr. Brennan would stay on the ticket. Champion's selection voided that possibility.

Sullivan Leads Lost Cause.

Gov. Horner had several fervent downstate spokesmen at the meeting, which was held in the Morrison hotel. The chief of his forces was Mr. Sullivan, who in addition to being a committeeman, is secretary of the state committee. He is also administrative auditor and the governor's close political adviser.

State Chairman Bruce A. Campbell, whose friends made a strong effort to place him as head of the state ticket in place of Dr. Bundesen, presided at the meeting and voted for the slate, as he had said he would do.

The resolution offering the organization slate was presented by Committeeman Leonard R. Condon of Rockford.

When the meeting opened, Chairman Campbell recognizing Ald. John J. Coughlin [1st], who presented a resolution calling the state convention for May 1, at Springfield, to adopt a platform and select delegates at large and alternates to the national convention.

Campbell then reported that the committee treasury had a balance of $12,000 and had paid all its debts.

Committeeman Joseph E. Knight of Dow, a Horner appointee on the Illinois commerce commission, then arose, without recognition, and declared that the real purpose of the meeting was to ratify "a slate picked by a few gentlemen from Cook county and downstate."

Ald. Coughlin objected that there was no matter before the committee and that Knight was out of order.

"What slate is he talking about?" asked the Democratic veteran.

Chairman Campbell then ruled Knight out of order and apparently by arrangement Condon was recognized. He read his resolution on behalf of Horner.

The debate was started by J. W. Yantis, Shelbyville, attired in his usual ministerial attire, who declared that it was customary "when our banner-bearers lead us to victory and render good service, to approve them for a second term. If we slight the present governor," he said, "we will weaken the ticket."

Irvin Rooks of Chicago, attorney for the commerce commission, was the next Horner supporter. Rooks is not a committeeman, but held the proxy of John Kasserman of Newton. His warm support of Horner was believed to represent the attitude of Benjamin F. Lindheimer, chairman of the commission and unofficial manager of Horner's 1932 campaign.

Praises Horner's Character.

Rooks praised the governor for "devoting every minute of his official life to the best interests of the people; playing fair and square with the party, and as a man, spotless."

Roll call on endorsement of the slate then began and Secretary Sullivan was first to "No."

Lieut. Gov. Donovan arose when his district number—the eleventh—was called, and delivered a dramatic explanation of his vote. He prefaced it by saying that "it is unusual for a man to be present at his own obsequies."

Donovan first served on the committee from 1896 to 1906, then dropped out until 1914. He has been a member for twenty-two consecutive years and was chairman for many of those years. He recalled this long service to the committee and proved his remarkable memory by citing facts of elections which occurred before the memory of some of the committeemen.

Donovan Pledges Loyalty.

The veteran Democrat said he felt no disappointment nor "personal dismay" at his failure to be reslated.

"I recognize the ability, democracy, and political standing of the man slated to succeed me [Treasurer Stelle] and I pledge him my support and devotion," he said. "I have always been an organization man and I cast my vote for the slate."

Sherwood Dixon of Dixon, law partner of Speaker John P. Devine of the Illinois house, next voted against the slate and for the governor. Thomas O'Hern of Peoria, who held the proxy of his brother, Charles V. O'Hern, said, somewhat bitterly, that "we're not here to pick a slate; it's already been picked for us." Another Horner supporter was Harry B. Hershey of Taylorville.

The Men of the Opposition.

Besides Sullivan, Dixon, O'Hern, and Hershey, the others who voted for the governor and against the Bundensen slate were C. Everett Smith, Lincoln; Norman Bennett, Marshall; Yantis, Knight, and Rooks, speaking for Kasserman.

Cook county Democratic slate making is expected to start within a few days. In connection with reports that State's Attorney Courtney was in danger of not receiving substantial support for renomination, several ward committeemen said yesterday that they regarded the "scare" as a "false alarm."

Stories were circulated that Courtney was to be "ditched" and other reports which followed asserted that the original rumors had forced the leaders to drop the "ditching."

JACKSON FETES BRING MORE THAN $275,000 TO DEMOCRAT COFFERS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—(AP)—A Democratic spokesman today reported the Jackson day dinners were a bigger financial success than expected.

W. Forbes Morgan, secretary of the party's national committee, estimated more than $275,000 would be brought into the Democratic campaign fund through those dinners.

The dinners were priced from $1 to $50 a plate. The proceeds will be used to help wipe out the party's $401,000 deficit and start the 1936 campaign off with a surplus.

Morgan said $143,492 in cash already had been received. Of this $25,000 has been used to pay the last installment of a $120,000 debt to John J. Raskob, former Democratic national chairman now aligned with the American Liberty league.

DEMOCRATS MAY KILL TWO-THIRDS NOMINATING RULE

Committeemen in North Demand Repeal.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—The two-thirds rule now required for the nomination of president and vice president will be abrogated by the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia if the present plans of northern states are fulfilled.

President Roosevelt is represented as favoring its repeal by the convention before the nominations are made. His attitude is that there is no longer any necessity to continue this archaic rule, which has been in existence for a century. However, as the result of protests from southern leaders, he will not directly exert his influence, it was declared.

Urged at Session Here.

The 1932 convention in Chicago recommended that the next national convention consider adoption of the majority rule. Since that time the agitation among northern Democrats for the change has been intense, and most of the national committeemen from these states are reported favorable to a majority rule so as to make the party more national and take away from the solid south the balance of power that such a rule naturally bestows.

The northern and border states will have 808 of the 1,100 delegates in the convention, and if they carry out the opinions expressed by the national committeemen from these sections, the rule will be abolished and Roosevelt and Garner renominated by a majority vote.

Bitter Struggle Feared.

Advisers of the administration, however, scent a bitter struggle over such a proposal, and as they desire an absolute harmonious convention, are advocating a compromise which they believe will satisfy both sides. The compromise suggested is that the two-thirds rule shall continue for ten ballots, and after that the nominations shall be made by a majority of those in the convention and voting. This, they declare, would assure the nominees being the absolute choice of the conventions and would work against prolonged proceedings.

The struggle to abolish the two-thirds rule will carry with it a demand that the unit rule also shall pass.

SINCLAIR GROUP FIGHTS TO RULE STATE DEMOCRATS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 18.—(AP)—The campaign organization that helped Upton Sinclair to poll 879,000 votes for governor in 1934 rallied here tonight. That group hopes to name this state's delegation to the Democratic national convention at Philadelphia.

Leaders of the End Poverty league, Inc., opened a two day state convention today. They were defeated by forces of Senator W. G. McAdoo in a meeting of the Democratic state central committee last night.

The Democratic committee decided to leave selection of the California delegation to President Roosevelt and forestalled any expression of policy.

State Senator Culbert L. Olson, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, announced he will leave for Washington tomorrow night to confer with President Roosevelt on politics and relief plans.

Gets Snow Shoveling Job to Pay Fine; Dodges Work

Ray Daugherty, clerk in Municipal Judge J. M. Braude's Boys' court, began yesterday a search for Samuel Benigno, 17 years old, 1112 Townsend place, when he failed to appear as snow shoveler at the clerk's home, 1041 West Oak street. Fined $17 for driving an automobile with fictitious licenses on Friday, Benigno agreed to Judge Braude's suggestion that he earn the money for the fine by shoveling snow at the home of Daugherty and several other persons who were in the courtroom.

Taft Pictures Roosevelt as Disciple of False Doctrins

New York, Jan. 18.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was pictured by the son of one of his predecessors today as being willing to mislead the people on financial questions and to "encourage them to believe that the government owes them a living whether they work or not."

Robert A. Taft, son of the late President and Chief Justice William Howard Taft, denounced the social security act and other New Deal programs in an address before the Women's National Republican club.

Speaking on the same program, John D. M. Hamilton, national committeeman from Kansas and general counsel to the Republican national committee, defined the basic issues of the 1936 campaign as "recovery, wasteful spending, and centralized government."

Favors "Rule of Truth and Law."

He denied that opponents of the New Deal favor a return "to the rule of tooth and claw."

"What they actually stand for," he said, "is a return to the rule of truth and law."

Taft, a Cincinnati lawyer, pointed out the social security program will be financed by a pay roll tax and said;

"In other words, those who are working at any particular time will support those who are not working at that time, and will have to reduce their standard of living to do it."

Explodes Share Wealth Myth.

Assailing share the wealth proposals, Taft declared:

"The President knows that a redistribution of wealth of all those having incomes of ten thousand dollars or more would only increase the income of each individual in this country $83 a year. . . .

"For the first time in my lifetime, we have a President who is willing to mislead the people on fundamental questions of finance—who is willing openly to attack the very basis of the system of American democracy—who is willing to let the people believe their problems can be solved and their lives made easier by taking money away from other people or manipulating the currency. . . ."

Other Descendant Present.

Among the honor guests at the luncheon, which marked the 15th anniversary of the club, were Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth and Col. Theodore Roosevelt, children of the late President Theodore Roosevelt.

Mme. [Julia Dent Grant] Cantacuzene, a granddaughter of Ulysses S. Grant, joined the other speakers in attacking the New Deal.

ROOSEVELT FETE TO ALLOT 70% OF FUNDS LOCALLY

Col. A. A. Sprague, co-chairman of the Chicago committee on the dance to be held on President Roosevelt's birthday, Jan. 30, in the International amphitheater at 41st and Halsted streets, said yesterday that the funds raised would be allocated for research and treatment of infantile paralysis patients on the same basis as last year.

"The policy of retaining 70 per cent of the money for local institutions will be followed again this year," said Col. Sprague. In 1935, the fund was shared by 16 hospitals and homes in Chicago which have facilities for the special care required by cases of infantile paralysis. The fund is distributed on the basis of the number of patients treated by each institution.

"The remaining 30 per cent of the fund is dedicated to medical research in continuing the scientific war on the disease. Last year, ten institutions were allocated funds for research, including the University of Chicago."

HERRING ENTERS RACE FOR IOWA SEAT IN SENATE

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Iowa's governor, Clyde L. Herring this afternoon issued a formal announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic party's nomination for United States senator from Iowa in 1936.

Herring, who now is serving his second two year term as governor, will seek to succeed Iowa's senior senator, Lester J. Dickinson, when the Republican senator's term expires next year. Political observers do not believe the governor will have major opposition in the party primary.

Dickinson, arch foe of the Democratic national administration, and keynoter of the last Republican national convention, is expected to seek renomination and reëlection.

Argentina Swelters as Mercury Soars to 107

CORDOBA, Argentina, Jan. 18.—The temperature rose suddenly today to 107.4 degrees Fahrenheit, causing numerous sunstrokes.

PRESIDENT SEES 'BOONDOGGLING' AS TRADE SPUR

Field Workers Urged to Aid New Deal.

I believe an overwhelming majority of the people realize that our projects are not only useful but that the liberties of self-government still exist. No mayor has been shorn of the responsibility of his office. We are still carrying out the principles of home rule."

The conference here today was a significant one. The men charged with putting into practice the often visionary plans drafted at Washington aired their worries and discussed their difficulties in carrying out the recovery program mapped out for them by their leaders.

The President sat for two hours, listened intently, smoked innumerable cigarets, and no doubt cogitated upon the attitude of these top sergeants in his army as it may affect his forthcoming campaign for reëlection.

The air was filled with initials. Representatives of state PWA, WPA, CCC, FCA—all the scores of alphabetical units in the New Deal—were present and eager to present their troubles in the presence of the commander in chief.

Charles Edison, son of Thomas A. Edison the famous inventor, New Jersey state director of the National Emergency council, presided at the meeting.

Praises Paralysis Fight.

New York, Jan. 18.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight paid tribute to those who have participated in the national "fight against infantile paralysis" in a radio talk from his mother's home in East 65th street.

He thanked the organization, which is now preparing to celebrate the President's birthday Jan. 30 with thousands of gatherings at which funds will be collected for the campaign against the disease.

Undoubtedly in reference to his own attack of infantile paralysis, which came when he was an adult, the President spoke of the disease as one "which attacks with little regard to age and none to race or station; which strikes those in the full stride of useful work as well as children in their play."

Bulk for Local Use.

Seventy per cent of the money raised will be used to carry out local fights against the disease, the President said. The other 30 per cent will be used as a fund to support research work.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, arrived here late this afternoon from Trenton, where he conferred with minor New Deal aids earlier in the day.

The trip is primarily for the dedication tomorrow afternoon of the Theodore Roosevelt memorial in the Natural History museum. He will return to New York Monday morning.

REED, RITCHIE HIT NEW DEAL BEFORE LAWYERS

Former Calls It Path to Socialism.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Toledo, O., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Increase of federal power, sought under the various policies of the Roosevelt New Deal, were attacked here today by two leading Democrats, speaking before the Ohio Bar association.

Those who made the attack were James A. Reed, three times Democratic senator from Missouri, and Albert Cabell Ritchie, four times Democratic governor of Maryland. Both men are lawyers.

Ex-Senator Reed, in Democratic politics since 1888, was a prosecutor of Jackson county, Mo.

In that office he was credited with 285 convictions in 287 cases. Born at Mansfield, O., in 1861, his speech was almost a homecoming event.

Attacks As Prosecutor.

Mr. Reed attacked the New Deal with the vehemence of a prosecutor, trying it on charges of injuring American business, substituting Socialism for American constitutional government.

Mr. Ritchie took the position that some of the New Deal measures are good and probably should be continued in some form. Others, he attacked as violative of principles established with the adoption of the constitution. The ex-governor argued that the depression is so far over that emergency measures should not be made permanent.

Ex-Senator Reed charged: "the nation is being driven with lightning speed along the road of bolshevism and toward the precipice of anarchy. Today the administration is in a state of panic. I want to say right now that you cannot herd us into any Socialist, communist or bolshevist yard by hanging over it the name Democrat, when it is a desecration to use that name."

Barbs for New Deal.

The former Democratic senator's talk was stinging with epigrams:

"Give back to the people their own business, and they will dig their own way out of any depression.

"That's the only way they ever will get out.

"All the Tugwells born of woman never will bring us out of 'the slough of despond.'

"This whole matter is fundamental. We will hold accountable every man who voted to destroy or restrict our liberties.

"Our forefathers stood so close to the fires of oppression that the smoke clung to their garments. They came from governments in which they were told how to worship and think. They set up a government for themselves and posterity that was founded on the doctrine of individual liberty and responsibility.

Would Astonish Founders.

"These men would be astounded to think that in a short 150 years after their work man could be bribed by the government to kill little pigs, that plenty might come from the restriction in raising beef, and that people could live on the ghosts of pigs whose mothers were slaughtered before they were born.

"We have had panics before and are going through a depression now. If they had let us alone we would have been out of it a long time ago.

"The suggestion that the Supreme court of the United States be packed or hobbled, if carried out, would mean the end of constitutional liberty. If the constitution is spiked down and made subservient to the executive and congress, then there is nothing between the people and their liberties except the congress of the United States.

Talks of Wage Control.

"Rights to regulate wages up is also the right to regulate them down.

"Use of the taxing power to redistribute wealth is as another approach to the destruction of human liberties. There never has been a benevolent despotism.

"I say he who lays hands on the constitution of the United States is the greatest despot of them all for he strikes at the liberty of a great people.

"It is no time to mince words. No man is able to do the thinking for 125 million people. If he were, it were better they should think for themselves and make a few mistakes than subordinate their intellectual liberty to him.

Compared with Russia.

"When you deprive a citizen of property rights you have bolshevism as abominable as in Russia.

"This program that we have been experimenting with was not initiated here. In Russia if a man has more than three cows he is a capitalist. Here if a man has more than $100 in gold and he doesn't bring it in to exchange for 50 cent dollars we send him to the penitentiary.

"There they say they all work for the common property. Here we tax those who have in an effort to distribute to all who have not.

"Over there if you belong to the government party you can buy what you want and if you don't belong you pay eight or ten prices. Here we say to the farmer we will give you a premium for not raising certain things.

Attacks "Abundant Life."

"Let me dwell a moment on the abundant life. My idea of that is to have plenty to eat, wear, clothing and comfort. We have never produced enough yet to do that. How shall we get enough to enjoy abundant life? They say down in Washington to make prices go so high that nobody can buy.

"We have increased the price of cotton by limiting the supply and we find that we have almost lost most of our former European markets. Nations formerly our best customers are now raising their own cotton in South Africa or other sunny climes. We find today we are importing corn and meats from South America, things we used to raise here and ship abroad, we are now sending that money away all as a result of the abuse of the powers of congress."

Ritchie Sees Recovery.

Ex-Gov. Ritchie declared the New Deal measures were called experiments, "but now the experimental period is about over."

"Unmistakable signs of business and economic recovery are at hand," Mr. Ritchie said. "The emergency is passing, and normal times—in many respects not the old normal times, but the times which are going to be normal for the future—are shaping ahead. Now the country is being asked to accept the New Deal, not as a temporary and curative thing any longer, but as the permanent and all-time policy of the American government.

"We are not in a panic now, and there is nothing to fear, except making the wrong decision and going in the wrong direction. I believe nothing has happened in this emergency which would justify us in scrapping those American institutions which constitute the heart of American government. We have lived and prospered under the American government through peace and war, through prosperity and depression, for nearly 150 years.

Praises Some Measures.

"Of course, I do not suggest that the strain of un-Americanism runs through all of the New Deal measures and policies by any means. Some, like the lending agencies, such as the RFC and the HOLC, which are paid back what they lend, have in great part saved industry and banking and the people's homes, and do not seem to me at all subversive of our form of government.

"Other measures, like relief to the unemployed and care for the old, the afflicted, and the otherwise handicapped, are social responsibilities of the government, many of them too long delayed in fulfillment; and as to these the problems relate principally to the amounts to be expended and to the limitations, terms, and conditions thereof.

Cites Fear of Despotism.

"The political problem of the ages always has been how to reconcile the powers of government with the liberties of the individual. Through the centuries, government in the end generally crushed liberty. After a while, the people generally arose, overthrew the prevailing government and set up their own. Then in the process of time the same thing happened over again. The founders of the American republic knew all about this trend of history. They knew about it more intimately too, from the actual experience of the colonies with England.

"They had seen the English parliament, in which the colonies were not represented, impose upon the colonies almost every conceivable form of regulation and control over their colonial trade and markets and over their domestic affairs as well, all to the benefit and profit of English trade and English merchants. England regulated what commodities the colonists were allowed to produce or to consume; what they could import or export. Overseas colonial trade was generally confined to British made and British manned ships and to British ports, or at least gave preference to them.

Basis of States' Rights.

"The American form of government comprises certain underlying governmental principles which were intended to accomplish these high purposes and to guard for all time the liberties of the people against the growth or the revival of any autocratic power which might endanger or destroy them.

"These underlying governmental principles are:

"1. The American dual system of states and nation, whereby the federal government can only do such things as are expressly or by fair and proper implication delegated to it, everything else being reserved to the states respectively, or to the people.

"2. The separation of the powers of government into three departments—legislative, executive, and judicial—which are separate and distinct from each other, with no one of them authorized to exercise the functions of either of the other two.

U. S. Power Rests on States.

"The strength of the national government is a composite strength. It is subserved by keeping the states strong and alive to their true self-governing functions and by preserving the liberties of their people. Nor can liberty be secure unless the legislative, executive, and judicial departments of government are kept distinct. If they are permitted to be merged, then we are back again to the old order where the people had no control or check upon government in the exercise of its powers."

ON 2D MILLION

MAE WEST.

[Acme Photo.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Mae West has made a million dollars in the movies—and today she started on her second million.

She got the start from a new film contract signed yesterday. What the blonde comedienne was worth when she came to Hollywood—how much she had earned as a one-woman play producing organization on Broadway—no one knows.

Nor is it known precisely what she is receiving under her new picture contract.

It stipulated she should write and star in at least one picture. And it probably will establish her as the highest paid woman in the movies, topping Garbo.

Blonde Mae paid income tax on $339,166 for the year 1934. Presuming she claimed the normal exemptions her gross earnings for that year probably were roughly $350,000. This would be an average of $6,730.75 a week.

It would represent three different types of work done by her—writing the original story, adapting it to scenario form, and starring in it. She gets checks for all three.

YOUNG G. O. P. PICKS 2 REGIONAL CHIEFS AT GATHERING HERE

John H. Carton of Lansing, Mich., and Miss Kathryn M. Ford, 940 Wesley avenue, Oak Park, were elected regional directors of the National Young Republican federation at a meeting held yesterday in the Palmer house. Attending the conference were delegates from four states—Illinois, Michigan, Kentucky, and Tennessee.

The United States is divided into ten regions for the activities of the federation. Regional directors elected in each region will attend a conference to be held in Washington early in February.

The Young Republicans discussed plans for membership campaigns in the four states and talked of the type of organization each has.

CASHIER BEATEN AND ROBBED.

An unarmed robber beat John Howard, 32 years old, of Westchester, yesterday and robbed him of $425 as he was entering the offices of the Workman Manufacturing company, 1200 West Monroe street, where he is a cashier.

ANTI-ROOSEVELT DEMOCRATS GIRD FOR FINISH FIGHT

Third Party Threat Seen if Aims Are Buried.

Houston, Tex., Jan. 18.—(AP)—John Henry Kirby, veteran of the political wars and wealthy Texas lumberman, predicted today 10,000 "good Democrats" would gather at Macon, Ga., on Jan. 29 for a southwide convention of anti-Roosevelt Democrats. Kirby and Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia called the convention.

"We will start the ball rolling and we hope it will gain such momentum that President Roosevelt, who is a Socialist instead of a Democrat, will not be renominated," said Kirby, chairman of the southern committee to uphold the constitution.

Leans Toward Jesse Jones.

He named Jesse Jones, wealthy fellow Texan and chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, as a "possibility" in the event President Roosevelt's renomination is balked. He said he believed Jones could defeat any Republican nominee. Jones often has praised New Deal administration acts and recently said Roosevelt's renomination was assured.

"We are not interested at present in the identity of the candidate who would replace Roosevelt," said Kirby. "Our primary concern is returning the party to the principles which made it great."

He said if the Texas presidential nominating conventions did not espouse the principles of "real Democracy," which would be restated at the Georgia gathering, and did not name delegates who would vote for a candidate in sympathy with those principles, contesting delegations would be sent to the national Democratic convention.

May Bolt Party.

"I already have reserved 50 rooms at Philadelphia for myself and other Democrats who hold similar views," he added.

The southern committee to uphold the constitution has not yet decided whether to support the Republican standard bearer or name a third candidate in event President Roosevelt is renominated, Kirby said.

"But personally I would favor nominating a candidate of our own," the 75 year old Texan said.

Pick Alabama Delegation.

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Alabama's Democratic executive committee today elected the state's entire delegation to the national convention at Philadelphia and called a presidential preferential primary for May 5.

It was the first time since 1924 that the delegation was not elected by the people. After a bitter floor fight, with personalities injected into debate, the new plan carried, 36 to 29.

As the date was set, there was a possibility the name of Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, persistent New Deal foe, will be placed on the ballot with that of President Roosevelt.

Earlier, by a vote of 50 to 15, the committee refused to rescind its November action electing the delegates from the state at large. In the resolution providing for the election of these delegates, the administration of President Roosevelt was praised, but the delegates were not specifically instructed.

RETURN MURDER-SUICIDE VERDICT.

Verdicts of murder and suicide were returned by a coroner's jury yesterday at the inquest into the deaths of Mrs. Mary Grochowski, 41 years old, 1614 Superior street, and her estranged husband, Stanley, 43 years old. Last Monday, Grochowski shot and killed his wife, and then turned the gun on himself.

VOLUNTEERS BRAVE ICE TO HUNT BODIES

Several men volunteered to brave the ice pack about Kenosha (Wis.) harbor yesterday to search for bodies of four men believed to have lost their lives when storm smashed fishing tug Cheerio some time Friday night. Arrow points to one of the air tanks of the vessel. Bits of planks were floating near it.

FOUR BELIEVED DROWNED IN LAKE GALE AT KENOSHA

Kenosha, Wis., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Four young members of the crew of the fishing tug Cheerio were believed drowned in the gale and blizzard which whipped Lake Michigan last night when the wreckage of their 40 foot all-steel boat was found early today against the breakwater, a quarter of a mile south of the harbor channel.

Those on board were: Richard W. Jacobson, 26 years old, skipper and owner; Peter Sebena, 21 years old; Herbert Tipler, 21 years old, and Albert Henneman, 22 years old.

With the storm at its worst last night, under the sting of a 40 mile wind, Robert Zimmerman was walking near the Eagle's club on the lake shore when he heard men crying for help. The sound came from off the breakwater.

On instructions from coast guardsmen Zimmerman set up a sound truck which he operates. Through the loud speakers Zimmerman broadcast instructions to the fishermen to send up flares. Two rockets went up; then complete blackness.

It was hoped then that the crew had decided to try to weather out the storm in the open sea. Apparently at this moment, however, their solid craft was dashed against the breakwater.

RESCUERS NEAR 3 MEN MAROONED ON TINY ISLAND

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—The Whitefish coast guard rescue crew was within three-quarters of a mile of three marooned men on Tahquamen Island this afternoon, Lieut. S. J. Woyciehowsky reported after flying over the island in a Canadian forestry plane and dropping 100 pounds of food stuffs.

Lieut. Woyciehowsky said indications were that contact would be made today with the trio. The three men have spent more than a week in their tug on the southeast side of the tiny island, no larger than a city block.

All three of the castaways, Robert Gordon of Brimley, owner of the fish tug; Edgar Ladd, and Orville Brown of Emerson are married and have children.

FOUR PERSONS LOSE LIVES WHEN TORNADO HITS ALABAMA AREA

Fort Payne, Ala., Jan. 18.—(AP)—A tornado hit Sand mountain near here today, killing four persons, injuring several others, and inflicting extensive property loss.

The Sand mountain tornado preceded by several hours two that struck in east central Alabama, injuring five persons.

Those killed were:

Claude Portwood, 36, a farmer, near Fyffe.

Mrs. Claude Portwood, 32, near Fyffe.

Randolph Rowell, 87, of Morgan's Crossroads.

Janet Rowell, 7, of Morgan's Crossroads.

The tornado that swept Sand mountain "hedge hopped" over a distance of about ten miles. It destroyed all but one residence in the village of Rainsville.

The tornadoes in east central Alabama hit at widely varying points, but heavy rain fell over a large area and high winds were reported from several points.

Leatrice Joy May Seek Gilbert Cash for Child

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Suit contesting the will of the late John Gilbert, actor, may be filed by Leatrice Joy, his former actress wife, was made known today. If she sues it will be to gain a larger interest in the estate for her daughter, Leatrice Joy Gilbert, Miss Gilbert said. The actor's will left his 14 year old daughter $10,000. The bulk of the estate was bequeathed to his fourth wife, Virginia Bruce.

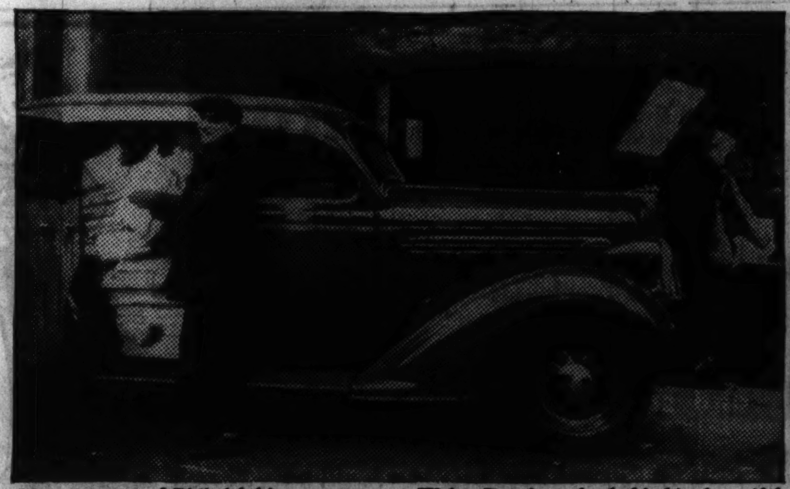
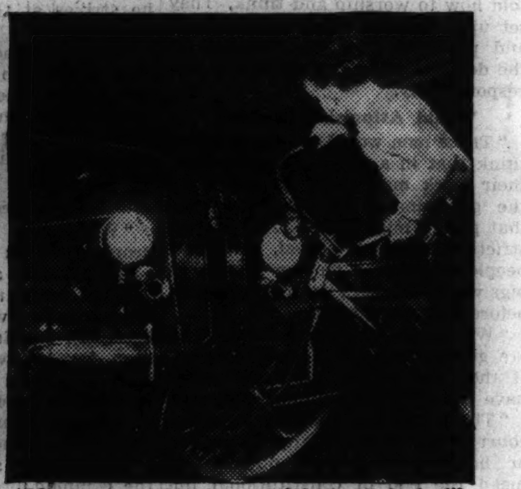
"Ride with the Five Star Final.

YOU'LL SEE WHY I PICKED THIS 'ALL-STAR' PLYMOUTH!"



HALF A TON of Philadelphia newspapers... Walter Dombrow loads his big, beautiful Plymouth for the nightly trip of 20 miles... delivering final editions to 30 neighborhoods.

"I NEVER DISAPPOINT THEM. It's no trouble making my rounds in this Plymouth... it never fails me."



"NO CAR FOR ME without 100% hydraulic brakes!" Walter Dombrow has never been in an accident.

"TALK ABOUT ECONOMY! I get 18 miles to the gallon of gas in city driving," says Mr. Dombrow; "22 on the road."

"I'M CERTAINLY SOLD ON PLYMOUTH," declares Walter Dombrow, World War veteran who now drives a 20-mile night route... six nights a week... for a Philadelphia newspaper. He says, "On my job a car has to take a beating... and how this 1936 Plymouth can take it!"

A CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH WALTER DOMBROW, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THIRTY NEIGHBORHOODS around Philadelphia are expecting their newspapers when Walter Dombrow starts on his night route with the final editions. Six nights a week... twenty miles to make... winter, summer... fair weather or storm.

"But I always make it without disappointing anybody... because my Plymouth never fails me.

"If you could just ride that route with me some night, carrying up to half a ton of finals, you'd see what a beating my Plymouth is able to take, too!"

Safety is just as important as reliability to Mr. Dombrow... he has never had an accident. "I wouldn't even ride in a car without genuine hydraulic brakes," he says.

Walter Dombrow knows how a Plymouth stands up... his earlier model cost him far less for upkeep or repairs than any other car he has ever driven.

"And my new Plymouth," he declares, "is giving me 18 miles to the gallon of gas in city traffic, and 22 miles out on the road. That's real economy... you can take it from me, Plymouth is the most economical car on the market!"

All we can add is this: "Look at All Three"... drive them... compare them on the four most important qualities any car can have: safety, economy, reliability and comfort. Compare them on size... and on beauty, too!

Ask your Chrysler, Dodge or De Soto dealer to let you drive one of the beautiful 1936 Plymouths. Take your family along... get their judgment, too. Do this before you buy any car, today.

TEN WITNESSES SWEAR SAVAGE WILL TELL TRUTH

Joe Starts Refutation of Crowe's Charges.

Ten witnesses testified yesterday that the reputation for truth and veracity of Attorney Joseph P. Savage, former member of the board of education and a former assistant state's attorney, is good. They added they would believe him under oath. The ten were called as character witnesses before Master in Chancery Samuel B. Epstein in connection with the suit for an accounting of the finances of the now dissolved law firm of Crowe, Gorman & Savage.

Last Thursday 20 witnesses were called by Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney and former partner of Savage in the Crowe, Gorman & Savage firm, and they testified that Savage's reputation for truth and veracity was bad and that they would not believe him under oath.

Whether Savage is to call more witnesses was not determined as an adjournment was taken after the tenth witness left the stand. Crowe has completed his case and his 20 witnesses were called in rebuttal of Savage's statements concerning various transactions that occurred during the life of the partnership.

Much Depends on Witnesses.

Throughout the hearings, begun before Master Epstein last November, the bitterness between Crowe and Savage has brought on several open clashes and the statement was frequently made that the credibility of the witneesses would have an important bearing on the decision. Crowe charged that Savage had not accounted for some money collected as fees which, Crowe said, should have been divided with his partners.

Attorney Franklin J. Stransky, representing the estate of the third partner, George E. Gorman, who died a year ago, has taken the position that both Crowe and Savage are indebted to the Gorman estate because they shared fees paid Gorman as a master in chancery. Attorney Stransky said he would conclude his part of the case next Thursday by submitting an audit, and on that day Savage is expected to finish presentation of his evidence. A decision will be made some time later by Master Epstein.

Savage's Witness List.

The witnesses who upheld Savage's reputation for veracity were Charles W. Fry, business manager of the machinists' union and a member of the board of education; Gordon Keogh, 3240 Lake Shore drive, president of the Keogh Printing company; the Rev. William J. McNamee, for 25 years pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic church; D. C. Luse, 5000 East End avenue, a contractor; Matthew J. Hickey Jr., Hubbard Woods, an investment broker; William M. Dewey, managing director of the Edgewater Beach hotel; Kenneth L. Wilson, athletic director of Northwestern university; F. Bowden De Forest, 3240 Lake Shore drive, chairman of the board of Hinckley & Schmidt company; William D. McJunkin, Winnetka, head of an advertising firm and a member of the board of education, and L. H. Heinke, 3240 Lake Shore drive, director and vice president of the United Light and Power company.

HILLMAN STORES' MANAGER KILLED IN 11 FLOOR FALL

Frank R. Gilligan, 43 years old, general superintendent of the Hillman Pure Food stores and Stop and Shop, leaped or fell to his death yesterday noon from an upper floor of the building at 30 West Washington street, where the company's offices are located. His body was recovered from a fifth floor areaway at the rear of the building.

An elevator operator informed Francis Donohue, investigator for the coroner's office, that he took Gilligan to the 16th floor a few minutes before his body was found. L. W. Schultze, Gilligan's assistant, said he had been talking with him on business matters in Gilligan's office a short time before.

In Gilligan's pocket Donohue found two tickets for a night train to Hot Springs, Ark. Donohue said he learned that Gilligan had been under a doctor's care. A bottle bearing a medical prescription was found broken in his vest pocket. Mrs. Gilligan was shopping in the loop at the time. Gilligan was a brother-in-law of Ald. Edward J. Upton [30th]. He lived at 42 North Menard avenue with his wife and baby daughter.

JURY DEADLOCK ENDS ARMSTRONG SWINDLE TRIAL

The Kane county Circuit court jury which heard charges of embezzlement against four officials of the W. W. Armstrong Investment Securities company of Aurora was discharged yesterday by Judge Frank W. Shepherd after it had been deadlocked for 42 hours. State's Attorney George D. Carbary announced that he would seek a new trial.

The embezzlement charges were brought when the investment house went into bankruptcy shortly after W. W. Armstrong, the founder, killed himself in May, 1934. Twelve officials were indicted by the Kane county grand jury and four were brought to trial. They were H. G. Griffeth, vice president; D. L. Armstrong, a brother of W. W., vice president; C. L. Mombleau, treasurer, and Donald Armstrong, son of the founder, a director. The case against Donald was thrown out shortly after the trial started.

BLAME DEATH ON BEATING.

Archie Chaney, 48 years old, a Works Progress administration worker living at 2041 Pratt avenue, who died from injuries at the County hospital Friday, was a victim of a beating by three robbers, it was revealed at the inquest yesterday.

ARRAIGN KEOGH TOMORROW ON MURDER CHARGE

Court Killer Is Happy; Will Defend Self.

John W. Keogh, who on Monday killed Attorney Christopher G. Kinney in the courtroom of Circuit Judge John Prystalski and fired three shots at the judge, will be arraigned on a charge of murder tomorrow before Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle of the Criminal court. Keogh, in the county jail, declared himself much pleased with the prospect.

Justice Normoyle's court was thrown into an uproar Friday when a jury found Keogh sane after state experts testified that he was mad and recommended that he should be committed to an asylum. The surprise verdict came after Keogh made a 45 minute address in his own behalf, demanded the privilege of standing trial and said he would plead self defense when brought to trial. The judge, the prosecution, and the entire courtroom appeared amazed when the verdict was returned after the jury had deliberated 20 minutes.

Slayer Insists He's Sane.

"I am certainly sane, I want to go to trial, and I will conduct my own defense," Keogh said yesterday.

At the time of the shooting he declared that the tragedy was "necessary" to bring to public attention his long fight to obtain legislative reapportionment in Illinois. In several law suits he has contended that the government and courts of Illinois exist illegally because they are constituted of officials improperly selected, due to failure to reapportion the state. Keogh, 72 years old, a well to do loop property owner, is not a lawyer, but he has often appeared as his own attorney in such actions.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty said yesterday that he will ask for an immediate trial, and will demand the death penalty for Keogh.

It is probable that Keogh's case will be assigned to a trial judge at the arraignment today.

Classed with Booth and Zangara.

Assistant State's Attorney Hayden N. Bell yesterday issued a statement declaring Keogh as sane and as guilty of murder as other private killers in a public cause—Booth, Prendergast, Guiteau, Czolgocz, or Zangara.

"Keogh is legally correct and mentally sound in the claim that it is the mandatory duty of the legislature to obey the constitution in the matter of reapportionment," Mr. Bell said. "Furthermore he is not irrational, although not legally sound, in the position that government stops when constitutional channels of government are clogged and stopped by deliberate action of governmental agencies."

TEACHER USES RIFLE TO HOLD SCHOOL; IS SUED BY DIRECTORS

Glasgow, Mont., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—A woman teacher who used a rifle to maintain schoolroom discipline now is using the weapon to hold the school building which she is using as her living quarters and officials are wondering how they are going to dislodge her.

The teacher, Helen Connell, was discharged last Dec. 15 when parents of pupils objected to her using the weapon as a disciplinary threat, C. D. Borton, representing the school trustees, told the court today. Since then there has been no school, but she has refused to budge from the building.

In a suit school trustees charge the teacher is denying children "the right to an education." They ask $1,000 damages.

PEACOCK MURDER INQUEST WILL BE REVIVED TUESDAY

The inquest into the murder of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, 41 years old, specialist in children's diseases, who was found shot and beaten to death in his automobile in the 6300 block on North Francisco avenue, Jan. 3, will be resumed at the Summerdale station Tuesday. The investigators declared yesterday that they have uncovered no new clews.

Mrs. Ruth Peacock, the slain physician's widow, announced yesterday at her mother's home in Bowen, Ill., that she will not return for the hearing. She said Assistant State's Attorney Marshall V. Kearney informed her that her presence here would not be necessary. She has given up her apartment at the Edgewater Beach apartments, 5555 Sheridan road.

OFFER LECTURE ON HYGIENE.

J. C. Benincase, president of the Society for Scientific Research, will speak on "The Hygiene of Marriage" at the Austin High school Little theater on Thursday evening. His address will be the third in a series of twenty free public lectures sponsored by the society.

PROBE $25,000 ROBBERY REPORT OF AUTO DEALER

County highway policemen of the Morton Grove station were investigating last night a story told by Herbert Waltke, 28 years old, of Woodburn, Ind., who asserted that he had been robbed of $13,000 and cashier's check for $12,000 more early yesterday morning.

Waltke is the owner of the Shirley Motor Sales company of Woodburn. He said that he sold 16 trucks and 27 automobiles, all used, to Arthur E. Scott of Houston, Tex., in Elgin on Friday and was paid with the cash and the check. After listening to the Louis-Retzlaff fight on the radio, he said, he started to drive back to Chicago.

At Higgins road and Nagle avenue, Waltke continued, he became aware that two men were following him in another car. He put on speed to distance them, and this caused his car to slide off the road into a ditch. He was knocked unconscious in the accident, he said, and when he revived he walked to the Wagon Wheel inn at Nagle and Montrose avenue. At his order, the car was towed in.

Only then, Waltke insisted, did he discover the money and check were missing. Still slightly dazed, he decided to drive into Chicago. On the way he drove his car against a culvert at 7400 Belmont avenue and suffered additional injuries. He was taken to the Belmont hospital, where he told the story to the police.

5 Italians Die, 20 Hurt in Oxygen Tank Explosion

BARI, Italy, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Five workers were killed and 20 persons, including firemen, were seriously burned when an oxygen tank at an oil refinery exploded, spraying flames and acids over a wide area. Sulphur fumes hindered firemen in their ten hour fight to save other buildings.

WORDY LAWYERS CHIEF WORRY OF APPEALS COURT

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

January's news—good news for many a Chicago litigant—is that the Appellate court for the First district of Illinois is all caught up.

It is all caught up for the righteous reason that its nine justices work harder and dispose of a greater volume of business than does any other court of review in the United States that requires written opinions in every decided case.

"Yes," interjected Mr. Justice Scanlan as he examined the new figures on the court's grand record, "and it is to be remembered that this court has to pass not only on the law but on the facts as well, and sometimes adjudication on the facts takes more time than does adjudication on the law because we have to go through voluminous records. In an important case you may spend a week digging into the facts.

"There is the further task of written opinions. New York does not require written opinions from its Appellate court."

Name a Happy Choice.

This Mr. Justice Scanlan is the man of law whom old Chicago journalists remember as the young, ardent, eager Kickham Scanlan of nearly half a century ago, friend of lost causes and of losing litigants. We used to say that his first name was a happy choice.

He is still that kind of man, but less tempestuous about it. Seventy-one years are sedative. He can still be withering, as witness his favorite story, which he had from the presiding judge of the court, Mr. Justice McSurely, when they were talking of devious lawyers and dubious character witnesses.

Judge McSurely on the maternal side is of the family that bred the extremely outspoken warrior and statesman, Andrew Jackson, and, although he is—off the bench—a Republican, the judge does not mind who knows of his kinship with the Democratic patriarch.

Justice McSurely's Story.

"Now, Kickham," said he—all the First district Appellate justices call each other by their first names—"speaking of 'character witnesses,' Gen. Jackson was the antithesis of the type we have been discussing. In the case of Alexander Patterson, on trial for shooting somebody, the general was called as a character witness. 'Was not,' counsel for the state asked him, 'was not the defendant always a man of violence?'

"'Sir,' Gen. Jackson replied, 'my friend Alec Patterson was always hostile to scoundrels!'"

Mr. Justice Scanlan set his lean jaws into that morsel with relish and the seven listening judges nodded approval.

The Court at Ease.

But, to get back to the happy new year figures on volume of work done during the last year by the Illinois Appellate court for the First district, their honors seemed to feel that those heartening statistics provided legal warrant for them to draw a leisurely and genial breath.

And so, seated at their ease in Judge McSurely's chambers on the twentieth floor of the skyscraper at 30 North Michigan avenue, they talked at their ease.

They talked of the law's delays and of the chicanery, the ignorance, the greed, and the verbosity of badly disposed and badly trained lawyers who wantonly seek and cause delays.

They talked, more in sorrow than in wrath, of ill-prepared briefs, of lazy lawyers, of lawyers so insufficiently trained in the colleges of liberal arts that they cannot write decent English, of that prime legal indecency, champerty—of which they spoke in somewhat the tone of sick scorn a devotee employs when he speaks of "the unpardonable sin"—and of the shocking waste and injustice caused by inefficiently or by corruptly managed receiverships.

Wise to Lawyers' Tricks.

They talked for three hours and a quarter—seldom vehemently but always forcibly. It was well ordered talk—no wasted words and no banalities—and I was privileged to sit by and take notes for publication; an interview en masse, as it were.

The essential message of the nine worthies to the bar was, "For heaven's sake, be simple and stick to your point!"

And the lesson of it all, readily to be grasped by an attentive listener, was that a vast number of oversmart lawyers are far from comprehending how thoroughly judges of experience are—if I may so put it—on to them and their tricks. As to that phase of the discourse it seemed a pity that this informal sitting together was not a public meeting. There was such good schooling in it, especially for the young and the oversmart—or both.

It is by keeping their work up to the minute that Chicago's nine Appellate judges have most effectively countered against the infamous machinations of corrupt lawyers. A notorious device of those bad men is to file appeals in review courts whose work has fallen behind. By so doing, shysters secure long delays, because it is sometimes a year or two, or even three, before a cluttered court can make a decision on the appeal. Lawyers do not dare employ this subterfuge in the First district's Appellate court, because its decisions are so prompt that the subterfuge is not worth while.

This expeditiousness is accompanied by decreasing expense in the maintenance of the court. "Economy" is one of its watchwords, and it is no idle slogan. Since 1929 the court has reduced its budget from $72,500 a year to $64,920 a year.

All but one of the members of the Illinois Appellate bench, First district—and First district means Cook county—are by birth men of the central west: Scanlan, J. J. Sullivan, Hall, and D. E. Sullivan from Illinois, O'Connor and Matchett from Iowa, Hebel from Missouri, and McSurely from Ohio. The exception, Hugo Morris Friend, was born in the grand old Bohemian city of Prague. Their talk was like the unspoiled central west—plain and forthright.

JUDGES OF THE APPELLATE COURT

They Are 585 Years Old.

The oldest of them—Scanlan and McSurely are 71; the youngest, Friend, is 53. The ages of the nine total 585 years, so the average is 65 years. The senior in Appellate service is McSurely—pronounced like the adverb "surely"—twenty-four years. The others: O'Connor, twenty years; Matchett, eighteen; Scanlan, eleven; Hebel, six; Friend, three; J. J. Sullivan, two, and D. E. Sullivan, six months. The total of their Appellate service is 87½ years.

Their terms run three years each and they are appointed to the Appellate bench by the Illinois Supreme court from elected judges sitting in the Circuit and Superior courts of Cook county—that is to say, Cook county in the case of the First district Appellate. Thus they are both elected and appointed judges. The salary is $15,000 a year.

On the bench the demeanor of the nine is austere. In their heavily paneled courtroom on the twenty-first floor of the skyscraper no antics are allowed and oratory is not encouraged. There are no juries and the court hears no witnesses. It is strictly a court of review.

Simple—Yet Formal.

During the three hours of discourse in the chambers the manners of their honors were at once simple and formal—simple in that they were easy and genial, and formal in that they were most polite. The clerk of the court, former Ald. Sheldon Govier, a Scot by birth, did the routine glad handing for the justices and did it with cheerful aplomb. And I would like to say for him that when an humble reporter asked him for Appellate statistics he sent them by next return post special delivery and in neatly typewritten form. This, if you know courts, was overwhelming.

The note of the justices was composure.

When they spoke most critically of conniving "lawyer criminals" not yet disbarred they did it in a serene and restrained tone of scorn—just quiet scorn—that made the criticism a hundred times more desolating than if they had waxed loud and rancorous.

While they talked only one of them, as I remember it, smoked and nobody swore. Had they been the ordinary run of political judges the room would have been blue with smoke and profanity.

The Play of Nine Minds.

The close, accurate interplay of the nine minds was very pleasant and instructive to follow. You had the feeling all the time of solid men.

Like most ageing men, they did not like to be interrupted even by one another, and when one of them, rapidly making a point, did interrupt, the interrupted one said austerely, "I beg your pardon; let me finish, please," and the interrupter said, "I beg your pardon, judge—go on, please!"

The conversation, it seemed to me, of sage men finding pleasure in musing along on matters closest to their business and bosoms, in thinking out loud—and not afraid of anybody.

There ought, thought I, to be wisdom in this assembled half a millennium and more of living and studying.

And there is.

For careless lawyers, and for litigants who hire careless lawyers, the most instructive part of the mass interview was the searching talk on bad briefs.

The Court on Bad Briefs.

Thus it ran:

JUDGE SCANLAN—"The greatest difficulty we have is with the briefs of poorly trained lawyers. The briefs of good lawyers are a joy. But when bad briefs are submitted we have to dig into the record to find out what the case is about."

JUDGE SCANLAN—"Yes, and bad law is apt to come from a case that's been poorly argued."

JUDGE McSURELY—"I found when I came to this bench twenty-four years ago that you have to become a detective, so baffling are many of the briefs and so stupidly are essentials buried and twisted. Many a lawyer would seem to entrust the writing of briefs to his office boys."

JUDGE FRIEND—"These great law offices have a big overhead, and in some cases the amount of money involved is so small that the head or heads of the firm won't bother with the briefs, although the principle involved may be important and the details intricate."

So Many Abominable.

JUDGE HALL—"Yes, some masterly briefs—and so many abominable ones! And some lawyers when they file for petitions of rehearing make flagrant misstatements of fact. More than once we have said there were grounds for the suggestion that there was champerty."

[A champertor, reader, is a despicable species of legal vermin in comparison with whom a hoodlum racketeer is a gentleman. What Judge Hall here refers to is a petition brought not in good faith but rather for the purpose of obtaining attorney's fees by stirring up litigation, thereby luring honest but misguided men to ruin.]

Their honors agreed that the pestilence of receiverships brought on by hard times is a new and terrible source of champerty.

JUDGE HALL [continuing]—"Receivership cases such as the courts never had before have brought out the worst phases of lawyer immorality."

JUDGE MATCHETT—"Hence, because of this deluge of new litigation, our task of late has been the application of sound principles to new sets of facts. In these depressed times, when property sometimes goes for 11 cents on the dollar, the courts should fix an upset price for the protection of holders of the equity and the bondholders."

Into the English Law.

JUDGE HEBEL—"In England they have done that for more than a century—that is, the fixing of an upset price. Lord Eldon did it in 1820."

JUDGE O'CONNOR—"The point is that all this receivership litigation has thrown new and most intricate cases on the courts. Furthermore, the new practice act of Jan. 1, 1934, made radical changes in the whole system of procedure and created confusion in certain minds."

JUDGE SCANLAN—"And will create work for the courts for some years to come in determining what's what."

To my joy, their honors got on the subject of good English—an art I have been trying to get forward in ever since I could make legible marks on paper.

JUDGE McSURELY—"Some lawyers seem to think that the writing of good English consists in trying to be eloquent and running in a little Latin."

JUDGE FRIEND—"Is not bad English among lawyers largely a matter of deficient pre-legal training? That is, a deficiency in the colleges of liberal arts of the universities. It is a deficiency of both expression and matter. When counsel argue a case orally they ought to stress only two or three points, and those points of the first consequence. Sometimes they never touch those points at all—miss them altogether. Sometimes a brief will run to a hundred pages—"

JUDGE O'CONNOR [interjecting]—"And should have run to twenty!"

JUDGE SCANLAN [swiftly catching the ball]—"And the points—if any—become involved and tiresome. Good writers don't do that!"

And He Missed the Point!

JUDGE HALL—"I once was hit with a brief that ran to two hundred and eighty pages and three hundred cases were cited. The index of cases cited ran to six closely printed pages. But there was only one essential point in the case and it was very simple. That point the lawyer had omitted!—didn't have it in his brief. That point was: Was or was it not a gambling transaction? Was it actually a purchase of stock or a venture on margins?"

JUDGE FRIEND [wearily]—"If lawyers could—if they only would—state propositions clearly and make clear arguments it would be a help to the courts beyond calculation."

JUDGE McSURELY—"I sometimes say to young lawyers, 'Now, don't say you represent the appellant or the appellee, as the case may be, but that you represent the plaintiff or the defendant. Be direct, be simple.' I say, 'Tell your story as a story—a narrative of what happened.' Most young lawyers, and many old ones, ought to take a course in 'Little Red Riding Hood' or any other simple story."

Recalls a Compliment.

His honor smiled reminiscently and added, "The late Judge Joseph Fitch once said to me, and in no approving tone, 'Your opinions read like a newspaper article.' I took that as a compliment. A good newspaper article is compact and to the point."

JUDGE MATCHETT—"The brethren will recall what Lord Eldon said of some ornately written opinion. 'More literature than law,' said he."

The scandal of weak-kneed and publicity bitten judges who allow courts to be turned into a three-ring circus was taken up.

JUDGE O'CONNOR [in biting, short phrases]—"Motion pictures of scenes in court! Incorrect, undignified. A judge pounding around with a gavel! All tends to belittle the dignity of courts."

JUDGE FRIEND—"Some Criminal court judge jumps off the bench and hits a litigant on the nose. Columns for that in the newspapers. We decide a case involving twenty millions of property and affecting the welfare of many persons. No mention."

JUDGE McSURELY—"As a contribution to decorum judicial robes have their value. I recall a signal instance. It was a case of proving an alibi. A witness contemplating perjury was about to take the stand. The solemnity of the scene scared the fellow and he whispered to counsel, 'I won't tell that story.'"

Adverse criticism uttered by the justices was not cantankerous. It was forthright and salutary. When they bestowed praise where it is due they did it heartily. Although they were emphatic in their criticism of slovenly briefs, they warmly praised lawyers who, as they put it, "really aid the court with briefs of merit."

"Such briefs," added Judge McSurely, "are a delight to a reviewing court. And let me also say that we keenly appreciate the fine work of trial courts whose carefulness keeps the record free from error."

"No Freaks Among Us."

After Judge McSurely's colleagues had bowed themselves out of his chambers he commented on the attributes of the court as a whole. "Earnest, humane, human men I think we are," he said. "No freaks among us. Our differences are solely differences on cases. Things are threshed out with earnestness, thoroughness. I maintain that when a case is finished here it has been gone through as intensively as it could be, and that is why so few petitions for rehearing are allowed. And only one-half of 1 per cent of the decisions of this court are reversed by the Supreme court. In its October term the Supreme court denied a review in thirty-eight of forty-two cases in which leave to appeal was asked, and allowed a review in four—and those four are as yet undecided.

The Biggest Little Courtroom.

The Appellate court of the First district is the pride and joy of Presiding Judge McSurely's life. He took me up to the courtroom on the twenty-first floor which Jarvis Hunt designed from an old English courtroom. Gazing upon its dark, simple, impressive lines, the judge said:

"We don't entertain crowds here. In quietness, composure, and decorum the cases are decided—more cases in this little room with its twelve benches seating seventy-five persons, than in any other court of review in the United States that requires written opinions in every decided case."

Fifteen years ago Judge Thomas Taylor paid a truly solemn tribute to this court that works so quietly high above the city's turmoil and that in 1937 will commemorate the sixtieth anniversary of its foundation.

"If a citizen," said Judge Taylor, "thinks a jury has brought in a wrong verdict or that the trial judge has erred he may take his case to the Appellate court. There the judges examine all the evidence and the apt law. That involves careful study of tens of thousands of printed pages every year. Every case is discussed, some over and over again. It is close, confining, purely intellectual work, perhaps as hard work as any done in Cook county."

City's Lawyers to Have Shields; Many Imposters

City Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes announced yesterday that the 40 investigators of the city law department would be equipped shortly with identification shields. Under the reorganization plan of the city law department enacted last year the department investigators were ordered to investigate every accident occurring in which the city might be involved in a liability. "It is necessary that our men be identified because we have learned that impostors, representing ambulance chasing lawyers, have been identifying themselves as the law department investigators in order to reach accident victims," Hodes explained.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 18.—(AP)—The body of four year old Roy Rogers was found in the Gaudalupe mountains today two miles from the ranch home of his uncle. Six airplanes and more than 300 ground searchers had hunted for him since he strayed from the ranch Wednesday.

DARWIN THEORY IS DISPUTED BY DR. A. C. KINSEY

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Dr. A. C. Kinsey, Indiana university biologist, back from a 10,000 mile scientific expedition into the wilds of southern Mexico and Guatemala, said today specimens he gathered leads him to break with the Darwinian theory of evolution which holds that variation in species is gradual.

Dr. Kinsey collected 50,000 individual specimens of gall wasps, tiny insects which lend themselves to the study of evolution.

After a study of these insects in an attempt to find an answer to the puzzling problem of what makes animal life vary Dr. Kinsey concludes the change is not gradual but sudden.

"A new species suddenly appears as if by accident," said the biologist, "and becomes the starting point for a succession of the same species. The old species may not die out but may continue along with the new."

Charles Robert Darwin, the English naturalist, held evolution to be a slow process with environment a vital factor.

"Health and Superstition Through the Ages"……………………No. 1 in a series

Ages Ago, the sick were beaten to drive out Demons

EVEN NOW, among savages, it is believed that ill health is the work of evil spirits who are living within the body of the unfortunate victim. To drive away these spirits, fantastically attired medicine men set upon the sick person with much noise and flagellation. This was and is the principal healing magic of primitive people.

Up out of a past waylaid by ignorance and superstition, medicine has climbed with man, prolonging his life and insuring his health.

Today, the Civic Medical Center is bringing the benefits of modern medicine within easy reach of every one. To achieve this a number of reputable physicians and surgeons have changed the old order of things, and grouped themselves into what might be called a "new-fashioned" family doctor.

No one need delay receiving medical attention now! Come to the Civic Medical Center with the assurance that you will receive good medical care at fixed low fees.

Complete Medical and Surgical Services for the Entire Family at Fixed Low Fees

WALLACE MOVES TO REVAMP FARM POLICY BY FEB. 15

Wary in Discussing Plan; Scores Tax Refunds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—In his first press conference since the Supreme court outlawed the AAA, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today asserted substitute legislation must be passed by Feb. 15 if comprehensive aid to farmers is to be given this year.

Wallace was guarded in discussion of the administration's program to carry on farm subsidies by amendment of the soil conservation act, but loud in denunciation of refunding processing taxes. He said he did not believe "public opinion would tolerate" the refund to manufacturers of the billion dollars paid in AAA processing taxes.

The secretary based his position on the declaration that the processing taxes have been passed on to consumers by manufacturers. He said the 200 million dollars in taxes, impounded under court injunctions, are in the same status as the billion dollars paid into the treasury, so far as consumers are concerned.

New Deal May Ask Review.

The Supreme court, in the rice miller decision of last Monday, directed that the impounded taxes be returned to processors. The administration is considering asking for a review of the decision through the attorney general's office.

In wary parrying of questions on the administration substitute, Wallace said its most important phase would be to widen the soil conservation act to include soil fertility as stressed yesterday by President Roosevelt. The existing act is concerned chiefly with soil erosion. Wallace also agreed with Mr. Roosevelt that continuation of the new program should be carried on by the AAA personnel.

In dodging questions as to the machinery and amount of subsidies under the proposal, Wallace said details must come from congress. He also left the question of financing the subsidies up to congress.

50 Million Acres Surplus.

Wallace said that on the basis of the AAA, 50 million acres of crops should be taken out of cultivation until foreign markets are found. He agreed with former President Hoover's Nebraska speech that for long time solution of the farm program, foreign purchasing must be built up.

As Wallace held the conference, which had been postponed three times in the feverish search for an AAA substitute. Senate leaders planned to speed the proposal through congress. They proposed to tack the legislation as a rider to the independent offices appropriation bill, passed by the house yesterday.

TRAINER HURT BY ELEPHANT PUTTING ON ACT

Rochester, Ind., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Walter Powell, 22, of St. Louis, an elephant trainer at Cole Brothers, Clyde Beatty circus, was injured today by Major, the herd leader of his elephants.

Major attacked Powell, who was attempting to train him in a new act which will include thirty elephants. Only prompt action by Powell's aids prevented his being gored and trampled to death. Powell is in a hospital.

Eddie Allen, head elephant trainer, was unable to explain the attack. Major has been in American circuses for many years. He has made several attacks on trainers, but never has been considered dangerous.

Physicians said Powell will recover after several weeks. The elephant's tusks cut him about the head, chest and abdomen. Many stitches were required to close the wounds. Powell was born while his parents were traveling with the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus.

A TOURIST FINDS MEXICAN CAPITAL A 'WONDER CITY.'

Views Castle Used by Spanish Viceroys.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18.—From the number of tourists filling the hotels here the United States must have accepted the statement of some writers that this city is one of the wonders of the world. Even greater volumes are anticipated when the highway from Laredo, Tex., is completed and equipped with eating and sleeping accommodations, possibly in a year or two.

Vacationists are pouring into this former Toltec and former Aztec capital, discovered and conquered by Cortez in 1521. A clew to the possible increase with the highway completion might be seen in Florida's statistics that 76 per cent of its winter visitors come by automobile. Miami is 1,500 miles from Chicago. Mexico City is about 2,250 miles by road from Chicago.

A Sightseeing Jaunt.

While THE TRIBUNE roadster was being repaired from its rough 762 mile trip over the incomplete highway from Laredo, a Mexican car and driver were hired for a sightseeing jaunt.

In Chapultepec park a guide took his visitors through the castle started in 1783 and finished in 1840, which was the home of Spanish viceroys of the Emperor Maximilian and of all presidents prior to the present administration. It is furnished with tapestry, tile, woodwork, and paintings of the best European artistry. Its site, the seat of Aztec rulers, overlooks this city, viewed over the tops of several acres of ahuehuetes trees 100 feet high, 50 feet in circumberence and 500 years old.

Driving down a broad parkway, the famous Paceo de la Reforma, bordered by statues of Mexican heroes and by shaded foot and saddle paths, we reached the town square, the Plaza de la Constitucion, the city's center since 1176.

Rivera Mural in Palace.

On one side of this square the National palace was entered to view a huge mural by Diego Rivera depicting the history of Mexico, including his communistic interpretation of recent events.

On another side the guide took his clients into a cathedral started in 1573 and finished in 1667. It is said to be the largest and richest church on the continent, with nineteen altars, some of gold leaf on mahogany, some of various marbles, and all immense and highly ornamented. Rough boards form a flooring over tile damaged by earthquake a few years ago.

We visited residential sections where modern bungalows of A Century of Progress architecture neighbor impressive mansions of French and Italian renaissance. The amount of construction under way indicates that Mexico City has long recovered from the world depression.

Visit Slum Section.

We visited slum sections, dirty streets lined with dilapidated mud and brick buildings, that the guide described as remnants of Mexico's three centuries of depression under Spanish rule.

We visited the Palace of Fine Arts, a magnificent structure of Italian architecture started in 1900 and finished in 1934. Construction was interrupted by revolutions.

We visited the Thieves Market, where owners may recover articles lost to burglars or robbers much as victims of lawlessness sometimes are able to recover in pawnshops in the United States.

PLAN TO DUMP OATS IN MINE TO HALT FLOOD

Johnston City, Ill., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Three tons of oats will be poured into Old Ben Mine No. 18 tomorrow in an effort to stop the flow of water rushing in from adjacent abandoned workings and threatening the destruction of the colliery.

Engineers who have been fighting the flood waters since Dec. 2, believe the oats which swell when wet will choke the passages where the water is leaking through from the abandoned mines.

Two holes being drilled from the surface to points just behind seals in the mine down which the oats will be dumped into the subterranean reservoir are expected to be completed by tomorrow.

The use of navy beans was at first suggested but field oats being available in large quantities and adapted to the swelling process, were finally decided upon.

Santa Barbara, Cal., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—John Masefield, poet laureate of Great Britain, suffered a recurrence of a throat affliction after arriving here to address a session of school teachers, and went to bed upon orders of a physician. Masefield returned later to Los Angeles. He will continue under medical observation for his throat.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

"THE DEFINITION OF DESPOTIC GOVERNMENT."

During the Roosevelt administration the attention of citizens has been chiefly centered on the efforts of the President and his deputies to evade constitutional restraints and to absorb power. But executive ambition is not the only threat to free government and the liberties of the individual. The designs and influence of Mr. Roosevelt might be all defeated by a congress released through the decline of his popularity from his domination. Yet congress, under the influence of clamorous minorities or reckless impulse and the desire to be popular and powerful, is as capable and has shown itself to be as ready to evade or override restraints upon its powers as Mr. Roosevelt. This is apparent at the moment in the crop of bills to restrict or abolish the authority of the Supreme court to preserve these restraints. It is apparent in the recent laws which have invaded state sovereignty and individual rights, even though they were initiated and urged by the executive.

In short, although congress identifies its will with that of the people, it is only an agent of the people—an agent as likely as the executive to usurp unlawful and despotic power. This the experienced and farseeing statesmen who framed the checks and balances of our system of government foresaw. Madison in urging the adopting of that system noted that the founders of then existing republics "seem never to have recollected the danger from legislative usurpations, which by assembling all power in the same hands must lead to the same tyranny as is threatened by executive usurpation." And he quotes from Thomas Jefferson's "Notes in Virginia" the following, which deserves the very serious reflection of the American people at this time:

"All the powers of government, legislative, executive, and judiciary," wrote this champion of free government, "result to the legislative body. The concentrating of these in the same hands is precisely the definition of despotic government. It will be no alleviation, that these powers will be exercised by a plurality of hands, and not by a single one. One hundred and seventy-three despots would surely be as oppressive as one. Let those who doubt it turn their eyes on the republic of Venice. As little will it avail us, that they are chosen by ourselves. An elective despotism was not the government we fought for; but one which should be founded on free principles, but in which the powers of government should be so divided and balanced among several bodies of magistracy, as that no one could transcend their legal limits, without being effectually checked and restrained by the others."

Jefferson proceeds to point out that while the Virginia ordinance of government declared that the legislative, executive, and judicial departments should be separate, "no barrier was provided between these several powers," and that in fact the judiciary and executive members "were left dependent upon the legislative for their subsistence in office and some of them for their continuance in it." Accordingly, he records, the Virginia legislators have "in many instances decided rights which should have been left to judiciary controversy, and their direction of the executive, during the whole time of their session, is becoming habitual and familiar."

With such experiences and dangers in mind, the framers of the constitution not only provided for the separation of the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of government but created a "barrier," as definite as was practicable, "between these several powers." They were convinced this separation is essential to prevent the concentrating of all power in the same hands, "precisely the definition of despotic government." They created this barrier and they set a guardian over it, the federal Supreme court. They were not foolish enough to expect that either the legislative or the executive would always respect the "barrier," and congress under the New Deal has abundantly proved them right.

Those who wish to concentrate all authority in the central government and in the guise of a planned society to give it power to regulate all the affairs, both private and public, of the American people, always attack the Supreme court. They are now proposing amendment of the constitution to deprive it of its authority to declare invalid acts of the legislative branch of government that are inconsistent with the fundamental law. Americans should understand that with the abolition of this judicial power our whole system of restraints upon autocratic power will rapidly disintegrate. Its preservation, of course, must depend upon the people, but the Supreme court is their legal agent for its defense and the people will not consent to destroy this agent unless they are ready to abolish the American system of government.

THE NEW DEAL IN GOLF.

Something called the United States Golf association has a president named Jackson. It also has a golfer named Lawson Little who is the best amateur golfer in the world. Best is a big word, but he is it. He has won the American and British amateur championships twice, if memory serves. He is the Bobby Jones of his day.

For a number of years Bobby wrote syndicated articles on golf. Recently Little took over the job. He receives pay for it. Mr. Jackson says it's all right so long as the articles do not tell how to play golf. Mr. Little may tell anecdotes of golf and gossip about the personalities he has encountered as a player, but when he recently wrote that a pause at the top of the backswing will improve the stroke he was giving instruction and thereby endangering his amateur standing.

Thus it appears that golf is about to go tennis. Golf hitherto has been reasonably well handled. A man who didn't take cash for playing was an amateur. A man who did take cash for playing was a professional. A professional was regarded as an honorable man. He was not a moral leper and to play against him was not a mortal sin for an amateur. Indeed, it was a high honor. A golfer who went professional did not lose caste, and it followed that those amateurs who decided that golf offered them a brighter career than medicine, business, the law or the ministry became professionals. The amateurs were those who preferred for one reason or another not to play for money.

It was different in tennis. Until recently the glory of tennis was pretty well cornered by the so-called amateurs. The only way to make a career in tennis, therefore, was to stay amateur. As everybody knows, a first class tennis player has to work at his game pretty much the year round. Some few of them may be wealthy enough in their own right to spend the winters in Florida, southern California, the Riviera, or Egypt and the summers traveling from tournament to tournament in the north, but such players are the exception. Most of them have received something resembling what the army calls commutation of rations. The resort hotels for years have used tennis tournaments as an attraction for visitors, and inducements to the players to enter followed as a matter of course.

Golf has hitherto preserved a reasonably honest, livable distinction between the amateur and professional and the code of golf has been fairly well enforced. The fuss over Little's writings suggests a New Deal. Honest practices are to be forbidden and in consequence hypocrisy will triumph.

If Mr. Little wants to he can have a lot of fun with Mr. Jackson. There are many ways to give instruction, as most teachers and all professional writing men know. Mr. Little will not have to start his article by saying "And now, dear reader, I will instruct you in the way to improve your stroke. When you get to the top of your backswing pause for a moment, etc." He can start something like this: "And now let me tell you how Sarazen improved his game. We were walking down the fairway on the third hole at Gassaway-by-Hours when he turned to me quizzically and said he was off his game. 'Let me tell you something,' I replied. 'When you get to the top of your backswing just pause for a moment, etc., etc.' He followed my advice and the next week he cleaned up at ———."

Then let the lawyers of golf decide whether that is an anecdote or instruction.

AIR TAXIS NEXT.

While THE TRIBUNE has followed with interest the efforts of the aeronautical branch of the department of commerce to foster the designing of a practical flivver airplane, there is reason for doubting the theories which underlie experimentation. It is within the bounds of possibility that within a few years numbers of citizens will be the owners of airplanes that will land vertically on the roofs of buildings in the business district or small fields in suburban areas, to be taxied with folded wings to a garage. But this accomplishment seems farther away than an aerial taxi which might be used for hops to nearby cities at the convenience of the business man.

In Europe air taxis are quite common. Planes may be engaged on short notice at an advanced cost that roughly represents the difference between private, or taxi, and public transportation service on the ground. Of course small planes may be chartered at many American airports, but such ships are not subjected to the rigid inspection accorded by the standard mail lines. The latter will also supply ships for chartered service, but as they operate few small planes a twelve or fourteen passenger carrier is offered at a price that frequently is prohibitive.

Foreign countries have shown that aerial taxi service can be successfully operated. The tardiness of our development appears to be due to a lack of the necessary adequate small plane to carry a crew and three or four passengers. That should be the next objective of the aviation industry, leaving private flying for the more distant future. Mechanical invention should not be discouraged, but time must be allowed for the human element to overtake it. Although the automobile has been with us for three or four decades, the accident record of the last few years clearly shows that the public has not yet mastered the problem of properly driving it.

RIGHT TO THE POINT.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said a political speaker, "if we are to make this country a fit place for heroes to live in we must improve the status quo."

"What is the status quo?" asked one of the audience.

CHALKING THEM UP.

Rabbi Friedel was occupying his first pulpit and was anxious to know whether he was being properly appreciated. One day he asked a young member of his congregation how she liked his sermons.

"Splendidly!" she replied. "Honest, I never knew how many things were sins until you came here."—B'nai B'rith Magazine.

ADVERTISING AND ITS CONTRIBUTION TO THE GENERAL WELFARE

BY ALBERT D. LASKER.

I.

Advertising volume is at its highest in the United States and Great Britain. It is at its lowest in China and India. Of never ending interest to the writer is this relationship, world-wide, between volume of advertising and living standards. Where living standards are at a maximum, advertising volume is at a maximum. Where living standards are at a minimum, advertising volume is at a minimum.

One might well ask, which is cause and which is effect? That question has all the practical import of Joe Miller's conundrum, "Which came first, the hen or the egg?"

Forty years' experience in advertising has convinced the writer that no influence has played a greater part than advertising in making for a better America. Future historians will appraise it as far more important in our daily life than we contemporaries can realize at close range. Even at this time of depression living standards in the United States are higher than anywhere else in the world, higher than any other peoples' in recorded history.

Depressions we have in any era, under any system. The only true appraisal of our economic progress is whether we as a nation enjoy a richer, fuller life at the lowest ebb of each succeeding depression than we did at a similar point in the depression before.

In America the answer cries out for itself—YES! And while the writer would not for one moment be so intemperate as to remotely insinuate that advertising is responsible for this magnificent record of national progress, it may be avowed that it played a major part in creating desire for these higher living standards. Desire which has found its fruition in glorious fulfilment.

Unlike most other peoples of the world, we of the United States keep our eyes on the stars. We have a flair for living, a consuming purpose to elevate our lives to an even higher standard. To this restless, dynamic, relentless drive which stimulates our desires we as a nation owe the tremendously fast turnover in commerce on which our national economy is based.

The settling of the country, the machine age, the coming of the automobile, telephone, movies, radio, the advances in fine arts and all the sciences, demanded that our capacity to accept and use new ideas be developed to a point never before seen on the pages of history.

There and there only is the key to "the more abundant life." And in America it has come about largely, in my opinion, through advertising that fired the imaginations of millions with the glory of desires to be fulfilled. Fired them with iron determination to make their own dreams come true. This has been advertising's great destiny in our national life.

And so, if you will measure the forces, psychological as well as material, which labored to build our incomparable American civilization, you will find that advertising has made five major contributions to the general welfare. Contributions without which the writer believes we could never have come so far along the road. They are:

1. Advertising has developed the urge among Americans for better ways of living. And fired their determination to seek fulfilment.
2. Because of advertising, American people get better quality in what they buy, and more of it for their money, than any other people in the world.
3. Advertising has brought to the average American home an education in health, diet, hygiene, and sanitation unparalleled among all the nations of history.
4. It has educated people that leisure is an indispensable part of life, and, more than any other influence, has taught them how to use it.
5. It has guaranteed the sanctity of a free press, without which there can be no freedom.

No better example exists than the automobile industry of that debt we owe to advertising for arousing in people the desire to lift themselves to a higher standard of living.

American automobile manufacturers as a group represent the highest attainment in modern merchandising. They made transportation a household commodity. They changed the economic map of America. They, more than anything else, made America geographically homogeneous.

Yet even they, with every basic trend in their favor, were not content to rest on their oars as skilled manufacturers.

In the early days Henry Ford successfully sold his model T without advertising. For a time there was no one to challenge his leadership. Then came Chevrolet, who did not stop with merely producing a fine low priced car, but embarked upon a courageous and forceful campaign of education through advertising to fire every American family with the impelling desire to own an automobile.

Today, as a result, Ford uses advertising as extensively as any of his competitors. Today both Ford and Chevrolet are far, far better and lower priced automobiles than the one Henry Ford made during the period when he did not advertise. And by the millions they spend in advertising give conclusive evidence that they feel its use is a major essential to their operations.

A giant industry has grown before our eyes. Billions in sales. Billions in pay rolls. Millions of men in jobs. And an easier, more livable life for every one of the 20,000,000 car owners in America—in large part because automobile manufacturers had the courage and vision to educate you and me.

But not alone has advertising spread desire for greater material comforts—the automobile, the radio, better housing. Count, if you will, the amazing contribution advertising has made to people's knowledge of how to live. How many of the enlightened daily habits that enrich our living owe their original stimulus to advertising.

Contrast the emancipated condition of American women in matters of feminine hygiene to the oppressed status of women in other lands. Advertising has played its part in almost every single important hygienic precaution practiced by American women today!

Americans are known to have the healthiest mouths, the soundest teeth of any civilized people on earth. Why? Witness, Dr. Charles H. Mayo, one of the two great Doctors Mayo, said in an address made in San Francisco: "The modern dentist is doing a great work in pointing out that more than twenty ailments show themselves in the mouth. Amos 'n' Andy are doing more than any one else in the world to get people to care for their teeth."

[To be concluded next Sunday.]

JUST LIKE THAT.

The conjurer was producing eggs from a top hat. He addressed a boy in the front row.

"Your mother can't get eggs without hens, can she?" he asked.

"O, yes," said the boy.

"How's that?" asked the conjurer.

"She keeps ducks," answered the boy.—Toronto Globe.

WHY IRON IS NECESSARY.

FROM ancient times man has used iron and the iron age marked a distinct advance in human progress.

The Greeks recognized the value of iron in the treatment of anemia and a favorite prescription was water in which a sword had been allowed to rust. Celsus, a Roman physician, advised the use of water in which a blacksmith had immersed red hot iron.

There are many substances essential to life. For example, we can live but a short time without renewing the supply of air, and the part played by water is well known. Lime is important; so is phosphorus, and numerous acid forming elements such as chlorine. There are hundreds of elements and compounds that the body must have and hold, at least for the time being, in order to function. Some are used and then discarded, and one such is iron.

The value of iron to the chemistry of the body was not really understood until about the middle of the eighteenth century, when its presence was demonstrated in the blood. We now know that this metal plays a vital rôle in the life of every cell and serves as an accelerating agent in various chemical reactions, thousands of which occur in the body every hour.

Iron is widely distributed throughout the human frame, although the quantity is not large. The adult body needs only about 50 grains. Two-thirds of this amount is in the blood in the form of hemoglobin—the red coloring matter. It is, nevertheless, necessary to existence, and the supply requires regular renewal inasmuch as a small amount is eliminated daily.

Under ordinary circumstances approximately one-fifth of a grain is the daily ration of an adult and the average balanced diet furnishes more than enough. Meat, particularly red meat and liver, green vegetables, and egg yolk are high in iron, while the white of egg, cereals, and milk are low. Whole wheat and potatoes are fair sources. Even a person on an exclusive vegetable diet will receive a sufficient amount as some vegetables, such as spinach, cabbage, Brussels sprouts, asparagus, and lettuce, contain iron. In fact, most diets supply more iron than is required and the excess is either eliminated or stored [if needed] in the liver, the spleen, and the bone marrow. Here it lies in an inactive state until it is required, when reabsorption occurs.

A need for iron may be created by several situations, chief among these being a low intake, as in starvation or because of an improper diet, hemorrhage, or disease responsible for the destruction of the blood. Hemorrhage sets up an emergency call upon the storehouses for iron replacement and, if long continued, as in chronic bleeding from a stomach ulcer or from hemorrhoids, the supply may become exhausted and sizable quantities be necessary to replace the deficit.

For many years a controversy raged as to whether the body could or could not use iron regardless of its chemical form. It is now known that either organic or inorganic iron can be utilized.

Iron may be given in several ways—under the skin, directly into the blood stream, or by mouth, the latter being the usual and the preferable plan. An old and satisfactory method is the form known as Blaud's pills. If given in large doses digestive distress may result and, for this reason physicians have learned that it is wise to prescribe small amounts.

Fortunately iron is so widely distributed in nature and is so intimately mixed with our ordinary foods that supply and demand need give us but little concern. It is only when the excretion of this element exceeds the intake that additional quantities will be ordered.

PUS.

A. I. R. writes:

1. What does pus in the urine mean?

2. Is a small uterus a contra-indication of pregnancy?

REPLY.

1. Pus in the urine is associated with infection of any part of the genito-urinary tract. The causes fall naturally into three groups: [1] inflammation of the pelvis of the kidney; [2] inflammation of the bladder; [3] inflammation of the canal from the bladder to the outside of the body [urethra]. The presence of significant quantities of pus in the urine should be suspected when a freshly voided specimen is cloudy. Microscopic examination is, of course, the only sure test. Infections gain entrance to the urinary tract via the blood from foci of infection [teeth, tonsils, ears, bones] or by way of the bowels or the urinary canal. Characteristic symptoms are loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, and abdominal distension. When persistent the patient may complain of frequent urination, burning, and acute pain when the bladder contracts. If the attack is acute the temperature is usually fluctuating. Should infection remain for a few weeks kidney tissue may be destroyed. Treatment should be managed by a competent physician who may advise some urinary antiseptic that will be effective in stopping the growth of the causative bacteria.

2. A small uterus lessens the possibility of pregnancy. If pregnancy occurs, however, the uterus will grow to the necessary size.

CONSULT A PHYSICIAN.

P. P. N. writes: My nose has been sore for over a year. There are pus filled sores inside and it often burns and smarts. Can this be cured?

REPLY.

You should be under the care of a physician and with the proper treatment your condition should clear up. An infection about the nose, e. g., in a hair follicle—may lead to an abscess.

SNORING.

G. M. writes: Is there a remedy for snoring?

REPLY.

Snoring results simply from the habit of sleeping with the mouth open. Muscles relax, permitting the tongue to fall back in the throat. The soft palate is also a factor. Breathe through the nose and snoring will cease. Removal of enlarged or diseased tonsils and adenoids often helps.

NATIVES OF VIRGIN ISLANDS.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—What is the citizenship status of a native of the Virgin Islands of the United States who came to this country prior to the transfer of the islands from Denmark and who has lived here continuously, but has never made a declaration of intention for citizenship? Does the act of 1927 confer citizenship upon him? If it does not, just what is his status?

A. C.

The act of Feb. 25, 1927, provided that all natives of the Virgin Islands of the United States who on Jan. 17, 1917, resided in the islands and were residing there on Feb. 25, 1927, and who were not citizens of any foreign country, should be citizens of the United States. By an act approved June 28, 1932, citizenship was conferred on all natives of those islands residing in the United States, the Virgin Islands, Porto Rico, the Canal Zone, or any other insular possession or territory of the United States, who were not citizens of a foreign country, regardless of where they resided on Jan. 17, 1917.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT.

ZONING VIOLATION.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—In the rear of our property is a three car brick garage used as an auto repair shop every evening and on Sunday which creates a great noise of hammering and pounding into the night. In spite of the fact that this is a private residential property in a choice location, these activities continue. Please advise what can be done.

H. C. A.

When our inspector called to investigate this matter the private garage was locked and no one working on premises. However, the owner of property has been notified that it is contrary to zoning ordinance to use these premises for commercial purposes. The matter will be followed closely and if the use of premises for commercial purposes is resumed we will take such action as the law directs.

TAX TITLES.

Beverly Shores, Ind., Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I read your article on "Tax Titles" and would like to submit the following question: Could I pay the taxes on a piece of vacant property, build a house thereon, and take possession and acquire title thereby?

E. M. W.

Our reference to seven years' possession under a tax title related to Illinois law. We assume that your question arises under Indiana law. There are sections of the Lake Michigan shore not far from Beverly Shores that were apparently the subject of "office surveys" back in the '90s. Some of the lots would be out in the lake. Purchasers who bought at that time were unable to identify their property satisfactorily and many of them have paid no taxes and have dropped out of sight. Squatters have come in, but in our opinion it is not advisable for them to make substantial improvements until they have in some way cleared their titles. You will observe that most of the improvements in these localities are of the "shack" type. If you contemplate a substantial investment, we advise you to employ an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TAX SALE.

Lansdowne, Pa., Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. How long a period is a real estate owner allowed to reclaim vacant property sold for taxes or assessments in Cook county? 2. How do you record a deed in Cook county? 3. To whom would you apply to register your property in Cook county under the Torrens system? 4. Is registration under Torrens system necessary if you have guaranty title to property?

E. F. S.

1. Two years are allowed for ordinary redemption from a tax sale. After that a tax deed will issue which will be a more serious cloud on the title, but can ordinarily be set aside by appropriate court proceedings.

2. Send it to the recorder's office in the county building, with a fee depending on the length of the instrument.

3. To the registrar of titles in the same office.

4. Deeds should not be sent to the registrar of titles unless your property has already been registered under the Torrens system.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TO COLLECT MONEY DUE.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—What length of time is allowed in Illinois to bring action to collect money due on [1] demand judgment notes; [2] demand promissory notes; and [3] open ledger accounts? 4. What are the approximate court costs of filing a petition in bankruptcy and obtaining a discharge?

L. Y. F.

1 and 2. Ten years from the maturity date.

3. If there is no written contract, five years from the last payment or promise to pay.

4. A little over $35, but ordinarily it is advisable to employ an attorney and his fee would be the largest item.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—The promised relief of Germany's meat shortage is slow in making its appearance. While the prices for inferior cuts are kept down by official control, those for better cuts continue to soar.

Some light has been thrown on the situation by details published in the German press concerning developments in the meat industry.

Pork formerly accounted for nearly three-quarters of the sales of German butchers. Now little more than one-third of their pork requirements can be met. Occupation in the industry has sunk to a little over 50 per cent of capacity. A year ago it was 70 per cent.

Fluctuations have made difficult the task of adjusting costs. Sales showed a rising tendency during the last summer, but this is explained as having been due to special military orders and to large official orders for meat intended for canning.

Naturally the shortage has also affected the export business. In the first ten months of 1935 Germany exported only 1,100 tons of canned meat; the figures for the corresponding period of 1931 were nearly three times as large, since when there has been a steady decline.

Exports of famous German sausages and hams have also shown a heavy falling off. This at a time when Germany more than ever needs to increase all its exports to obtain the foreign currencies it requires for foreign raw material imports.

Official statistics assert that nature frowned unkindly on Germany in 1935. The harvest of fruit yielded less than 1¾ million tons, whereas in 1934 it amounted to nearly 3 million tons. In 1934 the apple crop alone yielded more than 1½ million tons; this year it is down to 875,000 tons. Forty million tons of late potatoes were gathered, but this was 4 million tons less than last year. Only the hay crop was a bumper one. It assures an adequate fodder supply.

EMPLOYMENT AT THE YARDS.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Regarding J. T. Boyer's question as to employment in the packing industry in THE TRIBUNE of Jan. 3:

Employment in the packing industry during the depression was never as severely curtailed as in manufacturing industry as a whole. Each reached its low point in March, 1933. The index of employment for the packing industry dropped in that month to 75.7 per cent [of the 1923-'25 average], while all manufacturing employment as a whole was dropping still further, to 58.8. The lowest yearly figures, however, were the 1932 percentages: 79.8 for the packing industry, and 64.1 for all manufacturing industry.

During the drouth emergency program of 1934, in which the packing industry was asked to participate in behalf of the government, packing industry employment climbed above 100 in June and remained there through December, reaching a high of 121.2 in September, and registering an average for the year of 103.7, thus far exceeding the 1934 figure of 78.7 for manufacturing industry as a whole.

During 1935, as a result of greatly reduced marketings of live stock [on the heels of the drouth and the AAA program], packing industry employment dropped to monthly figures around 80, the latest available one [that for November] being 82.8, which, despite the shortage of live stock, is still within 2 per cent of the November index for all manufacturing industry.

In other words, packing industry employment remained well above that for manufacturing industry as a whole throughout most of the depression period and climbed far in advance of it during the drouth months, but is now barely holding its own as compared to manufacturing industry as a whole because of short supplies.

The number of employés needed by a packing plant or any other business in successive years is roughly proportional, presumably, to the volume of work to be done. And in the case of the packing industry, recent declines in employment may be quickly understood from a check of the amount of work to be done—in this case, the amount of meat produced. Typical declines from 1934 to 1935 in the monthly production of pork, beef, veal, lamb and mutton, and lard in federally inspected plants were as follows:

Meat and Lard Production.

January	1,397	962	31.1
April	1,018	783	23.1
July	1,030	768	25.4
October	1,135	981	13.6

Any other month in the twelve would show a similar drop but these should be sufficient to explain why packing industry employment has now subsided to the general level.

Incidentally, the shortage of hogs hit packing employment hardest because pork and lard are the products most extensively processed in the packing plant. A decline in the supply of cattle, on the other hand, would have given the retailer, also, who usually cuts his own beef, much less to do.

WESLEY HARDENBERGH,
Institute of American Meat Packers.

MORE ABOUT JACKSON.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—After listening to the Jackson day speech of our President I am under the impression that he would be pleased to be compared with Andrew Jackson.

The eight years during which Jackson was President reflect with considerable accuracy the character of the man. The administration was one of conflict, and when Jackson was not engaged in some political struggle he was upsetting traditions and conventions of every kind. In the forty years which elapsed between the inauguration of Washington in 1789 and the inauguration of Jackson, only 74 government employés were dismissed, and all these for good reasons. During the first 12 months of his administration Jackson dismissed over 2,000 employés, with scarcely an exception because they belonged to the political opposition. It is not fair to say that Jackson willfully corrupted the civil service, but it is true that he was the first President to build a political machine on the basis of patronage, and he fastened on the United States the spoils system which bred corruption for half a century.

Jackson's opposition to the Bank of the United States was not economic, but political. He was persuaded that the "money power" of the United States, led by the bank, was preparing to crush him, and that he was the champion of the common people. He ordered the secretary of the treasury to withdraw the government's deposits from the bank, and when this was refused he replaced the man with another who refused, and even another, before he finally put in a man who would obey his orders. His high-handed action in the fight with the bank led the senate to pass censure upon him, a course without precedent. This attitude toward the bank, his issue of the specie circular and other circumstances started a panic which broke just as Jackson went out of office.

THE BATHER.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—A bitter protest comes from our family and few of our friends on the picture by Tomanek in last Sunday's TRIBUNE. No doubt some may call it art, but I wish to state any person of good morals and sane mind will think differently and call it dirty. I will discontinue the Sunday paper if you continue to show more of that trash.

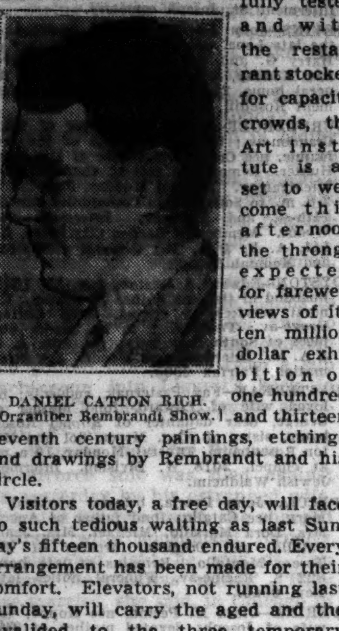
AMPLIFIERS SET FOR MULTITUDES AT ART INSTITUTE

Treasured Whistler Note Cut on Display Today.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.



DANIEL CATTON RICH.
[Organizer Rembrandt Show.]

With THE TRIBUNE'S amplifying mechanisms installed and successfully tested and with the restaurant stocked for capacity crowds, the Art institute is all set to welcome this afternoon the throngs expected for farewell views of its ten million dollar exhibition of one hundred and thirteen seventh century paintings, etchings and drawings by Rembrandt and his circle.

Visitors today, a free day, will face no such tedious waiting as last Sunday's fifteen thousand endured. Every arrangement has been made for their comfort. Elevators, not running last Sunday, will carry the aged and the invalided to the three temporary Rembrandt galleries on the second floor. The restaurant, never open in ordinary times on Sunday, will provide cafeteria service until 7 o'clock so that visitors lingering late among the Rembrandt treasures from the Louvre and the Royal museum of Amsterdam will be able to take supper in the historic old gray stone palace on the lake front.

Talks to Start at 1 P. M.

The institute will throw open its doors at noon. An hour later George Frederick Buehr, painter and critic, and his aids will begin their five hours of intimate narrative on the personality, methods and masterpieces of an artist who was one of the greatest of painters and the greatest of all etchers, together with discourse on the works of certain of his gifted pupils—"the circle"—represented in this show.

The line of visitors will form in the large Spanish gallery at the top of the grand stairway and while they are moving toward the Rembrandt gallery Mr. Buehr will talk to them about the masterpieces they are to see. Mr. Henry Mau, chief of THE TRIBUNE'S electrical department, is confident that the amplifiers he has installed as THE TRIBUNE'S contribution to the gala afternoon will carry Mr. Buehr's voice though the Spanish gallery to the people who are already in the Rembrandt rooms. Thus not only the waiting throngs but also the seeing throngs will be able to enjoy his comments.

Special Offering of the Day.

As visitors leave the gallery of fifty-six etchings by Rembrandt and four of his pupils they will behold the extra treat which the institute announces for this day. It is the etching Rembrandt made in 1651 of Clement de Jonghe, Amsterdam publisher and print seller, and is the Buckingham family's gift to Chicago. Because it is so valuable—and, to be frank, so portable—the institute seldom places this little treasure on public view. It is usually kept under lock and key. But today it will be brought forth for all to see.

It is doubly a treasure because James McNeill Whistler, greatest of etchers since Rembrandt, wrote on the little inset in the mat of this etching these words in his delicate chirography:

"Without flaw—beautiful as a Greek marble—or a canvas by Tintoret. A masterpiece in all its elements—beyond which there is nothing."

That gorgeous tribute, which you will read this afternoon on the etching, is signed with Whistler's familiar butterfly signature devised by him in the early 1870s by interlacing and elaborating his initials, J. M. W.

Today this double treasure will hang under guard on the east wall of the middle landing of the stairway by which visitors will return from the Rembrandt galleries to the first floor.

Rembrandt is known to have etched about three hundred plates. Fine proofs—some of them the finest in existence—from forty-six of those three hundred plates await you in Gallery G. 54. THE TRIBUNE urges visitors to give special attention to etching No. 96, north wall, "Christ Crucified Between the Two Thieves"; to No. 84, the exquisite "Jews in Synagogue," and to Nos. 62, 63, 66, and 82—all of which are portraits of Rembrandt by himself.

In anticipation of today's attendance a third issue of the valuable Rembrandt catalog by Daniel Catton Rich, the real organizer of this exhibition, has been ordered. It contains fifty-six pages of text and twenty-three pictures.

WPA GIVES 'SONG OF THE LARK' AN ADDITIONAL KICK

"The Song of the Lark" by Jules Breton, barred from the walls of the Art institute because it "is not good enough," has been crowded further from public view by the Federal Works Progress administration officials of the institutes said yesterday.

Along with other famous paintings, now in storage at the institute, "The Song of the Lark" was to have been included in a circulating exhibition for school children.

Space for this exhibit was acquired in the fieldhouses of Garfield, Lincoln, and Jackson parks, where the school children could have come at will to view their favorites, such as the Breton painting. The exhibit was scheduled to open several months ago when suddenly came the word that the space was needed for WPA projects.

ELAINE WORMSER BECOMES BRIDE OF THOMAS REIS

BY JUDITH CASS.

In a pretty, all white wedding last night in the Tower room of the Drake hotel Miss Elaine Wormser, daughter of Mrs. Leo F. Wormser, became the bride of Thomas J. Reis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon J. Reis of Cincinnati. Dr. Solomon B. Freehof of Pittsburgh, a friend of the bride's late father, read the ceremony at 7:30 o'clock, and a wedding supper followed in the French room.

Mother's Wedding Dress.

The bride wore her mother's wedding dress of ivory satin which was trimmed with duchesse lace that had been a part of her grandmother's wedding gown. The dress, which was tight skirted, was made with a deep yoke of tulle and a deep collar of lace. A veil of tulle was fastened to her head with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried white camellias and lilies of the valley.

Her three attendants, Mrs. John E. Coleman, matron of honor; Mrs. Gordon J. Reis Jr., and Mrs. James Frey, bridesmaids, were dressed alike in ivory marquisette over taffeta. The matron of honor wore a wreath of tiny yellow rosebuds in her hair and carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds, white Budlia, and freesia.

Couple Leaves for Nassau.

The bridesmaids' wreaths were of sweetheart roses, and the same roses took the place of yellow buds in their bouquets.

Erwin M. Bettman of Cincinnati served as best man, and the bridegroom's two brothers, Gordon J. Reis Jr. and Robert W. Reis, ushered. Mr. Reis and his bride left for Nassau where they will spend several weeks. They will be at home after Feb. 15 at 714 Mitchell avenue, Cincinnati.

MISS HEYWORTH ENGAGED

Otto Young Heyworth of the Edgewater Beach hotel yesterday announced the engagement of his sister, Miss Gwendolyn Young Heyworth of New York, to Frederick J. Koch of 2851 North Francisco avenue. Mr. Heyworth and his sister are grandchildren of the late Otto Young, early Chicago merchant, and children of the late Mrs. S. Cecile Young. The wedding will take place on Feb. 1 in New York at St. Thomas' church, with a reception afterwards at the Racquet and Tennis club. Mr. Koch, who is an official at the Northern Trust company, will take his bride to the Caribbean sea and South America on their wedding trip, after which they will be at home in New York, where the bridegroom will engage in business.

BODY OF KIPLING TO BE CREMATED; WORLD MOURNS

Crowds Storm Hospital to Honor Dead Poet.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 18.—A world-wide tribute to Rudyard Kipling, the father of Kim, Fuzzy Wuzzy, and Gungha Din, and to his genius ,which left the world a heritage of song and story, today poured into Middlesex hospital, where the body of the poet lies on a catafalque in the hospital chapel surrounded by four tall candles.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, but it was announced that, in accordance with the poet's wish, the body will be cremated. The coffin is covered with purple velvet and the Union Jack, and on it lies simply one small bunch of violets, sent by Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the prime minister, who is Kipling's cousin.

Crowds Flock to Pay Respects.

Hospital porters were stationed tonight at the door of the chapel. Already crowds of people were flocking to the hospital to pay their last respects to the poet of the empire.

Mrs. Kipling and her daughter, Mrs. Bambridge, who stayed overnight in the hospital, left today to rest after the week's ordeal of the poet's last illness.

Kipling's death has brought his popularity back to full flood tide in England. Newspapers tonight printed messages of appreciation from all countries and from the world's most famous personalities. Even from Germany and Italy, where the empire ideas sung by Kipling are at variance with present politics, tributes to Kipling's genius were paid.

Incurred Anger of Victoria.

A flood of stories and anecdotes was being told and printed here tonight. It was recalled that Kipling incurred the extreme displeasure of Queen Victoria of England by referring to her as the "Widow of Windsor," and that this contributed to a certain amount of his disfavor at one period in England. Victoria never relaxed her displeasure and King Edward VII., Victoria's son, was never allowed to know Kipling well.

King George V. of England, on the other hand, had liking and admiration for Kipling and sometimes sought Kipling's advice when he had public utterances to make.

In the years following the war there was another period when Kipling's fame was momentarily eclipsed and it became fashionable among the liberal élite to underestimate him as a literary craftsman and to belittle the imperial ideas which he preached.

Leaves Fortune of Millions.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The fortune of the late Rudyard Kipling was estimated at £750,000 [about $3,750,000] tonight by the Sunday Express. "The Jungle Books" alone brought him an income of more than £10,000 [$50,000] annually, the paper said.

[Kipling's American royalties alone are estimated to have been nearly $1,750,000. More than 3,500,000 copies of his books have been sold by his official American publishers in the last forty years.]

REV. GEORGE M. BARDSLEY DEAD; RITES TOMORROW

The Rev. George Milton Bardsley, 66 years old, former pastor of the Galilee Baptist church at Damen and Wellington avenues, died yesterday after a short illness. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning in the chapel at 63d street and Harvard avenue. The Rev. Mr. Bardsley, who lived at 635 Roscoe street, came to Chicago in 1914 after holding pastorates in Massachusetts. He graduated from Brown university, Providence, R. I., and the Colgate Theological seminary, Rochester, N. Y., and was ordained in 1899. He is survived by his widow.

Old Time Printers' Reunion Honors Benjamin Franklin

The Old Time Printers' association of Chicago last evening commemorated the 230th anniversary of the birth of a brother craftsman—Benjamin Franklin—with their 51st annual reunion and dinner-dance at the Palmer house. Five hundred and fifty men and women took part in the grand parade, which opened the evening's ceremonies. The principal address was delivered by Dr. Allen D. Albert, assistant to Rufus C. Dawes during both years of A Century of Progress Exposition, of which Mr. Dawes was president. Dr. Albert is an authority on Franklin's life.

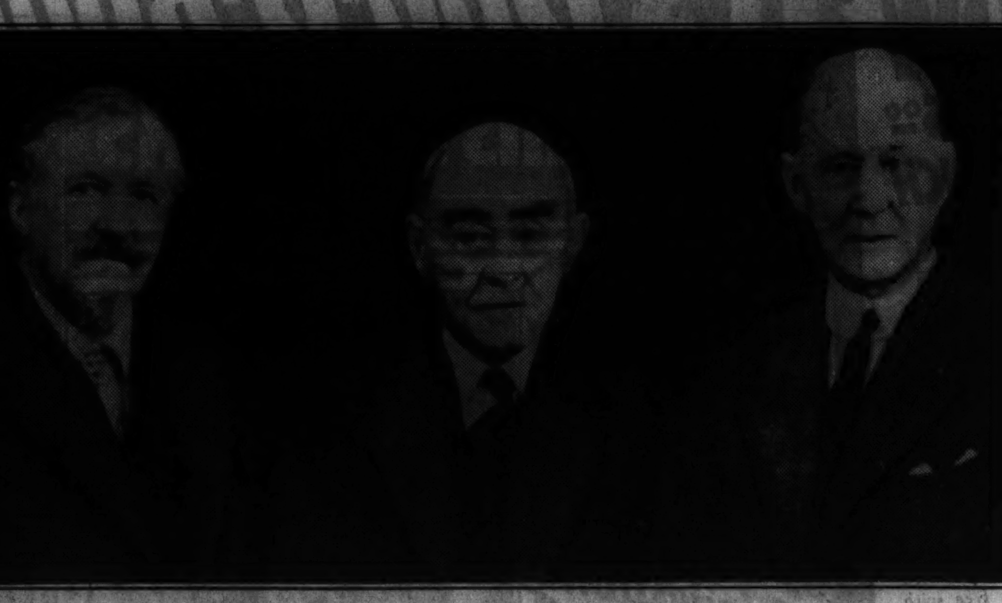
KIPLING AND PALS OF HIS SCHOOL DAYS



In his "Stalky and Company," published in 1899, Rudyard Kipling recalled his days at the United Service college, Westward Ho, and one of the characters was "Beetle," a name given to him because of his poor sight. This picture, furnished by Peter D. Vroom, a Chicago member of the Kipling society, was taken from the Kipling Journal of December, 1935. It shows G. C. Beresford (M'Turk), vice president of the Kipling society of London, Mr. Kipling, and Maj. Gen. L. C. Dunsterville (Stalky), president of the Kipling society. Mr. Kipling died yesterday.

JOHN J. PHELAN DIES; A VETERAN IN ADVERTISING

John J. Phelan, 73 years old, veteran advertising executive and a leader of Catholic laymen's organizations, died of heart disease last night in his home at 1233 Glenlake avenue.

Mr. Phelan, who was born in Whitewater, Wis., came to Chicago in 1881. He attended St. Ignatius college and after completing his formal education engaged in the shoe business, leaving this for advertising. For a short time, in 1892, he was warden of the county hospital, and later held a postoffice position. In recent years he had been connected with the General Outdoor Advertising company. Mr. Phelan was a former president of the Holy Name society's archdiocesan union and a former chairman of the Catholic Youth organization's executive committee. He was a 4th degree member of the Knights of Columbus.

Surviving him is his widow, Mary. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning from the home to St. Gertrude's church.

J. S. CRAM DIES AT 83; FORMER TAMMANY CHIEF

New York, Jan. 18.—[Special.]—J. Sergeant Cram, 83, former chairman of the New York county Democratic committee, political and social mentor of the late Charles F. Murphy during the latter's rule of Tammany hall, died today at his home.

Mr. Cram had practiced law for many years and held extensive real estate interests. A power behind the scene in Tammany much of his life, he could have held almost any office within reach of that organization but he had accepted only two—the post of chairman of the old dock board and that of public service commissioner. He was a grand sachem of Tammany hall.

For many years Mr. Cram had been a conspicuous figure in Tammany hall. Born to wealth and reared in an atmosphere of fashion, social position and educational refinement, he became the close friend of Murphy, whose immediate antecedents had included bartenders and horsecar drivers.

Old Settler Dead

Phillip Brand, 92 years old, one of the oldest members of the Chicago Turngemeinde, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hattie Hogan, 3605 North Luna avenue. Mr. Brand had been a resident of Chicago since 1871.

Mr. Brand's first job in Chicago, as a barber, was obtained through a TRIBUNE want ad when he came here shortly before the Chicago fire. Following the fire he opened a shop in the rebuilt North Side Turner hall, 820 North Clark street, which he operated for 13 years. He later entered the sign painting business and had a shop at Randolph and Wells streets. He retired when he was 87 years old.

Besides Mrs. Hogan, he is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. Ida Bergman and Mrs. Clara Dailydis; seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at the chapel at 2752 Diversey avenue. Burial will be in Montrose cemetery.

RITES TOMORROW FOR JOHN NEVINS, EX-RAIL ENGINEER

Funeral services for John Nevins, retired railroad engineer who died on Thursday, will be held tomorrow morning at the chapel at 2157 Irving Park boulevard. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery.

Mr. Nevins, who was employed for 49 years by the North Western railroad, came to Chicago with his parents from Newark, N. J., when he was a year old. He became a brakeman for the North Western in 1879. He served two years as a fireman and 46 years as an engineer, retiring in 1928.

He is survived by a son, Harry G. Nevins, 1532 Lake avenue, Wilmette, with whom he made his home; four grandsons and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Gibb, Mrs. Katherine Donovan, and Mrs. Margaret Griffith, all of Chicago.

WPA WORKERS WARNED AGAINST JOINING UNIONS

Loss of Pay Called Only Strike Prospect.

Ralph H. Burke, deputy works progress administrator for Illinois, warned WPA workers yesterday against being misled by persons who for personal gain are seeking to organize them into unions and to foment strikes on federal projects.

WPA has no objections to organizations that have for their purpose acquainting the men with what the government is doing in giving them jobs, according to Mr. Burke. But the men alone stand to lose, he said, if they pay dues in an organization on the theory that the organizers can win changes in working conditions for them.

Stand Only to Lose.

It was pointed out that only paid officials of any WPA union would retain their salaries in case a strike was called on a WPA project. The workers would lose, it was said, as they would not be paid by the government for the time they lost.

A current movement to organize WPA workers is being made by an organization calling itself the WPA Union of Cook County, with headquarters at 737 West Madison street. One of its demands is a $20 a week minimum wage. It has been circularizing the workers on a number of projects. The organization, according to reports at WPA offices, has no affiliation with organized labor.

No one is being discharged for joining a WPA union, according to Dr. Martin H. Bickham, WPA director of labor management. One man was discharged, he said, for leaving his job during working hours to hand out circulars for the organization.

Question on Relief Funds.

Officials of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, which has available $2,500,000 of state funds to keep relief stations open through January, are watching with interest what action the legislature will take to supply an additional $7,500,000 needed to supplement sales tax relief funds until May 1.

Measures pending before the legislature contemplate appropriating $7,500,000 from the state general revenue fund, levying of an annual $7,000,000 relief tax on Chicago property owners, and abolishing the IERC, with relief funds to be turned over to county boards for distribution. In the opinion of Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the IERC, now is a good time for the legislature to plan a long range program for handling the relief problem.

STAGE ALL SET FOR CANN TRIAL IN LIGGETT CASE

Widow of Slain Editor Is Chief State Witness.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Wesley Andersch, one of the principal witnesses for the state in the coming trial of Isadore Blumenfeld, alias Kid Cann, charged with murdering Walter W. Liggett, weekly newspaper publisher, was requestioned again today as Frederic A. Pike and Roy C. Frank, assistant attorney generals, completed preparations for the opening of Cann's trial Monday.

Andersch, who has been in hiding since he testified before the grand jury which indicted Cann, appeared at the county attorney's office and was in conference with the prosecutors for more than an hour.

Andersch, 36 year old salesman, will be one of the identifying witnesses in Cann's trial. He claims to have witnessed the murder and to have recognized Cann as the gunman who poured five bullets from a sub machinegun into Liggett's back in the alley behind the Liggett apartment Dec. 9.

Witness Sued for Divorce.

A divorce suit was filed against him yesterday by his estranged wife. Separated for two years, she charged Andersch with nonsupport, cruelty, and declared that he was of "an extreme imaginative mind." They were married, she said, in Chicago in 1931.

The star witness for the state in Cann's trial will be Mrs. Edith Liggett, widow of the publisher, in whose presence he was slain and who has said that she will never be able to forget the "grinning, leering face" of his murderer. She identified Cann as the gunman immediately after the shooting.

The prosecutors have indicated that they will have other important witnesses, but have kept their identities secret beyond saying that the case will contain "some surprises."

Fifty Witnesses for Cann.

Arrayed against them will be more than 50 witnesses in support of Cann's allegedly "air tight" alibi—that he was in a loop barbershop at the approximate time of the killing. They have been marshalled by Thomas McMeekin, defense attorney in the Urschel kidnaping trial, with the assistance of W. C. Dannenberg, Chicago private detective.

Liggett was murdered at the height of a campaign he had begun some six months earlier for prosecution of liquor, vice and gambling racketeers he declared were protected by Minneapolis officialdom. Despite assertions of underworld enemies that he was a "shakedown artist," the shots that killed him were proof to civic groups that the conditions he denounced existed, and they resounded with demands for a complete cleanup.

Refer to Guilford Killing.

They called attention to the slaying of another publisher, Howard Guilford, also a critic of racketeers and public officials, in September, 1934, and citing the fault of Minneapolis officials to apprehend his murderers, called on federal officials to take charge of the search for the Liggett killers. Demands were made to Attorney General Homer Cummings to send operatives into the city. To these, Cummings' assistant, Joseph Keenan replied:

"We cannot assume an investigative jurisdiction which does not belong to us."

These efforts thwarted, civic, church, bar, retail and wholesale liquor dealer organizations turned to the state legislature meeting in special session on security legislation with the demands for a cleanup investigation. A resolution ordering the inquiry and appropriating $10,000 is now in the hands of lower house finance committee. Rewards totaling $7,500 have been voted for apprehension and conviction of the slayers and $5,000 has been appropriated for prosecution by the state attorney general's office.

Lid Placed On City.

The immediate effect of the protest by Minneapolis citizenry was to put the lid on the town. Previously running full tilt, the cheap liquor dives and honky tonks have been dark for two weeks.

The grand jury which indicted Cann Dec. 23, in its report as the year ended warned Minneapolis that evidence it received indicated the city was in danger "of being dominated by organized crime."

The grand jury took up the investigation and is centering attention on the liquor licensing situation, in which Liggett had charged, conniving or incompetent officials had permitted control of a large number of licenses to get into the hands of a syndicate of former bootleggers and hoodlums.

In his writings the slain publisher linked rackets and politics, charging that the racketeers existed through connivance of government. Formerly an adherent of Gov. Floyd B. Olson, he had a year previous to his murder become a critic of Olson.

Charges Are Repeated.

In the last issue of his paper just before his death he published a letter to the legislature repeating charges he had made for months against the governor, and asking that the executive either be impeached or Liggett be indicted for libel. Among the charges were that liquor violations, gambling and slot machines were tolerated by the governor.

"It is common knowledge," read one of the charges, "that the liquor trafic has been carefully organized by personal appointees and personal supporters of Gov. Olson so as to return a huge and illicit profit to certain protected interests."

KNITTING GROUP ASKING U. S. WRIT IN MINNEAPOLIS

Says State Troops Closed Factory.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—The Strutwear Knitting company filed suit in the federal court here to compel Mayor Thomas Latimer, Gov. Floyd B. Olson, and the National Guard to permit it to reopen its plant. It demands protection for workers and property be supplied by the authorities.

Center of a four month old labor dispute and with its plant patroled by guardsmen since Dec. 27, the knitting company asked the federal court to determine whether the governor and the mayor possess authority to close the plant by use of troops "under the guise of maintaining law and order."

Asks for Injunction.

The company asked an injunction to restrain the authorities from further intereference with use of the factory. Hearing was set for Jan. 25 before three federal judges—John B. Sanborn, Matthew M. Joyce, and Gunnar H. Nordbye.

Simultaneously George H. Belden, chairman of a business men's committee named to investigate the knitting company situation, announced that the special committee was giving the court action full support.

Defendants in the suit are the mayor, the governor, and Adjt. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, commander of the Minnesota National Guard.

The petition is for an injunction "restraining and enjoining the defendants and any one acting under their command from in any wise preventing or interfering with the plaintif in its free and unlimited use and occupancy of plaintif's property and free and unlimited access to and egress from the property by the plaintif or its officers, agents, or employés."

In its request that the authorities be compelled to furnish such protection as will permit reopening and operation of the plant, the company asks that "the defendants be restrained from withholding from the plaintif full and complete lawful protection of liberty and property."

Papers in the case had not been served up to noon today on Mayor Latimer, who was away from his office, or on Adjutant General Walsh, who was out of the Twin Cities.

Suit Omits Sherif.

Sherif John Wall, who joined with the mayor in asking Olson to send guardsmen to the Strutwear plant to help maintain order after violent clashes between pickets and police, was not made a defendant in the suit because he refused to join Latimer in the request of the National Guard to close the plant.

History of the four months' controversy that led up to closing the plant is set forth in the complaint, while an affidavit by W. E. Lawyer, secretary of Strutwear Knitting company, recited the action of the National Guard in ejecting 45 Strutwear employés from the factory Dec. 27.

500 in Grand March

Led by Col. George T. Langhorne, president of the Army and Navy club, and Mrs. Frank R. McCoy, wife of the major general commanding the 6th corps area, more than 500 couples formed part of the grand march last night, which opened the twelfth annual Army and Navy ball at the club, 850 Lake Shore drive. Dress uniforms representing virtually every rank and every branch of service of the United States army and navy were represented in the march. It also included a colorful sprinkling of uniforms of foreign nations. The grand ball was followed by a dinner during which there was a musical program by the Grenadiers band.

CHICAGO BUSINESS MEN'S ORCHESTRA BEGINS 16TH YEAR

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra, organized in 1921 by the late George Lytton, State street merchant, will observe its fifteenth anniversary today at 3 p. m. with a concert in Orchestra hall.

This respected musical organization, which was started by Lytton when he turned to playing the bass violin as an avocation, now has 115 playing members.

George Avidson, the orchestra's flute soloist, is a postman during business hours. The first violinist, Sidney James, is a mechanical engineer. Harold Little, first oboe, is a French teacher. Hugo Haberland, bass violinist, is a butcher.

The roster of the orchestra also includes a retired capitalist, an acoustical engineer, a coal salesman, a grocery clerk, a chemist, and twenty physicians. It has a waiting list of 150 business men seeking membership.

Today's program includes the Egmont overture of Beethoven, Schubert's Tenth symphony in C major, and the Grieg Piano Concerto in A minor, with Parthenia Vogelback as pianist.

Ervin Barney, 55 Years with Trust Co., Retires

Ervin R. Barney, associated with the Chicago Title & Trust company and its constituent companies as a tax counsel for 55 years, retired yesterday at the age of 79. He resides at 122 South Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park. Mr. Barney was born in Rutland, Vt. He was educated at Oberlin college and John Marshall Law school. He was the oldest title and trust company employé in point of service, and long has been recognized as an authority on real estate tax law in Cook county.

Insurance Broker Injured; Seizes Gun, Routs Bandit

Grover Wickline, 50 years old, an insurance broker, was shot in the right knee last night by a robber whom he resisted in front of his home at 3244 Wilton avenue. In spite of his injury Wickline was able to wrest the bandit's pistol from him. He fired several times at the man, who fled, but apparently failed to hit him.

WORD DETECTIVES ON TRAIL OF REAL AMERICAN TERMS

Dictionary to Be History of Speech, Culture.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Word hunting has become a new and fascinating sort of detective work for many research scholars and students in the English department of the University of Chicago. Under the direction of Sir William Craigie, co-editor of the Oxford English dictionary, which took from 1858 to 1928 to complete, they are working on the material for "A Dictionary of American English," based on historical principles, which will to a great extent embody the history not only of American speech but of American culture.

The first volume of the dictionary, which will eventually reach four or five volumes, will be published this spring by the University of Chicago Press. The collecting of material for the work has been under way since 1925, when Sir William was brought to this country from Oxford.

Seek Data in 3,500 Volumes.

More than 3,500 volumes have been read, together with magazines and newspapers, in search for the origin and growth of American words. More than half a million slips containing quotations for particular words have been collected. The dictionary is to be made more than a reference work—almost a cultural history—by the printing of many quotations showing the exact use of words selected. There will be no effort to include slang unless it had evolved before 1900 into common usage.

"Many changes have taken place in the meaning of English words since they made their first journey across the Atlantic in 1607," says Sir William in an announcement of the new dictionary. "A new land and new ways of living called for a new language. These became known as Americanisms. But the making of an American language was more a process of adaptation than invention. Log and shingle were words which the colonists brought with them from home, but they have never had the same importance for every day life in England that they have had here.

For Instance: "Bee Line."

"Branch, meaning a small stream, originated early in America. The bee was actually unknown in this country until introduced by the settlers. One writer records that the Indians had no name for it and called it the Englishman's fly. Yet the invention of bee line to mean a straight line is purely American, although it has now become familiar in England. Such instances multiply by the thousands.

"A historical dictionary of American English is thus something very different from a dictionary of American slang; it also covers much more than a dictionary of Americanisms would do. It has to include, as far as possible, not only every word, usage, or phrase which has originated on this side of the Atlantic from the days of the first colonies, but every one which has a clear connection with the development of the country and the culture of its inhabitants."

Delve Back Into the 1600s.

In the ten years' work that has gone into the making of this first volume many words have been carried to earlier datings than ever known before. Bluff has been carried back from 1737 to 1687. This came from the Carolina coast, it has been discovered. It was first an adjective used by sailors to apply to the bows of a vessel when these were straight up and down. Then its application spread to shores and banks. This was noted in the 18th century in Savannah. Capitol has been dated 1699 instead of 1843; crosscut saw from 1828 to 1656.

The word bogus has been traced to 1828 in Painsville, O., where it was the name for the machine with which counterfeit money was made. Crank has been traced to 1881 in New York. O K has been traced back to the Boston Transcript of 1840, where it was used obscurely as some sort of political opprobrium. Its use in Whig newspapers began in April of that year and by August, with the meaning of correct attached, it had crossed the Atlantic. The word lynch came from Capt. John Lynch, a Virginia vigilante of 1780.

40 Pages—About One Word.

New light has been thrown upon such words as blizzard, bunkum, campus, caucus, elevator, boom, boss, census, immigrant, loafer, schooner, wall paper, law abiding, lengthy, to belittle, to cave in, to clear out, once in a while, time and again.

"The word blizzard illustrates the extent to which research may go in the history of one word. A 40 page explanation of this word has been prepared by Allen Walker Read, associate editor of the dictionary, formerly of the University of Missouri.

For years, he says, the story has circulated in the state of Iowa that the world blizzard originated there. He found this word, springing amid the flux of the pioneer frontier, particularly seductive. He found his first clew in the Milwaukee Republican of March 4, 1881, in which it was stated that the word had been applied to a snowstorm in the Northern Vindicator of Estherville, Ill., between 1860 and 1870. He found there was no such town in Illinois, but that the Northern Vindicator was founded in Estherville, Ia., in 1868. His search thereupon turned to Iowa and old newspaper files and county histories. It revealed many interesting quotations.

Davy Crockett Used It.

The word blizzard was first used somewhat obscurely as a rain of sharp blows. Davy Crockett's autobiography gave a new use, when he writes of a hunting trip:

"I started down the edge of the river low grounds, giving out the pursuit of my elks, and hadn't gone hardly any distance at all, before I saw two more bucks, very large fellows, too. I took a blizzard at one of them, and up he tumbled."

Another use of the word was found in Crockett in 1835—meaning a sharp volley of words, as a wife might give her husband a good blizzard, or scolding. Crockett describes as a "good blizzard" a toast which he gave once at a dinner on a steamboat:

"Here's wishing the bones of tyrant kings may answer in hell, in place of gridirons, to toast the souls of Tories on."

There is a break in the use of the word between 1835 and 1880. It appeared once in 1856 in the Sacramento City Item as follows:

And then, behold, King Henry, very dead,
Lies stiff and cold upon his gory bed.
When some true archer, from the upper tier,
Gave him a blizzard on the nearest ear.

In 1860 the Marion County Republican of Knoxville, Ia., printed a long string of verses from a Californian named Blizzard, which began:

Said I, my pretty miss,
Let me have a little kiss,
And I reveled in the bliss,
Rich and meller.

Then she tricks him so that he "draps kerslap" through the cellar door. He winds up:

Blizzard up these stairs was carried;
Quite a month there Blizzard tarried—
In two months was Blizzard married—
Nothing more.

The word was scattered about in many ways, Mr. Read reports, and its present day use he ascribes to a newspaper writer.

"The explanation for this shift," he writes, "is probably found in the fact, as stated in the New York Evening Post, March 24, 1887, that after the word struck the western imagination, 'the keen ear of the newspaper reporter caught it and gave it currency in 'reportorial' English."

He traces the word at last to the great storm of March 14, 1870. He found in the Vindicator of April 30, 1870, a reference to a man frozen at Okoboji, Ia.:

". . . Dr. Ballard, who has just returned from a visit to the unfortunate victim of the March blizzard, reports that his patient is rapidly improving."

Many correspondents and volunteers are aiding in the word search. Prof. James R. Hulbert of the English department of the university is collaborating with Sir William in the dictionary. George Watson is associate editor, and Mitford M. Mathews and Mr. Read assistant editors. Gifts from the General Education board, the American Council of Learned Societies, and the university made the work possible.

NINE NEW TEAMS JOIN FIGHT FOR GOLDEN GLOVES

KANSAS CITY TO SEND WINNERS TO CHICAGO RING

Greatest Tourney of Champions.

Dempsey on W-G-N

JACK DEMPSEY, former heavyweight boxing champion, will be interviewed by Arch Ward, Tribune sports editor, tomorrow night on Mr. Ward's weekly sports chat over W-G-N. The program is scheduled for 10 o'clock.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Kansas City has joined the Golden Gloves parade.

The Kansas City Star will hold a Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament which will be the hub of contributing sectionals in western Missouri and eastern Kansas. The eight champions, according to Ernest Mehl, promotional director of the Star, and Dr. J. A. Reilly, who will assist in conducting the tournament, will be sent to Chicago for the Tournament of Champions which will open at the Stadium on Feb. 24.

Nine New Teams.

Nine teams will make their first appearance this year in Chicago's Tournament of Champions. These newcomers complete the array in thirteen states in middle western territory, which now totals forty-four cities and includes every metropolis.

In addition to Kansas City, tournaments will be held for the first time this year by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Cincinnati Post, Oklahoma City Oklahoman, Cedar Rapids Gazette, Huntington, W. Va., Advertiser, Evansville, Ind., Courier-Journal, Terre Haute, Ind., Tribune-Star, and the Kenosha, Wis., News.

Entries May Reach 15,000.

How many boxers will compete in the preliminaries? Last year 9,500 enrolled under the golden banner. This year? It is impossible to estimate correctly. There may be a total enrollment of 15,000 or more. The larger cities which have had experience in conducting tournaments—Cleveland, Minneapolis, Detroit, and Omaha—are expanding. Akron, O., for instance, will send eight champions to Cleveland. St. Joseph, Mo., will send a team of champions to Kansas City. St. Louis is ringed by sectionals.

The list might be continued indefinitly. For several years the Nashville, Tenn., tournament has drawn from Georgia and Alabama. One of Nashville's champions last year came from Mobile, Ala. Oklahoma City promises to have contributing sectionals in northern Texas. Minneapolis last year had boys from North Dakota on its team. And so the story continues.

Battle Drums Sound.

The roll of the war drums now is sounding throughout Golden Gloves land. The intensity of the battle will increase in volume during the next three weeks and will reach a thrilling climax on Feb. 24, when a record number of 392 boys, all champions, gather at the Chicago Stadium. In three nights of fighting this host will be reduced to thirty-two winners, who will engage in the semi-finals and finals on March 6.

Ticket orders now will be accepted for the Tournament of Champions [Feb. 24, 25, and 26] and the finals on March 6. Send check or money order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago. Prices for the three nights of the Tournament of Champions will be 40 cents, 66 cents, and $1.10. The ticket prices for the finals will be $1.10, $1.65, $2.20, and $3.30.

More Stars Coming Up.

Previous tournaments have produced the world's champion Barney Ross and the almost world's champion Joe Louis. The wealth of material in every division that is awaiting the gong this year gives rise to the suspicion that at least some of this year's champions will later on reach great heights in boxing.

Important fighting along the Golden Gloves battle lines gets under way tomorrow night in Cleveland, where the Plain Dealer opens its annual tournament out of which will come the eight champions that represent that great amateur boxing territory in the Tournament of Champions.

Seek Team Trophy Again.

Cleveland teams within the last few years have played a leading part in the Tournament of Champions. The Cleveland boxers have always held their own with the best in the land. The team was powerful enough last year to carry away the Golden Gloves team trophy. It has lost most of last year's champions, but the replacement troops show signs of carrying plenty of punch and power.

Ski Stars Will Meet Today in Norge Tourney

The leading ski jumpers of the United States will gather at the huge Norge Ski club slide on the banks of the Fox river, at Fox River Grove, Ill., this afternoon for the 30th annual tournament sponsored by the Norge club. Twenty-five thousand are expected to watch the meet which will start at 1:30 o'clock.

While several outstanding jumpers will be missing from the list of competitors, all sections of the country will be represented by riders who have gained nation-wide prominence by triumphs in tournaments during the last several years. The absent jumpers, including Casper Oimen, who won the Norge meet three times, are in Garmisch-Partenkirchen wearing America's colors in the winter Olympic games against riders of twenty-three other nations.

Azucar Beats Strong Field in Handicap

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Azucar, winner of the $100,000 added Santa Anita handicap last season, showed today he was far from washed up, as some track observes claimed, by winning the $2,500 added San Felipe handicap for 3 year olds and up. The time for the mile was 1:36.

Failure of the betting fraternity to back Azucar made the payoff $42.80, $16.20, and $8.20.

Azucar, an 8 year old chestnut gelding, is owned by Fred M. Alger Jr., Detroit sportsman. The horse showed enough early speed to remain within striking distance and made a strong move on the outside after leaving the backstretch.

Ariel Cross was second by a head, paying $4 and $3.60. Scotch Bun was third, paying $6.80.

The favorite, Singing Wood, was fifth. Soon Over was fourth. Sound Advice, Marv, and Black Gift trailed.

Azucar's victory today probably will establish him as a favorite to repeat his victory in the second running of the Santa Anita handicap. The big Irish bred former steeplechaser showed courage throughout the race and responded to urging.

Louis Collects $22,566 and Plans Trip

Braddock Scoffs

"That was no fight," he scoffed when asked what he thought of the Louis-Charlie Retzlaff bout last night at Chicago. "Sure, I think I can whip Louis and I'm looking forward to meeting him."

BY FRENCH LANE.

Joe Louis dropped in at the Chicago Stadium yesterday, collected a check for $22,566.45, which was his pay for rocking Charley Retzlaff to sleep in a minute and 25 seconds the night before, and then announced that for the next two months he will be a man of leisure.

"We—Marva and I—still have that honeymoon coming to us," Louis said. "We'll be on our way in just a short time."

So the Louises will depart in a few days for California and will sail from there to Honolulu where the Brown Bomber will idle away most of the vacation he has prescribed for himself.

Retzlaff To Buy A Farm.

Retzlaff, none the worse except for a slightly cut upper lip, which he sustained while becoming the quickest knockout victim on Louis' sensational record, left last night for his home in North Dakota, where ne plans to invest the $9,495.72 that he earned in farm land.

"Sure I'll fight again if there's money enough in it," he said.

Retzlaff has been knocked out often enough now to whistle without the music that familiar tune "Let's All Sing Like the Birdies Sing." At present he is considered an authority on prize fight lullabys.

He says Louis carries the hardest punch his trusty old chin has ever encountered. "You can't even see it coming," Retzlaff said. "And you don't know you've been hit until the seat of your pants lands on the canvas," he chatted on.

Takes Early Punch.

Retzlaff got that first feel of the famous Louis punch fifty seconds after their battle started at the Stadium on Friday night when Louis shot a left hook to the North Dakota farmer's chin.

That blow sent the farmer boy down for the count of seven. He got up dazed. Then a barrage of punches to the head and body, climaxed by a right to the chin, put him out for the full count.

A checkup of receipts and attendance figures for the bout revealed last night that, including radio and motion picture rights, the match grossed $73,326.66. Including complimentaries, police, and ushers, the attendance totaled more than 15,000. Louis' $22,566.45 represented 37½ per cent of all proceeds from the encounter, while Retzlaff's $9,495.72 was 17½ per cent of the net gate receipts. The figures:

MICHIGAN WINS, 51-33; HAARLOW GETS 16 POINTS

Ohio Defeats Iowa; Indiana Victor.

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Northwestern's basketball team, leading from the start, defeated Illinois tonight, 40 to 28.

Elmer Blume, sub forward, who replaced Fred Trenkle when the regular was expelled in the latter part of the first half, led a successful bombardment of the Illini basket. Blume made four field goals and three free throws.

Capt. Duke Vance and Babe Bender, Wildcat guards, were prominent generally in the Wildcat performance, following Blume in scoring and playing a good all around game.

Illini Shooting Poor.

The Wildcats went to the front on Smith's free throw and Trenkle's field goal at the outset and were never headed. The Illini shooting eyes were bad and it was not until 16 minutes of the first half had been played that Benham scored their first field goal. Reigel followed with another, but the Wildcats scored six baskets and five free throws in the half to send them into the intermission with a 17 to 11 lead.

The Wildcats, with baskets by Blume and Vance, added to their lead when the second half opened and ran their margin up to 34 to 19. Then Illinois rallied with shots by Braun, Combes and Benham, but the gap was too wide to close. Score:

Ann Arbor, M[illegible] Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Michigan's [illegible] Townsend as a score and pl[illegible] too much for Chicago's [illegible] and Bill Lang tonight, with the result that the Wolverines [illegible] Chicago, 51 to 33, in a Big Ten basketball game. Haarlow and Lang got 26 points between them for the Maroons, but that was not enough to offset the brilliant work of Townsend and his assistants.

The score was the largest Michigan has run up on any team in years. The game was attended by a crowd of 5,000. Its outcome gave Michigan an even break in four Big Ten games and represented Chicago's fourth successive setback.

Townsend Makes Plays.

Haarlow played his usual game for the Maroons, connecting on overhead one handed shots from the front and alongside the basket. He made 6 baskets and 4 free throws for 16 points and had able help from Lang, who had a dead eye from long range. But neither came close to turning in the all around performance of John Townsend. Townsend was the hub of the Michigan attack, tossed short passes that were converted into baskets by George Rudness and Earl Townsend, and himself whirled to throw in four baskets. He also sank four free throws. Rudness tied him for Wolverine scoring honors, but four of his shots were from under the basket, sunk without trouble after Townsend had made the play.

Michigan's scoring total was helped by Chicago's frequent fouling, the Wolverines getting 21 free shots and making good on 13. Chicago made good on 7 out of 16 tries.

OHIO BEATS IOWA, 34-26

Columbus, O., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Ohio State avenged its recent defeat at the hands of Iowa by turning in a 34 to 26 victory over the Hawkeyes tonight before 7,439.

Earl Thomas, Ohio center, besides controling the tipoff throughout, paired with Capt. Warren Whitlinger in the last ten minutes to score 14 points between them to clinch the game for the Buckeyes. They connected for six baskets and two free throws.

Whitlinger Leads Scorers.

Whitlinger was high individual scorer with four baskets and three free throws for eleven points, while Thomas dropped in five baskets. Ohio State made 14 baskets in 65 attempts, and six of ten free throws. Iowa collected nine baskets in 50 attempts, and made eight of 15 free throws.

SHUTE SCORES 138 TO WIN GOLF EVENT AT MIAMI

Frank Walsh Gets 141 for Second Place.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Denny Shute, veteran Chicago professional, added another 69, three under par, to the 69 he had yesterday for 138, to take the $200 top prize in the regular division of the 36 hole, $1,500 Tropic open golf tournament here today.

Shute also took first money, $250, in the "half stroke putt" category—an experiment designed to remove the emphasis from the green and place it on tee approach shots. His score, counting putts as half strokes only, was 115.

Frank Walsh Second.

Three strokes back of Shute was a fellow Chicagoan, Frank Walsh, who had shared the 18 hole lead, but slipped to 72, even par, today. Walsh also came second in the half stroke putt affair, with 115½, collecting $300 in all.

Three golfers were tied for third place with 144, collecting $90 each. They were Leonard Dodson, Pembine, Wis.; Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., and Dick Metz, Chicago.

Metz won third prize in the half stroke putt division, receiving $100.

Helen Hicks Far Back.

Two noted women golfers, Helen Hicks, professional, and Maureen Orcutt Crews, amateur, who entered with the men, finished far back. Miss Hicks had 91 and 87 for 178, while Mrs. Crews finished with 86—90—176.

Other professionals who finished in the money included:

At 145, collecting $65, Frank Kringle, Linden, N. J., and Ralph Stonehouse, Indianapolis.

MEHLHORN HOLDS LEAD

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Bill Mehlhorn retained his lead in the $3,000 Sacramento open golf tournament at the 36 hole point, shooting a 71 today for a total of 142.

One stroke behind Mehlhorn came Herman Barron, of White Plains, N. Y., who picked up a 70 to put with his 73 of yesterday. He missed a green and went down in two putts on every green except two, where one putt on each gave him two birdies sparkling among 16 pars.

Two strokes back of the leader came young Byron Nelson of Ridgewood, N. J., with a 69 and a 36 hole score of 144. Nelson, turning in the best 18 hole score of the tournament, collected 13 pars and four birdies.

Hagen Shoots 149.

The thirteen amateurs, who qualified with 47 professionals for the final 36 holes tomorrow by getting scores of 155 or better, were led by Ernie Pieper, San Jose, Cal., with 147.

Walter Hagen, after stumbling around the first nine in 39 strokes, three over par, came back in 34 by virtue of four birdies scored in six holes on the last nine. Hagen finished the day with a 73 and a 36 hole score of 149.

Tied at 145 were Horton Smith, Chicago, 74—71, and Lester Solstad, Minneapolis, 75—70. Five were bunched at 146—Harold McSpaden, unattached, and last year's tournament winner, 74—72; Ky Laffoon, Chicago, 74—72; Wiffey Cox, Bethesda, Md., 73—73; Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., 73—73; and Harry Cooper, Chicago, 74—72.

Parks Scores 150.

Charles Lacey, Great Neck, L. I., and Emory Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., who trailed Mehlhorn with 72 yesterday, each required 76 today and Art Straub, Brielle, N. J., also with a 72 yesterday, slipped to a 75 today.

Sam Parks, Jr., national open champion, turned in a 76—74—150; Jimmy Thomson, Ridgewood, N. J., had 77—74—151; Willie Goggin, San Francisco, 76—73—149; Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., 76—74—150; Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., 78—75—153; Orville White, St. Louis, 73—74—147, and Jimmy Hines, Garden City, Long Island, 76—71—147.

ST. LOUIS BEATS LOYOLA, 19-18, IN LAST 30 SECONDS

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 18.—(AP)—St. Louis university snatched a game away from Loyola of Chicago in the last 30 seconds tonight, gaining a 19 to 18 victory on Ryan's basket while the visitors were stalling. The score at the half was 8 to 8.

With three minutes to play and the Billikens leading, 17 to 14, Colen of Loyola sank two baskets. Mattis then got the ball as Loyola tried to stall and passed to Ryan for the winning points.

Revolta Leads in Golf Gold; Earns $9,543 in '35 Season

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Johnny Revolta, the self-made Milwaukee golfer who made good in a handsome fashion during the last year, was the No. 1 collector from the tournament tills of the 1935 season, according to figures released yesterday by Robert E. Harlow, the distinguished gourmet who is tournament manager of the Professional Golfers' association when he is not running down hidden restaurants where the cuisine is excellent.

Mr. Harlow, who can tell you about the best eating places in every American city of over 50,000 population and random spots in lesser villages, now tells us that Master Revolta picked himself up a small matter of $9,543 during the competitive year of 1935. This would be tidy change in any year, but it so happens that Revolta's total, gathered in 34 events, is the largest aggregate any golfer has reaped since the happy days of the gilded age of Hagen.

Battles His Way Up.

It was only a few years ago that Revolta was toting clubs to support his mother, after the death of his father. Mr. Harlow himself only a few months ago recalled the time when he first saw Johnny, cycling over the fairways of a St. Petersburg club as a course patrolman. Followed a hard battle to win himself recognition as a professional, one which didn't show any profit until he finished a surprise runnerup in the rich Miami-Biltmore open of 1932.

Today Johnny is not only national professional and western open champion, but his books also show the largest profit, by a good $1,000, of all of the 227 American professionals who competed in tournaments last year. Playing in 14 states, Mexico and Nassau, the curly haired Milwaukeean took 6,111 strokes in medal play competition. His winnings included two match play tourneys—the national P. G. A. and the international four-ball meet at Miami—in which strokes cannot be recorded. P. G. A. officials guessed that in these Johnny took approximately 2,000 strokes, so that with a total of 8,111 the 24 year old star pocketed $1.17 a stroke.

Chicagoans Right There.

Henry Picard, the tall Hershey, Pa., sharpshooter who won the Miami four-ball event with Revolta, was second among the money winners with $8,417. Three Chicagoans followed the two leaders, including Horton Smith of Oak Park, $7,790; Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, $7,132, and Ky Laffoon of Northmoor, $6,185. Paul Runyan of New York, who won the 1935 Radix trophy for the low scoring average among the pros and who led the 1934 money winners with a total of $6,767, was sixth for 1935 with $5,498.

A total of $135,000 was offered in open tournaments during the last season and the first ten took almost half of that—$61,762. Ten foreign professionals who took part in several of the tournaments netted an aggregate of $1,461.

The list of leading money winners, together with the number of events in which they competed and their prize totals, follows:

PACKERS, LIONS MEET ALL-STAR TEAMS ON COAST

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Two National Professional Football league teams, the Detroit Lions and the Green Bay Packers, will meet California all-star aggregations tomorrow.

Here the champion Lions are expected to draw a near capacity crowd of 20,000 into Gilmore stadium to meet a team of California stars built around Cal Clemens, former University of Southern California player.

In San Francisco the Packers will take the field against a coast squad composed largely of football players with pro experience.

HORNETS DEFEAT FIELD ARTILLERY POLOISTS, 21½-12

In a fast polo game at the Chicago Riding club last night, the 124th Field Artillery lost to the Hornets by 21½ to 12. The score was tied at halftime. The losers, aided by a four goal handicap, kept in the game for a time by virtue of six goals by Capt. Les Ireland.

In the opening match, the Riding Club Bees rallied to defeat the 122d Field Artillery, 14 to 7.

In another battle, the Rough Riders, a boys' team, beat the Wildcats, a girls' trio, 4 to 2.

Fergus Makes Long Shot.

For the Ramblers Bill Fergus was the star. One of his scoring shots traveled 60 yards. He covered the field well, shifting from offense to defense when his team's goal was threatened.

The North Shore players received a two point start by handicap but they did not need the advantage, for they outscored their opponents in every period except the first when honors were even. The Ramblers put on a spurt in the third chukker but a rally by North Shore stemmed the threat.

Black Horse Troop Wins.

Scoring five goals in the last chukker, the Black Horse troop captured the evening's junior division game by defeating Olympia Fields 10 to 3½. Four of the five were scored by Lieut. Bill Kirby. This equalled the armory record for individual scoring in a single chukker.

NORTHWESTERN SWIMMERS BEAT CHICAGO, 50 TO 34

A pair of speedy sophomores, Danny Zehr and Joe Faner, led the Northwestern university swimming team to a 50 to 34 triumph over Chicago in the opening Big Ten meet for both teams last night at Patten gymnasium pool.

Zehr, who was a member of the 1932 United States Olympic team, contributed one first to the Wildcat total of six—winning the 440 yard free style—and swam with both of the victorious Northwestern relay teams, the 400 yard and 300 yard medley.

Faner swam a :55.6 race to take the hundred, and was included in the 400 yard relay quartet.

The Maroons derived some satisfaction, however, as their water polo team, led by Capt. Bush, who scored three goals, whipped the Wildcats, 1935 conference titleholders, 6 to 5.

400 YARD RELAY—Won by Northwestern [Grandland, Faner, Stembridge and Zehr]. Time, 3:40.5.

200 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Horschke [N.]; Briggs [N.]; second; Lyon [C.], third. Time, 2:44.

150 YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Jewell [N.]; Anderson [C.], second; Trenary [C.], third. Time, 1:41.8.

60 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Brown [C.]; Rollinger [N.], second; Happ, [N.], third. Time, :29.6.

440 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Zehr [N.]; Wilson [C.], second; Ogilby [N.], third. Time, 5:08.6.

100 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Faner [N.]; Lewis [C.], second; Grandland [N.], third. Time, :55.6.

FANCY DIVING—Won by Stauffer [C.], 131.06 points; Hervig [N.], 122.34 points, second, North [N.], 113.76 points, third.

220 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Wilson [C.]; Ogilby [N.], second; Lewis [C.], third. Time, 2:21.6.

300 YARD MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Northwestern [Jewell, Horschke and Zehr]. Time, 3:03.3.

Louis' Fists Claim 27th Victim; Review of Week in Sports

Joe Louis, who turned to professional boxing after winning the light heavyweight championship in THE TRIBUNE's 1934 Golden Gloves tournament, continued on his way to the heavyweight title when he knocked out Charley Retzlaff, Leonard, N. D., in 1 minute and 25 seconds of the first round at the Chicago Stadium Friday night. Louis' record: Bouts, 27; victories, 27; victories by knockout, 23.

Silver Skates Winners.

What Golden Gloves is to amateur boxing, THE TRIBUNE's annual Silver Skates contest is to ice skating in America. Four of the five members of the United States' Olympic speed skating team are graduates of Silver Skates in Chicago and Milwaukee; three are former Silver Skates champions. The coach, Oneil Farrell, an Olympic star of 1928, won the Derby ten years ago.

Last Sunday seven new champions, from whom America's future skating stars undoubtely will come, were crowned in the 19th Silver Skates Derbies, held on the lagoon at Garfield park. A crowd of 30,000 watched the final day's events, which had drawn a field of 4,596 entrants. The champions in the various divisions:

Men's senior—Albert Harly, Falcon Bridge, Ont.

Boys' intermediate — Bob Heckenbach, Northwest Skating club.

Boys' junior—Joe Verbeke, C. Y. O.

Boys' juvenile—Walter Baron, Wilmette.

Boys' midget—Kenner S. Sale Jr., Norwegian American A. A.

Girls' senior—Maddy Horn, Oconomowoc, Wis.

Girls' junior—Bunny Lawler, C. Y. O.

The Catholic Youth Organization won the team trophy with 280 points. The Northwest Skating club was second with 110, and the Norwegian American Athletic association third with 80.

Davis Cup Doings.

A sign of approaching spring almost as reliable as the departure of major league baseball teams to the spring training camps was the action of the United States Lawn Tennis association's Davis cup committee in instructing six promising players to start conditioning themselves for the preliminary matches next May. The six from whom the Davis cup squad will be picked are Wilmer Allison, Donald Budge, Bryan Grant, Frank Shields, Gene Mako, and Johnny Van Ryn.

Hope for Hawks.

The winds of fortune which have been blowing colder and colder on the hopes of Blackhawk fans reached gale proportions last week, and then, suddenly abated, and Chicago hocky enthusiasts thought they saw the glimmering of a rosy dawn ahead.

The National Hocky league standing, which serves as the Hawk barometer, continued its steady drop last Sunday night when the Hawks, after taking an early lead, lost to the Canadiens, 2 to 1. It hit the bottom Tuesday night when the Hawks, without even playing, plunked into last place in the American league. This state of affairs brought immediate demands for action from the fans, threats from club officials.

On Wednesday the officials made good on at least one threat, and Art Coulter, long a mainstay on the Chicago team, was traded outright to the New York Rangers for Earl Seibert, a brilliant young defense man. Behind the trade, it was reported, was a verbal clash between Coulter and Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the Hawks, who had spoken none too kindly in his appraisal of Coulter's work in recent games.

Whether it was the additional strength provided by Seibert or new life instilled by the officials' threats, the change at any rate sent the Hawks onto the ice Thursday night with something of their old fire. They whipped the league leading Detroit Red Wings, 4 to 1, regained third place. Week's scores:

SUNDAY.

Boston, 6; New York Rangers, 3.
Detroit, 6; Maroons, 0.
Canadiens, 2; Chicago, 1.

TUESDAY.

Canadiens, 1; Americans, 0.
Rangers, 2; Maroons, 1.
Boston, 4; Toronto, 1.

THURSDAY.

Grimm Becomes an Ex.

Lest there be some doubt about Charley Grimm's authority as manager of the Chicago Cubs, directors of the club a year ago gave him the title of vice president. The move was just so much grist for the mills of hard pressed baseball writers seeking material for sprightly stories. Grimm's vice presidential activities, real and fancied, received more attention from the press than did his managerial pursuits. Feeling that Grimm was becoming the butt of too many jokes with a consequent lowering of his dignity, directors of the club last Wednesday took from him his title of vice president to save him from his newspaper friends. They responded by referring to him as ex-Vice President Grimm.

More Baseball, Football.

Freddy Lindstrom, released unconditionally by the Cubs ten days ago, signed a contract to play with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

As a further step toward the goal of curtailing its football schedule and restricting it to a few outstanding games, the University of Chicago on Wednesday announced that it had arranged a home and home series with Harvard for 1938 and 1939. To make room for the Harvard game at Cambridge, the Maroons canceled a game previously scheduled with Princeton at Princeton in 1938.

The New York Giants baseball club on Wednesday elected Horace C. Stoneham, son of the late Charles A. Stoneham, to the club presidency, succeeding his father, who died the previous week.

Always Something New.

Last month when John Golemgeske, captain elect of the Wisconsin football team, circulated a petition asking the removal of Coach Clarence Spears, and charged Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, director of athletics, with instigating the action, most people thought he had merely brought into the open a fight between the coach and the director.

Last week, however, the original issue was all but lost sight of as the board of regents of the university opened their investigation of the affair, and a squabble between the regents and the faculty athletic board had stolen the spotlight. The faculty board asked full authority to hire and fire the athletic director and coaching staf. The regents answered with a flat "no." The faculty board intimated it thought Wisconsin was violating a Western conference rule by depriving it of full control of announcing that they would make their own investigation, question all the principals again. They appointed a committee of five to carry on the inquiry.

CANADIENS BEAT RANGERS, 3 TO 1; TAKE 3D PLACE

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 18.—(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens returned to third place in the National Hocky league's international section tonight, defeating the New York Rangers, 3 to 1. It was the Canadiens' first victory at home since Nov. 23, and put them a point ahead of the New York Americans, who were idle.

The Rangers played without Bun Cook and Vernon Ayres and lost Bill Cook in the middle of the first period when he was struck on the face by a flying puck. He suffered a badly bruised eye and an injured nose.

The Canadiens took the lead two minutes after the start of the first period when Paul Haynes took Leroy Goldsworthy's relay of George Mantha's pass and scored. Late in the third period the Rangers tied the score, only to have the Canadiens sink two quick goals. Lineups:

LEAFS WIN, 5 TO 2

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 18.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs won their first National Hocky league game of 1936 tonight, defeating the Boston Bruins, 5 to 2, before 13,000.

The triumph, scored without the aid of Charlie Conacher and Joe Primeau, was the first in six starts for the league champions and ended the club's most disastrous losing streak in two years.

The Leafs ran up a 3-1 lead in the second period of the bruising game in which 20 penalties, including two majors and one misconduct, were handed out. Day and Beattie got majors in the first period for fighting and Red Horner drew the misconduct for talking back to Referee Rodden after drawing a minor for tripping. Lineups:

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawk hocky boys are saying that their grand awakening at the Stadium Thursday night was no flash in the pan and that they are fixing to lick the Boston Bruins tonight with the same lack of mercy they showed the Detroit Red Wings on the aforesaid Thursday night.

Hawk officials, full of gurgles over the manner in which the Hawks trimmed the Red Wings, 4 to 1, are expecting the biggest crowd of the season tonight. If this prophecy is realized approximately 16,000 will pass through the stiles, for the New York Rangers have drawn the seeason's highs with two turnouts each of which exceeded 15,000 by several hundred.

Eddie Shore, now captain of the Bruins again, has been snorting fire and brimstone from his well known fire and brimstone nostrils. For nine seasons Shore has packed them in when word has gone out that he is in a snorting mood.

Listen to Mr. Farrell!

We have seen Mr. Shore many times, but we never could think of any better adjectives than those supplied by Joseph Farrell, the Hawks' triple tongued trumpeter. We quote from Mr. Farrell's restrained essay anent Shore's appearance in tonight's match:

". . . Eddie Shore, Boston's dynamic defense player and the game's greatest individual attraction will be in our midst. Hocky know-it-alls, from owners, managers, and players down [or up] to just plain addicts, continue to be amazed at the performances of the durable wheat farmer from Alberta.

"Bulldog courage and boundless stamina are the assets which have made Eddie Shore stand out for nine straight seasons. Shore always is a scoring threat, and were it not for his magnificent value as a defense player, there is no doubt that he would star as a forward, for his robust style of attack, his speed, his stick handling, and his elusive swerving makes it extremely difficult to check his on rushes.

Nice Going, Joe!

"Today, averaging over 40 minutes a game, he seems better than when he broke into the league, refuting the belief of those, who, at the beginning of his professional career, declared that if he didn't more carefully hoard the energy which he threw about in such lavish style, his stay in the big league would be brief."

Later on in his treatise Mr. Farrell really gets warmed up on the Shore subject, but we think we have quoted enough to give you some idea.

Paul Thompson, the Hawks' leading scorer, who has been out of two games with a leg injury expects to return to work tonight to oppose his brother Tiny, Bruin goalie who is the leading candidate for the Vezina trophy, awarded each season to the league's stoppingest goalie.

PICK U. S. GOLF TEAM FOR MATCH WITH AUSTRALIA

Sarasota, Fla., Jan. 18.—[U. P.]—Six American golfing stars tonight were named as a team which will meet an Australian team to play for the Lakes cup Feb. 5-6 at the Lakewood Country club, Long Beach, Cal., George R. Jacobus, president of the Professional Golfers association, announced.

The American team will consist of Capt. Paul Runyan, Henry Picard, Horton Smith, Harry Cooper, Sam Parks, and Olin Dutra. Dutra replaces Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee who is eligible for the team but who cannot make the trip to the west coast.

The Americans won the cup in Australia in 1934. The Australian team is composed of William Bolger, M. L. Kelley, V. S. Richardson, Joe Cohen, George and E. Naismith.

TILDEN SKATERS WIN CITY TITLE; AUSTIN SECOND

Three Records Broken in Prep Meet.

Three records were broken as Tilden Tech captured the 14th annual Chicago public high school skating championship in both the junior and senior divisions at the south pond of Lincoln park yesterday.

The Tech team gathered 20 points in the junior section, and 24 points in the senior division. Crane finished second in the juniors with 13, and Austin, defending champion, third with 6. Austin won runnerup honors in the senior races with 11 points and Schurz tied wtih Sullivan for third place with 7.

Relay Record Broken.

The Tilden relay team composed of Allnut, Schrock, Schmudde, and Cockman established the new mark in the one mile junior relay by covering the distance in 3:05.7. The foursome clipped one and three-tenths seconds off the old mark of 3:07 which was held by Austin.

Mesch of Austin helped his team capture second place in the senior division when he set a new mark in the one mile race. He chopped 12.2 seconds off the mark which Pete Miller established in 1928 when he attended Marshall High school. The new mark is 3:10.8, while the old record was 3:23.

Baacke Sets Mark.

The other new senior record was made by Baacke of Tilden in the 880 yard race. He paced the field to capture first place, breaking a ten year mark by 3.2 seconds. Baacke covered the distance in 1:24.8, the former mark made by Brignall of Englewood in 1925 was 1:28.

Foremost among the women skaters is Eleanor Thiel, state champion. The clubs entered include the C. Y. O., Northwestern Skating club, Olympic Skating club, and the Norwegian American A. A.

HOT STOVE LEAGUE ECHOES THEIR "GET TWO!" CRY

Face to face. Here are closeups of Jurges (left) and Herman, who soon will be leaving for Catalina Island training camp.

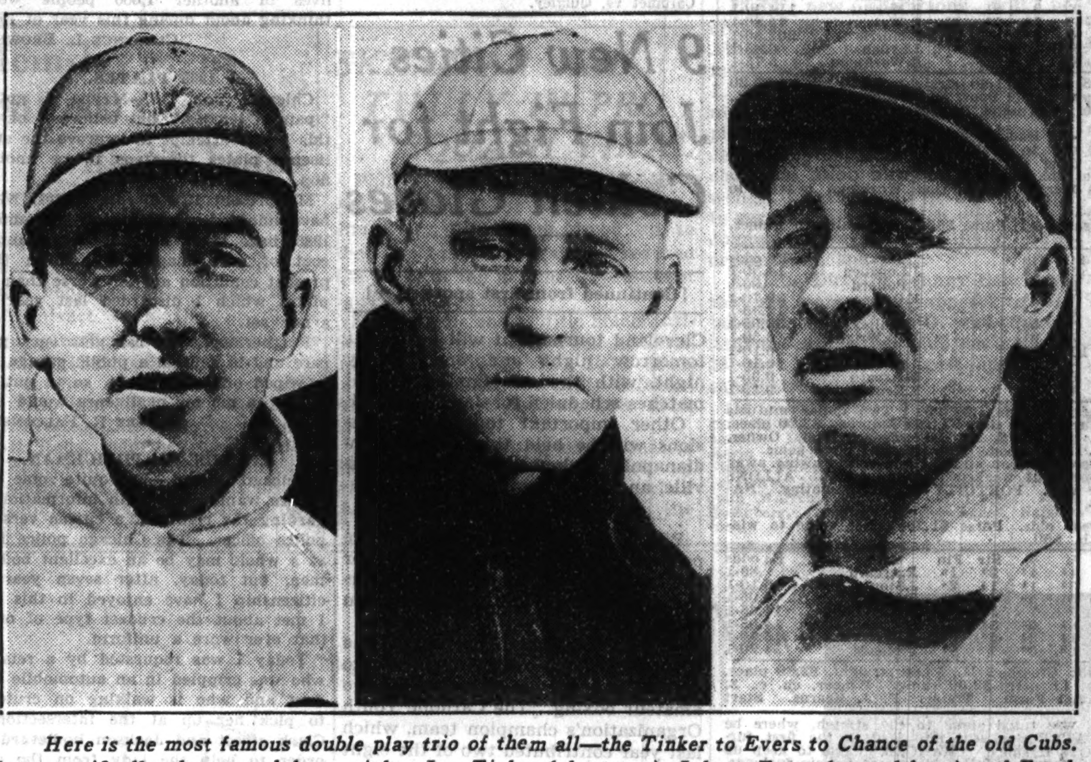
Phil Cavarretta is No. 3 and windup man in the Chicago double play combination. He is stationed at first base.



Here is the most famous double play trio of them all—the Tinker to Evers to Chance of the old Cubs. More specifically they are, left to right: Joe Tinker (shortstop); Johnny Evers (second base), and Frank Chance (first base). Hot stove leaguers, recalling the effectiveness of the Jurges to Herman to Cavarretta double play combination in the Cubs' drive to the 1935 pennant, have been wondering if the youngsters won't win just as much fame before they're through.

Cavarretta swings at one. He gave promise of developing into a potent hitter last season.

British Sport Association Raps Olympics

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—A move to bring about the withdrawal of British athletes from the Olympic games in Berlin next summer has been made by the National Workers' Sports association here.

"Politics should not interfere with sport," declared George H. Elvin, organizing secretary. "In this country it does not. The German government, however, does use its political machine to control sport.

"In 1932 it banned a sports tour arranged by the British association. The clubs against which it was to compete have been suppressed and many of the leaders put in concentration camps. Moreover, Catholic and Protestant organizations are not permitted to engage in sports in Germany unless they are willing to affiliate themselves with the Nazi controled sports clubs."

He declared that the sports leader of the Berlin Storm Troops had published a book, officially approved, reminding the German people that their sport is "built on hatred" and that "National Socialists can see no positive value for our people in permitting Jews to travel through our country and compete in athletics with our best."

AMERICANS SATISFIED

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Joel Hildebrand, coach of the American Olympic ski team, took occasion today to praise the arrangements for the winter games and the spirit being shown by the United States athletes.

"We are being treated with utmost courtesy," said Hildebrand, a professor at the University of Southern California. "We have found the arrangements satisfactory in evry way."

Hildebrand also was lavish in his praise of the skiers and bob sled teams, mentioning especially the spirit of coöperation which has developed since leaving the United States.

"They're men from different parts of the country," he said. "Some are college men, others are not. I confess having some apprehensions before leaving America regarding how the men would team up.

"But they are doing splendidly, both in regard to relations to each other and in preparing for the Olympics. They are showing great aggressiveness and apparently get a great kick out of their workouts."

The bobsledders have transferred their activities tc St. Moritz, pending completion of the run at Garmisch-Partenkirchen but the skiers are still here, working out for the most part on the small jumps.

Jew Joins German Team.

Rudi Ball, German-Jewish ice hocky player, has returned here from Paris and Milan self exile to become a member of Germany's Olympic team at the invitation of the reich sports leader, Capt. Hans von Tschammer Osten.

He is Germany's only Jewish Olympic representative thus far. Rated as the nation's best hocky player, he came here a fortnight ago. His presence became known generally only today when he appeared suddenly as a driving power for the National Olympic squad.

He had left the country for France and Italy when the Nazis started their anti-semitic campaign, leaving behind him a weakened national team which had never regained its old power, despite the efforts of Canadian trainers.

Ski Stars Will Meet Today in Norge Tourney

in 1932, would be broken when he soared approximately 200 feet in a practice leap.

A remodeled slide made possible Engen's long leap, although jumping more than 200 feet is no new experience to the Salt Lake City rider. Engen last year leaped 296 feet, a few feet short of the world's record, in a tournament on Ecker hill near Salt Lake City.

Use Home Snow.

The reconstructed slide and the fact that no transplanted snow will be used for the first time in five years has hastened Robert S. Starrett, voice of the Norge club, and Secretary Johnny Ohs to add that the jumpers will go at least a country mile. In the last four meets riders complained they were slowed up because of the transplanted snow which was brought to Fox River Grove from Escanaba, Mich.

"We are going to pack the snow around the clubhouse and on the banks of the river, for I believe the boys will go that far," remarked Mr. Starrett with an eye on the counting room. "I think several of the boys can make about four furlongs in :45."

Chicago Chances Good.

Mr. Ohs also contends that a Chicago rider will take the class A title for the first time since 1925. Among the jumpers who will represent the Norge club are Guttorm Paulsen, Gunnar Oman, Howard Jansen, and George Gunderson. The Chicagoans also soared past the 183 foot record in the practice meet last Thursday.

The Class A entries follow:

Paul Stone, Milwaukee, Wis.; Olaf Hoyum, Kenosha, Wis.; Gunnar Rebne; Devils Lake, N. D.; Leif Ingebretsen, Rockford, Ill.; Al Johnson, Milwaukee, Wis.; Lawrence Maurin, Milwaukee, Wis.; Ingvald Brutseth, Chicago; Guttorm Paulsen, Chicago; Gunnar Oman, Chicago; Howard Jansen, Chicago; George Gunderson, Chicago.

Romano Wins Two Events in Ice Carnival

Leo Romano and Annabelle Adams won the 220 yard race for couples, feature event of the Humboldt park ice carnival and Mardi Gras last night. Helen Klepacka and Gene Zellar finished second. Virginia Gapon and Anton Trykaski were third. A crowd of approximately 40,000 watched the events.

Romano also took the 440 yard race for boys under 18. Romano, who represented La Follette park, covered the distance in :47.5. Al Zalewski, Kosciuszko park, was second, and Ed Milanowski, Holstein park, finished third.

Miss Adams added an individual victory when she captured the 220 yard event for girls under 15. Cecile Sherman took second place, while Dorothy Dwyer finished third. Shirley Jan Burnette, Rogers Park Skating club, won the 220 yard race for girls under 12 years.

Charles Seaburg of La Follette park captured the 880 yard men's event, with a teammate, James Walsh, second, and Gene Zeller, Holstein park, third.

POTTS BREAKS SKATE RECORD IN OSLO MEET

Freisinger Finishes 2d in 500 Meter Event.

OSLO, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Allan Potts of Brooklyn, veteran member of America's Olympic speed skating team, turned in the finest performance of his career today as he lowered Clas Thunberg's 5 year old record for 500 meters.

Amazing even his own teammates, Potts covered the distance in 42.4 seconds to clip two-tenths of a second off the world mark Thunberg, Finnish ace, set in 1931, and sent the United States team away to a running start in a two day speed skating carnival against Norway's outstanding racers.

Ballangrud Sets Marks.

His was not the only record breaking achievement, for Ivar Ballangrud of Norway shattered his own world mark for 5,000 meters. Ballangrud was clocked in 18:17.2 as compared with his own record of 18:21.6, established in 1930.

The third event of the day saw Kit Klein of Buffalo win the women's 500 meter race in 51 seconds flat, defeating Undis Blikken of Norway by two-tenths of a second. Miss Klein later won the 1,000 meter race in 1:45, exceptionally fast time.

"We hoped to win," said Harry Kemper of St. Louis, manager of the American team, "but Potts surprised us all. We selected him as the last man on the team. The results of the 500 meter race were especially remarkable in view of the fact we have had time for very little training since we arrived.

Freisinger Trails Potts.

"I expect equally good results tomorrow with a possibility that Leo Freisinger of Chicago will approach the 1,500 meter record. With another week's training our men will have a fine chance of eclipsing world records at the international races next week-end."

Freisinger finished second to Potts today and himself equaled Thunberg's old record. Hans Engnestangen of Norway was third. Bob Petersen of Milwaukee was sixth.

Ballangrud led home two of his compatriots in the 5,000 meter race, with Mathiesen taking second place and Michael Staksrud third. Eddie Schroeder of Chicago finished in a tie with Engnestangen for fifth place; Petersen was sixth; Freisinger, seventh; Delbert Lamb of Milwaukee, eighth, and Potts, ninth.

SAN FRANCISCO BIKE RACE WILL START TONIGHT

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 18.—(AP)—A six day bicycle race will start here tomorrow night. Twenty riders will pedal off in the annual event at Dreamland auditorium.

Favored among the ten teams is the youthful combination of Henry O'Brien of San Jose and Cecil Yates of Chicago. George Dempsey of Newark, American all-around leader in 1934 and sprint champion in 1933, will pair with Russell Allen of Los Angeles.

Other starting teams:

Franz Duelberg, Germany, and Steve Wagner, Germany.

Lew Rush, Victoria, and Tony Schaller, Chicago.

Caesar Binetti, Italy, and Saveer Van Slambrouck, Belgium.

Eddie Triest, Italy, and Frank Hayes, Long Island, N. Y.

PONTIAC
AS FAR AHEAD IN VALUE AS IN STYLING
AND IT'S
THE MOST BEAUTIFUL THING ON WHEELS!
BUILT TO LAST 100,000 MILES
The big trend is toward the 1936 Pontiac and it's easy to figure why. Pontiac tops the field in everything it takes to keep an owner satisfied.
Pontiac Silver Streak design is the one new note in motor car styling. Hence the Pontiac is the most distirctive car on the road.
Pontiac gas economy is nothing less than sensational—more miles per gallon than other cars of equal size or weight. And oil and upkeep thrift is just as phenomenal.
These are a few of the reasons why you can't do better than a Pontiac for downright value. You can learn the rest in one 10-minute ride!
Compare Pontiac's value and new low prices on the greatly reduced G.M.A.C.'s 6% plan—the lowest cost to time buyers ever offered by Pontiac dealers.

KENTUCKY FANS GIVE 7 HORSES CHANCE IN DERBY

Hollyrood, Tintagel Top Bluegrass List.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Their appetites whetted by the knowledge that entry blanks for the $40,000 added Kentucky Derby will soon be ready for distribution, turf fans of the bluegrass have emerged from their winter's hibernation to seize up the Derby eligibles.

With the high mortality rate among Derbly favorites failing to break their centainty, many Kentuckians now predict that the winner will emerge from a select group of seven colts.

"They are Hal Price Headley's Hollyrood; Marshall Field's Tintagel, the Belmont Futurity winner; Bomar stable's Grand Slam; C. B. Shaffer's Coldstream; Joseph E. Widener's Brevity; Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Ned Reigh, and E. R. Bradley's Bien Joli.

Grand Slam If It's Muddy.

Hollyrood, which won the Pimlico Futurity, was runnerup in the Belmont Futurity and Kentucky Jocky club stakes, is well liked around here. Grand Slam, winner of the Jocky club stakes and second to Hollyrood in the Pimlico Futurity, also has his backers, who figure that if the track is muddy this colt should win in a breeze.

Widener has high hopes that Brevity, winner of the Champagne stakes at Belmont and a strong finisher calculated to like the Derby distance, may give his stable its first Derby victory. Bien Joli, largely because he's the property of Bradley, winner of four Derbies, is not lacking for supporters.

Ned Reigh Shows Speed.

Ned Reigh showed his prowess when he won the $5,000 added Junior Champion stakes at Aqueduct, running the six and a half furlongs in 1:18 3-5. The Kilmer colt also won the Walden handicap at Pimlico and was third in the Pimlico Futurity.

Coldstream fizzled after winning the Hyde Park stakes at Arlington Park and running a dead heat with Red Rain in the Saratoga Special. The Shaffer colt ran fifth in the Kentucky Jocky club stakes and was far back in the Belmont Futurity. Coldstream, however, still has his backers, who look for him to return to form in the spring.

INDIANA WINS, 33 TO 31

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Indiana's basketball team was in danger of being jolted out of its share of the Big Ten lead here tonight, but Minnesota's Gophers were unequal to the task and lost a heartbreaking 33 to 31 decision.

Had it not been for a clever stall which the Hoosiers maintained through the last three minutes of the game, Purdue would be holding the conference lead alone tonight. But Indiana cut loose with a great exhibition of ball handling in those last three minutes that confounded the Gophers and stopped their rush just when it appeared about to catch the Hoosiers.

Score Tied at Half.

After being held to a 21 to 21 tie in the first half, Indiana stepped into a 29 to 24 lead shortly after the second period started. This was increased to 33 to 26, but then the Gophers cut loose again.

Baker tossed in a free throw, and Halverson flipped in a basket to make it 33 to 29. Jones, returning to the game, threw the 5,000 fans into hysterics by dropping in another field goal. But that ended the scoring as Indiana controled the ball until the final gun.

NOTRE DAME WINS, 37-27

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Sparked by Johnny Moir's sharpshooting, Notre Dame's basketball team continued its supremacy over Pennsylvania tonight with a 37 to 27 victory.

A second half spurt, after winding up the first period on the short end of a 14 to 10 count, sent the Irish out in front in the last ten minutes. Moir ran wild in the second half, scoring nine points in the closing rush to take high scoring honors with 14 points.

Notre Dame jumped into a 9 to 4 lead in the opening minutes, but dropped back when Stan Hauze of Penn got under way with two field goals and two free throws, and Barrett and Franny Murray each added baskets.

Time, 1:11. Two dollar mutuels paid: Stubbs, $11.60 straight, $6.10 place, $5.20 show; Mont Blanc, $6.30 place, $5.80 show; Sandy Boot, $6.30 show. Winner, b. g., 3, by Sir Gallahad III.-Marie Odile. Owner, Townsend B. Martin. Trainer, W. Burrows. Start good. Won easily; place same.

STUBBS broke alertly, was rushed into a long lead, tired in stretch, but gamely held on to win well in hand. MONT BLANC was slow to break, but displayed world of speed and ran good race. SANDY BOOT, well up from the start, held on well. SHOT UP ran good race. There was some crowding at the far turn and THE GONG stumbled and fell and SINGER'S FOLLY stumbled over him, throwing Workman heavily to the ground.

SECOND RACE—Three furlongs. Two year olds. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Winner, blk. c., 2, by Balko-French Doll. Owner, Townsend B. Martin. Trainer, W. Burrows. Start good. Won driving; place same.

BALKANESE broke fast, but swerved over, then ran straight and was drawing away at end. LITTLE EMPRESS had plenty of speed but weakened when caught. ALLONS ran good race. PAPENIE, well up all the way. FORTUITY is worth noting. NAVARRE was knocked out of it at the start.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs. Three year olds. Purse $1,200. Net value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, 1:24 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Crossbow II., $3.60 straight, $2.80 place, $2.30 show; Faust, $4.40 place, $2.60 show; Chancer, $2.60 show. Winner, ch. c., 3, by Crusader-Slow and Easy. Owner, Calumet Farm. Trainer, F. J. Kearns. Start good. Won driving; place easily.

CROSSBOW II. handled his weight well, was rated along to the stretch, where he closed fast under a hard hand ride. FAUST was sent into lead in the first furlong, opened wide gap, but tired suddenly as if short. CHANCER unable to keep up in early part. PLAY CHANCE closed some ground. ADOLF had speed for six furlongs, then flattened out.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Three year olds and up. Purse $1,500. Net value to winner, $1,100; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, 1:36 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Mantagna, $12.00 straight, $3.60 place, $2.80 show; Lynx Eye, $2.70 place, $2.30 show; Chance Ray, $3.30 show. Winner, br. g., 4, by Sweep-Natica. Owner, W. H. Furst. Trainer, G. S. Howell. Start good. Won driving; place easily.

MANTAGNA, showing excellent speed, broke fast, was sent to the front and rated along, saved ground and held on gamely. LYNX EYE was under stout restraint in early running, began to close ground around turn, closed fast, but hung right at end. CHANCE RAY, well up all the way, had no mishap. MARTIN BARTON broke good, but dropped back, came again at end. CHASAR could not keep up in early part. ROUND TABLE broke from the outside of the stalls and never had a chance.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Three year olds and up. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, 1:10 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Scotch Gold, $6.50 straight, $3.50 place, $3.10 show; Microphone, $3.70 place, $3.10 show; Colonel Ed, $5.10 show. Winner, gr. g., 7, by Duncan Gray-Rhinegold. Owner, Miss L. C. White. Trainer, J. Gorga. Start good for all but Sassafras. Won easily; place driving.

SCOTCH GOLD broke on top, but was outrun to the middle of the turn, came around field in stretch and, closing with a rush, was drawing away at end. MICROPHONE, showing more early speed than usual, set fast pace and held on well. COLONEL ED circled field and finished with a rush. ZAY, on the inside, had no excuse. HEADIN HOME had speed for five furlongs, then quit. BELOW ZERO was outrun. SASSAFRAS refused to break.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Claiming. Four year olds and up. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, 1:50 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Ward-in-Chancery, $8.40 straight, $4.50 place, $5.50 show; John's Birthday, $4.70 place, $4.50 show; Old Judge, $6.20 show. Winner, b. h., 7, by Marches-Alimony. Owner, Mrs. G. C. Winfrey. Trainer, W. C. Winfrey. Start good. Won easily; place same.

WARD-IN-CHANCERY was allowed to gallop along to the far turn, where he moved up with a rush, assumed command and won going away. JOHN'S BIRTHDAY moved up with a determined bid in stretch and was next best. OLD JUDGE showed good early speed, but dropped back around turn, came again at finish. TAUNTON, well up all the way, stopped badly. DARKLING failed to close any ground.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Claiming. Four year olds and up. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

CAPT. JERRY, showing a decided liking for the grass course, was sent to the front going into first turn, set all the pace and stood long drive gamely. MOVE FASTER made his bid entering stretch, but hung on. CANIMAR was allowed to drop far out of it in early part, closed a big gap and, with better handling, might have been closer up. SILENCE III. came from the rear with a rush. ROCKY PRINCE ran as if he liked the course. COLORIST quit badly.

Capt. Smith of Notre Dame Undergoes 2d Operation

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Bill Smith, Notre Dame football captain-elect, underwent a successful operation for removal of kidney stones at Mayo brothers hospital in Rochester, Minn., yesterday, according to word received here today. Smith underwent a similar operation Aug. 15 in Newark, N. J., and was unable to play last fall. Yesterday's was not as serious as the earlier one and will not keep him out of the lineup next fall.

TWO TEAMS TRY FOR 9TH K. OF C. VICTORIES TODAY

St. Cyr, Quigley Streaks in Danger.

St. Cyr in the West Division and Quigley in the South will go after their ninth straight victories this afternoon and tonight in the Knights of Columbus basketball league.

St. Cyr, with the first round title already in its possession, is slated to meet Carroll, the league champion, in the feature game at St. Philip's gymnasium. St. Cyr's last four victories have been by one point margins, and Carroll will put its full strength on the floor in an effort to break the string. Otto Kolar, high scoring ace, is expected to be in the Carroll lineup.

Cardinal Plays Barry.

Cardinal vs. Barry and Setters vs. Damen are other games on the west side schedule involving the leaders. Milt Bocek of Cardinal and Dungan Rigney of Damen, both owned by the Chicago White Sox, will be in the game.

The south siders will wind up their first round with Quigley opposing Calumet at St. Rita gymnasium on the evening bill. Quigley is certain of the title for the first half of the season, but Calumet is still in the fight for third place.

McHale vs. Loyola-Hyde Park.

McHale and Loyola-Hyde Park, tied for second place, will clash in the south division headliner. Perez vs. Dowling and Aquinas vs. Englewood complete the card.

The schedules:

WEST DIVISION.
[2 p. m., St. Philip's gymnasium.]
Hughes vs. Lafayette.
Setters vs. Damen.
Cardinal vs. Barry.
Carroll vs. St. Cyr.

SOUTH DIVISION.
[7 p. m., St. Rita's gymnasium.]
Aquinas vs. Englewood.
Perez vs. Dowling.
McHale vs. Loyola-Hyde Park.
Calumet vs. Quigley.

9 New Cities Join Fight for Golden Gloves

Cleveland tournament will be fought tomorrow night and on Tuesday night, with the semi-final and final matches scheduled for Jan. 30 and 31.

Other important tournament sessions will be held this week in Indianapolis, Kokomo, Lafayette, Louisville, and Huntington.

Open in Chicago Feb. 10.

While the out of town centers are preparing to invade Chicago plans for the inaugural of Chicago's three sectional meets on Feb. 10 have been completed.

While Chicago will be host to the contenders from out of town, it also will defend the prestige of Chicago amateur boxing. The Catholic Youth Organization's champion team, which last year contributed two of the eight winners in the Tournament of Champions, is ready to enter. Four other boxers in each weight will be chosen from the elimination trials on the west, south, and north sides of the city.

The Chicago novice tournament does not qualify for the Tournament of Champions. The semi-finals and finals of this meet, however, will be held in conjunction with the open division fights.

First Examination Tuesday.

The first medical examination for Chicago's Golden Gloves boxers will be held Tuesday night at Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. The second examination is scheduled for Thursday night. Others are Jan. 29 [at the C. Y. O. center, 31 East Congress street], Jan. 30 [at Trafton's], and Feb. 5 [at Trafton's].

The only way to enter the Chicago tournaments is by filling out the entry blank which appears daily in the sports section. Upon receipt of this entry blank a letter assigning you to a medical examination will be mailed which will inclose a parental consent card. This card must be signed by parent or guardian and brought to the medical examination.

Sixty-four gold medals [thirty-two for novice qualifiers] are the Chicago sectional awards. In addition each boxer will receive a bronze souvenir Golden Gloves button.

40 PILOTS RACE IN ARMORY AUTO EVENTS TONIGHT

The weekly argument as to who is the best indoor auto race driver in Chicago will be reopened tonight at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, when 40 or more racing pilots present their sides of the case.

Jimmy Snyder, who captured all the major honors last week, will be back for more, although his claim to supremacy will be contested by Tony Willaman, Pat Warren, Curly Mills, Ronnie Householder and several other stars.

The most important business of the evening will be a 40 lap main event in which 16 pilots will appear. Snyder was supreme in this test last week, while Mills won the same event the week previous and Warren captured the honor three weeks ago. Willaman, Harry MacQuinn, Householder and Ray Hart ld, former motorcycle champion, also are contenders.

The argument will take on more of a personal aspect in the sub-feature when Snyder, Mills, Warren, Willaman and Householder compete in a ten lap invitational race.

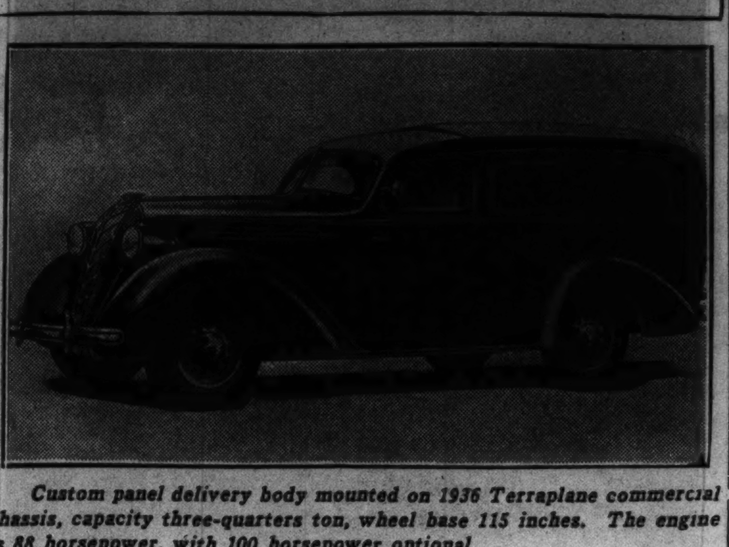
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

NEW TERRAPLANE TRUCK



Custom panel delivery body mounted on 1936 Terraplane commercial chassis, capacity three-quarters ton, wheel base 115 inches. The engine is 88 horsepower, with 100 horsepower optional.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

TAXI STORAGE.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Why not get the surface lines to let the taxicab companies use their Jackson street tunnel under the river to accommodate the long lines of cabs waiting to get into the railroad stations? Especially the Yellow cabs, which clutter up several blocks of Clinton street trafic every morning trying to get to the Union station. The cab companies should easily be able to finance the maintenance of the tunnel and it would relieve some of the trafic congestion caused by the endless lines of waiting taxicabs along the curbs.

A. DAVIS.

MOTORLESS MONDAYS.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Considering the fact that over 1,000 people were killed in this Chicago area in the last year, I propose that something really drastic be done to make the people "trafic conscious." My proposal is that we have four consecutive motorless Mondays. No autos except those used for delivery purposes—transportation, such as the bus lines, doctors, fire, and police—should be permitted on the streets on the four motorless Mondays.

The main consideration is: Are the lives of another 1,000 people worth thinking about during this year of 1936?

CLARENCE L. BROWN.

1936 PLATES.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Maybe I got a "pair of lemons," but believe it or not this year's attempt to improve the state license plates threatens to be another flop.

My present 1936 license plates, which have adorned my car since November, 1935, have taken on the most beautiful coat of rust imaginable and in their present condition are far worse than the plates which I discarded last year for a new set.

Furthermore, my car gets very good care and is kept in a public garage and is wiped off every night, so to put the blame on me for negligence would be a joke.

ROBERT R. FALCONER.

CITIZEN VS. POLICEMAN.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—For quite some time I have wanted to obtain information regarding the rights of a citizen versus a police officer. The Chicago police force as a whole may be an excellent body of men, but today, after seven years of citizenship I have enjoyed in this city, I met about the crudest type of officer that ever wore a uniform.

Today I was requested by a relative, who was crippled in an automobile accident and who is walking on crutches, to pick her up at the intersection of Clark street and Jackson boulevard. In order to help the lady from the drug store to the car I had to stop the car about forty feet from the corner. When I returned I found a loud mouthed officer, who hadn't one ounce of decency in his body.

I do not think that a respectable citizen has to listen to that kind of language. With any other man that type of language means fight. What can a man do with a cop I would like to know?

ROY ELLINGHAM.

ECONOMY SUGGESTION.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Would you kindly allow me to know why it would not lessen the expense of the cost of state licenses to the public by having one license tag as in some other states?

O. S. WIGHT.

FROM A HITCH-HIKER.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—Despite Mr. Foust's helpful hints to the motorists I, as a college student, am happy that there are just as many kind persons as ever. Of the thousands of miles I have hitchhiked I have averaged thirty miles per hour and had many pleasant experiences.

Mr. Foust admits he has never been robbed or even threatened with violence. However, he does imply he is unable to judge a desirable companion such as the university student from the young woman on the Ohio river levee. Possibly this lack of judgment is the reason for his having work dealing with automobiles and roads rather than personalities.

Why, Mr. Foust, devote an entire column of a SUNDAY TRIBUNE for a tip to good drivers when it's the poor ones we should strive to enlighten?

H. JOHNSON.

PRINTING TICKET DODGERS' NAMES BRINGS 40 FINES

Publication in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE during the last eight weeks of the names of motorists who have ignored police summonses for trafic violations has resulted in the arraignment and fining of some 40 of the violators named, it was said yesterday by Municipal Judge John Gutknecht, sitting in the Trafic court.

The majority of those who paid fines came in voluntarily after reading their names in the paper. In eight cases, however, neighbors of violators wrote the judge and told him where persons named were now living. Police arrested these eight and took them to court.

Not Forgetting Cases.

"Publication of the lists of delinquents, however," said Judge Gutknecht, "had a general benefit far beyond that shown by the statistics on the 40 odd cases. It demonstrated to motorists that we are not forgetting summonses merely because the violator fails to appear in court. As a result, the response to current summonses has improved."

Judge Gutknecht has not completed his statistical report on the Trafic court's activities during 1935. He said, however, that of about 160,000 summonses and warants issued during the year, about 158,000 were disposed of in the Trafic court or the cafeteria court, where motorists may pay fines for minor violation without a court hearing. Of the motorists arrested during the year, about 93 per cent were fined, a little more than 5 per cent were discharged, and 1½ per cent of the cases remained undisposed of.

More Unserved Warants.

Following are the remaining names on the list of unserved warants in the Trafic court. Police report that they have searched for those named, but have been unable to find them.

Grant Wilkerson, 4719 South Michigan.
Earl Wilson, 6235 Indiana avenue.

IOWA SWIMMERS TAKE MIDWEST A. A. U. TITLE

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—University of Iowa swimmers successfully defended their Midwest A. A. U. swimming championship tonight with 57 points, the Hawkeyes taking eight of a possible ten first places.

Iowa State college was the nearest competitor for the team title with 17 points.

Westerfield of Iowa set a new record in the back stroke, and the Hawkeye medley relay team established a new meet mark.

The winners qualified for final Olympic trials.

GOOD TIPS CAN COME FROM BACK SEAT DRIVERS

BY HAL FOUST.

Back seat driving, ordinarily an exasperating irritant, can become an educational pastime if conducted in the proper spirit. George Blohm, THE TRIBUNE's Atlanta representative, and I took turns back seat driving while touring Florida last month. It broke the tedium of long hours of travel and it was instructive.

It didn't start as a game. It grew into one. Blohm first relieved me at the wheel at Macon, Ga. He had driven five or six blocks in trafic when I noticed he "rode the clutch." When going slowly in high gear, he'd accelerate by racing the engine and then slipping the clutch rather than by shifting into second.

"George," Said I.

"George," said I in my most placatory manner, "I don't like to be a fussy old maid, but would you mind nursing that clutch a bit. I want it to last through a long trip."

"What do you mean?"

"Don't slip it. Either have it engaged or disengaged and it won't wear out."

"I've driven a car before," he remarked politely but firmly.

"I've driven a lot too," I replied, "and I'm sure I have a lot of bad habits. You can be my back seat driver if you'll let me be yours."

It was a pleasant agreement. By this time we had reached the open highway and he had accelerated to 50 or 60 miles an hour.

"Is there something wrong with this steering gear?" he asked. "The car seems to wander."

"I think the caster of the front wheels is untrue. You'll have to watch it."

I shouldn't think an automobile editor would be driving a faulty automobile. By the way, what is the caster?"

Learned From a Book.

I explained the mechanics of front wheel engineering, as learned from a book and not garage experience, and apologizing for the condition, told of having taken THE TRIBUNE roadster to six service shop visits without the fault being corrected.

The highway was winding through the red hills of southern Georgia. Blohm was braking on every turn.

"You can bend these corners lots safer," I suggested in a tone that wouldn't offend, "if you'll do any necessary braking before you turn the direction of the front wheels. Then, when you're on the curve, feed a little gas to the engine. It keeps the rear wheels on the ground and tends to initiate momentum in the new direction of travel."

"All right, Mr. Expert, I'll try it." He soon learned.

They Change Places.

At the next stop for gas I took the wheel and Blohm became the back seat driver. We were in northern Florida and it was growing dark. Here were some of his criticisms during the next couple of hours:

"You're making the curves too fast. Not too fast if all conditions are favorable but some day you'll hit an unexpected slippery spot or blow a tire.

"Don't let those slow drivers get your goat. Maybe their cars are not as good as yours. Maybe they aren't as cocksure of themselves as you are.

"Watch out! [This outburst accompanied my racing to dodge in front of a cow strolling across the highway.] That's typical of your driving. You take chances too lightly. You fail to imagine possible dire consequences. Maybe if you had applied the brakes instead of the accelerator, we would have hit the cow, but we wouldn't have been going fast enough to hurt any one seriously. If your maneuver had failed we would have been killed."

NEWS AND VIEWS

The Studebakers of 1936 have caused considerable comment among local motorists, according to Roy Keeling, general manager of the Studebaker Sales company of Chicago, due to the ingenious manner in which body designers have provided these automobiles with unusually large luggage carrying capacity.

Every model in each of the new lines has been built with an idea of pleasing motorists who like to go places and take things with them, whether the loads be personal or "freight," according to Mr. Keeling. Not only is that true, but each model is offered in a variety of luggage compartment arrangements large enough to cover any whim or desire a motorist may have.

New Chevrolet trucks for 1936, comprising a wide range of standard body types mounted on half ton and 1½ ton chassis, which carry numerous advances in engineering and improvements in operation, are announced by Chevrolet Motor company for introduction this month.

Design changes, including a restyling of the sheet metal and the adoption of a coupe type cab with solid steel top, have enhanced the appearance of the 1936 models. In the chassis, the most noteworthy development is the adoption of hydraulic brake operation in conjunction with improved brake mechanism at the wheels.

J. R. Purnell of Purnell & Wilson, Ford dealers, was elected president of the Authorized Ford Dealers' association for 1936 at a meeting held this week in the Drake hotel. The association is composed of 67 Ford dealers in the metropolitan Chicago area.

Charles H. Betts, who has been advertising manager for Von Lengerke & Antoine for the last ten years, has joined the Chicago branch of the Cadillac Motor Car company. Mr. Betts will be in charge of advertising and sales promotion for Cadillac and La Salle in this territory, succeeding Edwin J. Mott, who has been promoted to a position with the Cadillac organization in Detroit.

INDIANAPOLIS IS OUT FOR RECORD IN A. B. C. MEET

Set Goal at 3,000 Teams by Feb. 1.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Last year's American Bowling Congress tournament held at Syracuse established a record of 2,837 five man teams, but you haven't seen anything yet, according to energetic Indianapolis bowling officials, who will conduct the 1936 renewal of the world championship pin meet in the Indiana State Fair Grounds Coliseum starting on March 13.

By the time the entry lists are closed on Feb. 1, Paul E. Crosier, president of the Indianapolis Tournament corporation, predicts there will be more than 3,000 teams enrolled. Bowlers of the state of Indiana are backing the A. B. C. meet so enthusiastically that officials feel assured of their success in reaching a goal of 1,500 Hoosier teams alone.

With Indianapolis only a few hours from Chicago by train or auto, Chicago will send a large delegation, as will Milwaukee, which seldom misses capturing one of the championships. The last time Indianapolis was host to the A. B. C. was in 1903.

Randolph League.

Ben Bernicchi was the hottest of the Randolph leaguers with a 710 series, which helped the Budweisers sweep their match with Sunkist Pies. Lenzen shot 665, Pucinelli 654, Owens 650, and Hess 642. The Mineralites won two of three games from Reed's Butterscotch and held their eight game lead over the Boyle Motors and Birk Brothers, who remain tied for second place.

Windy City League.

The O'Keefe Coals and Blazek Tailors, leaders of the Windy City Major league, are beginning to pull away from the Mineralites, their most dangerous rivals. The two pace setters have won 38 and lost 19 games, which places them four games in front of the Harry Steers outfit. Two reasons for the O'Keefe's success are Sykes Thoma and Bill Lenzen, who top the individuals with 204 averages.

North End Traveling League.

Otto Goldammer and his Milfords stole the show in the North End Traveling league when they shot 3,176 to win three games from the Roosevelt Brewers. The Goldammer boys rolled 1,149 in their middle game, the second highest in the league this season. Goldammer had a 712 series and Pete Petersen 697.

About the Women.

Aided by a 237 game, Celia Rosencranz shot a 601 series for high in the Bruck league. Next were Carrie Enders, 543; Jessie Townsend, 543, and Sarah Evans, 541. . . . In the Lorraine league Catherine Donovan broke out with a 564 series. Then came Lill Roos, 539; Eva Paulsen, 533; Florence Bradley, 518; Lillian Zemek, 515, and Anna Walz, 503. . . . Helen Hopper topped the West Ridge league with 545, followed by Emma Smith, 531; Elsie Hall, 520; Ann Wieler, 517; Josephine Consier, 517; Lee Liepe, 517; Katherine Nelson, 516, and Mary Schunmer, 506.

In the Women's league at the Madison A. C., Elsie Nejedly of soft ball fame blasted out a 258 game, high for the alleys. . . . High series in the Samuelson Major league went to Martha Bendick with 567. Marie Wermich totaled 548; Edna Haich, 528; Madelene McChann, 515; Ada Haiden, 510; Charlotte Ehrns, 506, and Freida Scholz, 500.

Theresa Hirschman's 569 led the Lorel Rug-Monte Cristo league. Helen Miller picked up 550, Frances Strohmeyer, 532; Minnie Jenkinson, 532, and Marie Ledene, 519. . . . Pairings tonight in the Crocombe All-Star league at the Woodlawn alleys are:

Tess Morris vs. Ann Burke; Edith Kirg vs. Cecelia Leary; Mabel Cummings vs. Agnes Crocombe; Dorothy Burmeister vs. Dorothy Morross; Carrie Enders vs. May Davison; Agnes Pitelka vs. Bess Fender; Nellie Rynberk vs. Fritizi Trettin; Mae Stone vs. Alberta Burton.

White City Recreation's All-Star league will be resumed this afternoon with these pairings: Tom Chyzy vs. Harry Halgren; Sykes Thoma vs. Eli Maricich; Eddie Zajac vs. Jim Waterson; Joe Wilman vs. Al Rankin; Bill Lenzen vs. Wally Freitag; Ad Plunge vs. E. Hile. . . . Two 700 series were shot in the White City Major league, W. Schultz's 724 and Ed Boyle's 711.

Here and There.

The nineteenth annual Father and Son tournament will be held today at the 131 South Wabash Recreation. Louis and John Kielik were the winners last year. . . . Tom Hicks picked up the 7-4-6-10 railroad in the Mixed league at Stevenson & Schalk's. . . . The fifth Knights of Columbus tournament is being resumed over the week-end at the Congress Recreation. . . . As the last half of the Cuneo Press league started Frank Walsh of the Liberty team knocked over the pins for a 612 series. Gerald Brennan collected 582. . . . Shooting in the Belden Manufacturing league Al Jacobs registered a 660 series and a game of 267 on the Madison A. C. alleys. . . . W. Pascale shot a 650 series that included a 279 series in the Brach Candy league. . . . Jim Hanley of the Kingsbury Brews led the Carroll K. of C. league with 613.

Irving Paulus topped the men with 616 and Marie Ehrman with 512 led the women in the Lorraine mixed league. . . . A 24 hour endurance tournament for men's doubles teams is being planned by Pete Howley at the 29 West Randolph alleys. He sees chances for a prize list of more than $1,000 for which each team would have to bowl about 75 games.

On South Side Alleys.

Both the Wagner Beers and Bruck-Wiesners exceeded 3,000 in the Bruck Major league, the former beating that figure by 60 pins and the latter by 22. Among the individual leaders were: C. Lightfoot, 690; E. Riskowsky, 688; E. Boyle, 661; H. Heermans, 663, and L. Reefe, 650.

Shamrocks to Meet Detroit Sextet Today

Howie Morenz and Doc Romnes, Blackhawk hocky stars, are slated to referee the second of the Sunday afternoon amateur hocky contests today at the Chicago Stadium, when the C. Y. O. Shamrocks battle the Detroit Tool Shop Hocky club.

Interest in the game today, scheduled to start at 2:45 o'clock, indicates that the crowd will exceed the 12,000 of last week.

Conacher Makes Debut.

An added feature will be the debut of Roland Conacher, cousin to the famous Conachers, Lionel and Charlie of professional hocky. Roland, who is 25 years old and weighs 160 pounds, will play center for the Shamrocks.

Off to a late start this season the Chicago aggregation is reaching peak condition. It has played two games with no defeats. The Detroiters have won nine decisions in their last eleven starts.

Two former Baby Ruth stars, Al Soumi and Leonard Saari will be in the front lines for the invaders. The Tools also will have several ex-University of Michigan stars in the lineup.

Injured Players Return.

A pair of injured players will be back in the Shamrock lineup. Gerard De Mocko, the defenseman who suffered a broken nose last Sunday, will be wearing a special guard, while Wilbur Savela, C. Y. O. wingman, who suffered a sprained back in the Windsor encounter last week, has been patched up.

The lineup:

SHAMROCKS.		DETROIT.
Clem Poulin	G	Johnny Jewell
Eddie Janelle	L. W.	Leonard Goyer
Gerard De Mocko	L. D.	Ike Klinghiel
Bill Turkovich	R. W.	Al Sound
Tony Beda	R. D.	Ralph Harris
Roland Conacher	C	Larry Goyer

CALL OFF SPARTA SOCCER MATCH WITH ST. LOUIS

The National Challenge cup match between the Sparta Garden City and the Ben Millers of St. Louis scheduled for today, has been called off because of the snow. The game between the Maccabees and the Olympias, however, will be played as scheduled at the Kuppenheimer stadium, 19th and Keeler avenues. The Hakoah and Free Players will meet in a preliminary game at 10 o'clock.

The Ravenswood Hearts and the Wilsons will make a third attempt to settle their amateur cup match. Two previous matches ended in ties. Today's encounter will be played to a finish at Winnemac Park.

The third indoor seven-a-side series sponsored by the Peel cup commission, will be played at the West Side armory, Rockwell and West Madison streets. Sixteen teams are entered.

GRANT, BUXBY REACH FINAL OF TAMPA TENNIS

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Bryan Grant Jr. of Atlanta, the country's third ranking tennis player, reached the final of the twelfth annual Dixie tournament today by defeating Arthur Hendrix of Lakeland, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4. Grant won many of his games from Hendrix with the loss of only a point or two.

In the other semi-finals bracket Martin Buxby of Miami dethroned the present titleholder, Charles Harris of West Palm Beach, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1, 3-6, 10-8, and will meet Grant in the finals tomorrow.

Hemsley Signs $10,000 Contract with St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Rollie Hemsley, ex-bad boy of the National league, reaped the reward of a year of good behavior today by signing a 1936 contract with the St. Louis Browns, unofficially whispered to be in the neighborhood of $10,000.

The catcher, whose flouting of club rules cost him jobs with the Pittsburgh Pirates, Chicago Cubs, and Cincinnati Reds, reformed under Manager Rogers Hornsby and finished the 1935 season without a serious breach of discipline. He is the second Brown to sign.

SKILLMAN AND TULLY IN PRO SQUASH FINAL

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 18.—(AP)—John Skillman, the Yale coach, and Jim Tully, Pittsburgh, lived up to their top rankings today and reached the finals of the national professional squash tournament.

Skillman, defending title holder, rallied to eliminate Ben Pope of Pittsburgh, 14-17, 15-12, 15-13, 10-15, 15-12, in one semi-final, and Tully defeated Al Ramsay of Cleveland, 15-8, 18-16, 15-7, in the other.

In tomorrow's championship match, Skillman and Tully will pick up where they left off last year, when the New Englander defeated the Pittsburgher to win the title.

TREEST AND BATH START TRAINING FOR BOUT FRIDAY

Heavyweight Fight Tops Stadium Show.

Billy Treest, 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves middleweight champion, and Hank Bath, Fort Morgan, Colo., heavyweight, opened heavy training yesterday for their ten round bout which heads the Chicago Stadium boxing show Friday night. Treest boxed two rounds each with Joe Daily, Fort Worth, Tex., and Al Kubiak, Pulaski, Wis., both of whom are heavyweights, at Madison Square gymnasium. Bath, widely publicized protégé of Jack Kearns, followed a similar program against Ed Wills and Tom Jones at Trafton's gymnasium.

The show is a continuation of the elimination tournament being conducted by Matchmakers James C. Mullen and Nate Lewis. Johnny Erjavec, Duluth, and his stablemate, Harry Thomas of Eagle Bend, Minn., expect to appear in two of six supporting matches. Erjavec has scored two knockouts and fought a draw in previous tourney bouts while Thomas has won his three matches, two by knockouts.

Milt Aron, winner of Dubuque, Ia., sectional Golden Gloves tournaments in 1932 and 1933, who shows promise of being a challenger for Barney Ross' welterweight title, worked out with Ross yesterday in preparation for a feature eight round match with George Engel of Plymouth, Ind., at Marigold Gardens tomorrow. The champion, who is training for a bout with Lou Halper at Philadelphia Jan. 27, said Aron is strong, a good boxer, and an accurate puncher.

"When Aron made his first appearance here he struck me as possessing ability," Barney said. "I'm watching his progress with more than ordinary interest."

Eight new champions will be crowned in the fourth annual Illinois Athletic club amateur boxing tournament which will be held at the I. A. C. Wednesday and Thursday nights. None of the eight 1935 champions have been entered in this meet. Jesse Robinson, 1934 I. A. C. flyweight champion, has entered again as a flyweight, however, and he will attempt to regain the title which was won by Johnny Brown of the Catholic Youth organization last year.

Athletic Director Johnny Behr says that the team trophy appears to rest between the C. Y. O. and Savoy Athletic club. Each club has entered 20 boys. The strongest appearing candidates include:

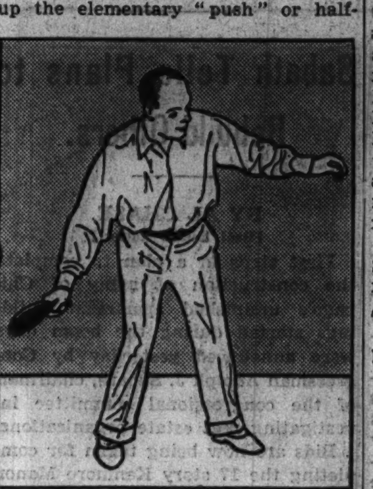
TABLE TENNIS TIPS

[This is the fifth of a series of weekly articles on table tennis by Coleman Clark, former national champion, present western doubles champion and authority on this sport. Readers are invited to send contributions and address questions to the conductor of the column, care Chicago TRIBUNE, Tribune Square, Chicago.]

BY COLEMAN CLARK.

In previous articles we have taken up the elementary "push" or half-volley shot and the chop stroke, both primarily defensive in character, especially the chop.



Start of forehand topspin drive.

Now let us examine the topspin drive, the chief forcing weapon. "Top" or overspin is nothing more than the forward relation of the ball in a direction away from you. This forward spin causes the ball to fall short of where it would land if flatly hit and makes it stay on the table. This dipping of the ball at the end of its flight enables you to hit the ball quite hard and still have it remain on the table.

The Topspin Drive.

Topspin drives should be made from behind the table—not over it—unless the ball is very high. Start the stroke at the side of the body and low [Fig. 1] and finish it about shoulder high well out in front [Fig. 2]. There must be a decided lift to the stroke, a crisp upward and foreward sweep. Use about a three-quarter arm swing, not a full or stiff arm as in lawn tennis. There should be a break at the elbow. Meet the ball either at the peak of its bounce or on its downward journey.

Observe in Fig. 1 the stance, position of the bat, feet, and the left shoulder just before the ball is met. In Fig. 2 study the same points after the drive has been terminated. The turn of the body while the stroke is being executed and the shifting of the weight from the rear to the front foot are necessary in order to be assured of speed, control, and direction. The same principles apply when you use a backhand drive [made from the left side] except that the stroke should be shorter and made more from the elbow.

When to Use Topspin.

Use topspin strokes when your opponent chops or half-volleys to you. If you can drive the other fellow's drive you are good, for even experts find it difficult. A good drive is your best bet when you want to put away a ball or place the other fellow on the defensive. Equipped with a push shot, a chop, and a drive you have the foundations of a well rounded game. Learn one thing at a time and remember that practice makes perfect. Next week we will take up footwork and some of the fine points and rules of doubles play.

Stay and Play Club News.

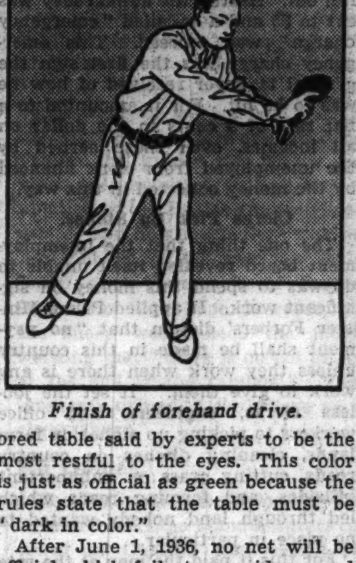
Results of the first round matches in the 1936 schedule of the Metropolitan Industrial league held at the Stay and Play club, 168 West Monroe street, follows: Reid-Murdoch defeated Diversey Corporation, 12 to 8; Harlan Co. A, 15, Santa Fe R. R., 5; M. O. & A. Co., 15, Acme Steel Co., 5; Flexible Steel Co., 16, Harlan Co. B, 4.

Juniors less than 15 years of age are invited to compete each Saturday morning at 9 o'clock in a round robin for trophies.

On Jan. 29 the Harris Trust and Savings bank are holding their annual tournament in the club quarters.

New Equipment.

A Chicago manufacturer has just placed on the market a burgandy colored table said by experts to be the most restful to the eyes. This color is just as official as green because the rules state that the table must be "dark in color."



Finish of forehand drive.

After June 1, 1936, no net will be official which fails to provide a cord running through the tape at the top of the net. A "cord suspended" net diminishes the number of net balls and lessens the chance of hard driven balls that touch the top of the net flying out beyond the table.

Jay Purves Selected.

Jay Purves of Des Plaines, national women's table tennis champion in 1933 and runner-up for the last two years, will be a member of the United States team to invade Europe, Reginald G. Hammond of Chicago, chairman of the national ranking committee, announced yesterday.

Other members of the team will be Ruth Hughes Aarons of New York, United States champion for two years; Emily Fuller of Bethlehem, Pa., No. 3 in national ranking, and Corinne Migneco of Salem, Mass.

The decision of Miss Purves to leave her duties at Maine Township High school, where she is director of women's athletics, to make the trip to Prague, Czechoslovakia, for the tenth annual world tournament and international team matches, March 12 to 18, means that this country will present its strongest possible combination of women's players.

BASS ARE READY IN FLORIDA, SO GO CATCH 'EM!

Be Sure to Take Bait and Fly Rods Along.

BY BOB BECKER.

When a Florida fishing report [such as we have just received] tells about 13 bass weighing 67 pounds, the largest fish in the string weighing an even ten pounds, then the northern angler is again reminded of the fact that he should not go south at this time of the year without his casting rods and all the gadgets that go with them.

From now on fishing for large mouth black bass in Florida will gradually improve. As winter begins to lose ground and give way to spring the fish always hit better. And it's one grand sport going after the old lunkers in those Florida lakes and rivers.

Take Bait, Fly Rods.

If you are going to try the southern black bass fishing we suggest both the bait casting rods and the sporty fly rods. On one of the big rivers in Florida we notice that many fishermen take long skittering poles and team this lengthy weapon with live bait. But the angler who fails to use either a five foot casting rod or a husky fly rod to catch bass in the south is missing a lot of fun. Working those floating dancing plugs among the cypress knees or among the "bonnets" [as they call the leaves of the big water lily down south], or tossing floating flies and bugs close to the hyacinths and old snags, will produce more fun and as many violent strikes on the part of the bass as any man could wish for.

Although we have seen many different kinds of bait casting lures catch good sized Florida bass, from slim pork rind foolers to long, underwater, wabbling plugs, we are partial to surface fishing down there—if the weather and water permit it. And the best of it is, one can pick up dandy bass this way. The big fellows eye that struggling, kicking lure on the surface and then they wham it. But when we fished Blue Cypress lake on a pretty breezy day we had to use underwater lures and they worked very well. So it is a good idea to have a pretty good assortment of lures in your box when you get ready to toss things at the Florida bass.

Here's Best Fly Rod.

If you prefer a fly rod, use one with plenty of backbone in it. On our last trip to Florida we had one weighing around 6½ ounces and there were times when it was none too heavy, especially when it was a question of keeping a bass out of a bed of weeds. Practically the only fly rod lures that we used to get fish down there were either out and out floating lures, or else hair and feather combinations that we oiled to keep right on or close to the top, because we like to see fish take 'em on the surface.

"LATE MODEL CARS ARE SAFER AND EASIER TO HANDLE"

"I use a car for convenience and pleasure in the city, and for week-end trips in the country during the summer."

H. B. WESTLAKE, 3727 N. Lawndale Avenue tells how he found a good late model car at the price he wanted to pay

"I AM a claim investigator in the legal department of a large railroad. I use a car mostly for convenience and pleasure driving around the city, or on week-ends in the country during the summer.

WANTED NEWER CAR

"The car I had was a 1930 model and had gone 60,000 miles. It was getting pretty slow in trafic and hard to handle. I finally decided that I wanted a late model, not only because they're easier to handle, but because they're safer.

"I picked up the Tribune want ad section one Friday, some time ago, and glanced through the columns of automobiles to see what was offered.

FINDS BETTER CAR

"I found an ad describing a 1931 car which sounded like what I wanted. The same day I called at the showrooms of James F. Goodwin, Inc., 5725 Broadway. Mr. Oliver, manager of the used car department, showed me the car, and then he showed me a much later one, a 1933 Dodge brougham, which was priced at very little more money. The car was very clean, in fact, it looked almost like new.

"We took the car out and drove it. It performed very well. When we got back to the shop, Mr. Oliver and Mr. Goodwin quoted an allowance on the old car which was satisfactory to me. We called it a deal, I am very pleased with my purchase."

"THE MORE MONEY WE SPEND FOR TRIBUNE WANT ADS THE MORE CARS WE SELL"

"By actual test the Tribune has proved to be the best advertising medium for James F. Goodwin, Inc. We find by using the Chicago Tribune classified ads that it is by far the most economical and quickest way of disposing of our used cars. We are now spending 90% of our advertising appropriation with the Tribune, and are more than satisfied with the results obtained.

"It has been proved to us that the more money we spend with the Tribune the more cars we sell. This being true, we have doubled our advertising appropriation for 1936. It is with sincere satisfaction that we are informing you of our past results obtained through your paper."

NEW ZEALANDERS FIND SCHEME TO AID IDLE A FLOP

Experiment Causes Riots and Class Warfare.

BY QUENTIN POPE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Jan. 18.—Five years after legislating into effect the most far reaching scheme for unemployment relief in the world, New Zealand looks it over and wonders whether it is worth while. For those five years have been marked by bitter struggle, street riots, deportations to labor camps which had a flavor of Russian communism, dictatorship and class warfare. It ended in the routing of the parties which have ruled this country for the last eighty years and the handing of power to the Socialists.

As always New Zealand entered upon her experiment in social security with the best intentions in the world. She had appointed a commission back in the boom years to study the unemployment issue in all its phases and that commission had reported back that the problem of the unemployed was one that had come to stay. There is a tragic humor in that report today for the commission formed its conclusion on the evidence of a few thousands of seasonal workers and unemployables.

Deny Immigration Was a Factor.

But the commission viewed the situation as one aspect of a changing world. The unrestricted immigration which the country had permitted, even encouraged, from Great Britain after the war, might have been seen as a cause of the steadily rising total of unemployed. Yet this was denied to be a factor. The condition of affairs was expected to endure and the commission declared that "in order to bring home to every citizen the fact that jobless relief was a national responsibility" a scheme should be placed under way and the financing of this scheme should be by a poll tax of $7 a year.

On this report, after two years of struggle and debate, the moderate government of the day finally acted. But the coming of the world depression, not then fully felt, had by now revealed that the basis of calculation of the commission was hopelessly narrow, and that the finances would have to be stretched to enable the clamoring of the idle to be lessened.

So the unemployment act of September, 1930, emerged from the house of representatives, and every wage earner in the country became liable to pay his poll tax. The principle that every man was entitled to a job was established. It was, declared Sidney G. Smith, minister of labor, the beginning of a new era of prosperity and every other country would be able to take a lesson from the experience of New Zealand.

Labor Condemns Legislation.

But though the government viewed the act enthusiastically, excited over its own generosity, the attitude of the labor leaders was different. Every trade union fought the bill. The dockmen, who are employed as casual workers, claimed the government was "selling them a pup." The powerful Alliance of Labor, federation of unions, condemned the legislation because the workers would have no representative on the board, the tax was not based on the graduated principle, and the provisions for men who were not provided with jobs were harsh.

The government set out with the fixed idea that the error of Britain must not be repeated and workers given the chance to draw pay for no work. That was viewed as a short way towards loss of their morale and destruction of them as working units. The aid of the act, it was made clear, was to be temporary, the emergency would pass, and with it, the need for relief. Until then the government would aim at keeping the men busy and giving them a living, though not at the standard of life to which they were accustomed.

"Nothing for Nothing."

"Nothing for nothing" thus might have been the motto painted over the enormous offices which the unemployment board gradually filled. The unemployed were to gain state aid only so long as they carried out the instrutctions given them by the board which would lay down development projects which would lead to a better country.

It was a grand theory, but it did not fit the facts. Those facts were that the government had been frightened into passing the unemployment act by the constant political pressure of the radicals and by the still more ominous fact that the local authorities were taking it on themselves to give idle relief. They were doing it by the easy route of raising a steady stream of loans, many of them abroad, and embarking on various improvement works.

The continuance of this work under local body supervision, but with government aid, robbed the newly created unemployment board of the opportunity to do anything with its new charges. And it speedily became evident that there were a great many more idle than any one had suspected, and that the funds were hopelessly inadequate. It also was realized that the unemployment board could not think up any grand development plan which would absorb all the available labor and not have the disadvantage of costing a lot of money.

The New Era Dawns.

So the new era which Minister Smith forecast, an era in which there "would be no chance for wasters," was slow in dawning. What came instead was a long wrangle of the inadequacy of the relief. It culminated in riots in two cities, the sacking of streets in Auckland by a lawless mob, and the sudden, panicky decision to herd the unemployed in the cities into backwoods camps.

These camps were described by this correspondent at the time. They were ill equipped, hurriedly prepared structures to which men were shipped like cattle, and where they suffered from lack of the commonest conveniences. The one thing which the camps undoubtedly did was to lessen the danger of renewed rioting in the cities and that, at bottom, was all the government was seeking.

But as the line on the unemployment chart crept higher, the funds ran out. Hastily the annual levy was cut to $5 and a so-called "emergency charge" was decreed. This emergency charge was the first sign the general taxpayer received of how he was to be hit. For it amounted to a flat rate of 5 cents in the dollar on all incomes, even those earned by the unemployed from work financed by the money collected in this way.

Clerks Pick Up Stones.

The one thing that the unemployment board revealed itself unable to do was to spend this money on significant work. It applied Prime Minister Forbers' dictum that "no payment shall be made in this country unless they work when there is any work to give them." It set the jobless clerks, engineers, and office workers to picking up stones on farm lands, cleaning ditches on country roads, cutting grass on unimportant hillsides, and forming roads which led through land nobody wanted to no place in particular.

For this it paid the men at the rate of $3.50 a day, but gave them work for two and never more than three days a week and then only if they were married and had children. At the same time it ruthlessly cut down their relief pay if they made outside earnings and insisted on accumulating great reserve funds in fear of unexpected rocketing of the unemployment totals. This, and the Mussolini tactics of the government which refused even to meet complaining men was what caused the outburst of mob violence in cities in 1932.

TRAP YOUNG BURGLAR WHO CONFESSES HE LOOTED PECK SCHOOL

Detectives Timothy O'Connell and John Grasser of the Chicago Lawn station hid last night in the Peck Elementary school at 3726 West 58th street and captured a young burglar who had raided the building several times in recent weeks and stolen typewriters and other articles of value.

The thief, who confessed, is Anthony Grigec, 20 years old, 3828 West 58th street. He named Louis Perschau, 19 years old, as his accomplice and he also was arrested. Some of the loot from the school was recovered. The young men are awaiting trial in the Boys' court on a charge of stealing an automobile.

BANDITS MENACE FIFTY; GET $700 IN 4 SWIFT HOLDUPS

Four bandits terrorized fifty men and women in a series of swift forays early last evening upon northwest side markets. Visiting four food shops within a few minutes the gunmen forced customers to lie on the floor while they collected pocketbooks and cleaned out cash drawers. A total of $700 was taken in the raids, according to police.

The bandits appeared first at the shop of John Bednorski, 3605 Belmont avenue. Eight women and seven men were robbed of $90 and $50 was taken from the cash register. Five minutes later the raiders entered the shop of Fred Woodrock at 2525 Milwaukee avenue. There they forced 20 shoppers to turn over $200. The third holdup was at 3276 Fullerton avenue, where C. M. Jensen, shop proprietor, and eight customers lost $75.

The last visit was at the shop of Ben Gluck, 4336 Milwaukee avenue, where ten men and women lost $150, and an equal sum was taken from the cashier. One of the bandits threatened Gluck when he found a revolver beneath the counter where the proprietor was standing.

APPEAL TAX LEVY ON FARM TRUST LEFT BY LEGGE

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—(AP)—An appeal was filed in the state Supreme court today from the Du Page county court, which ordered the farm foundation, established by the late Alexander Legge, former head of the International Harvester company, to pay $122,570 inheritance tax on the $500,000 trust fund left by Legge.

Legge, who under former President Herbert Hoover was chairman of the federal farm board, left an estate of more than a million dollars. The farm foundation was established to aid the general welfare of all farmers. Its directorate included Frank O. Lowden, Bernard M. Baruch, Melvin A. Traylor, Owen D. Young, and Ralph Budd.

ETHIOPIAN IBEX IS DISPLAYED AT FIELD MUSEUM

A specimen of Ethiopian ibex, the only one of its kind in America, was placed on exhibition yesterday in the George M. Pullman hall in the Field Museum of Natural History. The ibex, a species of wild goat, is extremely rare. The specimen was obtained high in the Simion mountains in northeastern Ethiopia, not far from the present northern fighting front.

The museum announced also yesterday that it has obtained specimens of the crab-eating and Weddell's seals, two principal species of antarctic seals, from Admiral Byrd's second antarctic expedition, and that these will be placed on exhibition soon.

Seize 4 Young Men Looting Ryerson Summer Home

Lake county deputy sheriffs last night arrested four young men who had carried property valued at several hundred dollars from the summer home of Edward L. Ryerson, a half mile south of Half Day. The seizure was made when the four men returned with an automobile to carry away the loot. They are William Rutkofski, 24 years old, and his brother, Edward, 18 years old; Elden Belzer, 21 years old, and his brother, Raymond, 19 years old, all of Wheeling. The Ryerson summer home has been closed and the family resides during the winter at 1431 Astor street.

BOOM DAY FLAT PROJECT TO BE CARRIED OUT

Sabath Tells Plans to Rebuild Others.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

First steps in a plan to complete the construction of many of Chicago's unfinished apartment buildings started during the boom days were announced yesterday by Congressman Adolph J. Sabath, chairman of the congressional committee investigating real estate organizations.

Bids are now being taken for completing the 17 story Kenmore Manor apartments at 6230 Kenmore avenue, and it is understood that a $450,000 loan will be obtained from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to carry out the project.

Work Started in 1929.

Work started on this building in August, 1929, and stopped on March 1, 1930, with the roof on and the brick work up to the fourteenth floor. Since then it has stood unfinished.

The original cost was estimated at $1,106,000. It was to have 132 unfurnished apartments of four, five, and three and a half rooms. It was financed with a Garard Trust company bond issue of $875,000, since paid down to $724,000.

Following the failure of the trust company a bondholders' committee composed of William C. Cook, chairman; Oscar E. Aleshire, Aldis J. Browne, Ward C. Castle, George E. Keys, John R. Magill, and Charles M. Thompson has been in charge.

Has Fund of $120,000.

According to Sabath a trust fund of $120,000 for the benefit of the bondholders is held by the American National Bank and Trust company. This, together with the $450,000 RFC loan, will be used, it was said, to bring the Kenmore Manor building to completion, pay liens, back taxes and other indebtedness.

According to Architect Leon F. Urbain, who designed the building, it will be completed according to his original floor plans, but with new specifications. Bids will be opened on Jan. 28. The structure is expected to be ready for fall renting.

Sabath issued the following statement yesterday:

"By completing unfinished buildings, bondholders may salvage much out of the bonds they hold, which now seem without value. These eyesores will disappear and hundreds of distressed building mechanics will obtain employment in finishing these structures.

Called Flagrant Example.

"The experts I have conferred with have reported about the physical condition of these buildings and about the status of the rights of bondholders. I had a survey made of earnings possible from these buildings under existing rental conditions. All these things indicate it is advisable to go ahead with this effort.

"One of the most flagrant examples of past wild financing is 6230 Kenmore avenue. From figures compiled it appears this building can and ought to be finished so that bondholders can save a large portion of their investment."

SAKS TO OPEN TOMORROW IN NEW LOCATION

Saks-Fifth Avenue, women's apparel shop formerly at 840 North Michigan avenue, moved to its new location at 669 North Michigan avenue yesterday. Tomorrow morning the doors of the completely remodeled new quarters will be open for business. The shop had been at Michigan avenue and Chestnut street since 1929.

The formal opening will not take place until Feb. 7. On that night a fashion show and dance will be held under the auspices of three charitable organizations, Emerson House association, Madonna Center, and Sunset Camp Service league. They will receive the gross proceeds of the event, plus an equal amount to be donated by the store.

300 EXHIBITORS GET SPACE FOR SHOW OF AIR CONDITION GROUP

Spaces for approximately 300 exhibitors have been assigned at the international exhibition of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers to be held at the International amphitheater for five days beginning Jan. 27, according to General Manager Charles F. Roth.

The big heating, ventilating, and air conditioning exposition will be the first major show of the kind ever held in Chicago and the fourth to be staged in America. Three previous expositions, sponsored by the society, have been held two years apart, Philadelphia having had the initial show in 1930, Cleveland the second in 1932, and New York City the third in 1934.

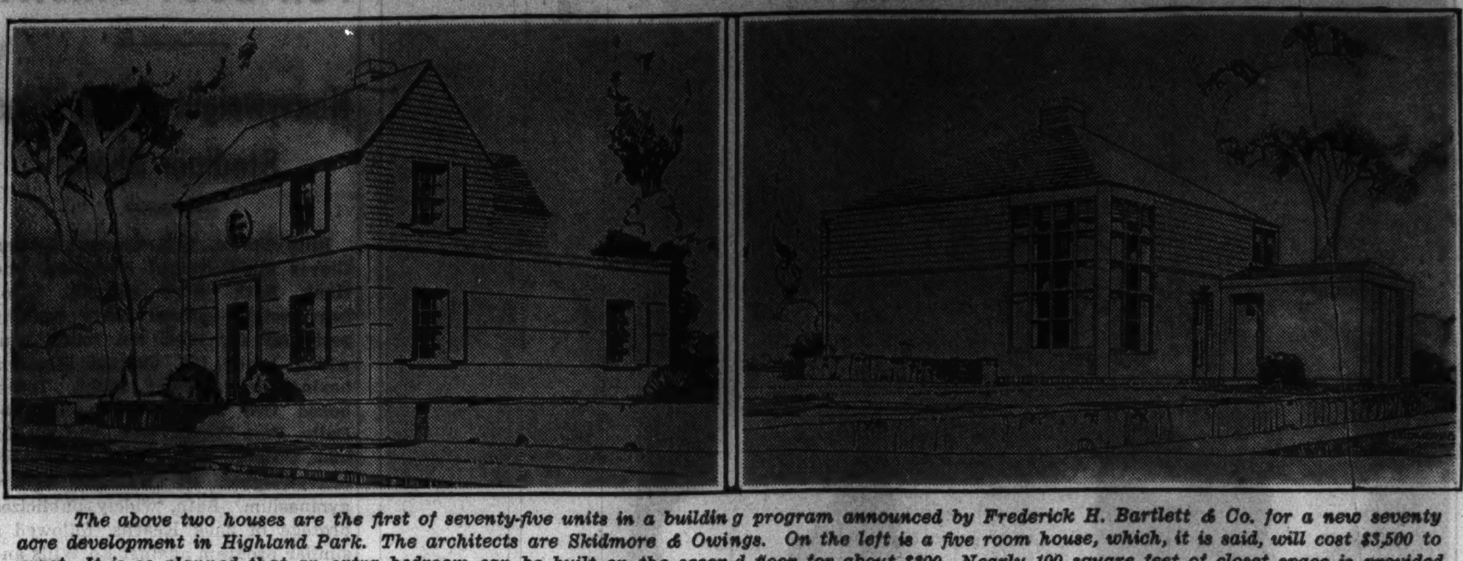
Invitations have been issued to more than 150,000 home owners, industrialists, and engineers in all parts of this country and Canada.

The annual sessions of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers will be held at the Palmer house Jan. 27 to 30, and the winter meeting of the National Warm Air Heating and Air Conditioning association is scheduled for the same dates at the Stevens hotel.

Brokers' Notes

The David Gowdy company of 6138 West North avenue, builders for the last twenty years, announce the addition of a real estate department with Rodger A. Miller as sales manager.

FIRST UNITS IN BIG NORTH SHORE CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM



The above two houses are the first of seventy-five units in a building program announced by Frederick H. Bartlett & Co. for a new seventy acre development in Highland Park. The architects are Skidmore & Owings. On the left is a five room house, which, it is said, will cost $3,500 to erect. It is so planned that an extra bedroom can be built on the second floor for about $300. Nearly 100 square feet of closet space is provided in each house.

On the right is a two story house with a two story studio living room. A garage may be converted into an additional first floor bedroom and another garage built for $300. The living-dining room is 14x28, with a 15 foot studio ceiling. The complete cost to the Bartlett company, with a first story of brick, is estimated at $3,750. This does not include the cost of the lot. The new Bartlett development is to be known as Highland Park Woodlands.

Will Build 75 New Homes in Highland Park

Details of one of the most ambitious home building programs in recent years, involving the erection of seventy-five modern, but modest priced residences on the north shore, were made public yesterday by Frederick H. Bartlett & Co. On a 70 acre tract of land in Highland Park, half way between the Old Elm Golf club and the Chicago and North Western and North Shore electric railways, purchased by the Bartlett organization last summer from the Noble estate, work has started on the first of a group of ten homes. The project will be financed by means of Federal Housing administration insured mortgages.

The initial residence of the contemplated 75 is on Greenwood avenue, near Llewellyn avenue. Construction of a second house adjoining it on the corner is expected to start shortly. The other eight will follow early in the spring. Erection of the remainder of the 75 it is expected, will be completed during the summer.

Provides Acre Sites.

In addition to providing home building sites 80x150, several three to five acre tracts have been set aside for those wanting good sized estates.

Using the recent statement of a leading building magazine that statistics show that about a third of the demand for new homes is for those costing $3,000 to $5,000, the Bartlett firm said that it intends to erect homes which will come within that bracket.

The five room house now under construction, containing about 12,000 cubic feet, will cost $3,500 to erect, it was said. This does not include the site.

The second residence, also a two story building, it is estimated, will cost the Bartlett company $3,750. This includes decorating, electric fixtures, kitchen cabinets, etc., but not the site.

Selects Two Architects.

Bartlett recently engaged two architects to design dwellings for his new Highland Park properties which could be sold at reasonably low prices, depending on the size of the lot. They are Louis Skidmore, who was chief of design at A Century of Progress, and Nathaniel A. Owings, who was chief of construction.

The firm of Skidmore & Owings for the last few months has been at work on 20 different designs of houses costing $3,250 to $3,750. The homes will be without basements, a utility room to house the oil burners taking their place. Storage space will be provided both in the utility room and in an attic.

On the 70 acre site, the north half of which is heavily wooded, an improvement plan already is under way. More than a mile and a half of streets and water mains have been completed and electricity is now being extended over the property, it was stated. The development is to be known as Highland Park Woodlands.

New Real Estate Firm Is Opened in Kenilworth

Marabel Jerrems Sears and Arthur H. Witzleben Jr. have formed the real estate firm of Sears & Witzleben and opened offices at 562 Green Bay road, Kenilworth. Mrs. Sears was in the real estate office of Paul Heinsen, Winnetka, for three years. Her father, Alexander N. Jerrems, is associated with the new firm as advertising manager.

Shodin Realty & Mortgage Occupies Larger Offices

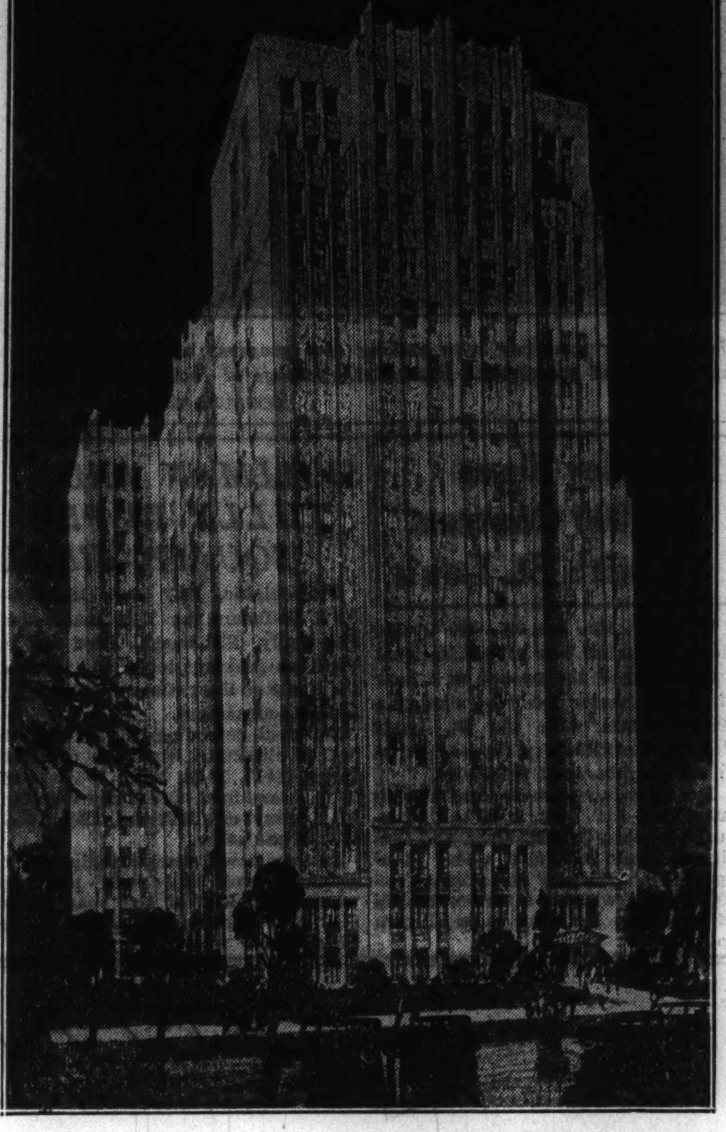
The Shodin Realty and Mortgage company has moved into new and larger quarters at 5618 West Chicago avenue. Joseph L. Shodin, who has been operating in the Austin and west suburban territory for the last two decades, reports that increased activity in sales and renting necessitated more office space and a larger organization.

At the Realty Board

The first open forum and conference of Chicago renting managers will be held on Wednesday evening, Jan. 29, according to Burt R. Kiely, chairman of the renting and management division of the Chicago Real Estate board. Following talks by Howard E. Haynie and Glen C. McBride, a city-wide report on renting conditions will be made by various realtors. A general discussion then will take place.

J. Edward Newberger has been reelected attorney for the West Side Real Estate board.

COMING TO LIFE



The above seventeen story Kenmore Manor apartments at 6230 Kenmore avenue, work on which started in August, 1929, and which has stood unfinished since March 1, 1930, when all construction was stopped, will be completed, it was announced yesterday. The building is under roof but the brick work is only up to the fourteenth story. It will be finished according to the original plans by Architect Leon F. Urbain. Details of this project are given elsewhere on this page.

Finds Chicago Backward in New Home Construction

Chicago is approximately a year behind Detroit and Milwaukee in home construction, according to Stewart B. Matthews, vice president of Baird & Warner, who predicts great building activity in the Chicago area during 1936 in an effort to catch up.

"It has been very evident from the pickup in the sale of vacant property that a great many new homes will be built this year, especially on the north shore," he said.

Vacant Property in Demand.

"In 1934 our organization noticed an increase in demand for vacant; in 1935 our records showed sales of vacant to be approximately 500 per cent greater than those of 1934.

"We believe this increased interest in vacant property and the building of new homes have been accelerated chiefly for two reasons: First, it has been increasingly difficult to find satisfactory buys in ready built homes for buyers. Second, it has been much easier to secure financing through the FHA, insurance companies and some private sources."

Building in Other Cities.

Matthews stated that in October and November he visited Detroit and Milwaukee and found these two cities have been making exceptional advances in new building.

Detroit built about 150 new homes in 1934 and had built or had under construction 550 during 1935. Milwaukee had erected 155 new homes in 1934 and had built or was building about 600 during 1935. His observation is that the Chicago area is about a year behind these two midwestern cities in home construction.

Demand for Homes Exceeds Oak Park-Austin Supply

Leslie B. Levin, president of the Cicero Realty company, which has been at 407 South Cicero avenue, Chicago, for the last 22 years, reports that 1935 was the best year in volume of sales since 1928, greatly exceeding 1934. Owing to the decided trend toward individual ownership of homes in Austin and Oak Park, the demand now exceeds the supply of salable dwellings, he said. This condition tends to strengthen prices of buildings and prospects are brightening for the sale of vacant property, which is inevitable when the demand for buildings exceeds the supply, according to Mr. Levin.

Contracts Awarded.

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of Jan. 10 to 16, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 17, with a combined cost of $167,575. For the corresponding week of last year there were 15 contracts totaling $120,500.

Morgan Park Landmark to Be Rebuilt

Modernization of one of Morgan Park's landmarks, the 33 year old Morgan Park Trust and Savings bank building at the southeast corner of 111th street and Longwood drive, is scheduled as a result of the purchase of the property by Anna M. Canty from William L. O'Connell, receiver for the bank, for a reported $33,000.

W. Gibbons Uffendell, architect, has drawn plans for a complete remodeling of the old structure, which will be occupied by a Walgreen drug store on the corner and an A. & P. store. A third one is still unrented. The Morgan Park Exchange and Safety Deposit company will continue to operate the old bank vaults in connection with a currency exchange.

The present bank floor will be lowered and new store fronts installed. The Walgreen store will be 38x58. Landau & Pearlman are the agents of the building and were brokers in the purchase.

Built in 1903 for the Calumet Trust and Savings bank, the building was the home of that institution for many years. Later it was extensively remodeled and became the Morgan Park Trust and Savings bank, which was closed a few years ago. The property fronts 46 feet on 111th street and 100 on Longwood drive.

HOWARD-DAMEN STONE BUSINESS BLOCK GOING UP

Work is under way on a stone front business block at the southwest corner of Howard and Damen avenues, 106x123, from plans by B. Leo Steif & Co. The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company already has leased a double store, with forty feet frontage, through George M. Grounds, broker. Costing $50,000, the new building will be completed in six weeks, according to the architects.

A new front is to be installed in seven stores in the building at the southeast corner of Montrose and Damen, from designs by the same architects. Bids are now being taken and work is expected to start in two weeks. Cast granite and aluminum will be used at a reported cost of approximately $20,000.

Seven Story Whiting Building 100 Pct. Rented

With the recent closing of several new leases the seven story Whiting building at 152-60 Whiting street is now 100 per cent occupied, according to C. F. Durland & Co., managing agents. Space recently has been rented by the Michael Electric Plating works, the Alro company, the Bell Lamp Manufacturing company, the Modern Products company, and the Consolidated Service company. Eight months ago the building was only one-third occupied.

United Home Industries Lease Randolph St. Shop

The United Home Industries, importers of linens and children's wear, have added another store to their local chain by leasing space in the Shoppers' building, 56 East Randolph street. The new unit will be opened as soon as alterations are completed. B. E. Green of Hooker & Slosson represented the lessee, and W. H. Ames of Aldis & Co., agents of the building, the lessor.

Castings Manufacturer Rents Clearing Building

The Universal Castings corporation has leased for five years a building at 5821 West 66th street, in the Clearing industrial district, containing 13,500 square feet of floor space on a plot containing 46,640 square feet. The lessee, now at 1811 South 54th avenue, Cicero, manufactures castings. Alfred Marchev is president of the firm.

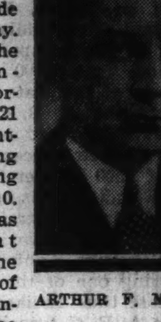
REFINANCES 21 BOND ISSUES DURING 1935

American Bond Group Makes Report.



ARTHUR F. MOHL.

All previous reorganization records were broken by the American Bond and Mortgage company's bondholders' committee for 1935, according to an annual report made public yesterday. In the year the committee completed the reorganization of 21 issues representing outstanding bonds amounting to $18,417,200. This amount was 12.7 per cent larger than the $16,397,000 of bonds reorganized in 1931, the committee's next most active year, and 45.6 per cent larger than the $12,655,000 of bonds reorganized in 1934.

With the reorganizations completed during 1935, the committee has reorganized 65.5 per cent of the $103,677,000 of defaulted bonds called for deposit, according to Arthur F. Mohl, secretary of the committee, which is composed of Dayton Keith, chairman, and Charles S. Tuttle of Chicago; Walter J. Sugden of Boston, and Frederick G. Curry and Charles W. Weston of New York.

Includes Trianon Ballroom.

Chicago properties reorganized last year include the Trianon ballroom and the Jackson Park hospital. Outstanding properties in other cities, each securing an issue in excess of a million dollars, reorganized by the committee in 1935, include the Mayflower hotel, Washington, D. C., and Park Central hotel and the Roerich Museum property in New York, in cooperation with other committees; the Myles Standish apartments in Boston, and the Alden Park Manor, Detroit.

"As a result of the committee's work the depositors of various issues received during the year cash payments totaling $989,771," said Secretary Mohl. "Of this amount, $659,626 represented the proceeds of the sale of bonds or unreorganized properties involving seven of the twenty-one issues worked out by the committee last year. These payments average $32.80 per $100 bond.

"One previously reorganized property was sold with the approval of the stock trust certificate holders, yielding $61,715, or $24.50 for each $100 of the old bonds. The remaining $268,430 paid to bondholders represented dividends or interest paid to the holders of various securities issued in reorganizations."

Stock Trusts Favored.

The last year also brought about a change in the committee's policy in regard to the creation of stock trusts. Prior to 1935 the committee's reorganization plans customarily provided for the administration of new corporations through stock trusts. Early in the year the committee determined to request a vote of the bondholders on their preference as to a stock trust and also a vote of stock trust certificate holders on the continuation of trusts previously created.

In each referendum the stock trust was sustained by a majority vote. While 6,620 holders voted for the stock trust principle, less than a thousand opposed it. Affirmative votes represent $5,602,000 of bonds, or 86 per cent of the total vote.

Votes cast by present holders of stock trust certificates alone were even more strongly in favor of the stock trust. A total of 148,999 shares were voted for the trusts and only 18,605 against the trusts, the affirmative votes representing 88.9 per cent of the total.

War.

Torrential rains held Italy's northern army in Ethiopia in the mud. Ethiopians prayed for rain in the south to stop the army of Gen. Rudolfo Graziani from advancing northward out of the lowlands. Italy and Ethiopia both claimed victories in the south. Italian bombers continued to rain bombs on Red Cross units as Sweden protested the bombing of a Swedish unit three weeks ago.

Italian reports said Graziani's armies had advanced 125 miles along the southern front. Five thousand Ethiopians were killed in battle there, according to the Italians. Ethiopians pooh-poohed these reports, claiming there had been no major engagements. [See Main News section.]

Somali [native] Italian deserters reached Addis Ababa with tales of Italian mutinies in the south. They said Fascist volunteers and regular troops were quarreling over complaints that the Fascists pushed Italy into the invasion of Ethiopia. The Somalis said that the regulars were angry because they do the fighting and the Fascists get the credit. The Somalis reported that several had been killed in mutinous fighting.

Unconfirmed reports in Rome said Gen. Pietro Badoglio, successor to Gen. De Bono as commander of Italy's armies in the north, would soon return to Italy. The reports said his health has suffered from the high altitude.

Sweden protested the bombing of a Swedish Red Cross unit on the southern front by Italian planes Dec. 31, 1935, in a note handed to the Italian government Tuesday. The Italian government answered the protest Friday. The contents of the answer were not made public. It was understood that the note rejected Sweden's claim that the attack was deliberate or that it was an act of reprisal against alleged Ethiopian violations of the rules of war.

Maj. G. A. Burgoyne, an Englishman commanding an Ethiopian Red Cross unit on the northern front, protested Thursday that the Italians had bombed his command. He telegraphed the league of nations asking for some action to stop the Italians from attacking the Red Cross.

Oil Question.

Most of the oil now being used by Premier Mussolini's forces at home and in Africa is being supplied by the Anglo-Persian Oil company. The British government derives big profits from the company. The council of the league of nations will meet tomorrow to consider an oil embargo against Italy.

The British cabinet decided Wednesday not to press for the embargo at the council meeting. Capt. Anthony Eden, successor to Sir Samuel Hoare in the unhappy post of foreign secretary, was told to remain in the background at the meeting. Among others, the cabinet gave as its reasons for this policy the fact that present penalties against Italy are working effectively and the belief that rains in Ethiopia soon will defeat the Italians. [See War.]

Eden, in his first speech as foreign secretary, told his electors in Leamington Friday night that the league must be made strong enough to discourage aggression. He also said peace treaties must be revised to remove some of the basic causes of war. He disappointed his listeners when he did not say just what the British policy at the league meeting would be.

Premier Laval of France got another chance to attend a league meeting. His chamber of deputies gave him a vote of confidence Thursday, but did not indorse his policies. The question submitted to the chamber was purely a technical one. It was successful for Laval because of a split among his enemies.

Naval Conference.

Japan withdrew from the London conference on naval limitation Wednesday. The remaining four powers—the United States, Great Britain, France, and Italy—continued the conference.

Japan did the expected in withdrawing. Throughout the conference, which opened on Dec. 5, 1935, Japan insisted that any new agreement must grant Japan a navy equal to that of Great Britain or the United States. Neither of the latter powers would agree to this. Japan refused to talk on any other basis. Observers said Japan thus amplified its claim for naval supremacy in the western Pacific.

Vice Admiral Sankichi Takahashi, commander in chief of the Japanese battle fleet, boasted in Tokio that the Japanese fleet could fight both the British and American fleets right now and win. Newspapers and public men assured the Japanese public that the Japanese fleet was capable of meeting any emergency.

The four remaining powers began work toward an agreement of disclosures, rather than one of limitations. As the meetings adjourned for the week-end Friday a committee was appointed to work out the details of a scheme whereby each power will tell the others all naval building plans. This will include total tonnage building contemplated and technical information on new ships.

Russia.

Russia announced itself ready to fight on both its eastern and western borders. Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of the Japanese garrison in North China, predicted that the second Russo-Japanese war will begin as soon as the Russians complete their second five year plan.

Answering what it called war threats from Japan and Germany, the Russian government announced Tuesday that the military budget for 1936 will be more than double that of 1935. The budget calls for the spending of $2,960,000,000.

The next evening the government said the Russian army, already the largest in the world, had been brought up to 1,300,000 men during 1935. The warning was sounded to both Japan and Germany that Russia is ready to fight either or both of them.

Gen. Tada made his prediction at Tientsin Tuesday. He said the war would begin with a Russian offensive. The second five year plan was begun Jan. 1, 1933, but production is so far ahead of schedule that Russia expects to finish the plan this year.

Asiatics.

The Japanese are trying to increase their military rule of North China, according to reports from Tientsin Friday. Japanese headquarters refused to affirm or deny Chinese reports that Japanese troops had attempted an invasion of Suiyuan province earlier in the week.

Belief that Japan may be planning to restore the ancient dragon throne at Peiping was strengthened by a new Japanese inspired magazine which was published at Peiping Monday. An article in the magazine said: "North China's destiny of unity, stability, and permanency points to the restoration of the Manchu empire." Henry Pu-Yi, now Emperor Kang Teh of Manchukuo, was the Manchu mentioned for ruler of the new empire.

In Nanking, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, dictator of China and head of the Nationalist government, watched proceedings in the north with an anxious eye. He was receiving delegations of the students who are now making pilgrimages throughout China. The students hope to rouse China against Japan.

New Deal.

The week again was dismal for the jaded Roosevelt New Deal. One of its provincial pro-consuls, Gov. Henry Horner, was junked by Illinois Democrats because of his loyalty to it. The Literary Digest's nation-wide poll showed a representative 62 per cent of the people against the New Deal. [See Politics.] The Supreme court hit the AAA again, ordering a refund of 200 million dollars in AAA processing taxes. And a Democratic leader announced that, regardless of the President's feelings, the bonus would pass.

AAA.

In a unanimous opinion delivered on Monday, the United States Supreme court ruled that the 200 million dollars of impounded processing taxes assessed under the AAA must be refunded. Just a week earlier the court by a 6 to 3 decision had held the AAA invalid. The court did not rule on what is to be done about one billion dollars in processing taxes, in addition to the 200 millions impounded, which have been collected and largely distributed.

The 200 million dollars specifically involved are deposited in various cities and protected from New Deal spenders by federal injunctions. About 55 millions are held in Chicago. During the week packers and millers, who paid the taxes under protest, sued for refunds. Federal Judge John P. Barnes of Chicago on Thursday ordered more than $7,500,000 returned to eight concerns. However, his colleague, Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on Friday temporarily withheld refunds of $15,000,000 from other concerns. He pointed out that it is still legally possible for the government to demand a rehearing on the AAA in the Supreme court. [See Business review.]

Meanwhile the death of the AAA showed its effects in Chicago and elsewhere. Food prices dropped. Bread went down from 6 to 5 cents and in some cases from 10 to 8 cents a loaf. Flour dropped as much as 28 cents on 24 pound sacks. Other commodities showed reductions, although several meats showed seasonal advances. The reductions were possible because of elimination of processing taxes such, for instance, as the tax of $1.35 a barrel on flour.

On Thursday the President and his advisers agreed on a farm program which they hope will take the place of their illegal AAA. It will include the giving of easy federal money to those farmers willing to bow to the New Deal.

Bonus.

Chief business of the senate last week was the bonus. The house earlier had approved it, without saying where the money, estimated at more than 2 billion dollars, was coming from. The senate sought to circle this problem by agreeing on the baby bond plan offered by Senator Pat Harrison, Mississippi Democrat.

Under this plan the bonus would be paid in $50 bonds, payable on demand. The bonds would draw 3 per cent interest from June 15, 1936, to June 15, 1945, but would not pay interest if they were cashed before June 15, 1937. Sponsors of the scheme predicted that veterans as a whole would not rush to cash their bonds at once. Thus, they held, a strain on the treasury would be avoided. As matters are, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau revealed that the bonus would boost to 11 billion dollars the amount of money that the treasury must raise in the next 17½ months. [See Treasury.]

The senate vote on the bonus was put over from yesterday to tomorrow. Some of the senators talked too long for and against it, necessitating the delay. [See Main News section.]

There was no question as to the senate's sentiments. Even Harrison, a staunch Rooseveltian, said that the President's attitude would make no difference. "Whether this bill is signed by the President or not, it will become law," he said.

Munitions.

The senate munitions committee, headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye, handsome radical from North Dakota, has been having a good time recently trying to prove that financiers, particularly J. Pierpont Morgan, drove the United States into the world war. But now the good time appears to be over. Senator Nye made an unhappy remark.

He called President Wilson and his secretary of state, Robert Lansing, "falsifiers." The remark was made on Wednesday when he produced official records tending to show that the President and Lansing before going to Paris had told a committee that they knew nothing about secret foreign treaties, but all the time they did, he said.

Nye's remark boomeranged upon him in the senate chamber on Thursday and Friday. Senators James P. Pope of Idaho, and Walter F. George of Georgia, Democrats, withdrew from the munitions committee, asserting the inquiry had sunk into an attack upon "our war time President." Senator Tom Connally of Texas, also a Democrat, accused Nye of using the investigation for newspaper headlines. Senator Carter Glass, 78 years old of Virginia, friend of Wilson, delivered the most crushing attack of all.

Glass called Nye a coward, assailed his "falsifier" charge against Wilson as mendacious, and added he would like to say even more, but that being a gentleman he couldn't. Glass' attack on Nye was applauded by the senate, an unprecedented action.

Although stunned by the attacks, Senator Nye refused to back down. He read documents in an effort to prove that Wilson knew all about secret European treaties—one giving Italy part of Austria — before the United States entered the war. When he had finished, Senator Connally asked whether he would, on the senate floor, repeat his charge that Wilson and Lansing had falsified.

"I do, without malice," replied Nye.

The senate indicated it would allot no further funds to Nye's committee to finish its quiz. The committee has already spent $124,600 of the $125,000 alloted, and also $58,000 of public works funds. It needs about $9,000 more to complete its job. [See Main News section.]

Courts.

Rumors increased last week that New Deal leaders, angered over the Supreme court's wrecking of the AAA and the NRA, might soon try to curb its power. Officially, however, New Dealers did nothing. But they did get help from unexpected quarters.

On Friday Representative Ernest Lundeen, a Farmer-Labor man of Minnesota, introduced a bill in the house to increase the number of justices from nine to eleven. At the same time Senator Peter Norbeck of South Dakota, listed as a Republican, submitted a bill providing that no act of congress shall be declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court unless seven or more of the justices agree. The AAA was held illegal by six. On Tuesday Senator George W. Norris, a radical of Nebraska and a favorite of President Roosevelt, offered a bill requiring a unanimous vote by the justices to declare a congressional act illegal.

On the whole the house and senate were wary of measures to restrict the court. Public opinion as reflected in newspapers and movie houses shows great approval of the court, especially in contrast to the chief New Dealer, the President.

Treasury.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau added to the New Deal's woes on Tuesday when, testifying before the senate finance committee, he revealed that the administration would have to raise at least 11 billion dollars by the summer of 1937. This would include the soldiers' bonus. [See Bonus.] Morgenthau had hoped to keep his figures secret, but Senator James Couzens, Michigan Republican, wouldn't agree to that. The 11 billions required were apportioned by Morgenthau as follows:

Relief, 2 billions not included in the President's budget; next year's deficit, 1½ billions; bonus, 2 billions, and refunding operations, 5 billion 800 millions.

This would bring the government's public debt to 35 billion 500 million dollars by the end of the next fiscal year, it was said. Senator Couzens quoted Morgenthau as saying the voting of the bonus and the killing of the AAA would not help the bond market.

Two treasury officials resigned on Friday. They were Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, undersecretary, and Lawrence W. Roberts Jr., unofficial assistant secretary. Both resignations become effective on Feb. 15. Although occurring at the same time they were described as separate and unrelated acts. Coolidge, considered the brains of the treasury's financing operations, hinted but didn't say definitly that discord prompted his resignation. Roberts explained his quitting as due to a desire to return to private business.

Capital Notes.

In a talk to sugar men at San Juan, Porto Rico, Sunday, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes said that the New Deal intends to break up the great sugar estates. Newspaper stories later quoted him as saying that the sugar interests controled the Porto Rican legislature. On Tuesday two Porto Rican senators branded the statement as a slur and demanded that he retract it. [See Politics.]

Drake Swindle.

After six weeks' recital of the classic of English mythology and American gullibility, the Drake estate swindle, separation of the sheep from the alleged wolves was accomplished last week in the Chicago federal court trial. Judge Philip L. Sullivan directed the jury to find 21 of the 41 defendants not guilty of mail fraud. The defense of the remaining 20 will continue for about two weeks. Convict Oscar M. Hartzell, Drake prophet and heir presumptive, heads the pack Judge Sullivan left on trial. He did not explain his selections. But it was evident he graded the 41 on how much they admitted putting into liquidation of the British empire [Drake estate] and how much they took out. All told, $1,350,000 was put in by 70,000 of the grass roots country. There was little hope, however, that the sheep would need the judge's warning that "there is no pot of gold at the end of the rainbow." These innocents opined, "We believe as we always have."

Pin Games.

The National Association of Coin Operated Machine Manufacturers convened in Chicago last week. The makers of slot machines and pin games, 90 per cent of which are situated in Chicago, exhibited all manner of nickel in the slot devices for increasing a $10,000,000 industry and the gaming instinct of the cigar store patrons. One provided a live mouse and the chance to bet on which hole it would scamper into. But the delegates have a problem to solve. Both New York and Chicago have conducted raids on the "Sportlands" which operate the machines. Judges of both cities have ruled that the offering of high score prizes constitutes gambling.

Milk.

Don N. Geyer, secretary and manager, Friday handed his resignation, effective by March 15, to the Pure Milk association, dairymen's marketing agency. Geyer announced the PMA was in sound condition with its production under contract until next September. But he left the reason of his resignation to speculation. His overthrow was the object of the 18 day milk strike last October. During his nine year reign opposition from the United Farmers of Illinois increased until the last strike was called, ostensibly to raise the wholesale milk price, but also to give a strikers' marketing agency, the Union Producers, an entering wedge. A better price resulted but the PMA withstood the attack and 14,761 of 16,543 members signed new contracts in November. In December Geyer's parked automobile was riddled with bullets while he was making a speech.

Bridges.

Chicago's 54 bridges were opened for the passage of vessels 55,991 times and delayed trafic 215,961 minutes during 1935, the harbor master's report showed last week. This was the highest in four years. Increased openings of 16 downtown bridges from Michigan avenue to Van Buren street more than accounted for the gain. They were opened 22,146 times, to 20,136 for 1934. The eight bridges from Michigan avenue to Franklin street were lifted 50 per cent more than in 1934, increasing from 9,003 to 13,583 times. The entire bridge tending cost was $883,595, or $68,317 over the 1934 figure.

Slander Trial.

Litigation in the seven year old $250,000 slander suit against John L. Kellogg was revived last week as a jury trial began in Circuit court. Mrs. Julia E. Moone Dean, a 55 year old widow and former employment agent, is suing on the charge that Kellogg called her "a damned crook and a gold digger." Kellogg is the son of the founder of the Kellogg company at Battle Creek, Mich., and owner of the Warren Seed Cleaning company. Mrs. Dean asserted that the slander occurred before Warren officials when she was negotiating a sale of stock and supplying help for the company. Kellogg was then the financial backer and bought the company after its liquidation. Mrs. Dean said the statement, which he denies, cost her a $10,000 a year job. She also has a $1,000,000 conspiracy suit pending against 17 attorneys and Kellogg. In turn a woman is suing her for $50,000 for malicious prosecution.

Ethics Lesson.

The executive committee of the American Bar association last week studied a 100 page criticism of conduct at the Hauptmann trial prepared by the criminal law division. From the unpublished report the committee prepared a lesson in ethics to impress upon attorneys. Among the proposed court taboos were picture taking, telegraph wires, radio broadcasts, movies of the trial, interviews with and polls of jurors, newspaper "trials," and vaudeville or radio appearances of principals. The last was directed at Dr. J. C. [Jafsie] Condon, who went in for theater barnstorming as a prelude to Hauptmann's expected execution. [See Hauptmann.]

City Notes.

Circuit Judge John Prystalski criticized the Illinois Anti-Vivisection society for postcard pleas to members to pack his courtroom and force an open hearing, since "I am not easily influenced by numbers and I always grant an open hearing." The society's attorney is fighting an ordinance empowering the board of health to turn over impounded dogs to medical laboratories. [See Crime.]

Officials reported that 171,000 Chicago automobile owners had purchased neither city nor state 1936 licenses. The sale has lagged far behind and no attempt has been made to prosecute delinquents. Robert B. Upham, city controler, announced a police campaign may be started at any time now.

The park district resumed construction work on the outer drive bridge after several years of idleness because of lack of funds. The PWA recently granted money for the outer drive project. Completion is expected in 18 months. The war department approved of a bridge across the entrance to the Jackson park yacht harbor to take the kink out of the outer drive at that point.

Mrs. Lucille Parker, 40, was arrested for operating an unlicensed children's home at 4535 Beacon street. Social service investigators sent nine babies in her care to orphanages temporarily. News-Names

Fears were expressed yesterday for the life of King George of Britain, after a bronchial ailment had caused a heart weakness. He is at Sandringham, his country home in Norfolk. [See main news section for latest developments.] Until a few days ago the king had appeared well. In the last two weeks he saw nineteen moving pictures.

Gilbert White, American painter, was made a commander in the French Legion of Honor in Paris Monday. White, 58 years old and a native of Grand Haven, Mich., is best known for his murals. One, "The Spirit of Agriculture," is in the Agricultural building, Washington. Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace disapproves it. It doesn't show any tractors.

While students cheered him on, Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, on Monday chased two pet poodles which had broken away on the campus. He caught them.

Introducing a man who turned down a job that might have paid $50,000 a year—Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, former police commissioner of New York. The job was to serve as czar of the pinball industry. It was offered to O'Ryan after New York had banned pinball games offering prizes, effective last week.

Reports in Brazil a few days ago hinted that the prince of Wales is interested in a British proposal to build important meat packing plants in Porto Alegre, Brazil. At the moment Germany and Italy are big buyers of Brazilian meats. The British are reported prepared to invest $3,000,000.

Reports in London said that former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany was ill with influenza at his castle in Doorn, the Netherlands. A member of his household denied the reports, saying that the ex-kaiser was chopping wood as usual.

Cigars were passed around Monday by Col. Thomas R. Gowenlock, prominent Chicago soldier and advertising man. His wife, the former Miss Marjorie Gird, gave birth to a son. They were married in 1923 and the child is their first. Col. Gowenlock won citations for his bravery as an officer in the St. Mihiel, Meuse, and Argonne campaigns. He has written about his war experiences, his stories to appear in THE TRIBUNE'S Graphic section soon.

Ending a retirement of five years William Gillette, famous actor, returned to the stage in Newark, N. J., Monday night. He is 80 years old. The play was "Three Wise Fools." Co-starring with him was Mary Rogers, pretty daughter of the late Will Rogers.

The story that Warren C. Spurgin, former Chicago banker, was slain by Mexican soldiers was related last week before an Oklahoma City court by his daughter, Mrs. Vivian S. Tilton. Spurgin fled Chicago in 1921, his bank closing. He went to Mexico. In 1922, said Mrs. Tilton, he was killed by two deserters from Pancho Villa's army. The story was told in her effort to collect $30,000 insurance.

The University of Illinois on Tuesday named Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota as recipient of the 1935 Cardinal Newman award for "distinguished contribution to world peace." [See Munitions, Washington.]

Crime

Everybody but John W. Keogh and twelve Criminal court jurors thought John W. Keogh was insane. Last Monday Keogh, 72 years old, while suffering mentally, shot and killed Attorney Christopher G. Kinney in the courtroom of Judge John Prystalski. He also fired at the judge, but missed. Alienists later pronounced Keogh insane. Prosecutors agreed. On Friday a Criminal court jury was impaneled to find him insane, so he could be committed to an asylum. Only one witness, Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, testified. He called Keogh insane. This was agreed on, except by Keogh, who argued otherwise for 45 minutes. The jury pronounced him sane. He will be tried for murder.

The Chicago police department's annual report on property losses showed that Chicagoans lost $926,810 less property and cash in 1935 than they did in 1934. In the same period the police recovered $5,570 more in stolen property than they did in 1934. Merchandise stolen in 1935 amounted to $2,799,682; cash totaled $1,249,756.

Peter [Dynamite Pete] Cunniff, professional labor organizer who once boasted about 200 bombings, was found guilty of conspiracy to bomb by a Chicago jury on Sunday. He was immediately sentenced to prison for a term of one to five years by Judge Joseph Burke. Eugene Atkinson, a co-defendant, was found not guilty. Cunniff was accused of planning to bomb a school for movie operators established by the regular operators' union. Cunniff worked for a rival union.

Indicted on Tuesday in New York on a charge of sending threatening letters to President Roosevelt, Austin Phelps Palmer, former millionaire, pleaded guilty next day. He will be sentenced or placed on probation on Jan. 24. Palmer was arrested a week ago yesterday. He admitted writing the letters, in which he accused the President of causing him to lose much of his fortune. He threatened to strangle the President with his own hands.

On his plea of guilty Edward E. [Jack] Deegan, 27 years old, was sentenced to five years in prison Monday by a Kansas City, Mo., court. He was accused of trying to extort $3,000 from T. J. Pendergast, Kansas City Democratic leader.

Dewey Gilmore, Russell Cooper, and Otto Jackson, members of the Irish O'Malley gang in Kansas, were given 25 year prison terms each at Fort Smith, Ark., Tuesday on their pleas of guilty to charges of stealing $22,000 from the City National bank. Floyd Henderson, a fourth member of the gang, got a 12 year sentence on his plea.

Chicago detectives last week discovered that a revolver usually carried in the automobile of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, murder victim, was missing. Dr. Peacock was slain on Jan. 3 on the northwest side. Detectives said that if he carried the revolver the night of his murder, the fact it was missing indicated he was killed by robbers. They theorize that he resisted and was disarmed.

Albert Adams, 45 years old, of Macon, Ga., an insurance company official, shot and killed his daughters, Helen, 18, and Emma, 16, and then killed himself. The shooting took place Tuesday. . . . Mrs. Joseph Oberle of West Chester, Pa., killed her three sleeping children with a metal bar Tuesday and then tried to kill herself. The victims were Mary, 17 years old; Louise, 9, and Joseph, 7. . . . Marshall Barnett, 44 years old, a farmer of Laurel, Miss., on Tuesday shot and killed his wife, his son, and himself. . . . Mrs. Celine Leggo, 28 years old, of New York, on Sunday killed her daughter, Linda, 4 years old, and herself with gas.

Twice in two days Judge H. A. W. Skeen of Wise, Va., denied new trial pleas by Miss Edith Maxwell, 25 years old, mountain school teacher, under a 25 year sentence for murdering her father, Trigg Maxwell. Miss Maxwell killed her father in a fight resulting from his objections to her staying out late nights.

Science

Cabbitzer.

Prof. C. H. Meyers of Cornell university at Ithaca, N. Y., could put his nose in the air last week and predict that odorless cabbage would be on the market in two years. The department of vegetable crops now has 1,000 cabbages of benign scent as the result of his discoveries last year. By six years of careful natural selection from cabbages grown in diverse conditions Dr. Meyers isolated a strain that did not smell. He has distributed seeds to several producers for further scientific cabbage kibitzing. Dr. Hans Platenius of Cornell has research underway to produce odorless onions. The problem is to reduce the content of onion oil.

Exit Protoactinium.

Dr. Astrid van Grosse of the University of Chicago in 1934 found the second heaviest element of nature, metallic protoactinium, and last week he lost it. The world's supply of this radioactive cousin of radium was a milligram mounted on the end of a wire. Dr. Van Grosse loaned it to the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago to exhibit under a magnifying glass. While he was photographing the metal in the light of its own rays the specimen shattered to dust. Dr. Van Grosse placed the fragments in solution from which he hopes to extract it again.

Light Twister.

First proof of the twisting force of light was provided last week by Dr. Richard A. Beth of Worcester [Mass.] Polytechnic institute in a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Dr. Beth suspended in a vacuum a small, circular piece of quartz from a long, thin wire. The light of a Tungsten filament, polarized to make the light waves spin all in the same direction, was focused on the quartz. A light temperature of 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit made the disc turn half way around under pressure of the photons, or light particles.

Engineer Honored.

Charles F. [Boss] Kettering of Dayton, O., vice president of General Motors corporation and famed researcher, was given the 1936 Washington award for his services to mankind in the field of engineering.

Hauptmann

Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted kidnap-slayer of the Lindbergh baby, got his first break Thursday. Just 26 hours before his scheduled execution, fixed for 8 p. m. Friday, he was granted a 30 day reprieve by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey. Since his conviction early in 1935 Hauptmann had lost appeals for a new trial in the original trial court, the New Jersey Court of Appeals, and in the United States Supreme court. He had lost a plea for mercy in the New Jersey court of pardons.

Although the stay is for 30 days it will stretch out to eight weeks or longer because of the technicalities of the state law.

In granting the reprieve, Gov. Hoffman declared there were "grave doubts" about the case in his mind. That night he added: "It was one of those things I had to do—and I did it." On Friday he issued a formal statement expressing his doubt that the Lindbergh murder was a one man crime, or that Hauptmann was ever in the Lindbergh nursery.

Reaction to Gov. Hoffman's decision was generally critical throughout the country. In New Jersey there was both support and condemnation, plus threats to impeach him.

Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, now living in seclusion in the Morgan home near Cardiff, Wales, made no comment.

What was to have been Hauptmann's last week started with tales of "new evidence," of confessions and other wild stories. Dr. John F. [Jafsie] Condon, central figure in the case, cabled from the Panama canal zone that he was willing to return. The governor eight days ago demanded his arrest. Jafsie was told he wasn't wanted.

Is Paul Redfern Still Alive?

Nearly 70 years ago when most of the world considered Dr. David Livingstone dead in Africa because he had not been heard from in five years, James Gordon Bennett, a New York editor, thought otherwise. He told Henry Morton Stanley, reporter, to find Livingstone. Stanley began his search on March 21, 1871. He found him at Ujiji on Nov. 10, greeting him thusly: "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?"

Today an American parallel to this historic search may be in the making. The modern Livingstone is Paul Rinaldo Redfern. The modern Stanley may be any one of dozens of men. On Aug. 25, 1927, Redfern, thrilled by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's ocean flight, set out to thrill the world on his own account. He took off from Brunswick, Ga., in a small monoplane, the Port of Brunswick.

His destination was Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. He never got there. He was last seen on Aug. 26 about 165 miles off the Venezuelan coast by the Norwegian steamship Christian Krohg, to whose skipper he dropped five notes asking the direction of the nearest land.

What happened to Redfern is a mystery. He may have perished in a Caribbean storm, but many people doubt this. The general belief is that he crashed in some Guianan jungle and is today alive, a cripple, living with wild Indians, who regard him as a god.

During the last year many reports have tended to support this belief. They generally fix Redfern's location in Dutch Guiana. Last May 30 Tom Roch, an adventurer, vowed that he saw and talked with Redfern; that the flyer was crippled in the crash of his plane and cannot get out without help. On Oct. 2 two explorers told of talking with Indians in Guiana who have seen Redfern. On Oct. 28 the state department in Washington gave out a report from a missionary that Redfern had crashed and is still alive.

These stories have encouraged expeditions to search for Redfern. Last Sunday a new one, sent by the Albert S. Waid post of the American Legion, sailed from Cristobal, Canal Zone. Last Wednesday night Art Williams, a pilot, landed at Georgetown, British Guiana, temporarily abandoning a six weeks' quest. He will return. "The search is not ended," he said.

Flying

The nation's worst airplane disaster occurred on Tuesday night when the Southerner, luxury Douglas liner of the American Airlines, crashed into a swamp near Goodwin, Ark. Its 17 occupants, fourteen of them passengers, were killed. The plane was bound from New York to Los Angeles. The plane's speed indicator, found Thursday, was jammed at 180 miles an hour, suggesting the plane crashed at that speed. Assuming this to be true—and the plane's utter destruction upheld the theory—department of commerce officials said informally it would indicate the pilot had no warning that he was about to crash. Otherwise, they said, he might have slowed the ship and have stalled it into the tree tops, saving some lives. Raymond S. Pruitt of Chicago, general counsel for American Airlines, said that until Tuesday there had been no passenger fatalities on his company's lines in 19 months. He said the company had flown over 200 million passenger miles and carried 750,000 passengers in the last 10 years.

Howard Hughes, oil millionaire, and rated one of filmland's best producers, is now rated one of America's flying aces. On Tuesday he flew from Burbank, Cal., to the Newark, N. J., airport in 9 hours 27 minutes 10 seconds, a new cross country record. He flew a Northrop Gamma mail plane, powered with a new Wright G. Cyclone motor. At times he flew nearly 300 miles an hour, at times at an altitude of 18,000 feet. The previous west-east record was 10 hours 2 minutes 51 seconds, set by Col. Roscoe Turner on Sept. 2, 1934. Col. Turner commenting on Hughes' feat, said it was a good thing, that his own record had stood too long. He said he probably would try to better the new record. Hughes holds in addition the world's land plane speed record of 352.338 miles an hour made last September.

Baseball has its Landis. The movies have their Will Hays. Now aviation has its Gorrell. Gorrell—full name Col. Edgar S. Gorrell—is to be to aviation what Landis and Hays are to their respective organizations. Col. Gorrell on Tuesday was chosen president of the new Air Transport Association of America at a meeting in Chicago. He will make his headquarters here. The new association is made up of all scheduled air lines. It is to be a trade association, designed to handle all phases of flying except manufacture. Col. Gorrell, now 46 years old, has been a pilot for 22 years. A West Point graduate, he served as chief of staf of the army air service during the world war.

What's a young flyer to do when his motor goes dead right over Hollywood? Robert Horn, 19 years old, a student aviator, gave the answer. He just floated down as best he could, searched for a nice boulevard and landed on it. Motorists hurriedly gave him right of way. Horn's plane was damaged and his nose was broken.

Stiff tailwinds helped two transport planes to set new records on Tuesday. The TWA's Sky Chief No. 6 flew from Kansas City to Columbus, O., in 2 hours 54 minutes, a 223 mile per hour clip for the 649 mile journey. Another TWA ship flew from Kansas City to Indianapolis at a speed of 254 miles an hour, topping the old record by many minutes.

Lincoln Ellsworth, American explorer, and his companion, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, lost in Little America since Nov. 23 when their plane was forced down, were rescued on Thursday by the research ship, Discovery II. Both were alive and well. [See main news section for latest developments.]

SONG OF THE LARK.

An art teacher visited the Chicago Art Institute last week and could not find the "Song of the Lark" by Jules Breton. This painting was voted the most popular painting at A Century of Progress. After diligent inquiry all the way up to Director Robert B. Harshe she discovered the picture was standing in a dark storeroom. "It's not good enough for us," said Harshe. He said its huge popularity "just showed the low taste of America." The art teacher was indignant, but Mrs. Frank P. Logan, prominent art patron, was more so.

Foreign Notes

The twelve jurors and six substitutes who heard two months of testimony in the Stavisky swindle trial arrived at the Paris courtroom Thursday morning carrying their nightshirts. At noon the trial was ended. The eighteen were locked up to begin answering 1,956 questions about the twenty defendants accused of aiding the late Serge Stavisky in his $60,000,000 pawnshop fraud. Halfway through the trial the jurors threatened to strike for more pay. They got a raise. Thursday they threatened to strike unless the government fed them while they were deliberating. They got food. Friday night they reached a verdict. Mme. Arlette Stavisky, widow of Serge, and ten others were acquitted. Eight of the defendants received prison terms ranging up to seven years. Deputy Gaston Bonnaure was given a suspended one year term and lost his seat in parliament.

Memel became more of a sore spot during the week. In Kaunas, capital of Lithuania, Great Britain was reported to be trying to convince the Lithuanian government that it should take the first step toward conciliation with Germany over the troublesome Memel question. The Russian minister to Lithuania, M. Karsky, was said to be opposing this. Observers at Kaunas said Lithuania's antagonistic attitude toward Germany was fostered by Russia. According to the observers, Russia has promised to support Lithuania, even to the point of lending armed assistance in case of need. Most of Lithuania Wednesday celebrated the thirteenth anniversary of the successful putsch, by which Lithuania captured Memel. Memel citizens, most of whom are German, made it a day of mourning.

The social credit government of Prime Minister William Aberhart in Alberta province, Canada, bought a newspaper. It was the Daily Calgary Albertan. Aberhart will need the paper next month when his parliament meets. Alberta citizens are demanding immediate action on the social credit election promise of a $25 a month credit for each adult.

Because there are too many unmarried women in the country the Iranian [Persian] government is planning a tax on all unmarried men over 25 years of age. Since the women have discarded traditional veils the expense of keeping even one wife has become great. This, added to the higher prices for cotton, woolen, and silk cloths due to the government monopoly, has kept many young men from marrying. The government fears the bachelors will find it cheaper to pay the tax than marry.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler's health has long been a subject of anxiety in Germany. Last week it was reported that a conference was held to determine what the army would do if anything happened to Hitler. Attending the conference were Gen. Werner von Blomberg, minister of war, and fifteen high officers of the army.

According to the reports, the council, on Hitler's instructions, decided to stand by three trusted Nazi leaders. The three were said to be Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, air minister and premier of Prussia; Rudolph Hess, deputy leader of the Nazi party, and Wilhelm Frick, home minister.

On Thursday, the day following the report of the conference meeting, the official German news service strenuously denied Hitler is in ailing health.

The Ukraine district of eastern Europe was the subject of controversy last week. In Warsaw, Poland, twelve youthful Polish Ukrainians were sentenced to long terms in prison. Three of them were originally sentenced to death, but their sentences were commuted. All of the twelve were found guilty of complicity in the assassination of Polish Minister of Interior Bronislaw Pieracki on June 15, 1934. In addition they were found guilty of terrorist activity. The court charged that their activities had been supported by Ukrainians in the United States, and by the Lithuanian government. Poland is investigating the part played by Lithuania in supporting the Ukrainians.

Poland and Germany were warned against any attempt to conquer the Ukrainian Socialist soviet republic. The warning was issued by N. N. Lubchenko, president of the Ukrainian soviet of people's commissars, speaking before a meeting of the all-Russian central executive meeting in Moscow. Lubchenko revealed that soviet leaders think such an attempt inevitable, but that they are prepared to resist it with force.

Hurdy-Gurdy

To some city people the first robin is the first sign of spring, but to many others the first hurdy-gurdy on the streets is the first sign. In New York this year they'll have to depend on robins. Organ grinders are taboo there. Mayor La Guardia refused to issue 1936 licenses to the fourteen organ grinders left because he considered them noisy nuisances. The hurdy-gurdy men last Monday appealed to the mayor by playing "O Sole Mio" and "Mother Machree" on the radio. Station WEAF in the RCA building furnished the outlet. Cæsar Dorsotti, hand organ maestro, said he and his associates would starve if the mayor's order stands.

GARBO.

Maybe Greta Garbo is in Sweden, maybe somewhere near America. Reports on Wednesday said that she had sailed through the Panama canal on a Swedish freighter, en route to Hollywood. Next day and the day after Garbo's friends in Stockholm denied the reports. She's still in Sweden, they said. Only a few days earlier the same friends denied other reports—that she and Noel Coward, British playwright, were romancing.

HERO RETIRES.

Earl Beatty, admiral of the British fleet, was retired on Friday, his 65th birthday. He was made admiral of the fleet in 1919. He is considered Britain's greatest living sea hero for his part in the world war sea battles of Dogger bank and Jutland.

Medicine

Silicosis.

Silicosis is an industrial lung disease caused by breathing silica, or powdered sand. Such sand, used in glassmaking, was encountered in the three year drilling of the mile long Hawk's Nest mountain tunnel at Gauley Bridge, W. Va. The Charlottesville, Va., contractors completed the tunnel in 1933 but the New Kanawha Power company, Union Carbide and Carbon subsidiary, never put it into hydroelectric use. The contractors, Rinehart and Dennis, paid $300,000 in 450 suits for occupational diseases and confinement.

The misfortunes of the $10,000,000 project were declared worthy of congressional concern last week when Representative Vito Marcantonio [Rep., N. Y.] demanded that the department of labor investigate. Marcantonio charged that 476 workmen had died and 1,500 were still wasting from silicosis. Gauley Bridge, West Virginia, and department of mines health statistics failed to substantiate such high figures. A state health officer said silicosis, however, may have contributed to tuberculosis and pneumonia deaths. The Rinehart and Dennis president said only 48 men died, most from pneumonia, and that silicosis at Gauley Bridge was a racket.

Rural Perils.

Dr. Frank J. Jirka, Illinois director of public health, spoke at the University of Illinois' farm and home week. Dr. Jirka charged that rural areas were lagging behind cities in health preservation because of the state's backwardness in providing efficient rural health service. He pointed out that Illinois is one of 14 states where the rural population has no local public health service.

In New York, the Commonwealth fund announced 1935 expenditure of $1,574,205 for the promotion of medical service in rural districts. The report declared that 600 counties of the nation could finance better health service for themselves while another 200 could do so with moderate state aid.

Medical Notes.

Of the 3,800 girls in Chicago's Englewood High school only 300 qualified for the annual posture contest and only Irene Schuster, 17 years old, was considered perfect in posture. At the physical education clinic of all high schools the average girl of 16 was pictured as round shouldered and sway backed, with one shoulder higher and toes pointing out. Relaxation exercise rather than military stiffness was proposed as a remedy.

The current Journal of the American Medical association reported the perfection of a new treatment for diabetes by four Danish scientists. They described protamine insulinate, a compound obtained from the sperm of a trout species, as a remedy more nearly like the anti-diabetic function of nature than insulin, which has been used successfully.

A half million examinations in the last five years of sixth year molars, the first permanent teeth of children, led Howard W. Green, Cleveland health council secretary, to conclude last week that the teeth of children of well-to-do parents appear later and are of better quality. Public school examiners, Green said, have found foreign born children have better teeth than natives, while Negro children have the best teeth of all. Care of children's teeth was only 40 per cent of what it should be, he reported.

VISITOR.

A New York jury on Wednesday refused a divorce to Mrs. Minna Citron, artist, after listening to the story of her husband, Henry C. Citron, wealthy New Yorker. Mrs. Citron said she found him in a hotel room with a woman on Oct. 4. The woman had no dress on, she asserted. Mr. Citron admitted this was true. But the whole thing was a devilish plot, he declared. He was sitting in his room, he related, when the woman, a tall brunette, knocked on the door and entered. She said she had just come from the hotel swimming pool, testified Mr. Citron. Her clothes were wet and she thought she'd better take her dress off. She did so, and soon afterward Citron's wife and detectives broke into the room.

Politics

Not yet over the headache caused by the Supreme court's recent wrecking of the AAA, the Roosevelt New Deal suffered further agony on Thursday when the Literary Digest magazine gave out the final returns on its nation-wide straw vote.

The question was: "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal?" To this 1,907,681 persons responded. The tabulation showed:

No	1,195,313
Yes	712,368

This meant that three out of every five voters who got ballots registered against the New Deal; that the revolt against it was 62.66 per cent; that the support for it was only 37.34 per cent. Thirty-six states emphatically disapproved it. New England and the middle Atlantic states cast "no" votes of 77.98 and 68.89 per cent, respectively. The middle west and Rocky mountain states were 3 to 2 against it. Only the southern and border states, plus Utah, were for it. The Digest called the straw vote "a true reflection of public sentiment." It was a terrific reversal of the Digest's New Deal poll 18 months ago, in which 61.15 per cent went for the New Deal.

Feeling that they were being denied equal radio privileges with the Democrats, Republican leaders last week went on the warpath against the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system. Both chains had refused to sell time to the G. O. P. to present dramatic skits showing conditions under the New Deal.

The G. O. P. spokesman, National Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, charged the two chains with censorship and involuntary servitude to the federal communications commission, which grants licenses to radio stations. [On Wednesday Representative William P. Connery, a Democrat of Massachusetts, demanded an investigation of the commission, charging that it discriminated in favor of the big stations.]

Not to be suppressed, the G. O. P. turned to independent radio stations, headed by W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE's station in Chicago. On Tuesday night it put on its dramatic skits over W-G-N. By Thursday night some 1,186 letters from listeners were received by Republican headquarters in Chicago. All but fourteen were commendatory. Another program of skits will be broadcast by W-G-N Tuesday night. Two more will follow. The series is known as "Liberty at the Crossroads."

In a speech at Lincoln, Neb., Thursday night, former President Herbert Hoover called upon the nation's farmers to defend their freedom against Roosevelt burocracy. Under the New Deal, he asserted, "our country has been following step by step the road through which millions of people in foreign countries lost their liberties." He offered several plans for farm recovery, two points of which were restoration of home markets and encouragement of coöperative marketing.

The speech gave further hint that Hoover might be a candidate. He has not announced himself. The only avowed candidate is Senator William E. Borah of Idaho. On Wednesday Borah consented to a campaign to win the Minnesota delegation. The only other candidate somewhere near the open is Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas. On Monday Sam R. McKelvie, former Hoover aid, declared for Landon. On Wednesday Albert Ottinger, former attorney general of New York, launched a "Landon for President" movement in New York.

A rip roaring fight among Illinois Democrats is foreseen as the result of the organization's action Sunday in dropping Gov. Henry Horner as a candidate to succeed himself. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, was chosen as the candidate. Decision to drop Horner was influenced largely by his loyalty to Washington New Dealers. On hearing of the action, Gov. Horner declared he would fight for renomination. He will get no aid from Washington, Postmaster General Farley remarking Wednesday that the Horner matter is "a local affair." The governor came to Chicago Thursday to begin his fight. Meanwhile it was reported that the Democratic organization might drop State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney. They denied it.

Postmaster General James A. Farley at Tuckahoe, N. Y., Monday sounded a new Democratic slogan: "Keep Roosevelt in—and keep the gang out." In Philadelphia 24 hours earlier he announced that the Liberty bell would be the Democratic party's symbol at the national convention in Philadelphia in June. The donkey is the traditional symbol.

The Democratic national committee announced Thursday that it had paid its $120,000 debt to John J. Raskob with a final payment of $25,000. Raskob lent the money in the 1928 campaign.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes on Thursday sent a letter to former President Hoover apologizing for a statement that three of the laws passed during Hoover's administration had been found unconstitutional. Hoover had demanded the apology.

The American Liberty league announced Tuesday that it would accept no more applications for seats at its Jan. 25 dinner. Only 2,000 seats are available; 6,000 wouldn't have been enough. Al Smith is to talk.

led to a prison sentence for Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior, who awarded the lease. He was convicted of accepting a bribe. Sinclair, accused of giving a bribe, was acquitted, but sentenced to jail for contempt.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt on Thursday night entertained the diplomatic representatives of fifty-four countries at a state dinner in the White House. The British ambassador and Lady Lindsay were ranking guests. Of the ninety-six dinner guests, the only Americans present were Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Mrs. Hull, Senator Key Pittman, and Representative and Mrs. Sam McReynolds.

In a general report last week Robert Fechner, director of the civilian conservation corps, estimated the work value of the corps since its inception on April 5, 1933, to Sept. 30, 1935, at $579,000,000. He computed the corps' cost as $1,006,500,000.

The naval affairs subcommittee on Thursday began drafting a bill to increase the nation's naval reserve strength from 20,000 men to between 150,000 and 160,000 men. On Monday President Roosevelt nominated Capts. George J. Meyers, Edward J. Marquart, and Gilbert J. Rowcliff to be rear admirals.

Religion

The Methodist Federation for Social Service, meeting in convention in Evanston, voted to ally itself with an allegedly communistic organization. The organization is the American League Against Fascism and War, also known as "The Red Front," which was indorsed by the 7th world congress of the communist internationale at Moscow last summer. At the meetings pamphlets of speeches made by G. Dimitroff at the congress were sold to the delegates. Police were called to the convention Thursday and George Ringrose was taken to the police station but later was released. He was accused of making public the seemingly communistic trend of the organization.

The Catholic church ordered its members not to send their children to socialist schools in Mexico. The pastoral letter containing the order was made public Thursday and is to be read in Mexican churches today. "No Catholic can be a Socialist, understanding by socialism any system which neither recognizes the rights of God and the church nor the rights of all men to possess goods acquired by legitimate work or inherited," the letter says.

Parents, teachers, and priests were instructed to provide children with religious education. Socialist education was made compulsory in Mexico in December, 1934. Catholics are allowed to give religious instruction in their homes and churches, but no other places.

Education

The school board of Edmonton, Alta., decided that unruly children should get the lether strap. Straps 16 to 19 inches long, 2 to 2½ inches wide, and ⅛ to ¼ inch thick will be used on children in the sixth grade and above. The strap may not be longer than 15 inches for pupils from the first to fifth grades. The number of blows was not stated.

Students at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology who are enrolled in the ROTC were issued new sabers Tuesday. Each saber was stamped, "Made in Germany."

Josephine is the pet of a Cornell university fraternity. She is a young boa constrictor who does not constrict, but bites. She likes the house kept at 80 degrees and makes use of the furniture in place of trees for climbing purposes.

Donald G. Murray, colored, was refused admittance to the University of Maryland law school. That is the only state law school in Maryland. A lower court issued orders that Murray was to be admitted. Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, then president of the university, appealed the decision. The court of appeals upheld the lower court Wednesday. The court said that as long as no other facilities for the study of law were provided the state could not stop Murray from attending the law school because of his color.

In 1934 the Homestake Mining [gold] company of Lead, S. D., gave each of five denominational schools in the state $10,000. Last year the company gave each school $5,000. Attorneys for the company announced Thursday that another $5,000 each had been given to Yankton, Augustana, Huron, Dakota Wesleyan, and Sioux Falls colleges. . . . President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university announced Thursday that $450,000 was given to the university during 1935. The largest gift—$100,000—came from an anonymous donor.

The students of Butler university [Indianapolis, Ind.] want sex education. The student council petitioned the faculty for a course in "sex hygiene" for next semester. Frank Demmerly, council president, said the council recommended that men and women be grouped separately so teachers and students may engage in free discussion.

Iran [Persia] is a Mohammedan country. Like all good Mohammedans the Persian women veil their faces. Girls were married while still under 10 years of age. Mohammedans have always considered it a very foolish thing for a woman to know too much. The girls were never sent to school. But Iran is now going to have co-ed schools. At present only boys and girls of 7 years or older will attend school together. The age limit will be raised one year each year until 16 is reached. That is the age at which Persian girls may marry now.

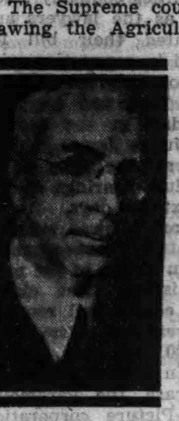
DEATH OF AAA VIEWED AS BOON TO U. S. FARMER

Nat Murray Thinks Exports Will Rise.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The Supreme court's decision outlawing the Agricultural Adjustment administration's program of "planned scarcity" may turn out to be a windfall for large groups of American farmers and will permit them to increase production at just the time when the markets of the United States and the world are getting in a position to absorb larger production of American farm crops, according to Nat C. Murray, noted Chicago crop expert and former chief statistician of the crop reporting service of the department of agriculture.



NAT C. MURRAY.
[Blank-Stoller Photo.]

Mr. Murray, who during the period of burdensome wheat surpluses three years ago, predicted that within five years the world would be concerned with wheat shortage, and who now enjoys the satisfaction of seeing his forecast materializing, said yesterday that the Supreme court's decision will aid the American wheat farmer win back some of his lost export business.

Ended at Favorable Time.

"Despite the dire predictions of those who sponsored the AAA program," said Mr. Murray, "I believe that the end of the crop reduction experiment comes at a most propitious time. There will be unsettlement in some lines resulting from the readjustment of agricultural production, but I believe the results will be largely on the good side for the farmers."

Because the vast surpluses of wheat piled up during the unsuccessful attempt of the former farm board to peg prices have been liquidated and because the world situation is rapidly being cleared by the steady reduction of the last remaining troublesome surplus—that of Canada—Mr. Murray believes that the world will be ready to absorb any increase in American wheat production this year and perhaps next year.

Corn, Hog Growers Benefit.

Producers of corn and hogs, he says, are placed in an even more favorable situation by the Supreme court decision, because the nation has been importing these products and can absorb greater production before requiring an export outlet.

Cotton is the chief sore spot, according to Mr. Murray, but he expresses the opinion that if the price of cotton is permitted to adjust itself to world prices larger quantities of American cotton can be exported.

"There has been too much talk and too little real thought about the effects of the elimination of the AAA on the welfare of American formers," said Mr. Murray. "Let's look at the figures."

Only 40% Got AAA Checks.

"According to the department of agriculture's own figures only 3,153,588 AAA farm contracts were in operation in 1935. There are about 6½ million farmers in the United States. When you eliminate duplications in cases where farmers signed contracts on more than one product it is clear that not more than 2,500,000, or 40 per cent of the farmers of the country, were benefitting from AAA checks. And of these 1,262,000 were cotton planters, 269,000 were tobacco planters, 82,000 sugar producers, 29,000 peanut producers, and 9,000 rice planters. There were 920,000 farmers signed up under the corn-hog plan and 580,000 under the wheat plan."

As for the importance of tobacco, he pointed out that the farm value of tobacco in 1935 was only 237 million dollars, or about one-third of the value of fruits and vegetables, a little more than two-thirds of the value of oats, something over one-third the value of hay, and only a small fraction of the value of dairy products and poultry combined—none of which was under the AAA. Cattle and sheep were other important products not covered by the AAA.

North's Crop Outlook Bright.

"Excluding cotton and tobacco, both of which are almost exclusively products of the Democratic south, the outlook for the market for the American farm crops during the coming year is especially bright," said Mr. Murray.

"Wheat prices are already so close to world levels that an advance of a few cents more in Rotterdam would make it profitable to export grain from Galveston. And because two-thirds of our acreage is winter wheat, which is already in the ground, it is unlikely that we will increase production this year sufficiently to glut our markets. We are likely to be in the peculiar position of exporting wheat from the southwest and importing it from Canada in the north.

"As for hogs it will take a year and

Roads to Start Pickup, Deliver in Many States

Free pickup and delivery of less than carload freight will be made available to shippers in more than 30 states tomorrow morning. This became assured yesterday when the interstate commerce commission in Washington denied the request of trucking interests to prevent the railroads from carrying out their plan.

Under the new plan freight will be handled without additional charge to and from the doors of every shipper and receiver at all stations where the roads maintain freight agents. Trucking will be provided either by the railroads or through contract with local motor truck operators. A single waybill will cover the entire movement.

Allowance for Our Service.

An allowance of 5 cents per hundred pounds will be made to shippers or consignees electing to provide their own pickup and delivery service.

The commerce commission's action denied requests of the American Truckers' association, Midwest Motor Freight bureau, and many individual truckers to suspend the railroad service. Trucking interests aimed their chief complaint at the 5 cent allowance.

The new service will be provided by western and southwestern trunk line roads in all territory east of the Rocky mountains and west of the Illinois-Indiana line. The Illinois Central will offer the same service to 14 southern and western states, while the Pennsylvania will provide free pickup and delivery on its lines, but will make no allowance for freight handled by the shipper or receiver. No date has been set for inauguration of the service on the Pennsylvania.

Other Lines Match Service.

The Southern railway, which embraces a large area in the southeast, announced it wil match tarifs of the western lines and hopes to secure approval from the commerce commission by Feb. 1. In addition several eastern lines whose roads extend into western or southern territory will match the new service in the overlapping territories.

Action of the Pennsylvania is expected to be followed by other eastern lines, which thus far have lagged behind the western roads in this innovation. Some eastern carriers have offered free pick up and delivery service on their lines up to 260 miles from point of origin, but beyond this a charge of 6 cents per hundred pounds for each pickup and each delivery is made.

The move marks the latest attempt of the carriers to retrieve freight trafic lost to competitors. Many shippers have complained that railroad service was not as flexible as that of trucks.

WEEK'S OUTPUT OF AUTOS SLIPS; FORD HAS GAIN

Motor car production in the United States and Canada last week totaled 99,391 cars and trucks, compared with 101,096 in the preceding week, Ward's Reports, Inc., estimated yesterday.

General Motors produced 36,910 cars, compared with 38,835 a week earlier. Lincoln and Ford completed 27,010 vehicles, against 26,975. Chrysler recorded no change in output of 26,500 units.

Overseas sales of General Motors corporation cars and trucks totaled 25,998 units in December, a gain of 14.3 per cent over November and 58.3 per cent over December, 1934. The figure established a new high record for December.

BUSINESS NEWS IN REVIEW

Business Holds at High Level—Political Uncertainties Cloud Outlook—Courts Differ on Return of Processing Taxes—More Attacks Launched on New Deal—Silver Breaks Again

Business and industrial activity, as measured by the principal statistical indices, held at a high level through the last week. Political uncertainties, however, tended to cloud the outlook somewhat. Reconciled to the enactment of bonus legislation by congress, business awaited the form which the financing of this government largesse would take.

With equal interest the decision of the Supreme court in the TVA case was awaited. Reassured by the earlier decisions of the court on New Deal legislation, business men felt more confident and hoped for a further clarification of the federal power of regulation, and a definition of limits in which it may engage in business on its own account.

Barometers.

The two barometers of industrial activity, steel and power production, showed further gains for the week. At the same time railroad trafic continued to increase. Steel mills were operating at an estimated rate of 52½ per cent of capacity as the week closed, a gain of 1 per cent as compared with a week earlier.

The automobile industry restricted its steel purchases somewhat as the weekly production of cars in American and Canadian plants dropped to 99,391 units from the 101,096 reported in the preceding week. The decline in automobile production is expected to continue until late February or March. Output of lower priced automobiles is holding up better than the higher priced brackets. The industry is still confident that output for the full year will be at least 10 per cent above 1935.

Power.

The report on power output showed the highest production for a week in January on record. Compared with the preceding week, production rose 6.2 per cent and an increase of 11.2 per cent was registered over the corresponding period of 1935. The new high production mark was reached despite the fact that the week to week gain was less than seasonal.

Railroad trafic held at a five year peak. Gains of 13.4 per cent over the preceding week and 11 per cent over the corresponding period last year were recorded.

Silver.

Silver became a headline topic again last week as the price of the metal fell approximately 4 cents an ounce in the New York and London markets. The United States treasury, the biggest speculator in the market and the dictator of price, was responsible for market's action. The treasury withdrew the peg of 49¾ cents an ounce which had been maintained since Dec. 24 when the previous long decline from the pegged level of 65⅝ cents, begun on Dec. 9, was finally halted.

The decline of approximately 20 cents an ounce in the market value of the metal in less than six weeks means a shrinkage of about $167,000,000 in the value of the treasury's holdings acquired since December, 1933.

The closing price of 45¾ cents an ounce in New York last week was the lowest figure quoted on the metal since July, 1934.

Reticence.

The reticence which treasury officials have consistently shown on the question of silver was maintained through last week's market break. The only statement that came out of Washington was credited to an anonymous official who asserted that provisions of the silver purchase act were being carried out.

While the treasury was silent, the silver program came in for a critical arraignment by Handy & Harman, leading silver brokers, who termed the scheme a costly failure.

The firm traced the history of the government experiment, in its annual silver review. None of the avowed purposes of the act has been realized except, perhaps, that of subsidizing the domestic mining companies, the firm asserted. And this objective, it was pointed out, could have been accomplished with far less expense by more direct methods without the dislocation and international ill will that the United States has brought about through its operations.

Processing Tax.

The question of how to distribute the $200,000,000 of process tax funds, impounded by federal courts prior to the Supreme court's invalidation of the AAA, remained somewhat involved last week. In Chicago two federal judges made conflicting rulings on the matter. On Thursday Federal Judge John P. Barnes entered eight orders returning more than $7,500,000 of impounded taxes to meat packing and flour milling concerns. Judge Barnes' decision was governed by the ruling made Monday by the Supreme court in the Louisiana rice millers' case [See Washington: Review Section.], which directed that the impounded taxes be returned to processors.

On Friday Judge James H. Wilkerson refused to release $10,000,000 in cash and bonds posted by processors. He asserted that there is still a possibility of a reversal in the case and pointed out that the government has until Jan. 31 to ask for a rehearing.

New Deal.

Following the legal execution of the AAA, renewed energy has been put behind the court attacks on other New Deal measures. There is also the prospect that hitherto unchallenged legislation will become the target of legal action.

An early test of the validity of the federal program of bank deposit insurance was suggested by developments of the week. Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank, told stockholders at the annual meeting on Tuesday that the bank had paid its initial assessment to the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation under protest and with the declaration of a reservation of legal rights. Opposition to the insurance program among the big banks has been smoldering for months.

SEC.

On Tuesday the government accepted a challenge to test the constitutionality of the securities and exchange act of 1933 under which security markets and underwriting houses have operated. The issue was raised by J. Edward Jones, oil securities promoter, who questioned the government's right of requiring registration of securities. Solicitor General Stanley Reed indicated that the government would attempt to confine the court test to the question of registration, although other features of the act have been attacked.

Utilities.

John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for the presidency in 1924, appeared before the Circuit Court of Appeals in Charlotte, N. C., on Tuesday to press the fight on the New Deal utility act. Davis branded the

REPORT RESERVE BOARD NAMED BY ROOSEVELT

Only Two of Present Members Retained.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—(AP)—A board approved for the most part by the conservative Senator Glass [Dem., Va.] was reported to have been selected today by President Roosevelt to run the federal reserve system after Feb. 1.

Authoritative sources said the tentative selection for the new board would retain only two of the present members—Marriner S. Eccles, slated for the chairmanship, and M. S. Szymczak of Chicago.

In choosing the new board, President Roosevelt was said to have discussed the matter at length with Senator Glass, widely known as the father of the federal reserve system.

Others on Tentative List.

The other names placed on the tentative list were:

Joseph P. Broderick, a former New York superintendent of banks.

Ronald Ranson, an official of the Fulton National Bank of Atlanta.

William Trufant Foster, a Harvard professor whose writings and lectures have advocated huge government spending in times of depression.

A farmer, representing agriculture, whose identity was not disclosed.

Neither Ranson nor Foster had formerly been mentioned in connection with places on the new board.

Such a board would meet geographical requirements by including one member from the reserve districts of San Francisco, Chicago, New York, Atlanta, McKee from Cleveland, and Foster from Boston. The unnamed farm member could be selected from one of the six remaining districts, presumably from Minneapolis, St. Louis, or Kansas City.

Report Glass Modifies View.

Although Glass was expected in some quarters to oppose Eccles' confirmation, he was said to have moderated his opposition on the belief the contemplated roster would act as a check on Eccles' liberalism.

Under the banking act of 1935, the new board of governors must be named Feb. 1. It will consist of seven, instead of six active members, and will exclude the secretary of the treasury and controler of the currency, who formerly served ex-officio. The President, in making the selection, "shall have due regard to a fair representation of the financial, agricultural, industrial, and commercial interests, of the country."

Mentioned as Coolidge Successor.

The name of Herman Oliphant figured prominently today in unofficial discussion as to a successor to Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, resigned undersecretary of the treasury.

Coolidge, conservative Bostonian, handed in his resignation yesterday because he did not agree with certain New Deal policies.

Oliphant, former professor of law at Johns Hopkins university and now general counsel to the treasury, is believed to be more sympathetic toward the New Deal.

INDUSTRY INDEX IS UNCHANGED FOR LAST WEEK

New York, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The Associated Press index of industrial activity was unchanged this week at 85.8. Automobile production, cotton and manufacturing activity, and electric power output seasonally adjusted indices fell back slightly. Residential building was unchanged from the previous week.

Carloadings advanced substantially more than the seasonal expectancy. Steel mill activity continued to gain.

The index, adjusted for seasonal variation, with 1929-'30 as 100, and the adjusted components, follows:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Composite index	85.8	85.8	76.1

NEW FORTUNES in the MAKING—

New fortunes are created by new industry. Early in 1935 TECHNIGRAPHICS chose the youthful aviation industry as the outstanding investment and speculative opportunity and recommended the purchase of leading aircraft stocks. Sensational profits in the selected issues have been available to clients during the past year.

Douglas Aircraft.

Douglas, first recommended for purchase at 18, was recommended again for investment accumulation at each of the following prices: 21, 23, 24, 26, 28, 32 and 37. The recent price of 58 represents an advance of more than 300% on original purchases. Other recommendations included United Aircraft, Boeing, Sperry, and Curtiss-Wright.

Will the aircraft industry again offer a leading opportunity for profit in 1936, or have its possibilities been temporarily exhausted? What new opportunities are looming on the horizon?

The next and succeeding bulletins of TECHNIGRAPHICS will point out current investment and speculative opportunities. You may test the timely and definite recommendations of TECHNIGRAPHICS for yourself by sending One Dollar for a three-weeks' trial, on both stocks and grain. Supplementary collect telegrams will be included, if requested. A 40-page book of charts of leading stocks and averages (regularly retailing at $1.50) showing daily range, volume, and performance indexes, with instructions for their use, will be sent free with your trial. Treasury Sets Up Plan to Halt Return of Tax

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—The treasury department was reliably reported tonight to have decided on a definite plan for preventing the recovery of an estimated $200,000,000 of impounded AAA processing taxes which, under the Supreme court's decision in the Rice Millers' case, appeared destined to be turned over to processors of commodities called "basic" under the invalidated law.

While the proposed method was reported to lack the approval of the department of justice and to require the ultimate sanction of President Roosevelt, it was understood to call for new legislation imposing taxes on processors on a retroactive basis, the effect of which would be to continue the outlawed processing taxes in full force and effect.

Plan Strong Fight.

It was learned earlier in the day that the administration had decided that every legal means possible should be employed to prevent the returning of the $200,000,000 on the ground that the full tax had already been passed on to consumers in higher commodity prices as a result of which processors would be unable to demonstrate any financial loss.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed was reported as favorably considering a plan whereby the Supreme court would be asked for a rehearing of the issues involved in the Rice Millers' case on the ground that "exceptional circumstances" presented legal barriers to the recovery by processors of the impounded funds.

Favors Direct Action.

This strategem was later understood to have been discarded in favor of a more direct approach involving legislation directing that the impounded levies be converted into the treasury's general fund as "exactions." Federal attorneys said tonight that the Supreme court had in the past upheld the constitutional power of congress to tax for general purposes even when such levies were in the nature of exactions.

That some action was contemplated to prevent the return of the impounded funds was first indicated by Secretary Wallace, who said during a press conference that he doubted whether "the public would tolerate" the return to processors of something more than a billion dollars of processing tax collections that already had been disbursed to farmers in benefit payments and recollected from consumers in high prices.

SEC RIGHT TO REVEAL BUSINESS RECORDS IS CHALLENGED IN SUIT

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 18.—(AP)—The Evans Products company today attacked as unconstitutional "search and seizure" a Securities and Exchange commission order to make public facts concerning its business operations. The attack was presented in a petition to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The company said that in filing an application for registration of its common stock on the New York exchange it filed written objection to disclosure of its gross sales, costs of sales, and net profits. A commission hearing Sept. 24, however, was followed by an order holding the information in the public interest.

The company contended disclosure would constitute search and seizure of facts concerning trade secrets of no public interest, and be damaging to the company and its stockholders.

ZEPHYR TRAINS TO MAKE DENVER RUN IN 16 HOURS

Save Business Day Between Cities.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Two de luxe streamlined passenger trains will be placed in service by the Burlington railroad between Chicago and Denver next June on an anticipated sixteen hour schedule, President Ralph Budd announced last night.

Of the Zephyr type, these two trains will be among the fastest in the world. They will run the 1,039 miles over the Burlington route at an average speed of approximately 65 miles an hour. The Union Pacific-North Western last December announced streamlined passenger trains between the same two cities which will run the 1,048 miles over that route at an average speed of 65½ miles an hour.

Present running time between the two terminals is 27 hours 45 minutes westbound and 25 hours 15 minutes eastbound, which means a whole business day will be saved to travelers between the two cities.

Trains to Carry Ten Cars.

The Burlington trains will consist of ten cars and two Diesel electric power units. While similar in appearance to the road's present fleet of Zephyrs, the cars will be larger than those of its original streamlined trains. The length of the train will be 900 feet.

"The current successful operation by the Burlington lines of 2,706 Zephyr train miles daily convinces us that this type of train can be operated over longer schedules than has yet been done, and that fast overnight service can be provided which will be entirely dependable," said Budd. "While the longest run now being made by any Diesel train daily is 882 miles by the Burlington's Twin Zephyrs, we do not believe the 1,039 mile Chicago-Denver run is as great an undertaking as was the inauguration of the four Zephyrs now being operated."

Makeup of New Trains.

The new trains, which are to be called the Denver Zephyrs, will each have an observation car, four sleep-

STOCKS WEAKEN; BONUS AND TVA DECREE AWAITED

Moderate Declines Occur in Most Groups.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 18.—An atmosphere of indecision pervaded the stock market in today's short week-end trading session and fractional losses resulted in most groups. Brokers thought most of the selling represented nothing more serious than profit taking. The whole market drifted down, declines in a few instances running to as much as a point or so. The turnover was 1,072,791 shares.

The chief interest of traders seemed to lie in the pending soldier bonus legislation at Washington. The prospects of a huge increase in the public debt as a result was foreseen in the board rooms, as elsewhere, and comment indicated a belief that a wave of inflation will result.

Decision on TVA Awaited.

Further discussion was heard over the forthcoming decision of the United States Supreme court on the constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley authority, now expected to be handed down next Monday, but it was not apparent that the factor was influencing trading in the power or light shares.

Railroad, motor, mining, and some industrial issues attracted the bulk of the selling. "Cheap" issues were again fairly active, one of the notable performers of the division being Commonwealth and Southern, which forged ahead for a small fraction only to fall back to its previous position at the close.

Cheerful Rail Reports Ignored.

Optimistic reports of improved trafic and earnings in January by a number of railroad presidents failed to stimulate the carrier shares. Atchison receded more than a point, while Union Pacific, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, and Delaware and Hudson, and other favorites of the group sagged slightly.

Lower prices were the rule in the steel division, Bethlehem giving up nearly a point. The motors were also under slight pressure, both Chrysler and General Motors losing major fractions.

The crash in silver metal prices continued to be an upsetting factor in the metals department, where Cerro de Pasco and other silver issues added major fractions to a point to the losses they incurred yesterday.

Profit taking was in evidence in the oils, a carry-over of the trend which began in this division several days ago.

FAR EAST AND SOUTH SELL COTTON; PRICES ARE LOWER

Cotton markets developed a reactionary tendency yesterday. The far east and south sold moderately, and there was also scattered pressure due to easier cables from Liverpool. Closing trades in Chicago were 6 points to 12 points lower while other markets were off 3 points to 11 points.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 10 points lower with New Orleans at 11.75 cents, Houston 11.65 cents, Galveston 11.60 cents, and New York 11.85 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound:

COLD WAVE BOOSTS TRADE IN BUTTER, EGG FUTURES

The forecast for a cold wave brought in more aggressive buying of butter and egg future son the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, and the close was at net gains of ⅛ to ⅜ cent on both commodities. January butter closed at 31⅝ cents per pound and January refrigerator eggs at 16⅞ cents per dozen. Sales of butter were 95 cars, eggs 17 cars, and potatoes 3 cars. Prices:

act as "vicious" and the "last word in tyranny." The case was appealed from the District court which rendered a decision declaring the act unconstitutional in its entirety.

Middle West.

Creditors and stockholders of the Middle West Utilities company stood aside last week as the lawyers and receivers presented their bill for services rendered in connection with the company's reorganization. Claims for $1,619,095 in fees and expenses were filed Tuesday in the federal court. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who ordered the filing of the claims, will conduct hearings on the claims in the next few days.

If the claims are allowed substantially as presented, the reorganization will go down as one of the most expensive in history. The claims cover both the equity and reorganization receiverships. Previously, however, $400,000 had been allowed by the court. In only one previous reorganization case, the Paramount Publix Motion Picture corporation, were the total claims larger. Claims in the Paramount case totaled $3,239,796, but Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe of New York approved only $1,045,210, disallowing some claims entirely.

Jobs.

The political theory that industry is able and obligated to absorb millions of unemployed persons was subject to critical appraisal by the national industrial conference board. In a report made public Friday the board cited statistics to show that the maximum that the manufacturing industries can be expected to reemploy would be about 30 per cent of the present idle, or between 2,800,000 and 3,300,000 persons. The estimate was made on the basis of the number of workers employed in industry in 1929. Industry's ability to increase employment 30 per cent is contingent on the restoration of 1929 business conditions, the study indicated.

Policies.

The federal government's policies for promotion of recovery were criticized in another quarter when James O. McKinsey, chairman of Marshall Field & Co., told a Chicago audience Thursday that political tampering with economics under both Hoover and Roosevelt has lengthened the business depression. It was McKinsey's first public appearance since he was elected to head the big merchandise concern.

Under both national administrations, he said, the government has tried to prevent a decline in prices when recovery demanded readjustments to stimulate consumption.

Stocks.

The week in the stock market began with a big spurt in low priced shares. Heavy buying appeared in issues selling between $5 and $10 a share. Inflation sentiment was stimulated by progress of the veterans' bonus bill in congress and the comments of the secretary of the treasury on the heavy borrowing which the government faces in order to keep up with the rapidly mounting public debt. As the week progressed the market's advance was brought to a halt and prices sold off following the crash in the world's silver markets.

Treasury.

On Wednesday the treasury reported the government expenditures for the 1936 fiscal year had crossed the $4,000,000,000 mark, of which nearly half represented a deficit. The statement, dated Jan. 13, showed $4,011,000,000 had been expended so far in the fiscal year. Estimated expenditures for the full year are placed at $7,645,000,000 with a probable deficit of $3,234,000,000.

CONGRESS GROUP PROBING FEES IN MIDDLE WEST

Attorneys' Claims Exceed Company's Cash.

The foot high stack of petitions for fees of more than $1,600,000 in connection with the reorganization of Middle West Utilities company is under the scrutiny of the Sabath congressional committee, which is investigating receiverships and reorganizations, it was learned yesterday.

The claims, said to make the second largest total in the history of the federal courts, call for payment of more money than the company had in cash at the time of its most recent statement.

Daniel C. Green, president of the new company and trustee during reorganization, served notice yesterday through William J. Froelich, attorney for the trustee, that he will go before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson next Tuesday to ask that a date be set for hearings on allowance of fees.

Green and Froelich are among the five groups in the case which did not file specific requests for fees, leaving their compensation to the discretion of the court.

Meanwhile, the fee requests continue to be perused by newspaper men and others. They vary from a few pages to one of 463 pages.

Altruism is the keynote of all petitions. The statements of firms asking pay running into six figures are no less altruistic in tone than the "humble prayer" of Samuel and Leonard A. Ettelson, reciting their participation in the case briefly and asking the court to determine what, if any, fees they should have, adding that they will "cheerfully abide by the decision of this court."

Many of the firms enter into a detailed discussion of their part in the case and how much money they have saved the company or added to its assets.

Attorneys Go Into Details.

Most of the attorneys state the number of hours spent, some going into detail with both long and short notations. There are innumerable items such as "conferred with . . ," "office conference," "attended court," "studied plan," "looked up law," "telephone conversation," "trip to printer," "prepared brief," "revised brief," "rewrote brief," "final redraft of brief," etc., for pages.

Reporters were particularly interested to note how much they may cost the new company in fees for lawyers. Items are sprinkled through the fee requests, showing time spent reading newspaper stories about the case, talking with reporters, and looking up newspaper and statistical files. And all of these thousands of hours listed figure out in fees at $50 to $60 per hour—including both partners and their associates in the various law firms.

TWO FURNITURE SHOWS REPORT RECORD SALES

Two major house furnishings shows closed yesterday with new records in attendance and sales recorded. Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the American Furniture Mart, said sales were 50 per cent above last year's and that attendance exceeded the previous record of 8,179 persons.

T. J. Reed, general manager of the Merchandise Mart, reported attendance of nearly 9,000, about 57 per cent above last year. He estimated the sales totaled 9½ million dollars, which will probably be doubled in the next quarter through repeat orders. Volume of one furniture firm alone exceeded a million, Reed said.

RAILROADS SEEK AGREEMENT TO PROTECT LABOR

Name Committee to Deal with Unions.

Appointment of a committee with broad powers to negotiate with labor officials on rules to protect employés displaced by abandonments or unification was announced yesterday by John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, at the conclusion of a two day closed conference in the Blackstone hotel.

The move is regarded one of the most important taken by the railroads since the meetings here in 1932 which resulted in a 10 per cent wage reduction.

Yesterday's conference had as its object the obtaining of the economies for which the emergency railroad transportation act of 1933—the coördinator law—was enacted, but which, because of a certain provision, have not been realized.

Labor Protective Provision.

This provision, embodied in section 7b of the law, prohibits the reduction of employés through consolidations or unification, below the number existing in May, 1933, or "placing employés in a worse position with respect to compensation." The law expires next June. Following a conference here Jan. 6, the Association of Railway Labor Executives sought a meeting with railroad officials to work out an operating agreement.

Two groups were named yesterday, one of labor and employé relations officials, and another of road presidents to act in an advisory capacity. Members of the first are:

Other Territory Members.

Western territory: E. J. Connors, assistant vice president, Union Pacific, Omaha; C. M. Dukes, assistant vice president, Milwaukee road, Chicago; C. A. Clements, assistant general manager, Missouri Pacific, St. Louis.

Southern territory: C. D. Mackey, assistant vice president, Southern railway, Washington, D. C.; W. J. Jenks, vice president, Norfolk and Western, Roanoke, Va.; P. R. Albright, vice president, Atlantic Coast Line, Wilmington, N. C.

The committee of presidents consists of: East, E. S. French, Boston and Maine; C. E. Denney, Erie; M. W. Clement, Pennsylvania; J. M. Davis, Lackawanna; E. E. Sheer, Reading; F. E. Williamson, New York Central. West: Carl R. Gray, Union Pacific; H. A. Scandrett, Milwaukee; H. W. Baldwin, Missouri Pacific. South: L. A. Downs, Illinois Central; G. B. Elliott, Atlantic Coast Line; A. C. Needles, Norfolk and Western.

Both Sides Dissatisfied.

Although section 7b of the transportation act was drawn to protect labor, preliminary meetings between labor and railway officials have disclosed that both sides are dissatisfied with it.

The managements have repeatedly cited the clause as an obstruction to the reduction of competitive wastes. Many believe it unlikely that the section will be continued as a law regardless of what further rail legislation may be considered by congress.

JUDGE BLOCKS 'LITTLE AAA' ACT IN CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Superior Judge Emmet H. Wilson granted a restraining order today against enforcement of the California "Little AAA" in its regulation of California oranges and grapefruit.

A petition for an injunction against the enforcement of the California "Little AAA" was asked by Dr. Harry W. Forbes, head of a committee of 65 grapefruit growers of the Coachella and Imperial valleys.

The petition alleged that the California agricultural adjustment act of 1935 is unconstitutional and has been unfair to desert grapefruit growers.

The restraining order granted is returnable on Jan. 27 at which time the defendants are ordered to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be granted.

FRENCH FRANC DIPS, RECOVERS; POUND LOWER

New York, Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Foreign exchanges today reflecting uncertainty over the position of the franc in view of threat of another French cabinet crisis. French exchange dipped ¼ point to 6.60¼ cents early but rallied to close unchanged. The dollar was worth $1.0043 against francs. The pound sterling dropped ½ cent to $4.95½.

The fall of the franc has amounted to 4¼ points net in the last week and that of the pound to 1⅝ cents. The guilder was unchanged today to 68.05 cents, but showed a net drop of 35 points in the week. The Swiss franc rose 2 points today to 32.62 cents, but was down 13 points for the week. Belgas up 1 point today at 16.90 cents, lost 6 points net in the week. Canadian dollars remained at parity.

Lincoln National Life and DeMet's Vote Dividend

The Lincoln National Life Insurance company yesterday declared four quarterly dividends of 30 cents each, and announced that the annual stockholders' meeting will be held on Jan. 29, when the directorate will be reduced from 28 to 16 members. DeMet's, Inc., declared 55 cents a share on the preference stock, leaving arrears of $3.85 a share after this payment on Feb. 1.

"Another factor to consider is the probable increase in domestic consumption of farm products due to business recovery and lower prices to the consumer."

Larger crops, he pointed out, will make possible increased employment by railroads, processing plants, and other businesses, and enlarged industrial pay rolls will mean bigger consuming capacity on the part of labor in the cities. The domestic market, he added, is far more important than the foreign market because normally the total value, American farm exports, excluding cotton, is only about 5 per cent of the total value of our domestic production.

"In cotton there is still a job to be done," he continued. "Cotton is right where wheat was during the years when the farm board was piling up tremendous surpluses in its vain attempt to keep prices pegged at high levels.

Punish Little Fellow.

"The sooner the cotton problem is settled the better for all concerned. The AAA was no solution. Prices have been pegged at artificial levels, but the share croppers, the little fellows, were taking the punishment at the expense of the big plantation owners."

To illustrate his argument that bringing down cost of production stimulates production Mr. Murray cited the shift in production of cotton from high cost areas to low cost areas. He produced government figures to show that while the cost of cotton production in Georgia was rising from 7.2 cents to 9.2 cents per pound from 1910 to 1932, the production in that state dropped from 4,750,000 acres to 2,651,000 acres, while in Texas, during the same period the cost of production dropped from 6.6 cents to 6.1 cents per pound and production increased from 9,875,000 acres to 13,334,000 acres.

COMMODITY MARKETS MORE NORMAL SINCE ELIMINATION OF AAA

Commodity markets last week fluctuated in a more normal manner, having apparently completed readjustments necessitated by the Supreme court decision eliminating the AAA in the preceding week. Grain prices held within narrow limits, closing around the best prices of the week. Lard, eggs, and silver sold at new lows since trading in the May delivery started, while rubber sold at a new high during the week.

Closing prices on a representative list of commodities for two weeks, with the high and low levels for the season to date, follow:

USE OF CHECKS INDICATES DIP IN BUSINESS TOTAL

Business transactions conducted by check fell sharply last week from the preceding week when the total was abnormally large because of year-end and month-end settlements.

Debits to individual account in the nation's 12 federal reserve districts amounted to $8,583,131,000 in the week ended Jan. 8, compared with $10,097,024,000 a week earlier and $8,061,895,000 last year.

A similar trend was recorded in the Seventh district—the Chicago area. Debits aggregated $1,044,198,000, a decrease of 14.2 per cent from the preceding week, but an increase of about 2.7 per cent from a year ago. Chicago's volume amounted to $600,539,000 against $630,775,000 a year ago.

Chicago bank clearings in the week ended yesterday totaled $286,500,000, compared with $269,800,000 in the preceding week and $259,500,000 last year.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK STOCK RISES 25 POINTS IN WEEK

A net gain of 25 points in First National bank stock marked over-the-counter trading here last week. After early sales at 230, the stock rose to 278, but reacted to close at 250 bid, 255 asked.

Continental Illinois eased to a low and closing price of 125 bid, 127 asked, off 6 points, in a light turnover. Harris Trust gained 25 points to 340 bid, 350 asked. Sellers were not attracted by a rise of 20 points in Northern Trust stock to a bid quotation of $600 a share.

GRAIN TRADING SHRINKS; WHEAT ABOUT STEADY

Corn and Oats Display a Firm Undertone.

Trading was so light on the board of trade yesterday that wheat price changes held within a range of ⅛ to ⅜ cent most of the day. It was not until the last half hour of the session that activity developed. Week-end evening up, a little strength in Winnipeg, and scattered commission house buying lifted prices moderately toward the close, but the market quickly settled back and final sales were practically the same as on Friday.

Corn and other grains showed a firm undertone, however, and sold at the best prices of the week, closing fractionally higher.

Volume at Low Level.

A total of only 10,508,000 bushels of all grain futures was traded Friday, and it was estimated by pit observers that yesterday's total was much smaller. On Aug. 14, 1933, the total business was 4,084,000 bushels, the smallest on record wit htrading entirely in the way of evening up outstanding contracts at pegged prices. All grains opened off the limit permitted for one day's decline under exchange regulations at that time, and business was at practically a standstill.

There was no evidence of weakness in the world wheat markets yesterday. The March delivery in Liverpool sold at a new high for the season. Although the foreign demand for Canadian cash wheat was rather slow, Winnipeg closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower.

Comparative Figures.

Closing prices on May deliveries of leading grains, with comparisons, follow:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$1.00⅝	$1.00⅝	$1.00⅝
Corn	.60⅝	.60⅝	.60⅛
Oats	.28⅛	.28	.28⅛
Rye	.55⅛	.54⅝	.54⅛

Corn, oats and rye trading was limited, but when shorts tried to cover they found little for sale. All deliveries of corn closed at the same price, with some buying of May by cash interests. Sales of 65,000 bushels of cash rye were made to distilling interests by Chicago handlers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 18.—Narrow and mixed price movements characterized quiet trading in bonds on the New York exchange during today. Although some speculative interest was manifested in the lower priced railroad and selected utility issues, the general list appeared to settle slightly from the recent highs.

The market for United States government loans was quiet and featureless and lacked a uniform trend. Closing quotations showed gains of 1-32 to 3-32 and declines of 1-32 to 4-32 point.

Some of Rails Advance.

In the rail section the bonds of New York, Susquehana and Western again responded to a brisk demand and extended their advance with gains of 2¾ to 7 points. Chicago and North Western issues attracted some speculative interest and moved up fractionally to about a point. More moderate advances ruled in the bonds of Lehigh Valley and some of the St. Paul issues. New Haven Consolidated 4s of 1956, rose 5½ points on a small turnover.

Foreign List Is Firm.

Foreign dollar obligations were steady to firm with Uruguay government issues responding to a fairly good demand at higher levels. European loans showed little change in quiet trading.

Total transactions were $10,087,600 for the short session against $10,816,300 a week ago.

The combined price average for 40 domestic corporate bonds advanced 0.77 point last week, while an average for 10 foreign issues moved up 0.56.

One Man's Inventory.

S. B. writes as follows:

"A few days ago you asked the small investors to 'take inventory.' Here is my inventory and would be pleased to have your opinion of the assorted investments. I am an old man and this is all I have for my wife and self. It is hard for me to understand what to do."

S. B. holds $4,950 of Kresge stock, $3,162 of Walgreen, $1,658 of Sears-Roebuck, $2,265 of Armour 6 per cent preferred, $2,618 of American Telephone and Telegraph, $687.50 of Socony, $2,962 of Chicago Yellow Cab, $112 of Rock Island preferred, $75 of Rock Island bonds, $2,080 of Union Pacific bonds, and a $500 real estate bond.

These are valued on the basis of market prices as submitted by S. B. Investors' Guide does not advise any individual whether to buy, sell, or hold specific securities. It has no pet stocks; neither does it attempt to predict the market. These policies, however, do not prevent pointing out violations of fundamental established investment principles.

The most obvious objection is the lack of diversification as to industry. Of total investments of $19,340, more than half, $9,770 to be exact, is in stocks of chain store organizations.

If factors should arise that would make chain store stocks as a whole unfavorable, the value of the estate would shrink substantially. Not that Investors' Guide infers necessarily that the outlook for chain store stocks is unfavorable, but no estate should be set up on a basis where an unfavorable development in one line of trade would markedly affect the entire portfolio.

The cure for this is the scaling down of investments in these companies and investment of the proceeds in securities of some type of businesses not covered.

Only $560 is invested in securities that are not suitable for an individual who is dependent on return from investments—the Armour common and the Rock Island securities. If S. B. feels that he is in a position to hold these as a speculation, realizing that they are a speculation, all well and good. If, however, he does not wish to speculate, it is advisable for him to sell out and invest the proceeds in income producing securities.

Only ten per cent of the entire estate, however, is in high grade bonds. This, to us, appears to be too small. Although in times like these an individual is waranted in reducing his stake in bonds, still the policy should not be carried to extremes.

Investors' Guide is not in a position to comment on the real estate bond, since S. B. did not furnish us with its name.

NEW OFFERINGS OF SECURITIES TO SHOW LULL

Refunding by Inland Steel Will Feature Week.

Comparatively few security offerings are scheduled for this week upon expiration of the 20 day period which must elapse between application to the Securities and Exchange commission for registration and actual sales.

The feature of the offerings is Inland Steel company's financing, scheduled for Wednesday. The company seeks to issue $10,000,000 first mortgage 3 per cent bonds of series C, maturing serially from 1937 to 1946, and $35,000,000 of series D 3¾ per cent bonds, due Feb. 1, 1961. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. will underwrite $15,000,000 and Morgan, Stanley & Co. $4,000,000 of the latter.

Of the proceeds, $26,445,000 will be used to redeem $25,800,000 first mortgage 4½s, due 1978, at 102½ plus accrued interest on April 1, 1936. Another $14,145,000 will be used to retire $13,800,000 first mortgage 4½s of 1981 at 102½ and interest. The balance will be used for corporate purposes.

New York Utility Offering.

The other principal offering is the New York State Electric and Gas corporation's issue of $17,500,000 of 4 per cent first mortgage bonds due in 1965, scheduled for offering tomorrow. Of the proceeds $12,324,700 will be used to redeem or pay at maturity eight different obligations. The remaining $5,175,300 will be exchanged with affiliates for an equal principal amount of company bonds now outstanding.

The Wabash Telephone company of Bloomington, Ill., wishes to issue $1,000,000 first mortgage 4½ per cent 20 year sinking fund bonds due Jan. 1, 1956, probably tomorrow.

The only other bond offering in sight this week is a possible issue of $8,000,000 to $9,000,000 by the Maine Central railroad to refinance part of outstanding obligations not to be paid off in cash.

Several Stock Issues Scheduled.

The Joliet [Ill.] Heating corporation seeks to issue 25,500 shares of $5 par 6 per cent convertible preferred stock and 30,000 shares of no par common. Application is to be effective Friday. To become effective tomorrow are registrations by Campana Gold Mines, Inc., of Chicago, of 1,000,000 shares of $1 par common stock and by Eastern Life Insurance company of New York of 15,000 shares of $3.50 par common to be offered at $12.50 a share.

Among principal offerings scheduled for the following week are Republic Steel corporation's $45,000,000 issue of 25 year bonds and Skelly Oil company's $12,000,000 issues of serial notes and debentures.

HOGS IRREGULAR, BUT AVERAGE IS HIGHER IN WEEK

Final quotations for young hogs yesterday were steady to 25 cents lower than the last sales of the preceding week, but packing sows closed steady to 10 cents higher. The average for the week, $9.90, showed a further gain of 10 cents.

While other live stock was affected some by the competition of cheaper pork, no drastic price cuts have been made in either cattle or sheep since the processing tax was taken off the hog market. The average price of steers for the last two weeks when beef was selling in competition with sharply reduced pork prices, figured $9.50 as compared with $9.65 for the two preceding weeks. Lambs during the same period showed a decline of 60 cents.

Both cattle and sheep markets have been handling larger receipts and gross returns from all live stock have increased sharply. The following compilation shows the returns to farmers from live stock sold at the twenty leading markets during the last two weeks, the two preceding weeks, and the corresponding period in 1935 [in thousands of dollars]:

	Cattle.	Hogs.	Sheep.
Last 2 weeks	31,000	22,465	4,376
Preceding 2 weeks	21,450	12,198	3,835
Corres. 2 wks. in 1935	20,745	12,819	3,472

In this time cattle men sold 443,000 head, as compared with 330,000 in the two preceding weeks, and 461,000 a year ago. Sheep receipts totaled 521,000 compared with 431,000, and 496,000 a year ago.

LIGHT TRADING IN LARD; PRICES RISE MODERATELY

Trade in lard futures yesterday was light and prices held within narrow limits, closing 7½ to 12½ cents higher. Clear bellies [salt pork] were offered 50 cents lower without interesting buyers.

Cash lard closed at $10.87, loose $10.37, leaf $10.25, and clear bellies at $15 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

ZEPHYR TRAINS TO MAKE DENVER RUN IN 16 HOURS

Save Business Day Between Chicago and West.

ing cars, including a compartment sleeper, two de luxe coaches with reclining seats, a diner, a combination club car and baggage car, and a baggage car. The Pullman company will probably operate the sleepers. Each train will have a capacity of 200 passengers.

Construction of the trains has already been started in the plant of the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company in the east. They will be of stainless steel and the cars will have an exterior width of 10 feet, which is 2⅝ inches wider than conventional passenger coaches. There will be plenty of room for the passengers to move about. Windows will be of the same large type contained in the older Zephyrs, which give passengers unobstructed vision of the landscape.

Running Schedule Arranged.

The projected operating plan for the trains, based on eastern standard time for Chicago, is as follows:

Westbound.

Leave Chicago 5:30 p. m. [eastern standard time].

Arrive Omaha 12:15 a. m. [central standard time].

Arrive Denver 7:30 a. m. [mountain time].

Eastbound.

Leave Denver 4 p. m. [mountain time].

Arrive Omaha 1:15 a. m. [central standard time].

Arrive Chicago 10 a. m. [eastern standard time].

While the average speed between the two terminals will be 65 miles an hour, stops at six or seven of the more important cities on the route will call for a cruising speed of 90 miles an hour or better. Cities at which it is expected stops will be made include Galesburg, Ill.; Burlington, Ia., and Omaha, Lincoln, and Hastings, Neb.

Completion of a new right of way through the Republican river valley in Nebraska last October makes possible this high speed run, it was stated. It was over this track that the Burlington's Zephyr train, the Mark Twain, last October traveled for three miles at a rate of 122 miles an hour.

Six Streamlined Trains.

When the Denver Zephyrs go into service the Burlington will have six streamlined trains in service. Two are in service between Chicago and St. Paul-Minneapolis; one between Lincoln, Omaha and Kansas City, and one, the Mark Twain, serves the Mississippi river towns between St. Louis and Burlington, Ia. All these trains have made records in the number of passengers carried.

When the Denver Zephyrs go into service the Burlington will have a Zephyr mileage of 4,782. Up to the beginning of 1936 the four Burlington Zephyrs had a combined mileage of 697,687 miles.

CHICAGO STOCKS EASE BUT SHOW GAINS FOR WEEK

Some weakness cropped out in Chicago stocks yesterday to end a week which had seen prices edge steadily higher amid a liberal sprinkling of new highs for 1935 and 1936.

Trading continued active, with the week's volume amounting to 584,000 shares. This was only slightly less than the preceding week's 641,000 share volume, which was the second highest in two and a half years. A year ago volume was 120,000 shares.

Ninety-six issues advanced, 68 declined, and 29 were unchanged in last week's trading, showing a trend similar to the preceding week. Fifty issues made new highs, three of them yesterday.

Trading yesterday totaled 43,000 shares, with the turn to weakness illustrated by the advance of only 21 issues, while 49 declined and 38 were unchanged. Price changes were generally narrow, few moves of as much as a point being recorded.

Some weakness cropped out in utilities, with Commonwealth Edison declining $2 a share. Public Service no par was off 1⅜. Cities Service was off an eighth. Central and South West prior lien dropped a point.

CITY BUDGET TO AID SOUTH SIDE

TICKETS READY THIS WEEK FOR WOMAN FORUMS

Congress Will Be Feb. 13 and 14.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Tickets for the five sessions and the formal dinner that will constitute the program of the 1936 Woman congress will be ready for distribution this week in the congress headquarters, Room 1418, Tribune Tower. The congress, a nonpartisan forum for the discussion of current affairs under the sponsorship of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be held Feb. 13 and 14 in the Palmer house.

Requests for tickets yesterday totaled far up in the thousands. As long as the ticket supply holds out these requests and new ones that are registered will be filled by mail.

To allow the maximum number of persons to attend the forum individual tickets are being issued for each session. These are easily distinguished by their color and stubs. There are no admittance fees of any character for any of the five sessions but admittance will be by ticket only on account of the limited seating capacity.

Dinner Tickets Available.

Two dollars will be asked for the formal dinner which will bring the two day gathering to a brilliant close. Checks made payable to the Woman congress may be directed to the headquarters and dinner tickets will be mailed immediately or reservations only may be made in the headquarters. In the latter instance the tickets may be obtained and paid for during the preceding sessions of the congress on Feb. 13 and 14 or immediately preceding the dinner, the evening of the fourteenth.

International affairs will be the theme of the dinner which is to have as honorary sponsors a committee of one hundred distinguished women in the midwest including the wives of the governors in the twelve central western states.

The congress is to open promptly at noon on Feb. 13 with a one hour session during which the keynote address will be heard.

Education and Welfare.

At the afternoon meeting, to be called to order at 2:30 o'clock, modern problems of education and social welfare will be discussed. National political figures will take part in a nonpartisan discussion of the 1936 political situation at the evening session at 8:30 o'clock on Feb. 13.

One of the world's great scientists and leaders in the field of finance, business and industry will be here the morning of Feb. 14 to address the gathering. In the afternoon four of the most glamorous figures from the world of arts will be presented in a discussion of the present day trend of culture in America.

Each session of the congress and the dinner will be featured by entertainment by stars of the opera, concert, and radio stage.

Wide Area Included.

Not only in interest and distinction but also in the radius from which the audience will be drawn the 1936 congress will surpass its two predecessors. Influential women who are leaders in the national organizations and members of the faculties in schools and colleges are coming to be in attendance. Railroad passenger associations through the country have recognized the importance of the event by granting a special round trip concession amounting to a fare and one-third.

Every Chicago community will send its representatives from church societies, leagues of women voters, parent-teacher organizations, fraternal groups, women's clubs and other organizations of a civic and social character. In the majority of meetings throughout the city and its environs announcement of the congress will be made during the next three weeks.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS SAFETY FORUM TO HEAR OHIOAN

The Southurban Group Safety forum of the Chicago Safety council will meet on Tuesday evening at the Washington school in Chicago Heights. Michael P. Grady, foreman of the Pennsylvania railroad shops in Canton, O., will speak on "The Spirit of the Shop." The general committee of the local group will have a dinner meeting at the Thomas hotel, preceding the forum. Carl Coffelt, chairman, will preside and introduce the speaker.

19 Lutheran Congregations to Hold Annual Meeting

The Rev. J. A. Parkander, pastor of Gustavus Adolphus Evangelical Lutheran church, 7426 Drexel avenue, announces that the annual meeting of the Southern Chicago district, comprising 19 congregations, will be held next Tuesday afternoon and evening at this church. The business session will begin at 1 o'clock.

Hamilton Park Pin-Rail Club to Give Play Friday

The Pin-Rail club of Hamilton park will present its third play of the season, "Some Baby," on Friday evening at the fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard.

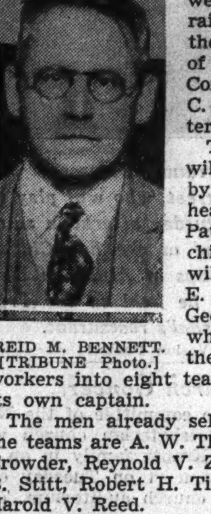
Senior Prom Leaders of Southwest Side Schools

For efficiency at her prosaic task as secretary of the senior class at Harper High school her classmates have rewarded Miss Bernice Lucas with the glamorous duty of leading their senior prom, to be held on Friday evening at the Southmoor hotel.

If "pleasure earned be doubly sweet," Miss Lorraine Nelson will be quite the gayest promenader at Calumet High school's promenade on Friday evening, for she is one of the most active workers for the dance.

Beverly 'Y' Dinner to Open $4,000 Drive

A "kick-off" dinner tomorrow evening at the Morgan Park Military academy will launch a two week drive to raise $4,000 for the 1936 budget of the Beverly Community Y. M. C. A., 1930 Monterey avenue.



REID M. BENNETT.

The community will be canvassed by a committee headed by A. Paul Heinze. His chief assistants will be Charles E. Snyder and George Miller, who will divide their corps of workers into eight teams, each with its own captain.

The men already selected to head the teams are A. W. Thomas, Gordon Crowder, Reynold V. Zacher, Robert B. Stitt, Robert H. Timberlake, and Harold V. Reed.

Special Gift Solicitors.

A special gift committee, under the chairmanship of Reid M, Bennett, head of the committee of management at the "Y," will augment the team organization.

Members of this group are W. F. Hoffman, Paul N. Mitchell, Glen Parkway, Glenn D. Adams, Col. Harry D. Abells, Gilbert H. Tompkins, S. A. Poyer, Glenn Suthers, and Carl P. Barnett. Robert O'Kane, executive secretary of the local "Y," and R. W. Hickman, financial adviser of the general office, also will assist in the campaign.

Speaking of the Y. M. C. A. program, Mr. O'Kane said, "All its activities are for our own community boys and girls and as far as possible are under the sponsorship and leadership of community men and women. No membership fees are charged.

Clubs and Classes.

"In 1935, 2,214 participants took part in 68,969 hours of program promoted and directed in homes, schools, churches, playgrounds, and vacant stores within this community."

Activities are provided for 211 boys in 15 clubs and 56 in five Friendly Indian tribes. The four girls clubs have a membership of 57; 28 boys belong to the Honor Hi-Y club; 35 are enrolled in the woodworking class, and 55 in the handicraft club. Six musical organizations meet regularly at the "Y," and the 10 outdoor recreations groups have a membership of 308 boys.

Hamilton Park Group Will Discuss Medicine

The Hamilton Park Discussion group will meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard. The program will open with a review of current events by E. E. Enos, and members will discuss "Socialized Medicine," with Mrs. Charles W. Balch as their leader. G. C. Staley, president, will preside.

Gage Park Citizens' Club to Elect Officers Tuesday

The Gage Park Citizens' Improvement club will meet for election of officers on Tuesday evening at the Gage Park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue.

Godbout, and the Beverly Gardens Improvement association, Mrs. M. M. Rickerson.

The churches in the district, the North Beverly Improvement association and the Foster Park Improvement association, also will send delegates. James L. Merrick will act as secretary of the committee on arrangements.

BAIN BANK DEPOSITORS MEETING CALLED TO DEMAND REPAYMENT

In an effort to obtain repayment through collective action Bain bank depositors will hold a massmeeting tomorrow evening in the auditorium of the Gage park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue.

WM. F. STELZER.

William F. Stelzer, president of the Lawn Civic association, who is calling the meeting on the recommendation of the depositors' committee of the group, will invite Edward J. Barrett, state auditor, and William O'Connell, receiver for closed state banks, to address the assembly.

Chicago Heights Orchestra Will Give Concert Today

The Chicago Heights Civic orchestra, directed by Fred Ohlendorf, will give the second concert of its sixth season at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Washington school auditorium. Marion Newton Heater, soprano, will be guest artist.

Proms Promise Gay Climax to Student Days

A gay, climactic scene of the final act of the drama of their high school careers will be enacted this week as hundreds of students on the southwest side attend their senior proms. Four schools—Calumet, Englewood, Harper, and Lindblom—will hold their dances on Friday evening.

The Englewood seniors will be the guests of the Hi-Y club at the Shoreland hotel. Thomas Blakley, president of the club, with Miss Janet Bucner, president of the graduating class, will lead the prom.

Wing Leaders Announced.

The school gym will be the scene of the Calumet dance. Wings will be led by Gordon Murray, prom chairman, who will escort Miss Mary Louise Westfall, president of the Senior Girls' council, and Carl Larsen, class president, with Miss Ruth Bergstrom.

Students who have been active in planning the event are Miss Francine Stephenson, Miss Lorraine Nelson, Ernest Hecht, Frank Caveney, Robert Anderson, Carl Ebbersberger, Ray Liebrandt, Miss Charlotte Rexstrew, Miss Irene Breuch, Miss Ethel Forbes, Miss Sadie Thompson, and Miss Arlene Warn.

The seniors from Harper will dance in the Venetian room of the Southmoor hotel. Miss Marie Nimz is general chairman. Her assisting committees are: Hall, John O'Connor, Miss Louise Alexander, Miss Margaret Rodden, and Robert Cartwright; orchestra, Glenn Jett, Frank Orrio, Miss Pauline Geigner, and Miss Betty Gierse.

Printing, Salvatore Perri, Rugh Bloomquist, and James Bratsos; invitations, Miss Elsie Frank, David Parke, Miss Virginia Kelly, Max Ephraim, Miss Grace Kipp, and Miss Helen Murphy, and publicity, Miss Janet Nuemann, Tom Del Monte, Miss Eileen Noble, and Miss Florence Risen.

Lindblom Supper Dance.

The Lindblom High school seniors will have a supper dance in the grand ballroom of the Medinah Michigan Avenue club. Miss Virginia Pendlebury, vice president, is chairman.

The left wing of the grand march will be lead by Miss Geraldine Studenroth, escorted by Gene Rubessa, class president, and the right wing by Miss Pendlebury, with Raymond Egdorf.

Tuesday, Jan. 28, is the date of the Morgan Park prom, which will be held at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Earle Hessley is chairman. His assistants are Miss Mary Jane Ray, Miss Amita Goss, Miss Ruth Dillman, Miss Ruth Dunn, Miss Mary Gifford, Miss Margaret Standerline, John Stearns, Vincent Owles, Orton Alkire, Carl Schulssler, James Hogg, Paul Brown, and Lee Taylor.

Kelly Seniors Hold Dance.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

IN celebration of her 93d birthday, Mrs. Mina Degan, south side pioneer, was fêted by her three sons, Sol, Lewis, and David, last Sunday with a dinner party at the Chicago Beach hotel. Mrs. Degan has resided on the south side since she came to Chicago, a bride, in 1867. Her first home was on Halsted street, near Van Buren. Moving south with the city limits, she now resides with her son Lewis at 2212 East 68th street. For a lady of her years, Mrs. Degan is unusually active—on New Year's eve she celebrated until 2:30 o'clock. She reads two newspapers daily, beginning the day with THE TRIBUNE, which has been delivered to her home every morning for more than 50 years. Knitting is another favorite pastime, much of her work being small garments for her great-grand children.

NEW ZONTA CLUB TO GIVE MUSICAL AND TEA SUNDAY

A musical and tea for new members is to be given next Sunday afternoon by the South Side Zonta club in the Windermere hotel, 56th street and Hyde Park boulevard. Officers of other Chicago and suburban Zonta units will take part in the ceremony of welcome.

Among those who will take part in the musical program are Mrs. Margaret Lester, soprano, accompanied by William Lester, Miss Florence Brinkman, pianist, and the Sterling woman's quartet, whose members include Miss Charlotte Miller, Miss Bertha Hoffard, Miss Eleanor Montague, and Miss Gladys Sherwood. Mrs. Ora Bogen will accompany the quartet.

Visting Zonta leaders include Mrs. Ann Zinser, president of the Chicago Loop club, Miss Harriet Richardson, president of the Evanston unit, and Miss Clara Loufborrow, president of the Oak Park club. Miss Alma Wilson McMahill is president of the South Side club.

PARTY TO RAISE HOSPITAL FUNDS FOR SCOUT CAMP

A benefit card party to raise funds for the building of a new hospital at the Girl Scouts' Timber Trail camp in northern Michigan will be given at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at the North End Woman's club, 6200 North Sheridan road.

Active in planning the party are Mrs. Clyde I. Backus, 1425 Rascher avenue; Mrs. Paul Turpin, 9917 South Irving avenue; Mrs. George Giles, 1427 School street; Mrs. Albert Koepke, 10189 Indianapolis avenue; Mrs. Emil Burgh, 1139 North Long avenue; Mrs. Sherlock McKewen, 174 Linden street, Winnetka; Mrs. Harry Darger, 2022 Lincoln street, Evanston; Mrs. Jeanette Hahn, 1317 Farwell avenue; Mrs. C. Timber Trail is the older Scouts' camp. It is in the Hiawatha National forest.

ALDERMEN LIST WARD NEEDS IN 1936 PROGRAMS

Better Streets and Lights Sought.

A considerable portion of the 1936 city budget of $122,142,082.29, passed by the city council with Mayor Kelly's approval on Jan. 3, will be spent on the south and southwest sides, a survey made last week discloses. While the routine expenses of departmental operation will use up the greater part of the money, many public improvements will be brought about if the recommendations of south side aldermen are followed.

This year's budget is smaller by approximately $8,000,000 than the 1935 budget, although operating expenses of some departments have risen and salaries of some officials have been increased. Economies effected in the operation of other departments and the huge amounts spent by the various federal agencies, such as the PWA and WPA, are said to account for the decrease.

Aldermen Tell Plans.

A ten day period of public advertisement of the budget, required by law, started last Monday. At its conclusion on Thursday the budget becomes effective. Operation of the government in the period between the first of the year and the effective date of the 1936 budget is cared for by a special budget.

To get an idea of what improvements are contemplated for the south side, THE TRIBUNE last week polled all available aldermen of the 19 wards. Here is what they have to say:

First ward—Ald. John J. Coughlin: "The First ward has been paying for most of the improvements throughout the city for the last 50 years. If all the money collected in taxes was spent within the ward the people could walk on streets paved with gold. But, inasmuch as we're pretty well equipped with what we need, we have no real kick coming. I have made no requests in the budget for funds other than those needed for routine operation."

New Street Lights.

Third ward—Ald. Robert R. Jackson: "The Third ward has been so well taken care of in the PWA and WPA programs that the improvements we have been contemplating are all taken care of."

Fourth ward—Ald. Berthold A. Cronson: "I have asked that a portion of the streets and alleys appropriations be used in replacing all streets surfaced with creosote blocks with macadam. I have also requested that refuse removal be speeded up and that new street lights be installed on Cottage Grove avenue between 39th street and 53d street."

Fifth ward—Ald. James J. Cusack: "An infant welfare station will be established in the vicinity of 55th street and Woodlawn avenue, if recommendation is carried out. I have requested the department of electricity of install new street lights on Hyde Park boulevard from 51st to 56th streets and 55th street from Cottage Grove avenue to Lake Park avenue. These lights, if installed, will supplement those now maintained by the merchants."

Asks New Playgrounds.

Sixth ward—Ald. John F. Healy: Installation of higher candle power lights on 63d street from South Park avenue to Stony Island avenue, is one of the items asked by Ald. Healy. He also seeks several new playgrounds and installation of trafic control lights along St. Lawrence avenue at 61st, 63d, 67th, and 69th streets.

Seventh ward—Ald. Thomas J. Daley: An infant welfare station, to be established in the vicinity of 71st street and Ridgeland avenue, is asked by Ald. Daley. At the request of the business men's group he also is asking for increased police protection and an additional squad car.

Eighth ward—Ald. Michael F. Mulcahy: Completion of the city's share of the work in connection with the opening of the 87th street subway, paving of Woodlawn avenue beneath the 94th street subway, paving of all unimproved streets, and completion of all work on playgrounds and grading of parkways are sought.

Ninth ward—Ald. Arthur G. Lindell: New street lights on Halsted street between 103d street and the city limits have been asked by Ald. Lindell. The carrying out of the city's portion of the Calumet improvement project and the opening of 103d street are two other items on his list.

$101,000 Freight Terminal.

Tenth ward—Ald. William A. Rowan: Like Ald. Lindell, whose ward adjoins his, Ald. Rowan is interested in the 103d street project and the Calumet improvement. He also has introduced a measure to appropriate $101,000 for a railroad and ship freight terminal in the proposed Calumet harbor, will seek to have $200,000 appropriated for the payment of property easements along the proposed new channel of the Little Calumet river, and has asked for $3,000 to maintain the new motorists' hostelry in Hummel Square.

Eleventh ward—Ald. Hugh B. Connelly: One of the ward's chief projects, the new police station, is already under construction at 3501 Lowe avenue, and will be paid for out of a PWA grant and the 1936

The achievement cup, which is presented every semester to the boy with the highest scholastic average in the 4B class, went to Ray Bronez, track star who is headed toward the valedictory of the June graduating class. The pins were presented by Jerry Burks and the cup by Harry Keeler, school principal.

Makes Farewell Address.

Fritz Kebel, Lindblom's football captain in 1929 and who later played at Purdue for three years, was the principal speaker at the banquet, which was presided over by Richard Sher as toastmaster. Albert Valiguet, whose "L" pin bears six stars to indicate the letters he has won, made the farewell speech for the group. John Maciasz gave the response.

Other speakers were E. H. Palmer, assistant principal, and E. L. Moore, football coach and dean of boys.

Walter Kapka, who held the achievement cup last semester, was one of those awarded "L" pins. Others are Eugene Abram, Franklin Anderson, Herbert Ball, Stanley Bartell, William Brand, John Chorvat, Ted Clausen, Charles Costello, Robert Culen, Fred Dombro, Fred Engelman, Charles Haas, John Kalafut, and Joe Kaleckas.

Winners of Awards.

Awards also went to William McMaster, William Mittermann, Earl Nealis, Cyrus Parks, Zane Pazulp, John Reinhardt, Michael Roman, Richard Sher, Edward Sierasky, Robert Smith, Carl Stastny, Leroy Steffenhagen, Peter Switenki, James Urban, Vito Vitkus, Wade Watson, Tony Zajaczek, and Robert Zelus.

Mrs. George Sullivan, president of the mothers' club, had charge of the banquet. Her assistants were Mrs. Gussie Mutter, Mrs. Joseph W. Cisar, Mrs. J. A. Daley, Mrs. Emile Wolfenson, Mrs. Paul Zelus, and Mrs. John L. Baker.

AWARD TILDEN CADETS MEDALS FOR EFFICIENCY

Cadet Lieutenant Nicholas Russo and Cadet Staf Sergeant William Kadi of the Tilden Tech High school reserve officers training corps, have been named to receive efficiency medals for the present semester, according to Sergt. Michael J. Moore, U. S. A., instructor. The presentation will be made at an assembly Wednesday morning.

Cadet Russo was awarded the officers' efficiency medal for his outstanding work in conducting the special class for noncommissioned officers and for his superior showing in an examination given to the officers recently. Cadet Sergeant Kadi merited his award for his efficient work as regimental staf officer.

Cadet Second Lieutenant Thomas Cahill will replace Cadet Lieutenant Russo in conducting the noncommissioned officers class this coming semester. Cadet First Sergeant Norman Seip was elected president of the Civic Industrial club recently. The group is recognized as one of the most important clubs in the school, sponsoring campaigns to improve school conditions.

LEAP YEAR PARTY

MISS MARY McSLOY.

The Chicago Alumnae chapter of Phi Gamma Nu, national professional sorority represented in the city at the De Paul university college of commerce, will hold a Leap Year party Tuesday evening in the solarium of the 40 East Oak street apartments. Miss Mary McSloy, 6651 University avenue, president of the chapter, is one of the members active in making arrangements for the party.

CALUMET CADETS WIN MEDALS

There's something about a soldier, but there's something more about these Calumet High school R. O. T. C. cadets. Cadet Captain Charles Bevans, Cadet Major Fred Merker, and Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Ernest Hecht are three of the thirty who were presented with gold and silver medals by The Chicago Tribune. Others in the picture are Maj. John H. Ringe, U. S. A., of the Chicago High school R. O. T. C. and Capt. Maxwell Corpening of The Tribune.

240 South Side R. O. T. C. Cadets to Receive Medals

To the accompaniment of stirring military music, 240 south side R. O. T. C. cadets will march up on the assembly stages of nine high schools this week to receive the first gold and silver medals being awarded to outstanding Chicago cadets by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE this week.

MAJ. GEN. FRANK R. McCOY.

Before the eyes of thousands of fellow students, well earned tribute will be paid to these students who were declared the most efficient in their units. Presentation assemblies will be held at Fenger, Monday; Morgan Park and Englewood, Tuesday; Tilden, Lindblom, and Bowen, Wednesday; Hyde Park and Phillips, Thursday, and at Harper, Friday.

Army Officers to Attend.

Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy heads the list of army officials expressing their intention of being present at some of the presentation assemblies. The general and his aid, Capt. Lawrance Ladue, and Col. Charles Thous, head of the R. O. T. C. in the Sixth corps area, will attend the ceremony at Englewood, together with Col. William F. Morrison, head of the Chicago High school R. O. T. C.; Maj. John H. Ringe, and Capt. Maxwell Corpening.

Presentation of thirty medals will be made at all except Englewood and Harper High schools where military training is a newly established course of instruction. At Englewood, twenty cadets will be honored, including ten who were members of the corps when it was disbanded in 1933, and at Harper ten will receive their awards.

Parents Will Be Guests.

At all of the schools, special programs are being arranged so that entire student bodies may attend. Parents, teachers, and friends are expected to attend the ceremonies in many instances to witness the honoring of cadets. The awards will be made before representatives of the Chicago High school R. O. T. C. as well.

At one other south side school, Kelly, presentation of thirteen awards was made at an assembly Friday morning. Franklin R. Borger, band leader, led the group in a united pledge of allegiance to the flag after which the band played several short selections. Principal Edward Wildeman lauded the development of the corps in so short a time, emulating in words the great popularity of the unit.

Cadet Medal Winners.

Presentation of medals was made by Phil Maxwell, representing THE TRIBUNE, to the following cadets:

Gold—First year cadets, Harold Bukowski, Robert Cycon, William Kipsen, Chester Eicksteadt, and Ben Chlevin; second year, Roman Kozlowski, and third year, Thomas Rowe. Silver—First year, Edward Maynard, Alex Olek, Richard Platkus, Avery Hein, and Joseph Stock, and second year, Raymond Wickman.

Presentation of two other awards, medals to the neatest cadet and to the most efficient noncommissioned officer were made by Sergt. J. G. Hickman, U. S. A., instructor, to William Gedzun and William Kipsen.

Under the direction of Miss Anna Byrnes the assembly sang several patriotic songs including the "Star Spangled Banner," with which the R. O. T. C. band closed the program. Cadet First Lieutenant Harold Bukowski was general chairman.

—Englewood—

Organization of a "crack" drill company and a rifle team has been announced by the reserve officers' training corps of the Englewood High school. The selection of these two groups marks the return of the corps to active competition after four years.

Established in 1919, but discontinued in 1932, the corps was reorganized this fall and put under the charge of Sergt K. H. Howe, U. S. A. The most efficient and neatest cadets of the corps, under the leadership of Cadet First Lieutenant Maurice Isaacson, comprise the picked company.

Members of this company are given an opportunity for extra practice, as the group drills before school hours on Wednesday and Friday mornings. The other officers in charge are Cadet Lieuts. Merle Goldman and Irwin Soliday.

With the remodeling of the rifle range and the receipt of five practice rifles a rifle team has been announced. The members include Cadet Captain Eugene Keen, Cadet First Lieutenants Isaacson and Rufus Williams, Cadet Sergeant Michael Theodore, and Cadet Corporal Melvin Zimmerman.

Mercy High Instructors and Mothers to Meet

Instructors of freshment students at Mercy High school will meet the mothers of their charges Wednesday afternoon when the Mercy Mothers auxiliary convenes in the high school, 8100 Prairie avenue. Mrs. Hugh Larkin and Mrs. Martin Fardy are cochairmen of the program.

HARPER RESERVE OFFICERS' CORPS HAS 145 CADETS

Unit Seeks 250 as Goal for Second Term.

The Harper High school reserve officers training corps, with a final enrollment of 145 in its first semester of existence, announces the opening of a recruiting campaign for the coming term to raise its membership to more than 250. Sergt. Wilburt L. Peshia, U. S. Army, instructor, conducts special classes for cadets seeking additional instruction.

SERGT. WILBUR L. PESHIA.

KIWANIS CLUBS WILL CELEBRATE 21ST BIRTHDAY

Woodlawn Group to Have Double Event.

Festival programs to celebrate the 21st anniversary of the founding of Kiwanis International, which was organized in Detroit on Jan. 21, 1915, are being planned for this week by many south side clubs.

Woodlawn will commemorate a double anniversary—its own 15th birthday is Jan. 25—when it meets on Wednesday at a Founders' day luncheon. John B. Wilder, president, is preparing to welcome 16 of the original members.

They are Carl J. Adams, R. B. Anthony, F. D. Carpenter, Charles P. Dunbaugh, A. W. Fleming, Dr. F. P. Hammond, Joseph W. Jackson, A. C. Lake, J. S. Mather, Frank J. O'Brien, A. E. Olson, J. H. Stitt, A. S. Irvine, J. S. Feigh, Dr. R. K. Packard, and A. L. Anderson.

Program in Englewood.

The Englewod club, which has a few months' majority over the Woodlawn group and which lays claim to the distinction of being the first club chartered in any city where there already was another Kiwanis organization, will have Raymond S. Blunt, governor of the Illinois-Eastern Iowa district, as speaker at its luncheon meeting on Tuesday.

Mr. Blunt, who is a member of the Englewood group and a past president, will discuss the history of the organization. Another feature of the program will be special music, written and presented by Fields and Allison, vaudeville players from a local theater.

At the Hyde Park club's luncheon on Wednesday, J. B. Murphy, state commander of the American Legion, will speak. The local Lions club, the Hyde Park chamber of commerce, American Legion post, 55th Street District Business Men's association, the Kenwood Chamber of Commerce and the Oakland Business Men's association will be invited to the anniversary celebration.

Plan Historical Program.

The educational committee will have charge of the Chicago Heights' club meeting on Wednesday, presenting a program devoted to the history of the organization. George L. McEldowney, past lieutenant governor of the Illinois-Eastern Iowa district, will speak.

A ladies' day meeting on Tuesday will mark the anniversary for the East Chicago club. Past presidents wil have charge of the commemoration program on Wednesday at the Hammond club and charter members will be the special guests of the Harvey club on Tuesday.

FORT DEARBORN K. OF C. CLUB'S NEW OFFICERS NAMED

The Fort Dearborn Knights of Columbus Fourth Degree club reëlected Thomas J. Haggerty president at its recent meeting. The administration named to serve with him includes Joseph Fitzgerald, vice president; James Ivers, secretary and treasurer; George Alberts, recorder of records and warden, and Fred Beyers, chairman of the board of directors. The two most important events on the club's calendar are the celebration of Washington's birthday and a dinner-dance on St. Patrick's day.

Golden Wedding Open House

MR. AND MRS. GRANT WARD MARTIN.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Martin were born in Indiana, near Marion, but did not meet until after their families moved to Topeka, Kas., where they were married on Jan. 18, 1886. Two years later they came to Chicago and Mr. Martin became a member of the police department, from which he retired on June 1, 1923.

Since that time they have resided in Palos Park, but have spent a great deal of time traveling about the United States.

Their family numbers two sons, two daughters, 11 grandchildren and one great grandchild, Gary Martin Thomas. The daughters are Mrs. George A. Green and Mrs. E. S. Jourdain, and the sons are Thomas I. and Eugene T. Martin.

ROTARY SEEKING RECORD CROWD AT BUSINESS SHOW

Determined to obtain a record attendance at the Rotary Club of Chicago's third annual business exposition, to be held in the Hotel Sherman Tuesday through Friday, members throughout the city are distributing admission tickets to friends and associates.

Among prominent southwest side Rotarians interested in the exposition are William H. Brown, 10128 South Wood street; William A. Graber, 5620 South Peoria street; Clarence P. Henry, 9551 South Damen avenue; Harvey R. Miller, 10941 Longwood drive; Richard M. McClure, 1747 West 107th street, and Robert F. Miles, 8917 South Ada street.

The exposition will present a cross-section of more than 150 businesses, trades and professions. Among the exhibits will be thousands of dollars worth of gems, furs and oriental rugs.

A gala program of entertainment will feature the opening day of the exposition when attendance will be limited to Rotarians and their families. In addition to the regular weekly luncheon meeting in the Bal Tabarin, which will be attended by Jack Dempsey and other notables, a banquet will be held that night in the College Inn.

COUNTY SCHOOL SURVEY SHOWS GAIN IN FINANCES

NOBLE J. PUFFER.

County-wide improvement in the financial conditions of high school and elementary school districts is reflected in the replies to a questionnaire sent out by Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools to determine the general county condition for the last year and the outlook for the first half of 1936.

Of 25 returns from high school boards, only one indicated a condition requiring the sale of tax anticipation warants for 1936, and even this case showed an improvement over its condition a year ago. One elementary school district reported the necessity for the sale of 1936 warants, and this case also reported an improvement over the similar period of 1935.

Reports of the sale of warants for 1935 were general throughout the returns but a portion reported balanced budgets. Teachers throughout the county are being paid in cash with one exception. One west side suburban high school district is still meeting its pay roll requirements with merchandise coupon books.

Mr. Puffer, in discussing the returns, said: "The general conditions of high school and elementary school districts is greatly improved over that of past years and somewhat over last year, due largely to economies on the part of school boards and school superintendents, as well as a higher percentage of tax payments."

GRACE CHURCH CHOIRS' CANTATA TO BE REPEATED

Mama! It hurts to swallow!

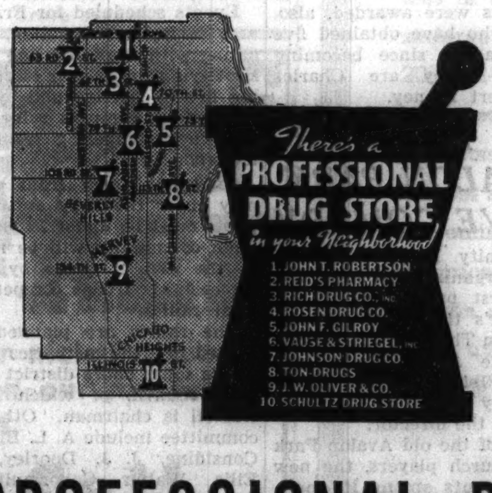
The frightened look on a child's face when it realizes that something has gone wrong in its little body! The anxiety that stirs a Mother's heart! Her baby—is sickness coming? How often the incident happens in every home!

But Mother's anxiety is quickly relieved. The Modern Mother knows that medical science, skill and experience will come to her rescue. She knows that at the first sign of illness it is important to phone the family physician. In its earliest stages, illness readily yields to proper treatment. Minor ailments are quickly corrected under your doctor's professional attention. If the symptom is one of dangerous illness, he is the man whose early attendance on the case is vital.

During winter months when it's easy to come down with colds, sore throats, and other seasonable ailments, turn to your family physician for advice and help in keeping the whole family in good health.

When your doctor writes out a prescription to correct an unfavorable condition, have it filled by a druggist of high professional standing.

There's a Professional Drug Store in your neighborhood specializing in this important and exacting service. Your physician knows his business when he writes your prescription. The licensed, experienced pharmacist at the Professional Drug Store knows his business when he fills the prescription. At your Professional Drug Store, you pay no more for your prescription than elsewhere—often you pay less! And you're always assured the highest professional skill—the finest quality, freshest drugs—obtainable anywhere!



Follow This Rule for Health Protection

FIRST—See your family physician at the first sign of illness. Consult him BEFORE serious conditions develop. Early attention means saving time, discomfort and money.

SECOND—Take your doctor's prescription to a druggist who specializes in prescription service. Choose your druggist as you would your doctor—for Reputation, Reliability and Highest Professional Standing.

FIRST REPORT SHOWS PROGRESS OF STREET WORK

25 Miles Completed by WPA on South Side.

Twenty-five miles of south and southwest side streets have been resurfaced through the Works Progress Administration street project. The announcement, which is the first report issued on progress of the project, was made by State WPA Administrator Robert J. Dunham. It covers roughly the six weeks of construction ending Dec. 31.

The asphalt surfacing project is the third and final group of street construction projects to be initiated under the WPA. Other divisions include the laying of cement-bound macadam and crushed stone pavements. The total improvement program involves several hundred miles of city streets.

25 Miles Completed.

Despite adverse weather conditions in the latter half of December, the report shows that the WPA workers, besides completing the 25 miles, also removed an additional 47 miles of wornout street surface preparatory to resurfacing, and had completed all repair work on another 28 miles with the exception of final top surfacing.

On the south and southwest sides the area in which the WPA operated, are included 49 of the 70 special zones set up by the WPA, covering all city wards.

Following is a list of those streets surfaced with asphalt which were completed:

Albany avenue, Pershing road to Archer.
Ada street, 50th to 51st.
Aberdeen street, 50th to 54th, and Garfield to 50th.

SCOUTS TO HAVE DISTRICT RALLY ON SOUTH SHORE

Contests Friday Open South Side Series.

The first of a series of Scoutcraft rallies to be held in the south shore district is to take place Friday evening at Palmer park, 111th street and Indiana avenue, it was announced last week. Scout teams representing troops in the western division of the district are to compete in the rally, which will be followed by similar contests in seven other south side communities. Winners in the community rallies will be entered in the district finals to be held Feb. 7.

Events scheduled for Friday's rally are: Semaphore signaling, Morse signaling with flags, life line rope relay, knot tying for 12 year old boys, creating fire by friction and by steel and flint and a compass relay. In addition each competing team will give its troop yell.

Only one team from each troop may enter the rally and all participants must be under 18 years of age. Each community will be represented in the district finals by one troop for each six troops competing in the local rallies.

The rallies are planned and conducted by the activities committee of the south shore district of the Chicago council, of which Dr. J. W. Russell is chairman. Others on the committee include A. L. Blatti, Frank Considine, J. J. Doorley, Raymond Ellis, Walter Gaboriault, Chester Grenda, Charles Jacobson, Arthur Norris, Robert Shapiro, Thompson, Milton Udelson, and J. M. Wilcox.

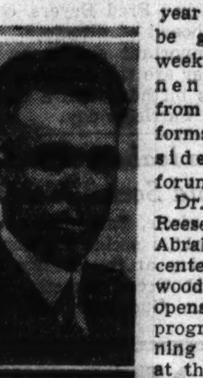
FIVE LECTURES ON SOUTH SIDE FORUM PROGRAM

Series Opens Tonight at Lincoln Center.

Five lectures on subjects ranging from anti-Semitism to the soviet five year plan are to be given this week by prominent speakers from the platforms of south side lecture forums.



DEAN CURTIS W. REESE.

Tomorrow evening, at Sinai temple, 4600 South Parkway, Will Durant, writer and lecturer who wrote "The Story of Philosophy," and other works, will speak on the topic "Is Our Civilization Dying?" S. D. Schwartz, director of the Sinai forum, describes the lecture as "an attempt to answer Oswald Spengler." Spengler, the famous German savant, in his book "The Decline of the West," voiced the belief that western civilization was dying.

Two lectures are scheduled for Wednesday evening. At the Hyde Park forum in the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A., 1400 East 53d street, S. Stanfield Sargent of the department of psychology, Central Y. M. C. A. college, will compare the freedom of the American press with that of Europe in a talk on "The Reign of Propaganda in Europe," and at K. A. M. temple, 50th street and Drexel boulevard, Louis Untermeyer, poet, essayist and critic, will talk on "A Critic's Half Holiday."

Dr. Samuel N. Harper, professor of Russian language and institutions at the University of Chicago, author of "Civic Training in Soviet Russia" and "Making Bolsheviks," ends the week's program at the Society of Anthropology's forum at Abraham Lincoln center on Friday morning with a talk on "The Soviet's Second Five Year Plan."

East Chicago Male Chorus on Sunday Club Program

Bride Yesterday

Miss Madeline Elsie Maass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Maass of 3045 South Loomis street, became the bride of Luther Zierke yesterday afternoon at the Holy Cross Evangelical Lutheran church, 31st street and Racine avenue. The ceremony was read by the Rev. M. A. Pfotenhauer.

HEART SOCIETY BUREAU OFFERS CLUBS SPEAKERS

A speakers' bureau, which includes in its membership sixty-two Chicago physicians, is coöperating with the Chicago Heart association in its campaign against the high mortality from heart disease. They will accept invitations to speak before neighborhood clubs, fraternal organizations, women's clubs, church groups, or luncheon clubs, and appointments may be made by communicating with the heart association at 203 North Wabash avenue.

"This is an important part of our work," said Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, executive director of the association. "Many heart disease deaths are unnecessary. We are trying to reach the general public with the information that if heart sufferers will put themselves under competent medical care and live according to rules laid down for them, they may remain at their regular occupations and enjoy life for many years."

The work of the association is supported chiefly by its annual sale of Valentine seals from the first of the year until Valentine day.

ALDERMEN TELL PLANS FOR WARD IMPROVEMENTS

Majority on South Side Ask Street Lights.

budget. Ald. Connelly also has recommended that trafic control lights be installed along Archer avenue from 31st to 35th streets, and proposes that the garbage removal service be speeded up by lengthening the work week of the ward employés to five days. New street lights in scattered sections and paving of numerous short streets leading into Archer avenue also are sought.

Asks Street Opening.

Twelfth ward—Ald. Bryan Hartnett: The opening of California avenue at 49th street, now blocked by the embankment of the Grand Trunk and New York Central railroads, is Ald. Hartnett's main project. He proposes that the city go ahead with the work, the estimated cost of which is $155,000, and then bill the state and the railroads for their share. A new infant welfare station, installation of trafic control lights at Archer and Western avenues, 35th street and Damen avenue, Archer and California, and Archer and Sacramento avenues also are sought.

Thirteenth ward—Ald. John E. Egan: New street signs, trafic control lights, new street lights on Kedzie avenue between 51st and 57th streets, and on Cicero avenue between 55th street and Archer avenues are some of the improvements recommended by Ald. Egan. He also has asked for an appropriation to pay for the labor cost of creating playgrounds on private property donated for use, and the creation of a ward yard. The 13th ward now shares a yard with the 15th ward.

Seeks Shelter House.

Fifteenth ward—Ald. James F. Kovarik: Purchase of equipment and improvement of the playground at 54th street and Hoyne avenue is recommended by Ald. Kovarik. He also has asked that street lights be installed on 59th street west of Kedzie avenue, and that a shelter house be erected at Byrne field, 59th street and Damen avenue.

Sixteenth ward—Ald. Terence F. Moran: Improved street lighting is asked by Ald. Moran in various sections in the territory between Wallace and Loomis streets, and along 59th street from Racine avenue to Damen avenue.

Seventeenth ward—Ald. William T. Murphy: A larger share of the funds voted for garbage removal is asked by Ald. Murphy. Installation of trafic control lights, street repairs, and more lights on State street and Vincennes avenue between 71st and 75th streets are other projects he advocated.

Street Signs Asked.

Eighteenth ward—Ald. Harry E. Perry: Purchase of new equipment for garbage and ash removal to supplement the present inadequate number of trucks and trailers has been requested by Ald. Perry. Erection of street signs and more street lights has also been requested.

Nineteenth ward — Ald. John J. Duffy: Installation of more street lights for portions of this boundary ward of the city is one of the things most sought for by Ald. Duffy. New street signs and more equipment for garbage removal are two other items on his request list.

South Chicago Flying Club to Give Aero Ball

Flying enthusiasts of the community were invited last week by Leslie O'Shea, president of the South Chicago Flying club, to attend the group's "Aero ball" on Wednesday evening, Jan. 29, at 9133 Houston avenue. The club, whose members meet every Friday evening at the community Y. M. C. A., is working for the establishment of an airport on the far southeast side of the city.

Rodfei Zedek Men's Club Will Entertain Guests

A guest meeting of the R-Z Men's club of Rodfei Zedek congregation will be held Tuesday evening at the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive. The meeting, to which all members and their friends are invited, will begin at 8:15 o'clock, according to Jack Gordon, president.

1/50 OF AN INCH OF WEAR CAN MAKE YOUR CARBURETOR WASTE 1/5 OF YOUR GASOLINE

● After 10,000—15,000—20,000 miles of continuous operation, under none too gentle feet, your finely fitted Stromberg Carburetor shows wear, like any other mechanism. And that wear costs you money! It's almost impossible to keep an old, worn carburetor accurately adjusted. That's one reason why old engines stall easier—use more gasoline—need more choking. Let us re-build your carburetor—renew the worn parts (very inexpensive) and save you money. A new Stromberg, fitted to your engine in place of the original carburetor, is almost certain to give better performance and economy. Used on more makes of cars than all other carburetors combined.

CLUB TREASURER IN BRYN MAWR TO SERVE 18TH YEAR

Seventeen years ago the members of the South Bryn Mawr Improvement association met to elect officers and named H. C. Moore as treasurer. Much water has passed under the bridge, corners have been turned, and time passed, but the practice of naming Mr. Moore as treasurer still continues. He was elected for his 18th term again just the other day.

Long tenure of office seems to be the custom of the association, for Paul L. Anderson, president for the past three years, was again elected. Other officers are first vice president, W. F. Mealiff; second vice president, Frank Hourihan; third vice president, C. E. Mathews; secretary, Miss Edith I. Soderborg. Mr. Hourihan and P. L. McManmon were named to the directorate.

The new officers and board of directors have pledged themselves to a program which will include working to obtain a new high school, a playground, opening of 83d street at the Nickel Plate railroad tracks, and the establishment of bus service on Jeffery avenue.

DR. FRANK WARD TO GIVE 6 TALKS AT HYDE PARK 'Y'

Six lectures on religion will be given by Dr. Frank G. Ward of the Central Y. M. C. A. college before the Hyde Park Leisure Time institute in the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A., 1400 East 53d street, on successive Thursday evenings starting this week.

Dates and lecture topics are: Jan. 23, Religion's Part in Home and Health; Jan. 30, Religion's Part in Education; Feb. 6, Religion's Part in Recreation; Feb. 13, Religion's Part in Government and Business; Feb. 20, Religion's Part in International Life; Feb. 27, Religion's Part in Interracial Life.

Each lecture will start at 8 o'clock and will last 45 minutes. A discussion period will follow.

Consumptive Aid Society Young Men to Give Dance

The Young Men's auxiliary of the Chicago Consumptive Aid society meets this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the La Salle hotel to discuss plans for a dance to be given March 15 at the Shoreland hotel. Leo Marx is president of the club, which helps support the home for consumptives at Batavia.

1936 HOMEWOOD FORUM SERIES IS TO OPEN TONIGHT

Indiana Prison Chaplain First Speaker.

The 1936 season of the annual Homewood Sunday Evening forum will open this evening with the discussion of "The Work of a Prison Chaplain," by the Rev. Robert Hall of the Indiana state prison in Michigan City.

CECIL S. CLARK.
[Gibson Photo.]

His lecture and the four others in the series, which will be given on consecutive Sunday evenings, will be at St. Paul's Community church. The speakers will be introduced by Cecil S. Clark, forum chairman.

The second forum speaker will be A. L. Foster, president of the Chicago Urban league, whose subject will be "Your Negro Neighbors." Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, will discuss "Education for a Modern World" on Feb. 2.

"Can Jew and Christian Meet?" will be debated by Rabbi Charles Schulman of the North Shore Congregation Israel of Glencoe at the fourth meeting. The series will close on Feb. 16 with a lecture on "Can We Stop War?" by the Rev. Ernest F. Tittle of the First Methodist church in Evanston.

The audience will have the opportunity to participate in the forums and to question the speakers. Invitations have been sent to schools, clubs, lodges, and other civic organizations in the neighboring towns, Harvey, Hazel Crest, Flossmoor, and Chicago Heights. In order to accommodate larger crowds a public address system has been installed in the church basement.

There will be no admission charge but a silver offering will be collected.

Junior Band Organized at Grand Crossing Park

Membership in the recently organized Grand Crossing Park Junior band is open to all south side boys and girls, B. O. Mingus, park director, announced last week. Registrations are being accepted at the park every day and rehersals are held each Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the park fieldhouse, 76th street and Ingleside avenue. Mrs. Elsie Engelman Blank, 7747 Langley avenue, French horn player with the Chicago Women's Symphony orchestra, is director of the band.

LEVELS REPLACE STORIES IN ONE MODERN HOUSE

Centralize, Yet Connect Differing Areas.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

ECONOMY in the design of a small house does not need to eliminate either interest or charm from the finished dwelling. It merely means that an expert hand has gone into the rendering and capable judgment has dictated the choice of structural materials, the methods of construction, the type of decorations.

When it comes to the decision, what type house to build, people who prefer the traditional type are still in the vast majority. The fact that the modern trend is developing slowly is indicative of the deep rooted conservatism of American home owners, who prefer modernism to express itself in advanced equipment, economical layout, and streamline inside arrangement. For the exterior lines and fashioning they cling to the traditional and the established.

Excellent Modern Design.

But homes in modern architecture were built last year throughout the country, and they will continue to be built in increasing numbers as building regains its old momentum.

The home shown today is a restrained example of the modern. It is, moreover, an excellent example of design from an architectural standpoint, with sturdy materials specified and careful interior planning.

In this five room home, which has been recently designed for a prospective client by F. E. Sloan, architect, 513 Oakdale avenue, Chicago, emphasis has been placed on the four distinct and useful floor levels as well as on the modern lines.

These levels are briefly: A service level, a living and entertaining level, a sleeping level, and a relaxation level.

Service Level Lower.

The service level is two feet below grade, and on it are the garage, the laundry, the storeroom and work shop, and the heating room. In this heating room there is a basement incinerator and ample space for a complete air conditioning system. As the greater part of this level is above grade, there is enough height to install good sized windows above the grade line.

On the next level are the living and entertaining areas. These include a large, combination living-dining room and kitchen, with generous closet provision. The dining end opens on to a graded terrace for warm weather enjoyment. Off the kitchen is the service entrance, which also communicates with the basement utility portion. The living room wall space has been carefully designed to afford opportunity for a varied furniture arrangement.

Roof for Recreation.

Eight steps up from the second level, and located over the service level are two bedrooms and a bathroom. Both sleeping rooms are corner rooms with large built-in wardrobes. There is also a possibility for a third bedroom at the back, if more space should be necessary later on.

Seven steps above the sleeping level we find the portion devoted strictly to relaxation. This is a roof deck which is well cut off from the view of neighbors. Part of this deck is roofed over. In the covered area there is a fireplace which can be used for evening parties, weiner roasts, and general good times.

The exterior walls are of common brick, to be painted white. Thorough insulation is specified for the entire house. The intermediate floors and the flat roof are of concrete slabs. The roof over the sleeping portion is framed with wood rafts and covered with wood shingles.

Gray Base Concrete.

A dark colored base comes up to the sills of the windows in the one story section. This is of concrete, to which a dark gray color has been added at the time of mixing. The two half circular urns at each side of the entrance are also of concrete poured at the same time as the base. From their curved surface they sweep back gracefully into the entrance.

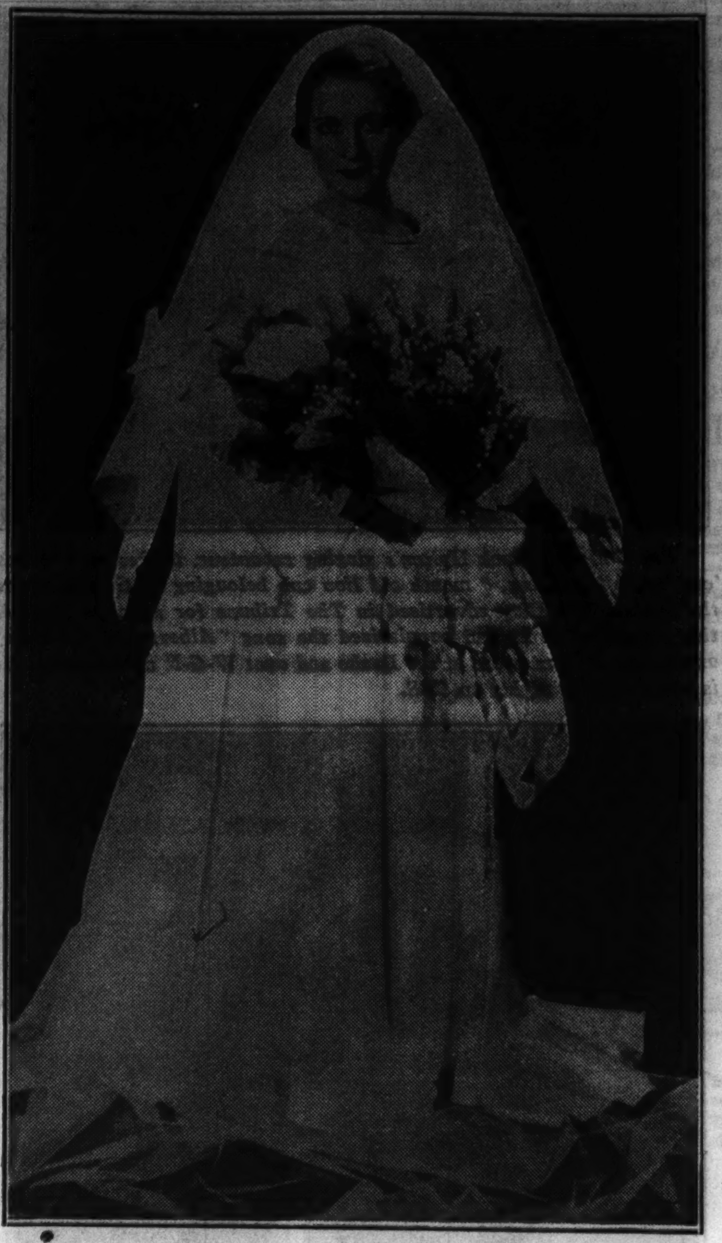
The estimated cost of this home, with its 16,000 cubic feet and without a complete air conditioning system, is $7,200. This is estimating the cost of construction at approximately 45 cents a cubic foot.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N next Wednesday at 2:15 p. m.

Hebrew Men's Club Will Be Party Hosts Tomorrow

The Men's club of the South Side Hebrew congregation will entertain members of the congregation and friends tomorrow evening in the social hall of the temple, 7359 Chappel avenue. Nathan Remington is president of the club.

EARLY WINTER BRIDE



Mrs. Jack Bookshester, whose bridal photograph is shown above, is the former Miss Dorothy Goldblatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Goldblatt. She and Mr. Bookshester, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Bookshester, 3021 Ainslee street, were married Nov. 24 at the Shoreland hotel. They are making their home temporarily with Mrs. Bookshester's parents at 6801 Crandon avenue. They plan to establish their own residence in South Shore early in the spring.

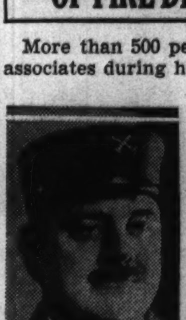
FRIENDS PAY TRIBUTE TO RETIRING CHIEF OF FIRE DEPARTMENT



F. A. BYRNES.

More than 500 persons, friends and associates during his 38 years of service with the Chicago fire department, paid tribute recently to former Battalion Chief Francis A. Byrnes, at a farewell testimonial party in the South Chicago Masonic temple. Mr. Byrnes, who was chief of the 14th battalion, retired Dec. 31.

Joining the department on Jan. 3, 1898, Mr. Byrnes was assigned to truck company No. 12 on the west side, and later was transferred to companies 63 and 14. After his promotion to captain he commanded truck companies 41, 9, and 32. He was promoted to the rank of battalion chief on Jan. 1, 1918. He was transferred to his last command in 1921.

During his long career with the fire department, Mr. Byrnes escaped several times in disastrous fires, and once after suffering serious injuries he carried several persons to safety from a burning building. He resides with his family at 7625 Essex avenue.

Civic Groups to Be Guests of Hyde Park Kiwanis

Officers of community organizations in Hyde Park, Kenwood, and Oakland will be guests of the Hyde Park Kiwanis club Wednesday afternoon at a luncheon in the Hotel Windermere East. State Commander J. B. Murphy of the American Legion will be the speaker at the meeting, the third of its kind to be sponsored by the Kiwanis club.

Isabella Card Party.

A card party will be given by the St. Columbanus circle, Daughters of Isabella, tomorrow evening at 7435 Cottage Grove avenue.

SOUTH CHICAGO BUSINESS MEN TO ELECT ON FEB. 4

27 Candidates in Race for Association Offices.

The annual election of officers and directors of the South Chicago Business association will be held Feb. 4 at the South Chicago Y. M. C. A., 3039 East 91st street. George Tormoehlen is secretary of the association.

W. B. GIBSON.

A total of 27 candidates are in the running for offices and directorships, Mr. Tormoehlen said, three having been nominated for president, six for the three vice presidencies, two for secretary, one for treasurer, and 15 for the board of directors.

William B. Gibson has been named to succeed himself as president, with August Greene and William Mathie as his opponents. Louis Pachynski, first vice president, is running again for that office. John V. Hanberg, Frank M. Stanley, Edward Griesel, Lester Mogren, and August Greene are the other vice presidential candidates.

Mr. Tormoehlen and Charles Siegler are the candidates for secretary and Louis Brunner, present treasurer, is unopposed.

..LAIN'S Services Outnumber the Average 20 TO 1

● Chicago has given Lain the preference — and Lain has given Chicago lower prices than secured in seven other large cities. ● Lain has more services in one month than the average undertaker secures in twelve. ● Lain's volume is actually 20 to 1—twenty times the average. ● Thus an improved service, with many costly features, such as a complete musical program included with all Chapel services, and Conditioned Air throughout the entire building, is offered by Lain's. ● And yet prices are always lower at Lain's. ● Over 63% of Lain services cost less than $300—more than 35% under $200. ● Complete funerals as low as $110, including IMPERIAL MALE QUARTET, ORGANIST AND ORGAN.

SUBMITS PEEVES SURE TO ANNOY THE MAJORITY

Listener Decries Listing of Personal Dislikes.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The flood of "Peeves and Perfume" from the folks on the receiving end continues unabated. One complainant maintains that the peeves have dealt too much with personal dislikes—"matters which are inherently controversial in nature and which cannot be settled to every one's satisfaction." Thus he submits a list of peeves which he is sure "annoy the majority of radio listeners and about which something should be done for the sake of listeners." Here they are:

1. The practice of WBBM and CBS of beginning their programs from 15 to 60 seconds before the other stations have concluded their last program. It is annoying to tune in on WBBM on the hour and find that the program has already started.
2. The W-G-N announcers who think they must keep talking as long as a remote pick-up orchestra is playing a theme song. We listeners like to listen to theme songs, too.
3. The NBC announcers who burst in on the middle of a chain broadcast to tell us what station this is; or, worse still, to tell us that WENR is leaving the air and that WLS is replacing it—all while the chain program continues without pause.
4. The program arrangers who force us to choose between Rubinoff, Kostelanetz, and the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Why can't we hear all of these? Likewise Benny and Parkykakas, Waring and Romberg, Hit Parade and Beauty Box theater, etc.
5. Copyright controversies at the expense of the listeners.

I sincerely hope that you will be able to accomplish some reforms in these fields. Radio programs are certainly intended for the listeners, and the listeners should be shown these considerations.

HOWARD M. RICH,
Chicago.

P. S. What ever became of: Charlie Agnew, Harry Sosnik, Pratt and Sherman, Bernie Cummins, Stanley Jacobson, the Gold Coasters, and Ernie Burchill.

Editor's Note: Agnew is in Texas; Harry Sosnik playing for Al Pearce's gang; Pratt and Sherman have split—Pratt is in Chicago doing Topsy-Turvy Time, Sherman in San Francisco writing and acting in Carefree Carnival; Bernie Cummins in New York.

FAITH IS RESTORED.

My faith in radio was restored recently when I heard three excellent programs on CBS that were scheduled to fill gaps left by canceled sponsored shows. Oddly all three were better than the programs they replaced. They were: "End of a Dream" [Thursday, 7:30] "And Sudden Death" [replacing Cantor], and excerpts from the show "At Home Abroad" [in Les Howard's old spot]. For once we heard something that wasn't obviously written by a hack writer for the hopelessly contented chair warmer. Why doesn't some acute air angel back such sterling stuff with no regular "stars" instead of tiresome jazz bands, off key singers like Bob Crosby, egotistical comedians. . . ."

RICHARD MURRAY,
Hammond, Ind.

FAN CLUB FOR ART WRIGHT.

I am starting a fan club in honor of Arthur Wright, tenor soloist with Kay Kyser's orchestra. There are a lot of Kyser fans in Chicago and I'm sure that I'm not the only one who likes Arthur Wright's singing. In my opinion Mr. Wright has the makings of a radio star. Since I have been interested in him for about two years I'm trying hard to make the club a real success. Would you help me?

VIOLET NEJDL,
1345 S. Elmwood avenue,
Berwyn, Ill.

Editor's Note: I doubt whether fan clubs make radio stars but anyway, there's the address. Art Wright, who has a clear high tenor voice a bit like Donald Novis' or Jack Fulton's, may indeed get to the top some day.

HITS THE SPOT.

Your "pet peeve" column fills a longfelt want. Orchids to Alec Templeton, who I think is tops in his line. W. J. Cameron on the Ford program impresses me as one of the best minds on economics. . . . Best political talker. Rep. Clare G. Fenerty. [Penn.].

W. J. MACDONALD,
Chicago.

ASKS MORE CRITICISM.

Instead of so much advance matter on programs I wish all radio editors would devote columns to reviewing, commenting upon and criticizing or praising programs and their personalities. You could do much more for the industry if you'd go in for more of that stuff. Give it a try for the next few months. Let your readers express their opinions on how they like it.

PHIL LAMAR ANDERSON,
Hammond, Ind.

HOW ABOUT IT, MAJOR?

I have lots of perfume for various programs and performers but want to voice a peeve at this time. I think it is a mistake to allow contestants from the honor city to appear on Major Bowes' program as it is only natural for them to support their "natives," regardless of their comparative ability.

MRS. HELEN L. SMITH,
Chicago.

"SILLY AND MONOTONOUS.

Last night on W-G-N at 8:15 Chicago Symphony program I kept score on Pierre Andre just to see if I imagined things. Here is the result. During the broadcast he used the following expressions the number of times indicated:

Ladees and gentlemen	10
Chicago Symphony orchestra	13
Orchestra Hall	12
Dr. Frederick Stock	16

This makes a total of 141 useless words and gets very silly and monotonous.

SCOTT WALLACE,
Evanston, Ill.

SHAMROCKS AND SHILLALAHS.

Please distill a fragrant perfume from shamrocks, shillalahs, turf and blarney stone and with it liberally drench Maurice Lynch for his grand Irish program on WCFL. I doubt if even in the Emerald Isle itself any one has done more to place true Irish art on the high pedestal to which it so rightfully belongs.

MRS. BRIDGET MULLIGAN,
Chicago.

BIG STICK AT NBC.

My pet peeve: The big stick at NBC has stuck Cheri MacKay back in some remote corner where I can never find her. It was a great pleasure to tune in on Jack Hylton's program over CBS and find her again. However, I still have that pet peeve against NBC.

SYLVIA A. GROVE,
Frankfort, Ind.

Heinrich Heine Poems to Be Read at 12:30 Today

A number of works by the great German poet, Heinrich Heine, will be represented on the Words and Music program at 12:30 p. m. today over WMAQ and NBC network. Harvey Hays is narrator and will read Heine's "Twilight," epilogue to "From the North Sea," and "The Message." Vocal and pipe organ selections will form the musical background.

Stuart Churchill Star of New Columbia Program

Songs by Stuart Churchill, tenor, poetry reading by Orson Wells, and music by Ken Wood's orchestra will feature the première of the new CBS "Musical Reveries" series Monday, from 11:15 to 11:30 a. m. over WBBM. This series will be heard Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays at the same time.

RADIO NEWSREEL

Pat O'Malley, Jack Hylton's singing raconteur, flashes an "'Orses' 'ead 'andle" on King, 6 month old lion cub belonging to Gorilla Jones, the fighter. O'Malley advertised in The Tribune for a docile lion for this picture after he had popularized the song "Albert and the Lion" on the air. Hylton opens at the Drake and over W-G-N next Friday. He is heard Sunday nights on CBS.

Quin Ryan and his "66" amateurs during a recent broadcast over W-G-N. Mr. Ryan is at the left, Rose Pearl, soprano soloist, facing the microphone, and Harold Turner, accompanist, at the piano. Mr. Ryan's amateur show, aired at 6:45 every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday night, is now open to any amateur entertainer, whether the applicant for an audition is an instrumentalist, singer, actor, or announcer. Previous to 1936 instrumentalists were unable to appear.

WAYNE VAN DYNE NEXT GUEST ON 'HOUSE PARTY'

Wayne Van Dyne, lyric tenor, will join the Friendly Neighbor's house party as guest star at 10 a. m. this week on W-G-N.

Van Dyne, network star and featured soloist with the Detroit Symphony, brings to the house party a program entirely different from that given by former guest stars. Popular songs, airs from light opera, and semi-classical compositions will be included in the program. Virginia Clark, radio's Friendly Neighbor, continues as mistress of ceremonies.

Beethoven's 'Leonore' on Radio City Music Hall

The Radio City Music Hall Symhpony orchestra with Jan Peerce, tenor, as soloist will be heard in a broadcast at noon over WENR and an NBC network. The orchestra will feature Beethoven's "Leonore" overture.

4 CHANGES TO BE MADE IN W-G-N VISIBLE SHOWS

Funnybone Follies to Move to Friday Spot.

Four changes in schedule for the visible broadcasts, presented from the main studio of W-G-N, will be made this week.

The Tuesday evening concerts, which present Attilio Baggiore and the W-G-N Concert orchestra, will be heard from 9 p. m. to 9:45 p. m.

"Behind the Camera Lines," the dramatic-musical production presented by Charles P. Hughes and starring June Meredith, will be heard at 9 Thursday evenings.

The Funnybone Follies, with the W-G-N Dance orchestra and starring Tom, Dick, and Harry, heretofore heard on Sunday evenings, will be presented on Friday evenings from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m., beginning next Friday. The Symphonette program with Henry Weber and the W-G-N Concert orchestra and guest soloists will be presented from 7:30 to 8:15 p. m. Sundays.

Tonight the Funnybone Follies will be offered at 7:30 p. m. with the cast presenting "A Night at Tony Pastor's in the Gay '90s." Tom, Dick, and Harry will sing several of the old hit tunes while Anita Boyer and Henry Hoople will also contribute old time melodies and gags.

At 6 tonight the Evensong program will present the Hyde Park Baptist Church choir in a sacred concert.

Tomorrow evening The Northerners will be heard at 9:30 p. m. with Willard Andelin as soloist.

Attilio Baggiore and Kathryn Witwer will be soloists at 9 Tuesday evening with the concert orchestra.

Wednesday evening at 9:30 the W-G-N Mardi Gras will present 45 minutes of popular music, with Edna O'Dell, Bob Hannon, Larry Blake, popular mimic, the Doring Sisters, the Grenadiers, and the dance orchestra, directed by Mr. Stokes.

"Behind the Camera Lines" on Thursday evening at 9 o'clock will present a side-splitting drama, "Romance in the Soup."

W-G-N TO OFFER 4 EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS TODAY

W-G-N will present this week a series of outstanding educational programs, directed by the University Broadcasting Council of Chicago. Four programs will be featured today. At 10 a. m., the Northwestern university reviewing stand will be heard with "The Need for Constitutional Reform," the subject.

At 11 a. m., the Chicago chapel service will be heard, conducted by Dean Charles W. Gilkey with Rabbi Solomon B. Freehof of the Temple Rodef Sholom, Pittsburgh, as guest speaker. The dramatized program "Masters of Science" featured on W-G-N and the Mutual network at 3:30 o'clock, will present the life of "Leeuwenhoek." The day's broadcasts end at 7 o'clock with Prof. Percy H. Boynton's Book review, discussing "From Death to Morning," by Thomas Wolfe.

Singer Is Fiddler

HELEN MARSHALL.

When Sigmund Romberg announced a "fiddlers' convention" for his program at 9 next Tuesday over WMAQ the first entrant was—of all people—his vocal soloist, Helen Marshall. But it wasn't a joke. A few years ago when Miss Marshall came to New York to study music from her Missouri home she studied both violin and voice, a finger fractured in a door caused her to concentrate on the voice, but she still draws a right mean bow, as she will demonstrate Tuesday evening. The program of that evening will stress melodies traditionally belonging to the violin.

SAYS FRED ALLEN

Dear Larry: The networks music ban is bringing out a new talent in the tune writers. They're learning to sing the blues. . . . Now that the Supreme court has killed agricultural control, the American farmer will soon be able to call his soil his own. . . . If this self-kidnaping sets a precedent, gangsters will next be putting themselves on the spot. Then there's nothing left for the G-men to do but go back into pictures. . . Did you hear about the good natured Scot who never shaved? He couldn't work himself up into a lather. . . . The way these women's bridge clubs dish the dirt you'd think spades were trumps. . . . Scientists may not have found a cure for colds, but their efforts are not to be sneezed at. . . . Portland says: "I don't see why the ancients thought Helen of Troy was so beautiful. Wasn't she the one whose face stopped a thousand clocks?" Cordially, FRED ALLEN.

'AAA DECISION' TO BE REVIEWED ON ROUND TABLE

Under the title "The AAA Decision," the Supreme court's recent ruling against the agricultural adjustment act will be reviewed during the University of Chicago Round Table program at 11:30 today over WMAQ-NBC.

Three University of Chicago professors will probe the immediate social, economic, and political implications of the decision striking at the New Deal. They are William H. Spencer, dean of the school of business; Stuart P. Meech, associate professor of finance, and Marcus W. Jernegan, professor of American History.

NOTES ON W-G-N STARS AND SHOWS

Tom, Dick and Harry and Carl Hoefle, those versatile singers and their acompanist, are to return to the W-G-N morning broadcast schedule for the same commercial sponsor who has presented them for the last three years. The boys will open the new series of programs Feb. 17 and will be heard over the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Alice Hill, featured player of the W-G-N—MBS sketch "Painted Dreams," received a copy of the Honolulu Advertiser last week containing a large picture of herself and a story about her career. The W-G-N broadcast is heard in Hawaii and Miss Hill is a radio favorite there.

ALEX M'QUEEN READY WITH NEW STRANGE TALES

Alexander McQueen, W-G-N's "Nothing but the Truth" man, will tell the story of a strange land where one day each year every one tells the truth all day long. It will feature his program over W-G-N at 10:15 a. m. tomorrow.

Wednesday he will describe New England's celebrated character of 150 years ago—the man who rehersed his funeral and slapped his wife because she failed to cry during the rehersal.

William Miller, operatic tenor, and Freddy Witwer and Alice Blue, the two piano team, will be heard on all three programs also.

REAL CINDERELLA BACKGROUND FOR AIR CINDERELLA

Down in Dallas, Tex., three weeks ago, a pretty young singer, talented and ambitious, received a telephone call from Chicago. Five minutes later, without baggage, without change of clothing or even a toothbrush, she was madly rushing to a nearby airport. Just one stop had been made—to "hock" a diamond ring, for she knew that, regardless of what other "necessities" she might do without, she couldn't get to her destination without money.

The pretty young singer was Rosemary Dillon, then practically unknown to the radio public, though she had appeared with Ben Bernie in a theater engagement and with various other bands.

Certainly the sponsors of a new radio show being whipped into shape in Chicago would not have thought of her. And in Dallas, where Rosemary was appearing with Charlie Agnew's orchestra, there was no way of knowing that these sponsors, after two days of auditions, still hadn't found a young woman sufficiently gifted both as singer and actress to play the leading rôle. One woman, however, among those who had listened to the seemingly hopeless auditions, did know of Rosemary Dillon's talent and versatility, knew she was ideally suited for the part—and put in a telephone call to Dallas.

The rest of the story is radio history. The program was "Broadway Cinderella," the new musical drama heard over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system at 10:45 a. m. Today Rosemary Dillon is playing the part of its young heroine, Hope Carter. In all one hundred and eight aspirants were auditioned, many of them known to every radio fan in the country, but to Miss Dillon, the unknown girl from Dayton, O., who wasn't afraid to take a chance, got the coveted rôle.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

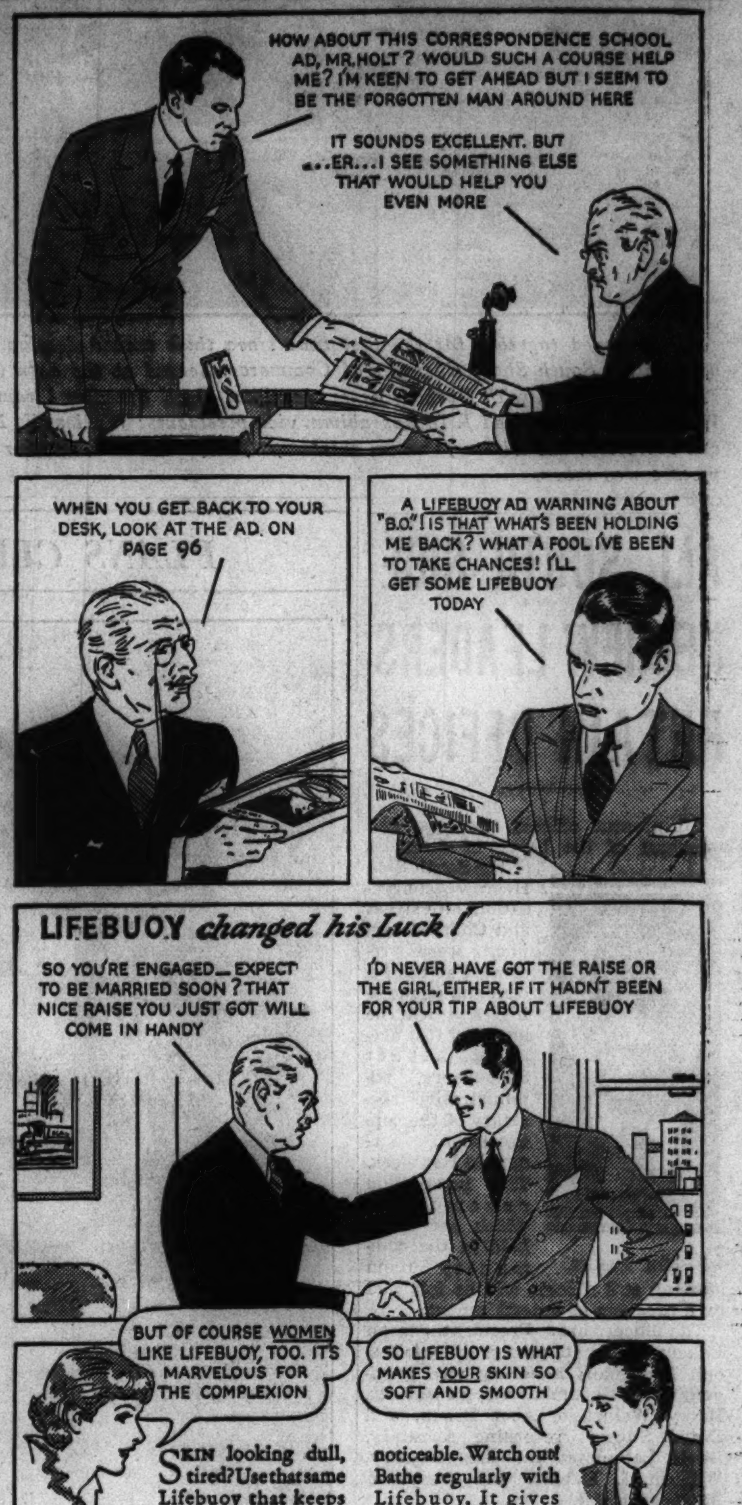
- Storm sash is not only highly effective in heat conservation, but it will eliminate much of the steaming and frosting of widows in winter, which sometimes comes from having a healthy amount of humidity in the indoor air. Moiture in the air is necessary to good health, but steaming, frosting windows are annoying.

- One of the simplest ways to obviate the need of periodical cleaning upheavals is the systematic and constant use of the vacuum cleaner. Make full use of all its attachments. A rug which is kept constantly well cleaned will last longer than one which is full of grit. It is not necessary to send slip covers and drapes to the cleaner so often if you use the hand vacuum on them frequently. And if the lamp shades, radiators, picture moldings, mattresses, books, and sundry hard-to-get-at places are kept in good shape from week to week and month to month the semi-yearly chaos is largely eliminated.

- Fresh paint is a powerful weapon to be used against household vermin. Many insects will not remain in the proximity of paint, and it also prevents the hatching of eggs and larvæ. Then if walls and woodwork and shelves are well painted and kept spotlessly clean, there is not the tiniest bit of food supply for unwelcome visitors.

Woman Gives House Over to Care of Homeless Cats

MRS. CAROLYN MORRILL, 77 years old, of Great Hill, Rockport, Mass., has given over her home to the care of homeless cats. Dozens of cats have taken advantage of her hospitality.



HOW ABOUT THIS CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL AD, MR. HOLT? WOULD SUCH A COURSE HELP ME? I'M KEEN TO GET AHEAD BUT I SEEM TO BE THE FORGOTTEN MAN AROUND HERE
IT SOUNDS EXCELLENT. BUT ...ER...I SEE SOMETHING ELSE THAT WOULD HELP YOU EVEN MORE
WHEN YOU GET BACK TO YOUR DESK, LOOK AT THE AD. ON PAGE 96
A LIFEBUOY AD WARNING ABOUT "B.O."! IS THAT WHAT'S BEEN HOLDING ME BACK? WHAT A FOOL I'VE BEEN TO TAKE CHANCES! I'LL GET SOME LIFEBUOY TODAY
LIFEBUOY changed his Luck!
SO YOU'RE ENGAGED—EXPECT TO BE MARRIED SOON? THAT NICE RAISE YOU JUST GOT WILL COME IN HANDY
I'D NEVER HAVE GOT THE RAISE OR THE GIRL, EITHER, IF IT HADN'T BEEN FOR YOUR TIP ABOUT LIFEBUOY
BUT OF COURSE WOMEN LIKE LIFEBUOY, TOO. IT'S MARVELOUS FOR THE COMPLEXION
SO LIFEBUOY IS WHAT MAKES YOUR SKIN SO SOFT AND SMOOTH

SKIN looking dull, tired? Use that same Lifebuoy that keeps your person fresh! Its deep-searching lather cleanses thoroughly, gently! Really protects your complexion! "Patch" tests on skins of hundreds of women show it is more than 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps."

A word to the wise!

Winter's here! Close rooms, heavy clothing make "B.O." (body odor) more noticeable. Watch out! Bathe regularly with Lifebuoy. It gives abundant, purifying lather in hardest water. Its own clean scent washes away.

TANGERINES

for between-meal snacks

CHILDREN and grown-up children love a bite between meals. Here's the very thing for them—Florida Tangerines. They satisfy the craving for sweets, yet don't overload the stomach. They supply valuable vitamins and mineral salts we need.

Their flavor is tangy, tempting, irresistibly delicious. For, like all Florida citrus fruit, they come to you "tree fresh," brimming with juice. They're handy to eat, easy to peel. Fine for the school lunch box—as an after-dinner fruit. Get some tangerines today. Remember, they're in season all too short a time!

WHY, HELLO MARY! DON'T TELL ME YOU'RE IN THE WASHING MACHINE BUSINESS!
OF COURSE I AM—AND WHY NOT? I'M A DEMONSTRATOR
THEN YOU'RE JUST THE WOMAN I WANT TO SEE
I'LL BE GLAD TO HELP YOU. WHAT'S ON YOUR MIND?
I GOT A NEW WASHER LAST MONTH, BUT I CAN'T SEEM TO GET THE CLOTHES WHITE ENOUGH
DON'T EXPECT THE WASHER TO DO ALL THE WORK...THE SOAP IS IMPORTANT, TOO. I ALWAYS RECOMMEND RINSO. IT GETS CLOTHES SO MUCH WHITER
THAT'S RIGHT—I REMEMBER NOW, THE SALESMAN DID TELL ME TO USE RINSO
AS A MATTER OF FACT 32,000 WASHING MACHINE EXPERTS RECOMMEND IT
NEXT WASHDAY
MARY WAS RIGHT! RINSO GIVES WONDERFULLY CREAMY SUDS—AND THEY'RE SO EASY ON MY HANDS, TOO. NO WONDER WASHING MACHINE DEMONSTRATORS WILL USE NO OTHER SOAP
I'M TESTED AND APPROVED BY GOOD HOUSEKEEPING INSTITUTE
Rinso

Wonderful suds for tub washing—gives whiter, brighter clothes

TO THE woman who does not own a washing machine, Rinso is the answer to the question: "How can I make washday easy and yet get my clothes snowy and bright?" Rinso does the drudge work of washday. Its rich, lively suds soak out every bit of dirt with absolute safety. And the dirt is kept out—it doesn't "settle back"; so your clothes never get that dingy, half-washed look. Clothes come real snowy. They last 2 or 3 times longer, too—because they're not scrubbed threadbare.

Makes dishwashing easier

Rinso softens the hardest water—no bar soaps or powders are ever needed. Recommended by makers of 33 famous washers. Will not blacken aluminum in washers. Grand for dishwashing and all cleaning. Easy on your hands. And Rinso is so economical. Get the BIG household package today.

SOUTH SHORE CHAMBER'S NEW OFFICERS

Grouped together for the first time since their recent election are the new officers and past president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. Seated at the desk (on the left) is John F. Browne, retiring president, with Norman Eiger, president-elect. Standing (from left to right) are William J. Bryar, William N. Devine, and J. L. Rosenblum, vice presidents; William E. Lyke, treasurer; L. E. Armijo, financial secretary, and Elmer Johnson, secretary. Joseph P. Lavin, another vice president, was absent when this picture was taken. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

ALL SOUTH SIDE HEBREW LEADERS RETAIN OFFICES

JOSEPH BAKER.

All present officers, trustees, and members of the board of directors of the South Side Hebrew congregation, 74th street and Chappel avenue, were reelected at the recent annual meeting, and will be installed this evening, Albert Schoenberg, administrative secretary of the congregation, announced last week. The installation ceremonies, which are to be held in the community room starting at 8 o'clock, will be followed by a program of entertainment.

The officers are: President, Joseph Baker; immediate past president, Joseph Friedman; honorary vice president, M. I. Goodman; vice presidents, Harry Weinstein, Abel Braun, and David Silbert; recording secretary, David Lefkovits; financial secretary, William I. Kaplan, and treasurer, Siegfried Kohn.

Julius Ellis, Max Greengard, and Philip Lewison are the trustees. The membership of the board of directors is as follows:

Maxwell Abbell, Sampson, Andelman, Ben Baker, Dr. Henry Barancik, Martin Bernstein, Harry Cohen, Jack A. Cohon, Mark Davis, Ben Ellis, Sol Ellis, Joseph Fienberg, Nathan Freeman, A. B. Goldman, Sam Graff, Nathan Kanter, L. Harry Levinson, Israel Lippa, Nate Remington, Joseph Rhein, M. J. Rosenberg, Nate Sherman, J. M. Sider, Paul Volk, Philip Wain, David Weinberg, Reuben Weissman, Sidney Wolfson, Solomon Zax, and I. J. Zimmerman.

Miss Lillian Baldauf, cellist, member of the Chicago Women's Symphony orchestra; Miss Bertha Waldman, soprano, member of the Chicago Civic Opera company; Peter Sher, concert pianist, and Cantor Joseph Giblichman of the congregation will take part in the program.

PENCEMEN ELECT CHARLES W. DELAND AS NEW PRESIDENT

C. W. DELAND.

Election of Charles W. Deland, 2021 Estes avenue, as president of the Order of Pencemen of the Episcopal church is announced today. Mr. Deland succeeds C. S. Watkins.

Other newly elected officers are: R. B. Ford, member of Holy Apostles church, Drake and Leland avenues, vice president; Mrs. E. J. Brown, St. John church, Irving Park, secretary; W. J. Attridge, Church of the Holy Spirit, Lake Forest, treasurer.

Mr. Deland is an active member of Church of the Atonement, Kenmore and Ardmore avenues. He was one of the organizers of the Order of Pencemen, members of which are devoted to promotion of the bishop's pence plan in the Episcopal church. This plan is aimed at reviving the old custom of grace before meals at the family table and the placing of a penny for each communicant in the pence can at mealtime. More than $55,000 has been raised during the past two years by this method.

Sectional vice presidents of the order named are: B. R. Williams, Park Ridge; C. S. Watkins, St. Bartholomew's, Englewood; L. Tabler, Momence; Paul Wagner, Freeport; T. R. Elliss, Church of Advent, Logan Square, and S. Kennedy, Wheaton. Sylvester A. Lyman of Evanston is executive secretary.

PLANS CLUB BENEFIT

Mrs. R. Meade Beville, ways and means chairman, who is planning the annual benefit card party the Windsor Park Woman's club will give on Thursday afternoon at the Masonic temple, 75th street and Coles avenue. [Gibson Studios.]

Auburn Park Lions Give Dinner Dance Wednesday

Auburn Park Lions will give a dinner-dance on Wednesday evening at the Wedgewood hotel, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue. Among special guests will be twelve of the club's past presidents, Timothy Weldon, Charles Statt, Joseph Snyder, Charles Pasal, Raymond J. Gates, Michael Cohen, David C. Nelson, John de Normandie, Carl Bergston, Harry R. Wexstein, Oscar E. Peterson and Ronald Dix. Joseph Mavon now heads the club.

Rev. Howard A. Vernon to Speak on "Days of Play"

"What Fun Can We Have: Days of Play," will be the Rev. Howard A. Vernon's subject this evening at the Englewood Baptist church, Englewood and Stewart avenues. The sermon will be the third in a series on the general subject, "The Days of Our Years." At the morning service he will preach on "The Economy of God."

Stewart Ridge Men's Club to HearTalk onCommunism

"The State of Coma," a discussion of the danger of Communism in America, will be presented by M. J. Lucas at the monthly meeting of the Men's club of the Stewart Ridge Community church tomorrow evening at the church, 120th street and Eggleston avenue. Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock, preceding the program. Ernest Richmond, president, will be master of ceremonies.

6-Way Control Onyx Base REFLECTOR LAMP $7.88

A floor lamp of stunning appearance with base of rich ivory finish, genuine white onyx and complete with beautifully trimmed, hand-sewn, pleated silk shade—it embodies 3 distinctive features recommended for better home illumination:

1. 3 Candle arms for direct lighting.
2. Milk white glass reflector bowl for semi-indirect lighting.
3. 6 way switch which gives 3 intensities of illumination in the reflector and provides for lighting 1, 2 or 3 of the candle lights.

ALL RIGHT, JIM— I'M GOING TO PUT ON MY PUTTY FEATURES AND FINAL MAKE-UP TO PLAY THE ROLE OF OUR GANGSTER FRIEND, BARNEY BOYLE.
THAT MOULAGE COPY OF HIS FACE OUGHT TO BE A PERFECT GUIDE.
KEEP THAT PHONOGRAPH REPRODUCTION OF HIS VOICE RUNNING SO I CAN MEMORIZE ALL HIS INFLECTIONS AND PRONUNCIATIONS.
COME ON, BOYLE- TAKE OFF YOUR CLOTHES AND PUT THESE ON. WE'RE GOING TO BORROW THOSE DUDS OF YOURS.
WHAT FOR?
DON'T ASK ANY QUESTIONS— AND DO AS YOU'RE TOLD! -AND WE WANT TO BORROW THAT SIGNET RING, TOO.
WELL, I'VE GOT HIS CLOTHING, TRACY. HOW ARE YOU GETTING ALONG?
HOW'S THIS?
GREAT SCOTT! YOUR IMPERSONATION IS PERFECT!
WELL- I'M ALL READY TO GO, JIM! -IS EVERYTHING SET?
OKAY, TRACY! MAKE YOUR GETAWAY —AND GOOD LUCK TO YOU.
AS TRACY LEAVES THE ROOM, JIM TRAILER HASTENS TO THE RADIO AND TELEGRAPH ROOM OF THE GOVERNMENT INTELLIGENCE OFFICE.....
ALL RIGHT, THORTEN, SEND OUT A TELETYPE AND GENERAL DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE BULLETIN THAT BARNEY BOYLE MADE HIS ESCAPE FROM G-MEN THIS AFTERNOON AT 5:30 O'CLOCK.
THAT EVENING...
UNCLE SAM'S G-MEN RECEIVED A STINGING SET-BACK TODAY WHEN BARNEY BOYLE, A "CUT" FAMON GUNMAN, SHOT HIS WAY TO FREEDOM FROM LOCAL GOVERNMENT HEADQUARTERS AT 5:30 P.M.
DID YOU HEAR THAT, BOYS? BARNEY HAS GIVEN THE G-MEN THE SLIP! GOOD OLD BARNEY!
WE MUST GO AND MEET HIM! HE'LL HEAD FOR CLANEY'S INN!
THIS CARD FOUND ON BOYLE SHOWS THEIR MEETING PLACE IS CLANEY'S INN! I'D BETTER HEAD THERE.
LATER!
BARNEY! WE KNEW YOU COULD DO IT!

Little Orphan Annie
LAST WEEK THE PREMIERE OF THE GREAT JUNGLE THRILLER WAS A STUPENDOUS SUCCESS- THE SENSATION OF THE PICTURE WAS INKEY, THE LITTLE NATIVE PRINCESS- INKEY! WHO IS INKEY? HER NAME AND FAME ARE SWEEPING THE NATION-
CAN YUH BEAT IT, SANDY? ALMOST OVERNIGHT TH' PUBLIC HAS GONE CRAZY OVER "INKEY"- ALREADY HUNDREDS O' THOUSANDS O' TELEGRAMS AN' LETTERS HAVE POURED IN, ASKIN' WHO IS "INKEY"?
TOOTSIE SNOOTS THOUGHT SHE WAS GOIN' TO BE TH' STAR- GEE- SHE AND HER FOLKS SURE ARE SORE- HER NAME IS IN BIG LIGHTS, ALL RIGHT, BUT "INKEY" IS IN LETTERS TWICE AS BIG.
NOW, ANNIE- WE MUST HAVE YOUR LIFE STORY- YOU'VE GOT TO TELL US YOUR LAST NAME- YOU'RE A STAR, NOW- WE MUST HAVE YOUR PICTURES FOR THE PAPERS.
WELL, I GUESS I MIGHT AS WELL TELL YOU ALL, I KNOW 'BOUT MYSELF NOW- AND LET YUH USE MY PICTURE--
SURE- WHY NOT? I---- ULP--- ER--R----
WHY, ANNIE! WHAT IN THE WORLD IS THE MATTER? WHAT'S WRONG? YOU ACT AS THOUGH YOU'D SEEN A GHOST-
N-N-NOTHING- -ONLY CAN'T WE WAIT A WHILE? I MUSTN'T LET MY PICTURE GET INTO ANY PAPER, 'CEPT TH' ONES WHERE I'M MADE UP LIKE "INKEY"-
BUT I CAN'T UNDERSTAND THE CHILD, JANEY- WHAT POSSIBLE REASON--?
MODESTY IS FINE, ANNIE- BUT DON'T YOU REALIZE NOT ONLY YOUR FUTURE BUT ALSO MR. GAMBLE'S FUTURE RESTS ON YOUR BECOMING A FAMOUS STAR?
GEE- I NEVER THOUGHT O' THAT- MR. GAMBLE HAS BEEN SWELL TO ME- I'D DO ANYTHING FOR HIM-- B-BUT-- OH, I CAN'T 'SPLAIN IT ALL, NOT EVEN TO YOU FOLKS- NOT JUST YET, ANYWAY- BUT PLEASE- LET FOLKS THINK "INKEY" IS A NATIVE, FOR A WHILE.
LEAPIN' LIZARDS! THAT CHINESE FELLA IS O.K.- BUT HE MADE ME REMEMBER, JUST IN TIME- NOBODY'D EVER GET WISE TO "INKEY" AND ME BEIN' TH' SAME KID-
BUT S'POSIN' MY REAL PICTURE GOT IN ALL TH' PAPERS, AND MY NAME AND EVER'THING- THOSE BIRDS THAT GOT WUN WEY WOULD HAVE ME INSIDE O' A WEEK-
I GOT AWAY- THAT WAS LUCK- BUT I'M NOT KIDDIN' MYSELF THEY AREN'T STILL LOOKIN' FOR ME- I KNOW TOO MUCH-.
NO SIREE- SOMETIMES PUBLICITY CAN BE TH' WORST THING IN TH' WORLD, I BETCHA- BUT, AT TH' SAME TIME, I CAN'T LET DOWN MR. GAMBLE- B'LIEVE ME, SANDY, THIS IS GOIN' TO TAKE SOME MIGHTY HEAVY FIGGERIN'-

A HAPPY FAMILY ONCE MORE
GEE, HONEY--HOW COULD I EVER HAVE BEEN SUCH A BRUTE!..YOU DON'T KNOW HOW WONDERFUL IT IS TO HAVE YOU AND BILLY BACK!
YES, AND YOU DON'T KNOW HOW WONDERFUL IT IS TO HAVE YOU LIKE YOUR OLD SELF AGAIN, DEAR, THANKS TO OVALTINE!
K. GUNNOR

IF SLEEPLESS NIGHTS ARE MAKING YOUR HUSBAND NERVOUS AND IRRITABLE, SEND THIS IN AND SEE FOR YOURSELF WHAT A DIFFERENCE OVALTINE MAY MAKE IN THE WAY HE SLEEPS AND LOOKS AND FEELS.

Ovaltine is a delicious pure food concentrate—approved by more than 20,000 physicians and used in 54 different countries today.

It was originally created in Switzerland as a strengthening food for invalids, convalescents, and the aged. Then physicians found that, when it was taken as a hot drink at bedtime, it also proved a remarkable aid to sound and restful sleep.

It is not a medicine in any sense of the word.

It is as free of drugs as the bread you eat or the milk you drink. People everywhere who take it regularly, report that they fall asleep quickly. And awaken mornings, filled with new strength and energy as a result of the natural, refreshing sleep they've had.

See for yourself how remarkable Ovaltine is. Get a can at any drug, grocery or department store today. Or, if your need is not urgent, mail the coupon for a liberal trial supply.

JOYCE ROYCE, ROLAND'S LITTLE SISTER, STARTED OUT TO SKI. SHE LOOKED FOR THE DANGER SIGN, BUT IT WAS GONE. NEAR THE SPOT WHERE IT HAD STOOD WAS A SMALL BLACK BOOK. ONE GLANCE SHOWED JOYCE IT WAS FAY FRANCIS' DIARY. HURRYING HOME, SHE GAVE IT TO HER MOTHER. IN IT, MRS. JOYCE READ OF FAY'S INFATUATION FOR BILL BYRD AND RICHARD MARLIN, ALSO OF HER HATRED FOR WINNIE. MRS. ROYCE IMMEDIATELY TOOK THE DIARY TO HER SON, ROLAND . . . .

TOM MIX -AND HIS RALSTON STRAIGHT SHOOTERS
AN ADVERTISEMENT OF THE RALSTON PURINA COMPANY
DON PADRO AND HIS OUTLAWS STRIKE LIKE LIGHTNING, PLUNDERING AND LOOTING THE BORDER TOWNS, NOT KNOWING WHERE THE BANDITS WILL RAID NEXT, AND UNABLE TO FOLLOW THEM ACROSS THE BORDER, THE RANGERS ARE HELPLESS
INTERNATIONAL BORDER LINE
IT'S NO USE, RANGERS! THE LAW WON'T LET US FOLLOW DON PADRO OVER THE BORDER
BUT, TOM — EVERY TIME IT'S THE SAME. WE'LL NEVER CATCH THEM
BANG
MEN, IF WE'RE GOING TO GET DON PADRO AND HIS GANG, WE'VE GOT TO PLANT A SPY IN HIS HIDE-OUT TO WARN US WHEN THEY'RE GOING TO RAID! WHO'LL VOLUNTEER?
TOM, JANE AND I CAN DO IT! LET US GO!
WE CAN GET SMUGGLED INTO THEIR HIDEOUT SEWED UP IN BAGS SO THEY'LL THINK WE'RE POTATOES
AND WE'LL TAKE YOUR ROCKET PARACHUTES TO SIGNAL WHAT ROAD THEY'RE TAKIN' WHEN THEY START A RAID
BY GOLLY, TOM! I THINK IT'LL WORK! ONE ROCKET WILL MEAN THE MOUNTAIN PASS—TWO WILL MEAN THE RIVER ROAD
NEXT DAY, AS DON PADRO'S COOK BRINGS PROVISIONS FROM TOWN, LITTLE DOES HE REALIZE THAT SEWED UP IN THE INNOCENT-LOOKING POTATO SACKS ARE JIMMY AND JANE —AND WE'LL TAKE THE RIVER ROAD AT DAWN AND RAID MOUNTAIN CITY
D'JA HEAR THAT JANE? THEY'RE TAKIN' THE RIVER ROAD
I CAUGHT 'EM SPYIN' ON US, DON PADRO. SAID THEY WERE GONNA TELL TOM MIX
LOCK 'EM UP SPIDER, WE'LL TAKE CARE OF 'EM AFTER THE RAID TOMORROW
WE'RE NOT SCARED OF YOU DON PADRO
THERE THEY GO! WE'LL FIRE THE ROCKET PARACHUTES TO WARN TOM AND THE RANGERS
THE ROCKET PARACHUTE SIGNALS. TWO PARACHUTES. THAT MEANS DON PADRO AND HIS GANG ARE TAKING THE RIVER ROAD!
WHAT TOM SAW THROUGH HIS BINOCULARS
LET'S GO RANGERS!
REACH FOR THE SKY, PADRO! LAW-BREAKERS ALWAYS LOSE. STRAIGHT SHOOTERS ALWAYS WIN. IT PAYS TO SHOOT STRAIGHT
IT'S TOM MIX AND THE RANGERS! WE'RE TRAPPED!
AS GOVERNOR OF THE STATE, I AWARD YOU THESE MEDALS FOR BRAVERY
IF IT HADN'T BEEN FOR TOM'S ROCKET PARACHUTE, MR. GOVERNOR, WE'D NEVER HAVE CAUGHT PADRO
TOM, HOW DO JIMMY AND JANE GET SO MUCH COURAGE AND ENERGY?
I RECKON IT'S MOSTLY FROM EATIN' RALSTON
RALSTON OUGHT TO GET A MEDAL, TOO! IT TASTES KEEN FREE TOM MIX' ROCKET PARACHUTE
FOR ONE RALSTON BOX TOP
BOYS AND GIRLS! I'LL SEND EVERY BOY AND GIRL WHO EATS RALSTON A GENUINE ROCKET PARACHUTE, FREE. IT'S JUST LIKE THE ROCKET PARACHUTE SIGNAL THAT JIMMY AND JANE USED TO CATCH PADRO. SHOOTS UP OVER A HUNDRED FEET AND FLOATS DOWN. IT'S BARRELS OF FUN. HURRY! BE THE FIRST IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD TO GET ONE
Tom Mix
I SHOOT THE ROCKET PARACHUTE INTO THE AIR. IT CLIMBS STRAIGHT UP, THEN OPENS AND A PARACHUTE POPS OUT. THE ROCKET FALLS AT YOUR FEET. YOU CAN USE IT OVER AND OVER AGAIN

STREAKY by GUS EDSON
A TERRIFIC BLIZZARD HAS BEEN RAGING IN THE VICINITY OF MIDVILLE SINCE LAST SUNDAY. JEANIE'S FATHER AND MR. MILLIN THE TOWN BANKER, WHO WENT ON A HUNTING TRIP WHEN IT STARTED, HAVEN'T BEEN HEARD FROM IN SEVEN DAYS.
HELLO, JEANIE – ANY NEWS ??
NO– NOTHING, NOT A WORD
WE'VE ENLISTED THE AID OF THE STATE POLICE – THE WHOLE FORCE IS OUT SEARCHING THERE'S SOMEONE AT THE DOOR– QUICK!!
IT'S.... NO USE. EVERY ..... MAN IN...... THE TROOP HAS.... HAS RETURNED EXHAUSTED. NOT A TRACE CAN BE FOUND
THANKS FOR TRYING
THANK YOU FOR THAT HOT COFFEE, AND WE'LL KEEP TRYING – BUT I'M AFRAID IT'S HOPELESS
LISTEN, JEANIE – I'LL BE RIGHT BACK
15 MINUTES LATER...
WHY– WHERE ??
I'M GOING OUT TO SEARCH FOR THEM MYSELF–
JAN. 19
DON'T WORRY, JEANIE– I'LL FIND THEM– S'LONG
...AND THERE GOES STREAK INTO THE VERY TEETH OF THE BLIZZARD –ALONE. GOOD LUCK, BOY....

WHITEBOY IN SKULL VALLEY
WELL, BOB, THIS IS QUITE A CHANGE FROM THAT FANCY CASINO WHERE I HAD THE PRIZE FIGHT. THIS VEGETATION LOOKS TO BE A MILLION YEARS OUT OF DATE!
A FLYING PLANT, B'GOSH!
A GIANT TUMBLE WEED!
RUNNING TOWARD THE TUMBLE WEED IS A CAVEMAN PURSUED BY A NAMELESS MONSTER, A CREATURE OF ANOTHER AGE!
CATCHING A STEM OF THE REVOLVING WEED THE CAVEMAN IS BORNE SAFELY OUT OF REACH
HE'S TREADING IT LIKE A TREADMILL!
PARDON ME, GENTLEMEN, BUT MIGHT I SUGGEST YOU STAND AWAY FROM THAT GAS CACTUS? SHOULD YOU STEP ON A ROOT, IT WILL THROW A DART THROUGH YOU..
THE PLANTS HERE TAKE GAS FROM THE EARTH. BY MEANS OF IT SOME CAN FLY, OTHERS THROW DARTS TWO HUNDRED FEET...

—clears the skin

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES MAKE YOU HIDE AWAY!

BETWEEN the ages 13 and 25, important glands develop. This causes disturbances throughout the body. Waste poisons in the blood irritate the skin—making it break out in pimples.

In treating these adolescent pimples, doctors prescribe Fleischmann's Yeast. This fresh yeast clears the blood of the skin irritants that cause pimples. With their cause removed, the pimples disappear.

Eat Fleischmann's Yeast 3 times a day, before meals, plain, or in a little water—until your skin is entirely clear. Many cases of pimples clear up within a week or two. Bad cases sometimes take a month or more. Start today!

HELP WANTED—MEN.

Miscellaneous.

MEN.

If you are interested in making money, increasing your income, getting into a permanent business not affected by seasons, providing properly for your family and are a real worker of good character, between the ages of 25 and 60 preferably, then this opportunity concerns you. We will give time for a personal interview to such men.

Our company is rapidly approaching in this country the complete dominance of market it has already secured in other countries with five European and American factories continuously busy supplying our products.

Men in this business from all walks of life are big earners. When they learn this profitable business thoroughly their incomes range around $2,000, $4,000, $6,000, $7,500 and more per year, yet they had no previous experience in this kind of work.

Here are a few examples of what our men earned in this territory in one day this week: Truesdell, a former waiter, $47.75; Wagner, a former clerk, $71.60; Reichart, former mechanic, $47.40; Butler, former counterman, $70.25; Castle, former appliance salesman, $44.50; Polston, former painter, $94.50; Snell no former experience, $24.41; Richman, former grocer, $57.80; McArthur, former policeman, $24; Skinner, former farmer, $23.75; Leonard, former electrician, $24.20; Bailey, former mechanic, $56.30. If selected you will meet all of the above men and many others who are now successful in our business.

Beginners may have to be content with $125 to $200 per month. You are placed on the same percentage basis of compensation as the others and make no investment or deposit and are given a complete factory schooling at no expense to you.

If you measure up to the above requirements, are a good learner and a hard worker, reliable and present a neat appearance, call at Suite 402, Maryland Bldg., 63rd-st. and Maryland-av., Monday between 1 and 3 p. m. Ask for George Buckley.

ARE YOU THE MAN?

Have opening for man to interview our customers. Prefer him between 30 and 45 years of age, with some personal contact experience. Man accepted will have steady employment with liberal pct. pay. No merchandise to sell. Call 10 to 2 p. m. See Employment Manager.

Their reasons were:
1. Newness and cleanliness of everything.
2. Large living rooms, large closets and separate kitchens.
3. Transportation: one block to "L" and bus.

We should like to have you compare our apts., our location and our PRICES with others you have seen or heard of.

Farms Mean Real Pleasure as Well as Cash to Buyers

BY BOB BECKER.

Although a recent survey of farm sales during the last year indicates that many business men are putting their money into farm properties for safe investments and for future security, there are many buyers who have killed two birds with one stone by making this type of investment.

As many of the investors point out, they not only put their money into something that is substantial and secure when they buy a farm, but they also are getting a lot of fun out of owning one.

This is especially true of many Chicago business men who like the outdoors. For example, we know of one farm purchaser who has two hobbies: hunting and horseback riding. He bought one farm with a small stream on it. After putting a tenant on the land to farm the tillable acreage, the owner then did something he had wanted to do all his life: develop an average farm to see how he could increase the game bird population.

Increases Bird Population.

First, he dammed the small stream on his place and made a duck pond, where he has been able to shoot ducks every fall during the duck season. Then he turned to the problem of upland game birds. He planted food patches for the birds and added to the cover that birds need.

This winter he is feeding the game birds at cornstalk shelters. The result has been excellent pheasant hunting on his land and the improvement of all upland game hunting nearby. He also is raising chickens and feeding a few Hereford steers for beef. And there are horses on the farm, so the whole family can go out and enjoy rides over the property.

A survey of improvements on farms taken by many Chicagoans in recent years shows how many of these investors have improved the properties with dwellings so that the family can enjoy life in the open and use the farm for a part time residence.

Thus the purchase of the farm has returned several "dividends" that cannot be measured in dollars, becaus, as one farm purchaser has pointed out, hobbies and opportunities for more fun outdoors produce dividends in pleasure and contentment that are beyond the dollar measuring stick.

Want Safe Investments.

C. A. Darnell, one of the largest dealers in farm lands in Kendall county, calls attention to the fact that the sales of farms in many cases often have been due to the urge of the city man for a safe investment plus the opportunity to get away from the hustle and hurry of the metropolitan area. He says:

"There are two reasons for the exceptional interest now developing in rural real estate holdings. Many are buying as a hedge against inflation, whether their fears are justified or not. Others are buying to gratify an urge to get into the open. I think city people now are more country home minded than they have been in years. Certain it is that all recognize in farm possession a family bulwark."

All the counties in the neighborhood of Chicago are feeling the impetus of this "back to the farm movement."

Activity in Barrington.

There has been much activity in the Barrington area during the last year, one broker, Roy Huszagh, stating that he had sold 2,500 acres of farm land in 1935 at prices up $50 an acre over those of 1934. Practically all of the land purchased is for year round use.

Among the many farm sales noted recently in the Chicagoland area are the following:

Austin Jenner, an officer of the First National Bank of Chicago, bought a Kane county farm. His new property is the 176 acre Knolland farm two miles southwest of Elburn, and the adjoining Bateman farm, which consists of 240 acres.

Last summer Edward C. Ince, a Chicago attorney, bought a 120 acre farm four miles west of Geneva.

More Farms Purchased.

Frank J. Rief, an official of the Carnegie Steel company, is making a number of improvements on the 200 acre Allen farm on U. S. route 20 about 18 miles west of Elgin. He bought this property during the last year.

Joseph McNulty, a Chicago contractor, has bought the Marvin farm of 320 acres four miles west of Elburn in Kane county.

A. R. Johnson of Oak Park now owns a 175 acre farm west of St. Charles which he bought last fall.

The Babson brothers, Chicago dairy equipment dealers, have purchased nearly 50 farms in Kane, De Kalb, and adjoining counties.

James M. Litsey, Winnetka, head of a realty concern in Chicago, last month bought the 245 acre Tefft farm just south of Elgin on the east side of St. Charles road. The farm had been in the Tefft family for nearly a century, Jonathan Tefft having bought it from the government in the 1830s.

Auto Dealer Buys.

Another recent transfer of farm property was that of the McCanney farm between Elgin and St. Charles. This farm was sold to William Earle Butler, head of a Chicago automobile distributing firm.

J. V. McCarthy of Chicago, bought a 160 acre farm in Kendall county for a reported price of $15,000. This property is near the Tribune experimental farm near Yorkville.

Mrs. Bernice Dunham West and Chicago associates have 1,000 acres near St. Charles and Wayne which is being subdivided and sold for estate purposes.

Jules J. Rubens, Chicago, director of operations for the Great States-Publix theaters, now owns the 85 acre Miller farm which is a quarter of a mile south of Plano. Mr. Rubens has invested heavily in this property in making it a modern chicken farm.

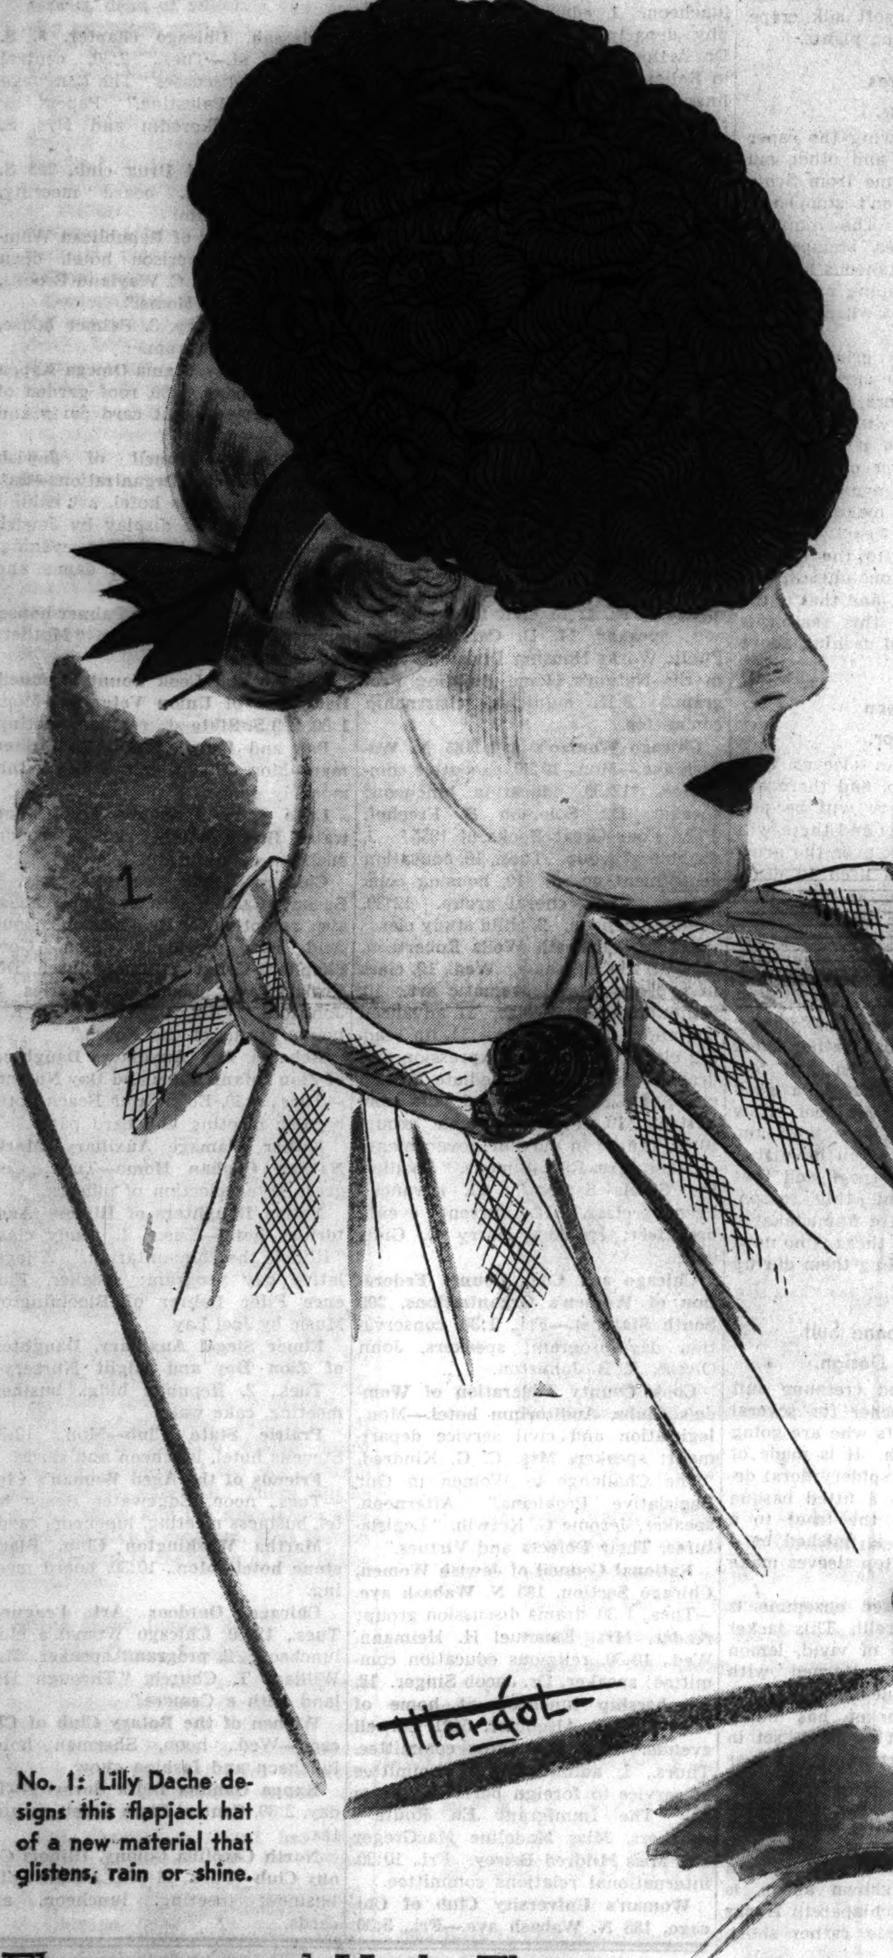
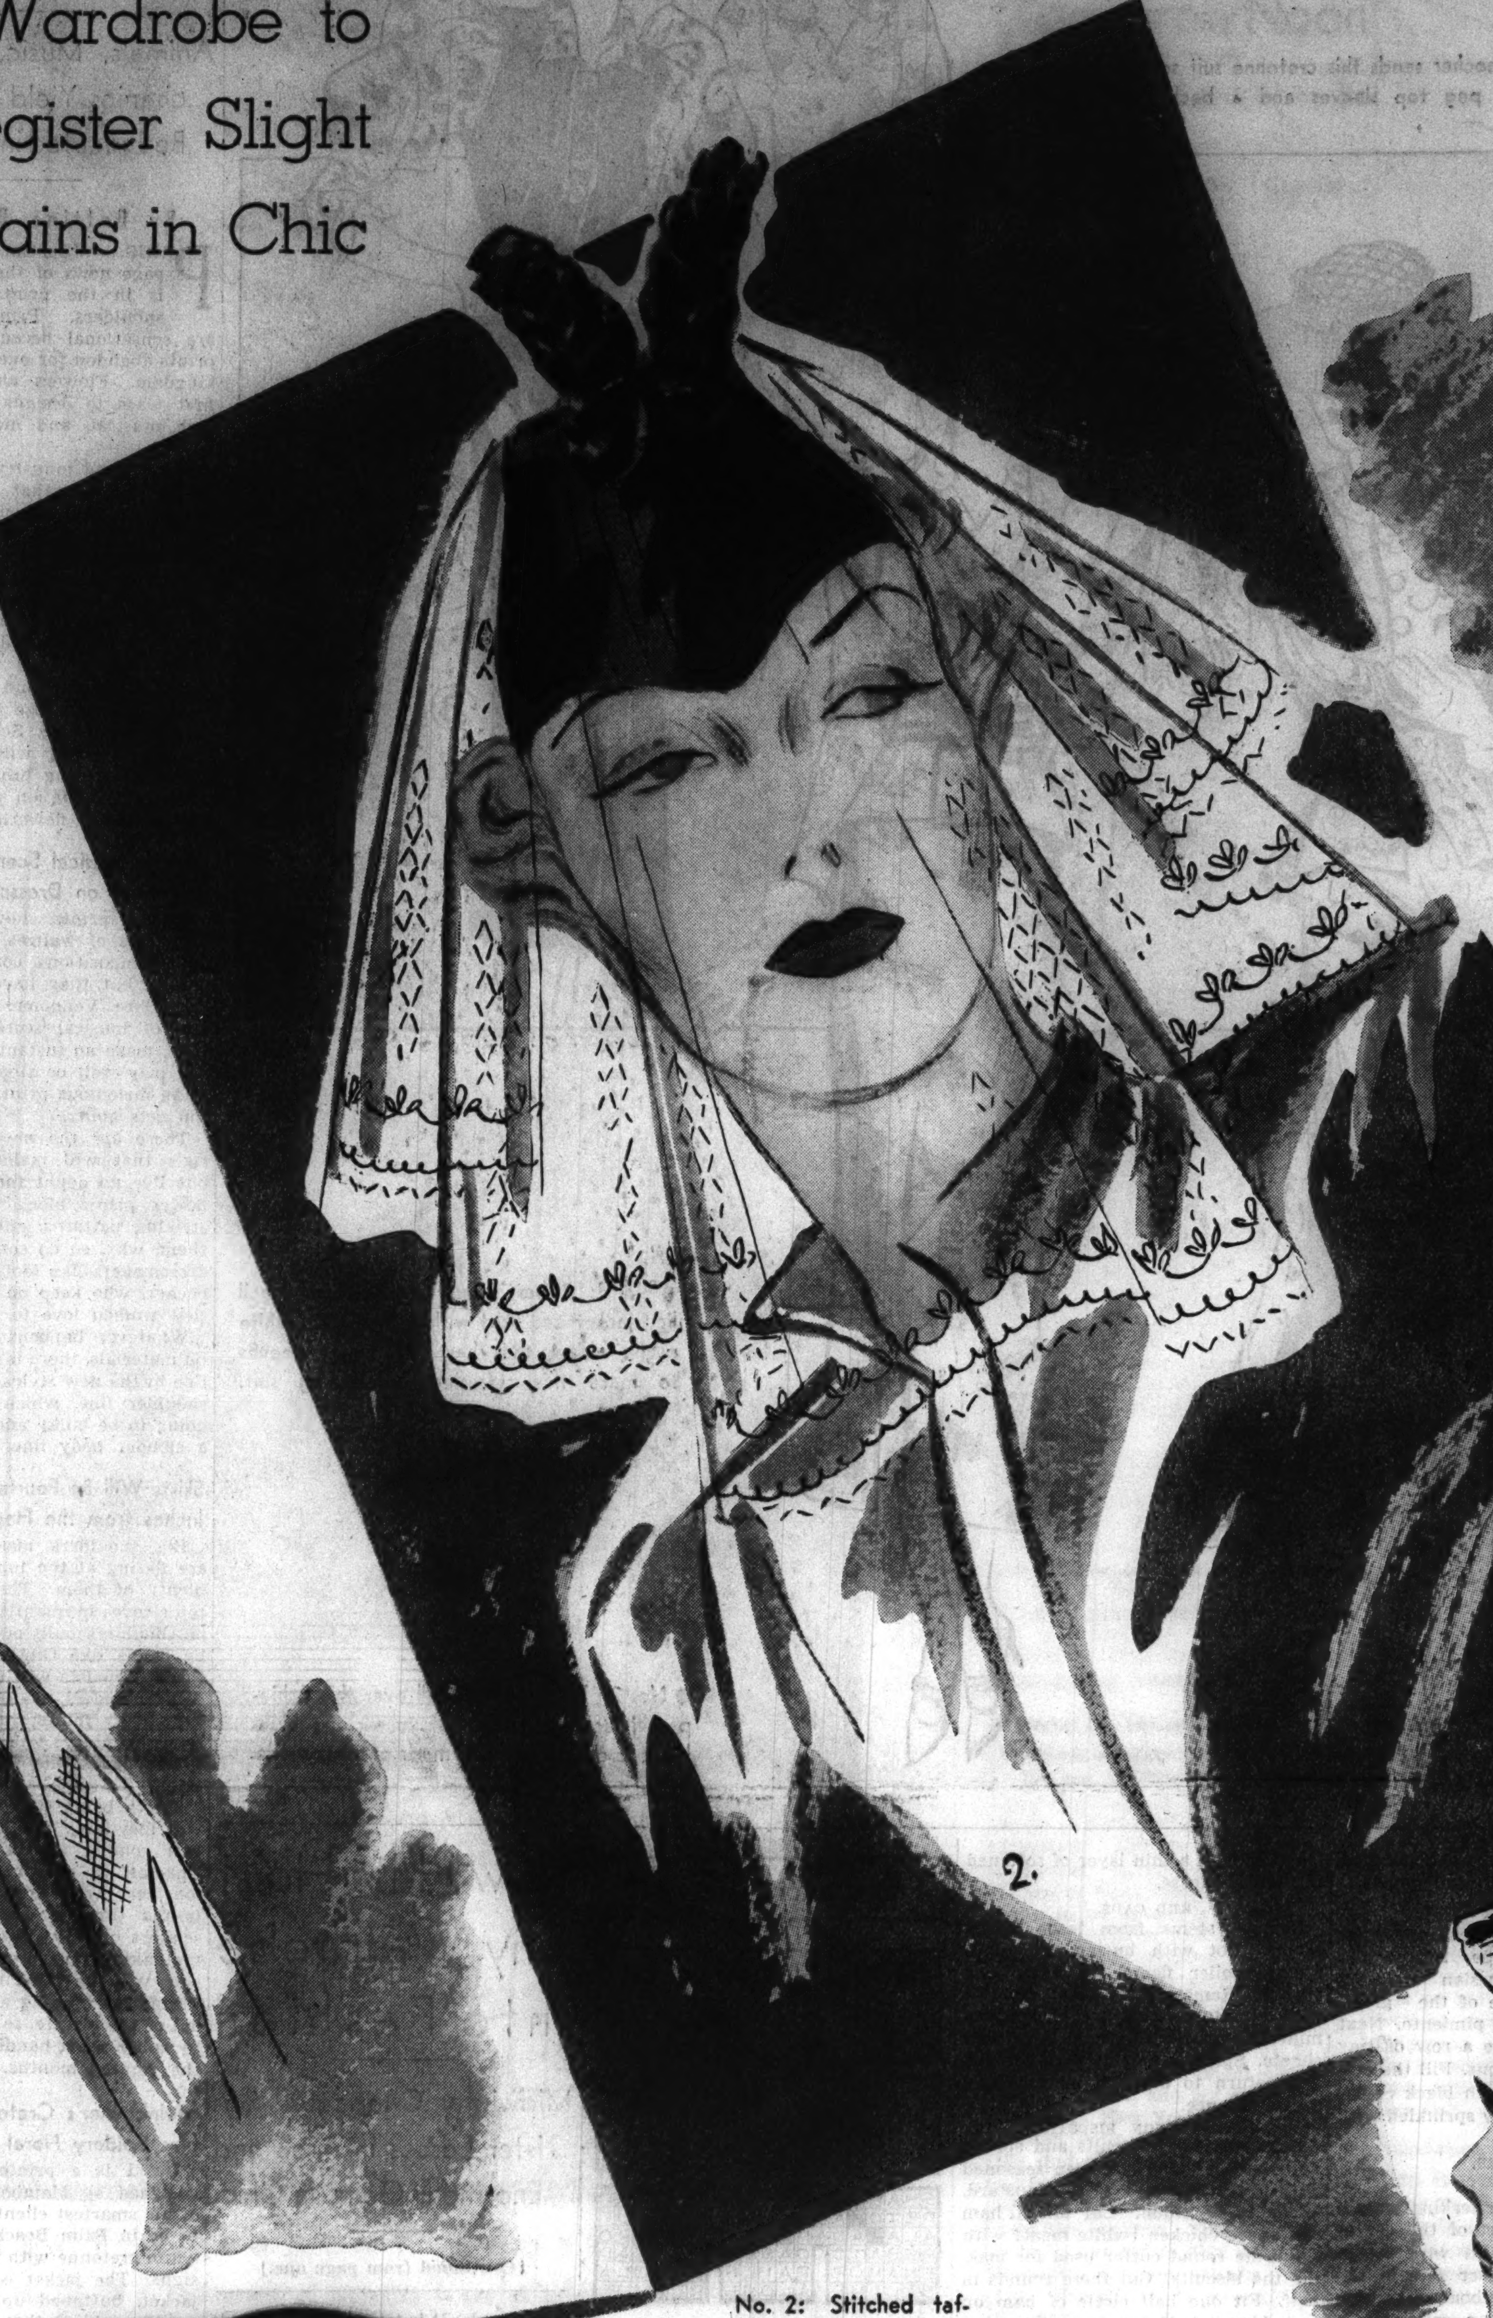
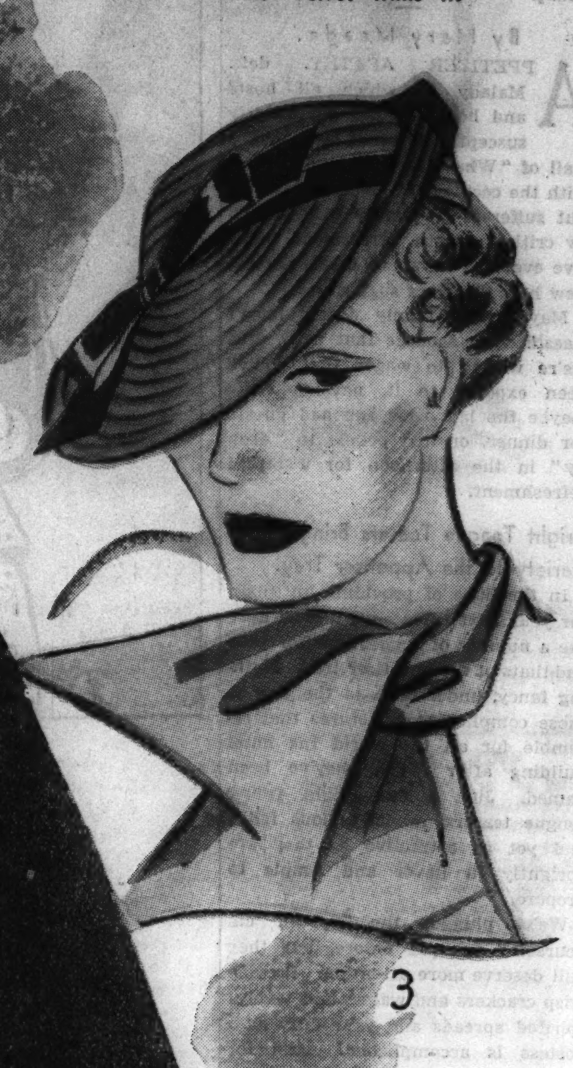
Midwinter Hats Hoist Any Wardrobe to the Heights of Fashion; Register Slight Losses in Area, Enormous Gains in Chic



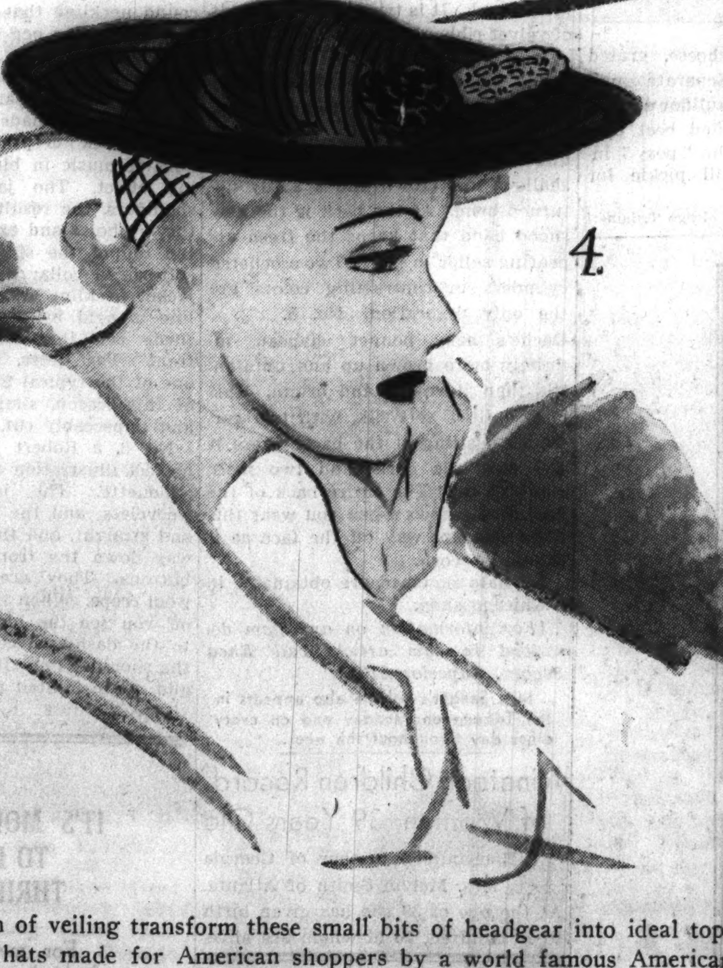
No. 1: Lilly Dache designs this flapjack hat of a new material that glistens, rain or shine.



No. 2: Stitched taffeta, accented by a fine meshed veil, makes a small, jaunty hat.



No. 3: Corded and stitched fabric is used for a shovel shaped hat. Velvet trims it.



No. 4: The Breton sailor hat, with its beguiling silhouette, returns in dull taffeta.

Flowers and Veils Flutter Gaily from Headlines

By RHEA SEEGER.

MIDWINTER hats, the kind you buy in low moments, the perky, fresh looking creations that successfully pull any winter wardrobe into fashion smartness, are just as exciting as the preview of a much advertised movie, just as fascinating as the star of the same film. They live up to all expectations for something dashing and flattering.

Although these same frivolous tidbits give our masculine critics plenty of material for comments, caustic as well as complimentary, these same interested men usually end up by enthusiastically agreeing with the hat owners that the new chapeaux are the peak of sophistication and flattery.

Different Without Being Silly.

Flowers, bows, ribbons, provocative wisps of veils have staged a comeback, and the new midwinter models are distinctively different, without being jittery, goofy, or downright silly.

Lilly Dache, that wizard of hat designers, again steals the best fashion showings with a grand collection of the most feminine creations that have been unpacked for years. Tiny hats perch charmingly, to reveal your most becoming coiffures. Bows of corded ribbon, a bunch of flowers, or a film of veiling transform these small bits of headgear into ideal tops for American headline hats made for American shoppers by a world famous American designer who knows better than any one else just the right slant, the right degree of daring sophistication to concoct.

Whiffs of Hats Worn for Fun.

One thing even the diehards are going to learn is that we, the perverse and sometimes capricious shoppers, will wear, from now on, tiny whiffs of hats, not for warmth, not for snug comfort, not to hide a sleepy pair of eyes, but just for the fun of it. These microscopic confections are the peak in decorative accents for an ensemble. After this lesson is learned the fun begins, and the vanishing areas of headgear no longer disturb the knowing shopper.

Midwinter hats of fabric are, no doubt, the safest buys for the next few weeks. But you can find them in pastels to pack for the southern vacation, clear, bright, and eye filling colors daringly to contrast street and daytime clothes of somber hue for wear in town now, or stunning blacks, browns, and blues to complete the smartest and swankiest of winter ensembles.

Shallow crowns, cut and fitted by experts, still hug the skull and attain this smooth fitting with the newest of snood attachments, those meshlike bands that take the place of last year's bandeaux. Breton sailors that will remind you of the upturned saucerlike creations worn by children are still refreshingly young looking. When shallow brims are combined with still shallower crowns the results are perfect.

Trick New Material Glistens and Shines.

Stitched silk taffeta makes the sleek, smart, afternoon hats, the saucy looking numbers with a twist of veiling, daintily obscuring sometimes both eyes, sometimes merely one. Bows of veiling are magic knots to feminize the otherwise severe outline of stiff felt or fabric designed in sharp contours. And subtle color combinations, a trick never overplayed, always take the honors. A bunch of French violets tied with a bow of rose red or clear yellow corded fabric is accented with cherry red velvet bands. Or acid green may be combined with grape, brown with turquoise, or gray with plum.

Five models, each as different from the other as can be found, each for a special personality, have been sketched. They are only five unusual designs from an equally unusual larger collection ready for wear now, with a trim, slim, street suit or with sophisticated afternoon silk dresses worn under fur coats or with fur collared winter coats.

No. 1. . . . Daché's flapjack hat of roses of a trick new material that glistens rain or shine. It is small, French in color and dash. It is anchored securely to the head by a ribbon band and bow in the same color as the hat. A perfect hat for afternoon or dinner dresses. No. 2. . . . Stitched taffeta makes this jaunty affair that hugs the headline so becomingly. The padded twin trim is accented by the fine meshed veil that swirls deep around the shoulderline.

Shovel Hat Dips Up and Down.

No. 3. . . . Another brilliant hat success, this time in corded and stitched fabric. It features the shovel shape, dipping down over the eyeline and up

New Appetizer Recipes Assist Bored Hostess

Clever Spreads and Novel Hors d'Oeuvres Bring Verve to Party Menus.

Miss Meade contributes daily to the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune, guiding housewives to the best knowledge of cookery, hostessing, and budgeting.

By Mary Meade.

APPETIZER APATHY, def.: Malady to which all hosts and hostesses are particularly susceptible. Chief symptom, a wail of "What's new to send around with the cocktails?" Not contagious, but sufferers frequently quarantined by critical guests. Treatment, effective even for advanced cases, several new hors d'œuvres suggestions.

Maybe your family doctor hasn't classified the scourge that way. But we're willing to wager that you've been exposed to it, nevertheless—maybe the last time you had guests for dinner, or told people to "drop by" in the afternoon for a bit of refreshment.

Bright Tongue Teasers Bring Variety to the Appetizer Tray.

In the hope of providing antitoxin for your next threatened attack, here are a number of suggestions for this-and-thats of the appetizer tray. Nothing fancy, understand, in the way of those complicated structures that resemble for all the world the hotel building after which they've been named. Just a few bright young tongue teasers, minus tedious frills, and yet as attractive as they are sprightly in flavor and simple to prepare.

We've plugged the "spread 'em yourself" canapés before, but they still deserve more attention. Provide crisp crackers and wafers and several spirited spreads and your duty as a hostess is accomplished! And for something gay in spreaders, please do look up the new colored wooden ones! They come in assortments of melting hues to pretty up your tray or table; they're just the right handy size for spreading small bites, and they're delightfully inexpensive. [Note: Colored wooden fork-picks for hors d'oeuvres come in matching lots—simply elegant for tempters too big for a colored woodpin!]

Unusual Canapes Enliven Offering of Hors d'Oeuvres.

If the idea is a favorite with you, but you have wearied of the same old spreads, perhaps one of these three will offer a bit of inspiration.

OPEN HOUSE.

3 ounces Roquefort cheese
3 ounces cream cheese
1 tablespoon cream
¼ cup pistachio nuts
1 teaspoon minced onion
2 tablespoons chopped ripe olives

Blend cheeses, softening with cream. Combine with nuts, minced onion, and chopped olives, and serve chilled with toasted rye wafers.

CANNIBAL SPREAD.

¼ pound raw sirloin steak, ground finely
3 tablespoons softened butter
4 tablespoons minced onion
Salt, black pepper
Mustard
Tabasco sauce

Blend chopped steak with softened butter, minced onion, and season highly. Place in a bowl for self-spread canapés and sprinkle top of spread heavily with additional minced onion and a dash of paprika.

DINNER DATE.

½ cup sliced, pitted dates
1 cup peanut butter
¼ cup fresh grated horse radish
Anchovy fillets

Combine sliced dates with the blended peanut butter and horse radish. Serve with crisp crackers for guest spread canapés, decorating top of bowl with rolled anchovy fillets before serving.

And that much for the spreads. Now for some prepared-in-advance appetizers to help ward off the dreaded "A. A." and to delight your guests.

CHESHIRE CAT GRIN.

Cut white bread in crescent shapes and toast on one side. Spread the other side with Russian dressing. Edge the spread side of the "grin" with strips of canned pimiento. Next to the red strip place a row of tiny bird's-eye pickled onions. Fill the center of each canapé with black caviar which has been lightly sprinkled with lemon juice.

SKIPPERS.

I.

Halve 3 inch sour gherkins lengthwise. Scoop out part of the center of each half and refill with cream cheese. Slice the under side of the pickle flat, so that the boat will stand, filled side up. Make a sail from a thin rectangle of smoked salmon, thrust through a colored woodpin, and stick in the top of the pickle boat.

II.

Make similar boats from sweet gherkins, without scooping out any of the centers. Make the sails from two layers of chipped dried beef, put together with a thin layer of softened Roquefort cheese.

RED CAPS.

Remove stems from large mushrooms. Dot with butter and place under broiler flame [hot] for one minute. Remove from heat and fill with a mixture of buttered dry crums, minced onion, and grated American cheese. Sprinkle heavily with paprika and return to oven to melt cheese. Serve at once.

MASON-DIXON BISCUITS.

Split small hot biscuits and spread with butter which has been seasoned with Worcestershire sauce, mustard, and minced onion. Cut sliced ham and sliced chicken [white meat] with the same round cutter used for making the biscuits. Cut these rounds in half. Fit one half circle of ham on each biscuit half and cover the other side with the chicken. Mark the dividing line with a row of chopped sweet pickle, lightly mixed with prepared mustard. Serve hot.

FLOWERPOTS.

Scoop out a deep hollow in a number of tiny pickled beets. Slice a bit from the other end so that each beet will stand alone. Fill the cavities with a mixture of cream cheese, grated horseradish, and salt. Separate small flowerets of pickled cauliflower and place one in each stuffed beet cup, and at either side of the "posy" insert two slivers of dill pickle for leaves.

GRACEFUL ACCESSORIES FOR SELF-HELP CANAPES

In demure procession after their wafer-filled mother, these three baby swans hold zippy canape spreads for self-help appetizers. The flat spreaders are of gayly colored wood, inexpensive, disposable, and ever so pert in style!

in the back. It is trimmed with bands of velvet ribbon. This hat goes south, or tops a dark costume for the stay-at-home. No. 4. . . . The Breton sailor returns in a new and even more beguiling silhouette. The material is dull sheen taffeta. The hat has a shallow, low crown and a softly upturned brim. At the back is the new snood band that keeps the fresh appearing sailor in place. Two crocheted cylinders in contrasting colors are the only decoration. No. 5. . . . Daché's baby bonnet chapeau, infinitely more grown up and uninfantile than its name and origin. This is of quilted, soft silk, with two gardenias nestling at the back where it ties over the curls, and two more right on top. The entire back of the hair dress shows when you wear this little charmer way off the face as it should be worn.

Paris Seeks Print Motifs in New Realms

Animals, Music, and Mechanics Yield Designs to Be Executed in Auto Paint

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS. — [Special.] — The front page news of the new fashions is in the prints and on the shoulders. Printed materials are sensational because the newest prints abandon for once the vegetable kingdom. Flowers and leaves give first place to designs from the animal, musical, and mechanical kingdoms.

Science and industry have inspired printed designs that represent such things as radio on silks, linens, and cottons. The paint they use to give automobiles their sleek coats is now being bought by Lyons silk manufacturers and used to make glossy patterns on taffeta and crêpe de chine.

The animal kingdom has been pretty well ravaged to furnish patterns on every kind of cloth that the dressmakers use for making our clothes for spring. Schiaparelli made history with her wild horse prints, showing capering broncs in red and black and white on soft silk crêpe, surrounded by flowering plants.

Popular Musical Scores Reprinted on Dresses.

Musical prints, showing the capering notes of waltzes and other musical compositions, come from Schiaparelli, but they haven't stopped in the Place Vendôme. The romantic airs of musical scores, stamped on silks, made an instantaneous hit, and you may well be stepping around in these melodious prints when the season gets going.

These are the new printed materials that will make spring styles, but I've no doubt there will still be flower prints along with the more striking patterns, and if you prefer them, why, so do some of the Paris dressmakers like Molyneux and Mainbocher, who keep on making clothes that women love to wear.

Whatever happens to the designs on materials, there is one unescapable line in the new styles, and that is the shoulder line, which this season is going to be bulky and dashing above a slender body line.

Skirts Will Be Fourteen Inches from the Floor.

Big shoulders mean sleeves that are flaring at the top, and there are plenty of them. There will be peg top sleeves in quantity and there will be shoulders built out over the arms by bands like Gibson used to draw them. Capelets will make many delicate shoulders along the boulevards look bulky this spring. Bulky bands set in armholes will be another way to emphasize the top of the silhouette.

Skirts being narrower, or plaited, will inevitably be worn rather short this coming season. You will feel smartest in a skirt that is a good fourteen inches from the floor. Now is the time to get busy with the scissors on any skirts you have that are taking up closet space and that you will be wearing this season. Trains for evening are unmistakably out of the picture, so there is no need to worry about handling them during the coming months.

Mainbocher's Cretonne Suit Has Spidery Floral Design.

No. 1 is a printed cretonne suit designed by Mainbocher for several of his smartest clients who are going to be in Palm Beach. It is made of white cretonne with spidery floral designs. The jacket is a fitted basque jacket, buttoned up the front to a round neckline that is finished by a bias band. The peg top sleeves make the shoulders smart.

A melodious printed ensemble is No. 2, from Schiaparelli. This jacket and dress are made of vivid, lemon yellow silk crêpe patterned with bars of music in blue-black—a striking effect. The jacket has bulky shoulders, the result of bands set in the armholes and extending out over the top of the simple sleeves. The soft shawl collar finishes a rounded jacket neckline and the fitted waistline is held by a heavy, blue-black suede belt that forms curlicues in front. The dress, shown above, is one of the typical Schiaparelli frocks of this season, simple, rather short, and impeccably cut.

No. 3, a Robert Piguet suit, is a perfect illustration of the new pencil silhouette. The jacket, which is sleeveless, and the skirt are narrow and straight, and they button all the way down the front on black bone buttons. They are made of black wool crêpe. When the jacket is taken off you see the blouse that belongs to the dashing sleeves which widen the shoulder line. It is made of black and white quilted piqué.

Federation and U. of C. Are to Have Forum

Current Affairs Institute Wednesday and Thursday Is Jointly Sponsored.

THE University college of the University of Chicago, in coöperation with the education department of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, will present an institute on current affairs Wednesday and Thursday at Judson court, 1005 East 60th street.

Quincy Wright, professor of international law, will discuss "Current International Conditions" at the opening session at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday. Jerome G. Kerwin, associate professor of political science, will discuss "The National Political Situation."

Session on Educational Trends to Follow Tour.

Following luncheon and a tour of the quadrangles there will be a session on "Trends in College Education" at 2:30 o'clock. George A. Works, dean of students and university examiner, will talk on "Curriculum," and Aaron J. Brumbaugh, acting dean of the college, on "Personnel Problems."

Thursday morning's program will include a discussion of "Current Drama" by Frank H. O'Hara, associate professor of English and director of dramatic productions. Dr. Mandel Sherman, associate professor of educational psychology, will talk on "Psychology and Personality."

Geology films will be shown during the luncheon period, and "Trends in Public Education" will be the theme of the session following. Principal Harry O. Gillet of the University Elementary school and William C. Reavis, professor of education, will speak respectively on the elementary and secondary aspects of the problem.

This institute is the second to be sponsored by the Illinois federation this season in keeping with the key thought, "Education for Living," proclaimed by Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs. Mrs. James Oldshue is state education chairman.

Motion Picture Chairman Announces Photoplay Survey.

Mrs. Charles R. Holton, motion picture chairman of the Illinois federation, is asking clubwomen of the state to mail in to her lists of the ten best photoplays of 1935, together with the names of the ten men and ten women whose acting was outstanding. The lists should reach her at 4303 Lowell avenue, Chicago, by Feb. 5.

The state motion picture department will have Dr. C. O. Schneider as its speaker at 10 o'clock Tuesday at state headquarters, 30 West Washington street. Dr. Schneider's talk will be illustrated by autochromes.

The Lincoln Good Will committee of the Chicago Woman's club, of which Mrs. Walter H. Buhlig is chairman, has announced "How Shall We Honor Lincoln's Ideals of Good Will in the World of Today?" as the topic of this year's essay contest for high school students.

The author of the winning essay will be invited to read his work at the Lincoln good will meeting of the Chicago Woman's club in February. The essay also will be broadcast.

The Women's Bar association of Illinois will hold a dinner-dance Saturday evening at the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman. There will be a floor show, and the association glee club will give a program. Miss Marion L. Marshall is chairman of the dance committee.

Anshe Emet Juniors Are to Have Dance Sunday.

The Anshe Emet Junior synagogue will sponsor its first dance next Sunday evening at the Medinah club. Miss Esther Rubin is among those active in arrangements for the event. Sidney L. Blankstein heads the group.

Mrs. Georgia A. Hunt has been elected president of the Hotel Women's association of Chicago. Mrs. Helen M. Murray is first vice president; Mrs. Agnes Breckenridge, second vice president; Miss Faye Davis, recording secretary; Mrs. Florence Bowman, corresponding secretary; Miss Marie Nehr, treasurer.

The third annual party of the Chicago Parental school will be held at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening at the school. Pupils will present a minstrel, "Ethiopian Wishbone," under the direction of Dr. Phillip I. Dorne, and there will be other numbers with cards, dancing, and refreshments following. Mrs. George Ives is general chairman.

The Illinois Citizens' Animal Welfare league will sponsor a lecture illustrated with motion pictures by S. A. Campbell at 8:15 o'clock Thursday evening in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel.

The Catholic Juniors will hold a dance Friday evening in the grand ballroom of the Steuben club, 188 West Randolph street. Miss Alice Zarzycki is chairman.

ONE OF SOCIETY'S ARDENT SPORTSWOMEN

Miss Fanny McPherson, daughter of the Donald F. McPhersons of Winnetka, is one of society's ardent sportswomen, and riding is one of her favorite sports. She always is correctly turned out as an equestrienne, and although she would not approve this outfit for a formal hunt, she is wearing the smart thing for hacking. The breeches are of tan whipcord and the vest matches them, while the coat is in a darker, warmer shade of brown, with a definite, sporty plaid running through the rough material. Her hat is of dark brown felt, the stock is yellow with brown pin dots, and her boots are seal brown. The riding crop is handsomely finished with an ivory handle.

London Directory Recalls First of Social Volumes

The huge London directory for 1936 recalls that precious little volume from which it is lineally

LONDON descended.

The first London directory was published in 1595 and was a small pamphlet entitled, "The Names of Such Gentlemen of Accounts as Were Residing in the City of London, Liberties, and Suburbs Thereof, November, 1595."

The second London directory was published in 1677, and contained about 1,000 names and addresses which strike us today as rather vague. One "Thomas Smith" is said to have lived "back side of the exchange at a packer's." One "Roger Bradley" lived in "Bishopsgate street, over against the postoffice."

It was another century before the appearance of Kelly's, now almost indispensable in every household.

Debrett's, that solemn record of the English aristocracy, contains a record of official changes. It recalls that, in addition to the marriage of the duke of Gloucester, three other great-grandchildren of Queen Victoria were married during the year. They were the Infanta Beatrice, the elder daughter of King Alfonso of Spain and Queen Victoria Eugenia; the second, the Princess Ingrid, only daughter of the crown prince of Sweden and the late Princess Margaret of Connaught, and the third was the prince of the Asturias, brother of the Infanta Beatrice.

There has been an unprecedented number of deaths among titled people during this last year, and the necessary changes and adoptions has made this year's Debrett's more than ever a necessary handbook. It has 3,000 pages.

Party to Aid House of Good Shepherd

THE auxiliary of the House of the Good Shepherd will give its annual card party for the benefit of the sisters of the house and their work among unfortunate women and children at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Illinois Club for Catholic Women, 820 North Michigan avenue.

MRS. ROBERT S. OGILVY. [De Haven Photo.]

Mrs. George J. Aste, third vice president of the auxiliary, again is handling arrangements for the party, which has been the organization's principal means of raising funds since its founding 28 years ago. Through the annual tag day and this party the auxiliary has turned over more than $100,000 to the House of the Good Shepherd, and every Christmas the dues of the members, amounting to about $500, are given to the sisters.

Since 1859 the House of the Good Shepherd has been a refuge for delinquent women and girls and for children whose families could not provide them with suitable homes.

The sisters conduct a school for their charges, who are taught trades or given business training. Many remain in the convent to lead a religious life, and are known as the Magdalens. It is they who do the beautiful sewing for which the House of the Good Shepherd is known.

The Jewish Big Sisters will celebrate the 20th anniversary of their service to underprivileged girls with a tea at 2 o'clock Tuesday at the Standard club. Mrs. Philip P. Sachs heads the organization, which has specialized in the field of preventive social service, providing the girls with vocational training, cultural development, wholesome recreation, and personal guidance.

D. M. Ladd, special agent in charge of the Chicago office of the federal bureau of investigation, will be presented at the tea.

Fort Checaugou chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will celebrate its seventh anniversary with a dinner at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening at the Woman's University club, 185 North Wabash avenue.

Mrs. Robert S. Ogilvy of Glen Ellyn, program chairman, will present as the speaker Prof. D. Roy Matthews. Cora Blatch Baker, dramatic soprano, will sing, accompanied by Margaret G. Benson. Mrs. Chester M. Turner is regent.

MRS. PHILIP P. SACHS. [Bloom Photo.]

Another anniversary party will be the luncheon Saturday at the Webster hotel at which Le Cenacle, a Franco-American club, will celebrate its 20th birthday. Members of the club will present a play, "Le Quartier Tranquille."

Mrs. Clifford G. Roe has been reëlected president of La Rabida-Jackson Park sanitarium. Other officers are Mrs. Cope J. Henley, first vice president; Miss Carolyn G. Lingo, second vice president; Mrs. Everett J. Granger, recording secretary; Mrs. Fred Molt, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Le Roy J. Zorn, treasurer; Mrs. Louis T. Orr, auditor. Miss Bernice Adams was reëlected president of the junior auxiliary.

In order to provide funds for a treatment tank and an elevator for the Jahn School for Crippled Children, the General Aid of Chicago will give a dance and entertainment next Sunday evening at the Covenant club. Mrs. Sol Gladstein heads the General Aid.

The Lillian Teller Foundation will hold its annual dance next Sunday at the Medinah Athletic club. Dr. I. Hirschenein is president.

"A Night of Enchantment" will be presented this evening at the Medinah club under the auspices of the Willing Workers Woman's club. There will be a dinner, followed by dancing and a floor show. Mrs. Walter Eckhouse and Mrs. Theodore Weiss are co-chairmen, and proceeds will go to charity.

Luncheon Event of Girl Scouts Tomorrow Noon

Annual Luncheon Is to Be Under Leadership of Mrs. Richard Bentley.

By Ruth DeYoung.

WHEN Mrs. Richard Bentley presides over the annual luncheon meeting of the Girl Scouts tomorrow noon in the Palmer house, she will be rehersing the duties she is about to assume for the coming year. Now first deputy commissioner of the Chicago council, Mrs. Bentley is scheduled for the position of commissioner to succeed Mrs. Arthur Farwell, and she has no opposition. The elections will be held after the luncheon tomorrow.

MRS. RICHARD BENTLEY [Underwood & Underwood.]

Mrs. Farwell, who has been a popular and exceedingly hard working commissioner the last couple of years, is unable to hand over the gavel to Mrs. Bentley on this occasion, since she is in California. Mrs. A. K. Selz is slated for Mrs. Bentley's place as first deputy commissioner and Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr. for the post of second deputy commissioner. The new third commissioner will be Mrs. Howard K. Jackson. Mrs. Edison Dick will be recording secretary, and Mrs. Douglas also will serve as treasurer.

Besides these new officers the council membership for the new year will include Mrs. L. B. Arey, Mrs. George Bayrd, Mrs. Frank Biederman, Mrs. John Bremner, Mrs. Britton I. Budd, Mrs. Nathan S. Davis III., Mrs. Henry L. Dreyer, Mrs. Farwell, Mrs. Stanley Gibson, Mrs. Joseph McNulty, Mrs. L. A. Northway, Mrs. Henry H. Porter Jr., Mrs. R. M. Sowers, and Mrs. Arthur Wakeley.

Charles H. Young to Be Principal Speaker Tomorrow.

Charles H. Young of New York City, director of the National Girl Scout program of study, will be the principal speaker at tomorrow's luncheon. At the present time Mr. Young is doing research work in Chicago, so his speech is expected to be of great interest and significance to the friends of scouting.

Part of the five year development plan of the national board was an examination of its program from an educational point of view. To do this a committee of prominent educators, social workers, and lay members was formed in New York City, with Mrs. Walter Petit as chairman. During the first year of the study, the committee gathered and examined records of scouting activities from all over the country. This second year is to be devoted to field work in San Francisco, Chicago, Atlanta, and Boston. The plan is to investigate Girl Scouting as it is being carried on in all kinds of communities and under all conditions. A report will be published after the field work is completed.

All of the Chicago and north shore alumnæ of Smith college, their husbands, and their friends will be at the Union League club on Tuesday evening to welcome their dean, Miss Marjorie Hope Nicolson of Northampton, Mass. The dinner is being given for Miss Nicolson, who will speak to the gathering.

Miss Nicolson was acting dean of Smith from 1928 to 1931, when she became the dean. She also is a professor of English on the Smith faculty. During the last several years she has won many distinctions, including the John Addison Porter prize at Yale, where she took her Ph. D. degree. She is a member of the advisory board of the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation and the author of "The Conway Letters," which received high praise from critics. She has had many articles published and edited selections from Keats, Shelley, Tennyson. In short, Smith is proud to claim her and the Chicago alumnæ are pleased that she is to be their guest this week.

Sherwood Anderson, distinguished author and lecturer, and Dorothy Thompson, who is Mrs. Sinclair Lewis and a well known journalist and writer, are to be presented in Chicago lectures during the next fortnight by the Friends of American Writers Foundation for Literature. Mr. Anderson will be heard at 8:15 o'clock Thursday evening at Thorne hall on Northwestern's McKinlock campus and Miss Thompson will speak in the same auditorium at 8;15 on Jan. 29.

Sherwood Anderson's subject, "Puzzled America," is the same as the title of his recent book, which has been so widely discussed. Dorothy Thompson, who has written extensively about her experiences in Europe, will discuss "This World We Live In."

Foundation for Literature Aims to Promote Writers.

The Foundation for Literature, of which Mrs. Charles B. Spaulding of the Medinah club is the chairman, is an organization that aims to aid, develop, and promote meritorious work by American writers of fiction, nonfiction, short stories, and poetry. It also gives a fellowship to the graduate school of Northwestern university to be used for research work in American literature. More than twenty Chicago women's clubs are sustaining contributors to the foundation fund.

The proceeds of the lectures are to be used for cash awards by the foundation and for the Mary Malcolm fellowship, which will be announced at the annual dinner of the organization on April 15.

At 12:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Chicago Athletic association, the Friends of American Writers will hear Robert P. Tristram Coffin, author of the recent book, "Red Sky in the Morning." Mrs. Frederic H. Bradshaw of Oak Park, president of the organization, will introduce Mr. Coffin. Other special guests will include Theodore W. Koch, librarian at Northwestern; Dean Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago, and Dean Franklyn Bliss Snyder of Northwestern.

The Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education is presenting Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago chapel, in a lecture on "Religion and Modern Youth" at 3:30 Wednesday afternoon. The meeting will be held in the Palmer house.

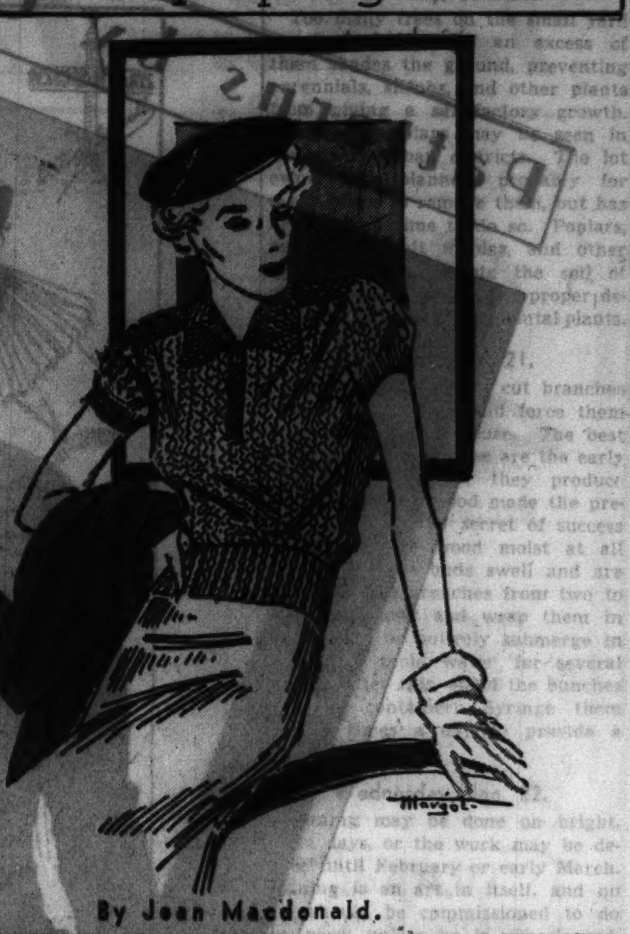
Dr. Morris Fishbein Will Address Advertising Women.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the journal of the American Medical association, will discuss "The Medical Trend in Advertising" at a meeting of the Woman's Advertising club Tuesday evening at the Chicago Woman's club. Dr. Fishbein, associate clinical professor of medicine at the University of Chicago and lecturer at the University of Illinois, will discuss the values and dangers of the vast amount of popular information on health subjects. An added feature will be a talk by Mrs. Luella Canterbury on "Dramatizing Ourselves in Business."

The study department of the Colonial Coverlet guild is to meet at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William F. Conlon, 1922 West Adams street. The subject for the afternoon is "Modern Hand Woven Textiles." All of the weavers in the guild have been invited to exhibit their work, and Mrs. Conlon will give a short talk on "The Modern Hand Woven Textile."

Several pieces from the weaving department of the Pine Mountain Settlement school, which is supported by the guild, will be on exhibition. In addition, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick will show an example of her needlepoint work.

Bed Cotton, Loosely Knit, Makes Gay Spring Sweater



By Jean Macdonald.

WHETHER you are going "resorting" down where the sun shines most of the time, planning your wardrobe ahead for next summer, or merely trying to inject a little life into the winter collection of garments which by now have begun to appear a trifle drab, you're going to want this sweater. It is especially lovely in white, although pastel shades are, of course, much in order and in the limelight. The original model is created of white bed cotton, of which less than two hanks are required for a complete sweater. The ribbing at the waist and the garter stitch serving as a yoke are complemented by the most simple of pattern stitches in the body. The lines of this sweater, because they are loose, are bound to create a garment which is as comfortable as it is good looking. With its pert, turndown collar, shirtwaist effect in the opening, and short sleeves, this blouse is the perfect supplement to spring suits or the attractive white ones which go in southern bound trunks and which will be fashion favorites when summer rolls around.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instruction for knitting the short sleeved openwork sweater made of bed cotton illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Gracefully Draped Bodice of Silk Frock Shares in the Military Trend

By Clotilde.

THE military mode still has its share of the fashion limelight. Winter styles continue to favor it, and the first spring models reveal that frocks for the balmy days will be soldierly in their lines to a great degree.

The frock illustrated today, pattern No. 3265, is a simple one for general daytime wear. The military trend finds expression in the buttoned draping brought diagonally across the bodice. The buttons which accent the shoulder are covered with the material which fashions the dress.

The original of this frock is created in crêpe silk in light rust shades, a color suitable for wear now, under your winter coat, and sufficiently bright for the early days of the coming spring. Neutral gray wool crêpe also would be attractive for this model.

Style No. 3265 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material.

Clotilde is a daily contributor to the Chicago Tribune, offering constructive information to women who enjoy making their own clothes, and presenting a fascinating pattern every day of the week.

Clothes conscious? Of course you are! And the winter edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions is right on time to guide your seasonal wardrobe to the latest in style. Coats, day and evening frocks, indispensable tips on fabrics and colors, and fashion news for the youngest set, all are presented in this fascinating volume, now on sale for 15 cents, 10 cents, when ordered with a pattern. Address Chicago Tribune, P. O. box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

The Kitchen Forum

MRS. L. C., Sterling, Ill.: "What main dish would you suggest for my bridge luncheon? I'd like a Chinese dish if you can suggest one that is simple and not too expensive. There will be twelve at the party."

How about fried rice? It's easily prepared, much less expensive than the complicated chop sueys and chow meins; and we'll wager that your guests will find it delicious. This recipe serves twelve.

FRIED RICE.

1½ pounds shrimps or cured ham
3 tablespoons butter
⅓ cup chopped onion
¼ cup minced green pepper
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika
6 cups hot cooked rice
6 eggs
⅓ cup soy sauce

Cook and shell the shrimp, or dice and brown the ham. Melt the butter in a large skillet, add the onion and green pepper, cook gently for 1 minute, then mix lightly with the shrimp or ham, cooked rice, seasonings, and slightly beaten eggs. Stir gently over a low heat until the eggs are cooked. Remove from heat, stir in soy sauce, and serve hot.

Mrs. A. B., Green Bay, Wis.: "Why does my homemade chocolate ice cream have little hard lumps of chocolate through it instead of being smooth like commercial ice cream?"

Many people have this same trouble with chocolate ice cream, either the freezer type or that made in an automatic refrigerator. It's because the cocoa butter in the chocolate hardens at a pretty high temperature. When melted chocolate is added to a cold liquid it hardens in these tiny particles which never can be entirely beaten out. If the chocolate, grated or slightly cut up, is added to the cold liquid, heated and melted and then a custard made, a perfectly smooth chocolate ice cream may be made.

Mrs. L. O., Kankakee, Ill.: "What makes my homemade cottage cheese come out in little curds? I'd like to make the soft, fluffy kind."

Two reasons make tough or grainy cottage cheese. The milk may have been overheated or it may have soured too long. [A thermometer is a big help in making good cottage cheese.] These directions should insure the creamy, fluffy kind: Put milk in a large container. Let stand at a warm room temperature [not more than 75 degrees F., however] until firmly clabbered. The freshness of the milk, and whether or not you've added a "starter" of milk already sour, will determine the time for this. Then pour into the soured milk about a third as much boiling water as you have milk [or enough to heat the mixture for 100-110 degrees F.]. Stir the curd carefully, let it stand for 5 to 10 minutes or until the curd has barely separated from the whey. Pour the whole mixture into a cheesecloth strainer or fine wire sieve and let drain. If you want an especially mildly flavored cheese pour cold water over the curd while draining.

Carpet Sweeper Boasts a Removable Dust Pan and Brush

A NEW type of portable carpet sweeper with a removable dust pan and removable brush is now on the market. The lid is easily snapped open and the dust pan lifted out. The brush can be as easily snapped out of its socket and instantly removed for cleaning. The sweeper opens from the top. The brush, which is self-adjusting, is adapted to low and high nap rugs.

This sweeper will even clean linoleum and wood floors. The driving power of the brush is positive at all times. The design is streamline. The sweepers come with a black top or a gray top or with an entire chrome top finish. They are on sale at Chicago department stores.

Every Child Should Have Light Chores

Work Around the House, However Slight, Balances Developing Personality.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

MOTHERS have asked me at various times whether I have any definite suggestions to offer about children's duties and responsibilities about the house—how much they should do and what it should be.

This is such an entirely individual matter that it is hardly possible to give some one else intelligent advice about it. What work a child shall do depends upon so many things. For example, whether you have help or not is a factor. If you have a maid—or two—logically your children will not be expected to do things they might be expected to do if you had none. If your family is large and your home is large, then the children will need to do some of the work even if you have help.

If you do all your own housework the picture changes. Boys as well as girls can help with the dishes, run the vacuum cleaner around, take in the clothes from the line, set the table, make a bed or cook a meal.

The age of a child enters in, too.

The outside activities of your young people are another factor. If your child is heavily scheduled with music and practicing, lectures and school meetings and Scout meetings—too much of which I think unwise—you can hardly with fairness expect that boy or girl to have many household duties.

So nobody can, with fairness to both mothers and children, lay down rules about what one should expect from a child in home duties or responsibilities.

However I do believe, whether one has servants or not, that children should have some share, no matter how small, in the work which is represented by running a family—for two simple reasons; one, because there is always something that an extra pair of hands can do, and, too, for the good of their souls.

Now the way it goes is something like this. To the little boy or girl home is his world, and pretty nearly everything that happens in it is an adventure, or a new exciting, learning experience. The exercise of each new found power is a source of a certain kind of delight. Witness the absorption of a little child, just merging from babyhood, in the placing of one huge block on top of another, or the doing of any other—to us—perfectly simple muscular act.

Add to this that mother is the presiding genius of the young child's life, and what do you find? That doing little odd jobs—that helping mother—is fun. Putting daddy's slippers away, trotting to the kitchen closet with a basket of potatoes, squatting down and dusting the legs of the table while mother polishes the top—none of this is cold duty. "We're working, mommy — aren't we?" means, "Isn't this fun!" The small one is enjoying himself.

Then horizons widen. Physical development advances by leaps and bounds. And we come to the inbetween years. The mother who doesn't quite realize what is happening feels let down by her child. Or she wails, "My little girl is changing. She used to be my little helper and now she's so different," or "My boy is simply dreadful about doing chores. And he used to be such a real help when he was a little fellow. I hope he's not going to be lazy and selfish."

All that's happened is that he's growing into those inbetween years when we must not expect of him—or her—what we did in little childhood. The sevens to twelve may be made to do their share, but it will have to be for different reasons.

The teen age boys and girls are in still a different relation to home duties and responsibilities. They are often loaded up with homework—social interests are awakening—they have times of self-absorption—and we find either a resentment of time wasted in doing their share or a real adult interest in the indoor or outdoor work that has to be done.

Once past the days when you had a willing, even enthusiastic little companion in your work about the house, you've got to find ways of achieving your ends, if you want your son or daughter to do what you expect.

"Allowances or the Wise Use of Money" is the name of a fully written booklet. It is sent out on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mrs. Bevans' columns also appears in the Tribune on Monday and every other weekday.

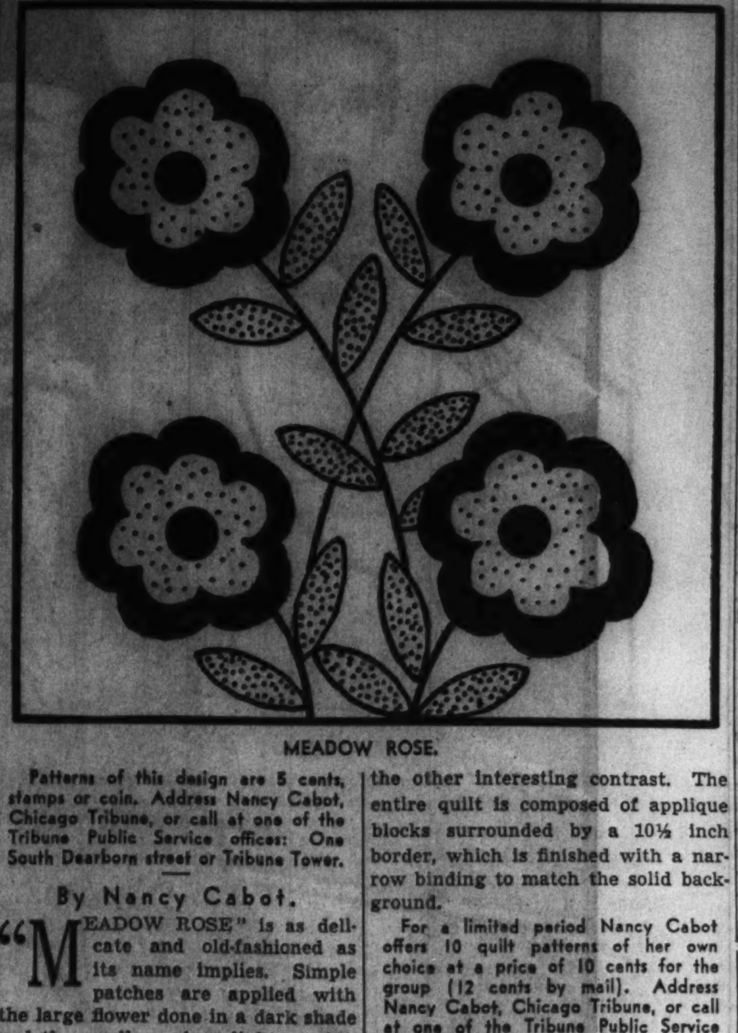
Title Implies Daintiness of Old-Fashioned Quilt



MEADOW ROSE.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

By Nancy Cabot.

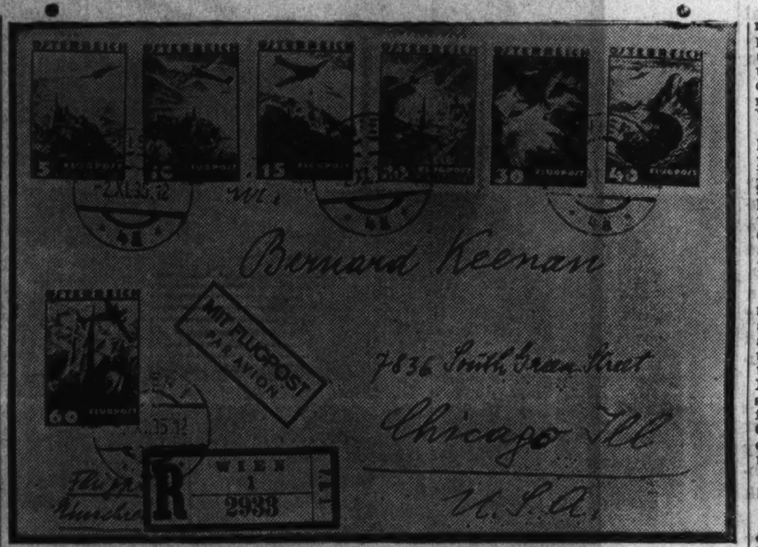
"MEADOW ROSE" is as delicate and old-fashioned as its name implies. Simple patches are applied with the large flower done in a dark shade and the small one in a lighter print. The block selects a lively green as the other interesting contrast. The entire quilt is composed of applique blocks surrounded by a 10½ inch border, which is finished with a narrow binding to match the solid background.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



Bernard Keenan of Chicago has kindly loaned this cover, which shows several examples of the new Austrian air mail issue. A description will be found in the accompanying article.

IT is not often that a variety of importance is found upon a United States stamp. The use of engraved plates in which each stamp subject is mechanically transferred from a single die eliminates many printing varieties which occur in typographed and lithographed stamps. Such errors of design as do occur are usually minute and unimportant to any but specialists.

One of the most prominent plate varieties to be found occurs on the 13 cent stamp of 1908, in stamp number 96 LR 4948, i. e., in the 6th stamp of the bottom row from the lower right pane of the plate numbered 4948. This variety, as illustrated, shows a deep gash near the upper right corner extending from the frame line downward to end in the "G" of Postage. The accident which caused this damage very likely occurred after the plate had been certified for use, otherwise it would have been corrected before going to press.

Four plates only were used for this value, and if all were equally used the variety should be found in the ratio of one copy to every 1,600 13 cent stamps. However, there is a chance that it is scarcer than the figures would indicate, since the defect may have caused the early retirement of the plate. About 3,000,000 13 cent stamps were issued, of which not more than 1,800 show the gash over "TAG."

A new set of air mail stamps was placed on sale in Austria on Aug. 16, 1935, in which each design shows an airplane over a different scene. The views on the complete set are as follows: 5 groschen, violet, Güssing castle; 10g, orange, Maria Wörth; 15g, green, Dürnstein; 20g, blue, Hallstatt; 25g, purple, Salzburg; 30g, red-brown, Dachstein mountains; 40g, olive green, Wettersee; 50g, ultramarine, Stuben am Arlberg; 60g, sepia, St. Stephen's cathedral, Vienna; 80g, brown, Minorites church, Vienna; 1 schilling, carmine, Danube river; 2s, deep olive green, Tauern railway viaduct; 3s, chestnut, Grossglockner mountain roadway; 5s, deep blue green, Zugspitze aerial railway, and 10s, ultramarine, glider and sailing boats on the Attersee. The issue was designed by Prof. G. Jung of Vienna.

Rare Postcard.

This column is in receipt of information from Dr. Edward L. Fernald, D. O., Rockford, Ill., that the postal card issued in Germany to mark the turn of the 20th century, and recently shown in this column, is quite a rare item. It is stated that the card was issued at the instance of Kaiser Wilhelm II. in December, 1899, and that only a few had been sold when they were withdrawn, when attention was called to the fact the 19th century would not end with the year 1899, but rather would continue until Dec. 31, 1900.

New Stamp Handbook.

The third volume of "United States Stamps of the Twentieth Century," by Max G. Johl, is now ready for distribution to collectors. This new section carries out the form and arrangement established in the first two volumes, and brings the history of United States regular issues up to the present date, and treats of the air mail and parcel post issues as well.

The information given in the book includes the source of the design, the date and place of first day issue, shades and varieties of design, and complete lists of plates made, as well as lists of those which were never put to press.

The recent untimely death of Beverly S. King, co-author with Mr. Johl of the first two volumes, has thrown all of the work upon the latter, but again the same degree of excellence characterizes the work. H. L. Lindquist of New York is the publisher. The price is $3.50.

The Hitler Putsch.

On Nov. 9, 1923, Adolph Hitler, together with Gen. Ludendorff, attempted an uprising at Munich, Bavaria. This was unsuccessful and Hitler spent the next several months in prison. While thus detained he came to the conclusion that the ballot would be a more decisive weapon than the sword, and upon his release made such persuasive use of his gift of oratory that he polled a vote of more than six million in the fall of 1930. The stamp shown is one of two values issues to commemorate the famous "putsch" of 1923, and is shown through the kindness of Frank Schmieg, R. Ph., of Blue Island, Ill.

Air Mail Special Delivery.

The current 16 cent blue air mail special delivery stamp will be replaced on Feb. 10 by a bicolored stamp of the same design which has the frame printed in red and the great seal of the United States in blue. First day sale will be made at Washington and collectors desiring first day cover service may send not to exceed ten covers, with cash or postal money order remittance payable to the postmaster, Washington, D. C., covering the value of the stamps desired for affixing. In order to receive the Feb. 10 cancellation postmark covers must reach the Washington postmaster before the close of business on that date. For the benefit of collectors desiring selected stamps for philatelic use the stamps also will be placed on sale at the philatelic agency on the same date, but the agency will not prepare covers for first day mailing.

Club Notes.

Collectors residing in the northeastern corner of Iowa have joined with those in the southeastern corner of Minnesota, to form the Borden Line Stamp club, at Decorah, Ia. An organization meeting and dinner were held at the Winneshiek hotel on Jan. 6 and arrangements were made for regular meetings with program, discussions, and stamp exchange.

Notice!

Many notices of club events are being received too late for insertion in the STAMP COLLECTOR. Secretaries and publicity chairmen are requested to send their notices well in advance of the date of the event.

Cachet Notices.

Popular Aviation, 608 South Dearborn street, Chicago, will sponsor a series of cachets, showing the insignia of all branches of the United States air corps, lithographed in their true colors. The first set of five will cover the 1st Pursuit group stationed at Selfridge field, Mich. Please write to Popular Aviation for full details before sending any covers.

The ninth cachet of Bernstein and Arnold's civil war series will be applied on Feb. 9 to envelopes received before Jan. 25. This will mark the election of Jefferson Davis as first president of the C. S. A. Send standard 6¾ size envelopes, stamped and addressed, but unsealed and unstuffed, with 1 cent per cover for fowarding fee, to A. Bernstein, room 1504, 2 Lafayette street, New York, N. Y.

The Westmont Cover club [Westmont, Ill.] lists the following dates in its series of presidential cachets: Jan. 29, William McKinley; Jan 30, Franklin D. Roosevelt; Feb. 9, William Henry Harrison; Feb. 12, Abraham Lincoln, and Feb. 22, George Washington. Send covers at least 7 days before the event, using standard 6¾ size envelopes with first class postage attached, and include 1c per cover for forwarding expense. Commemoratives on wrappers appreciated.

The Petosky [Mich.] Chamber of Commerce and the Winter Sports club will sponsor a two color cachet to mark the 9th annual Michigan winter sports carnival and the national amateur speed skating races, to be applied to covers on Feb. 8, 1936. No limit on covers, but use standard 6¾ size, self-addressed envelope, with stamps at first class rates affixed. Deadline, Feb. 1. Commemorative stamps on wrappers appreciated. Address John A. Graham, 414 Petosky street, Petosky, Mich.

Expensive Walls, Floors Simulated in Linoleum

Perfect Imitations of Marble and Wood Available in a Modest Covering.

"Color Magic in Your Rooms," a booklet by Miss Winslow giving practical and charming color schemes for both light and dark rooms is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

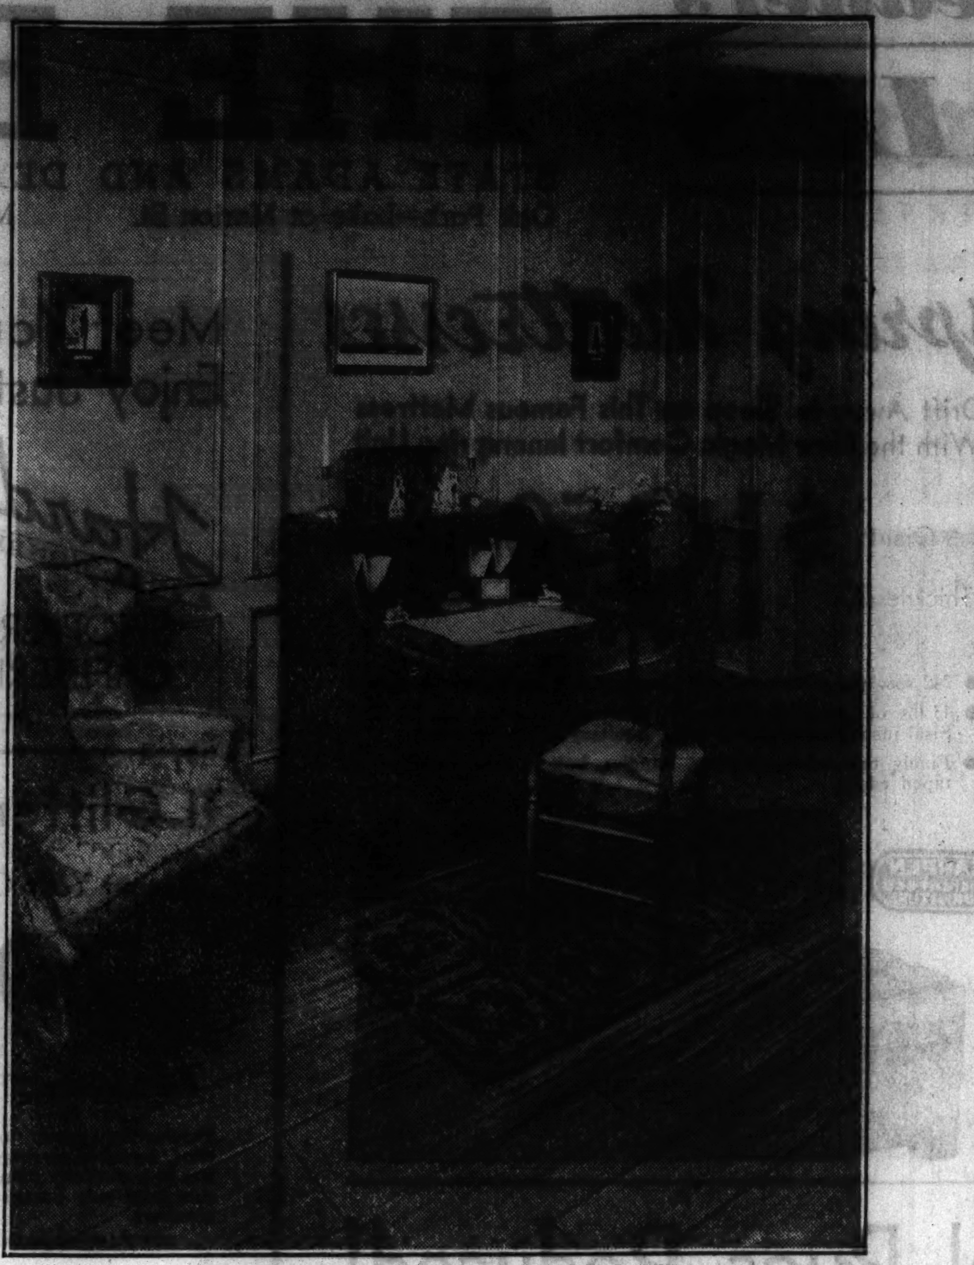
IF you don't know the interesting things that are being done in the manufacture of linoleum these days it will pay you to visit the floor and wall covering department at your dealer's and see the beautiful colors and new designs. As you know, linoleum has long since come out of the kitchen. It is now used by the best interior decorators in entrance halls, in game rooms, in breakfast rooms, in sun rooms, in bedrooms, and even in living rooms and libraries.

You can, for example, have your hall floor look exactly as if it were laid in marble, and you can run this marbleized linoleum up the walls for two or three feet as a dado. Then you can have the rest of the wall space done in one of those stunning Grecian patterned papers showing columns and a landscape, and have a cerulean blue calcimined ceiling.

Suppose you'd like a New England atmosphere in your living room, yet can't afford the cost of pine paneling and wide pine flooring. Don't despair, there's the new linoleum that so closely imitates wood it takes a carpenter to tell the difference, unless, of course, you try to get a splinter in your hand! The photograph today, taken especially for us, shows you the two types just mentioned. On the floor is a rich brown linoleum simulating the grain of pine or walnut, and so made that it seems to be composed of extra wide boards joined with old fashioned wooden pegs.

Hooked rugs are perfect in combination with this. So are hit-and-miss rag rugs, or oval braided rag rugs, or the interesting new wool rugs in solid colors. Maple or colonial mahogany is the best furniture choice.

LOOKS LIKE PINE? TISN'T!



Looks like good old wooden plank flooring and wall panels of pine or walnut, doesn't it? But both are really linoleum, so cleverly imitating the original wood that the effect is most artistic. These products are given a nation-wide distribution.

On the walls of the room pictured you see specially made linoleum wall covering which imitates wood, and to heighten the effect narrow wood moldings, stained to match, are set in a design that simulates panels. These are a lighter brown than the floor.

Both the floor and walls can be finished with a liquid wax preparation to give them a soft, mellow gloss. They are, of course, extremely easy to keep clean, and are stainproof.

Some decorators prefer to paper three walls of a living room in an early American pattern and to use the pine paneling linoleum on the fourth or fireplace wall. This can be done with most interesting effect.

In the photograph the desk and rush bottom chair are maple. The large chair is done in blue-green damask, and the hooked rug has some of this color mingled with rose and taupe.

The linoleums referred to in this article have a nation-wide distribution.

Yes, the Men Do Notice the Beauty of Hair

Glamor of Tresses Is More Important than Style of the Coiffure Adopted.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

WHEN the men are beginning to talk about woman's hair, as they are doing, that's the tipoff for putting all the glamor you can into your tresses, girls!

No foolin'! Hair is being discussed for its glamor by the sex that matters. Indeed, in an interview with certain of the conductors of smart night club orchestras, I was surprised myself to find that, in judging a woman's points pictorially, hair led. As Vincent Lopez, who conducts his orchestra at one of the swankiest of night spots, says: "Of course, one notices a woman's hair first. It is what one sees first when sitting across the table from her. It tops her appearance on the dance floor. It is what gives the ensemble that exquisite grooming for which women are noted today!"

Beauty of Hair of Greater Importance than Coiffure.

And, mind you, it isn't hairdress the men argue for and against. It's the beauty of the hair itself. Personally, I feel that the other sex may not be sure about it not being the coiffure. I mean that a chic coiffure may fool 'em. I may be wrong, for men are fussy about their own hair and, perhaps, that makes them more observant of feminine quality of hair. Certainly they worry as much about possible baldness and the thinning hairline as women do about complexion disturbances or thickening waistlines. So, perhaps, we haven't been as aware as we might be of that critical masculine eye turned upon our locks.

And then there is our own sex to reckon with, since it is believable that much of our efforts toward improvement are challenged by keen feminine eyes and maybe keener feminine tongues.

It's pretty trite to preach brushing hair for beauty, correcting dandruffy scalps, putting "body" into lifeless looking hair, and so on. But it is necessary to mention it often in spite of the fact that women know what should be done. We have to be reminded every now and then of the glamor possibilities that lie atop our head.

Too Many Women Neglect Daily Care of the Hair.

I'm hearing daily discouraging reports from women about this and that hair condition. They tell me personally, too. They tell me that a daughter, anywhere from 14 to 20, is victim of this and that discouraging hair ailment. All of which proves to me that this is the world left to conquer. Women do not postpone clearing up complexions, their own or their children's. Gracious knows, they do everything to improve the facial appearance. And the figure! They give a powerful lot of attention to clothes the better to promote their charms. But this hair business is the one neglected field, as I see it.

Of course, the hair is waved on appointment. The youngsters' hair is put to the permanent test. All the superficial needs are conscientiously enough attended. But the scalp and quality of the hair itself are what the quarrel is all about.

Quality of Youthfulness Is What Most Hair Requires.

And here is one grand asset I claim, with firm conviction and considerable experience in rejuvenating tresses, which every woman can have. I don't care what the hair condition is, unless disease has so affected scalp and hair that a physician should be consulted. The average head of neglected looking hair isn't so affected. What's wrong with it is that it does not get the attention it needs and deserves. I had an experience recently with a young woman whose hair was the saddest looking you ever saw. As far back as she could remember, all the attention it got was the semi-monthly shampooing and waving at a salon. Never a hearty brushing, only a skimpy bit of combing so as not to disturb the wave, and never any such thing as stirring up circulation with finger massage. It took two months of daily brushing to get an appearance of life into the hair. A disorderly dandruff scaling called for massage with a scalp unguent. But the hair is coming along beautifully. In another month or so, it will be young hair instead of the aged looking head I first saw two months ago.

It's youth you want to get into the hair, as you want it in the skin and in the figure. But you must work for it, as you do with the skin and figure. And to date, there is nothing discovered better than the good old grandmother habit of hair brushing. Only today we have brushes that are a vast improvement over those of earlier days, grand brushes that get right down into the scalp, stimulate the circulation, and increase the action of the scalp. With the better type of hair brush you get a neat folder describing the new way and better way of doing this hair brushing job. These brushes may be used on permanent waves without fear of ruining your most highly priced permanent.

For oily hair, for dry hair, the brush action is the great corrector. Yes, oily hair is bettered with the brush treatment, regardless of the popular fallacy to the contrary. As the circulation is stimulated, the functions of the scalp glands and muscles are regulated and healthy, lustrous, young, and glamorous hair is the result.

I am pleading now for a new hair interest, a hair interest not confined to what goes on only with the salon appointment. There you may get grooming, but you do not get the thing that hair must have now for your head to be numbered among the ten best at dancing places, dinner tables, or private reviews of any sort. It's polish you want, luster, rich beauty, and let me repeat this is one grand and glorious beauty asset that is yours for the asking.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of The Chicago Tribune.

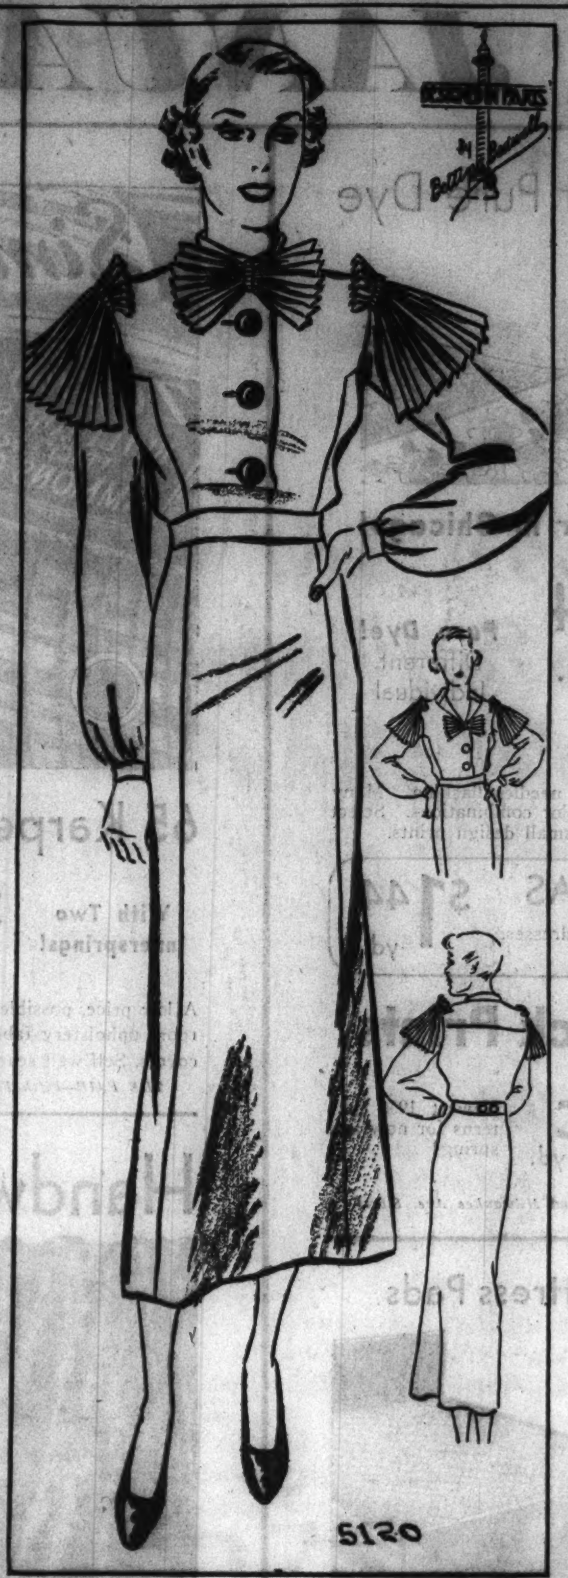
Broad Shoulder Effect Is Achieved in Paris Pattern



No. 5120—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Today's pattern, No. 5120, is a front-row fashion for the new season, for it is a dress that gives the chic, broad shouldered appearance which styles demand. The Paris model from which this pattern is adopted gives the broad shoulder line in a new and charming way, by plaited epaulets stitched to the tops of the armholes, with a heading over the top of the shoulders.

This dress may be made, as was the French model, of navy blue crêpe silk, with big gold buttons to fasten the blouse and the belt, and the plaited cravat and epaulets of the material of the dress. You'll find it difficult to improve on this, but you may choose another color, according to your fancy, without losing any of the charm, and you may make the dress of a different fabric, too. A change that may be made easily is to have the plaited tie at the neckline and the buttons in some bright color, such as, for instance, bright green tie and buttons on a dark red or brown dress, or raspberry red tie and buttons on a dark green dress.

You may wear the neckline high, as shown on the large figure, or low, as shown in the background sketch.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Jan. 20.

Too many trees on the small yard are undesirable, for an excess of them shades the ground, preventing perennials, shrubs, and other plants from giving a satisfactory growth. Many old poplars may be seen in various suburban districts. The lot owner has planned, probably for many years, to remove them, but has never found time to do so. Poplars, box elders, soft maples, and other softwood trees deplete the soil of plant food and hinder the proper development of other ornamental plants.

Tuesday, Jan. 21.

It is a good time to cut branches of flowering shrubs and force them into bloom in the house. The best shrubs for this purpose are the early flowering kinds, for they produce their flowers on wood made the previous season. The secret of success is to keep the wood moist at all times until the buds swell and are opening. Cut branches from two to three feet long and wrap them in wet burlap or entirely submerge in a tank of tepid water for several hours. After this, stand the bunches in deep container. Syringe them several times a day to provide a moist atmosphere.

Wednesday, Jan. 22.

Pruning may be done on bright, warm days, or the work may be delayed until February or early March. Pruning is an art in itself, and no one should be commissioned to do the work unless he is experienced, or understands the underlying principles. Dead wood may be removed at any time. Cross branches may be corrected by removing one of them. Wounds larger than an inch should be painted with coal tar or thick paint or any recommended preparation. Young trees should never be neglected, for if they are allowed to grow at will the branches are usually too low and one or more will need removal years hence, a needless requirement.

Thursday, Jan. 23.

House plants should be examined each morning and all dead leaves picked off and watered, if in need of water. Turn the plants occasionally so that each part will receive its share of light. Watch for insects and if even one is discovered, use the spray pump. Remember that leaf eating worms are killed by spraying with arsenate of lead or other poison. Sucking insects, such as the green fly, are controled by spraying once in eight days with a nicotine concoction or any recommended material. If a plant is not doing well, be sure to see if it is getting sufficient water. A mere sprinkle on the surface of the soil will probably leave the center of the ball dry, and the plant will suffer.

Friday, Jan. 24.

Start an Amaryllis bulb now and enjoy one of the finest flowering plants. A flowering, dependable bulb is not less than two and one-half inches in diameter, and, of course, larger sizes may be obtained. When potting, leave about one-third of the bulb above the soil. Do not overpot. A two and one-half size will take no more than a five inch pot. Use plenty of drainage. Keep the bulb growing all next summer and dry it off in fall, allowing it to remain dormant during the winter. The numerous hybrids allow for a large selection of light and dark shades.

Saturday, Jan. 25.

The bright berried Jerusalem cherries and peppers are of value for decorative use in the home. They should not be allowed to dry out or the berries will fall. Seeds of these plants may be obtained from the seedsman, sown early, and the young plants lined out in the garden after frost. They are dug and potted before frost. The home gardener may grow many plants in this way. Keep blooming plants in the cooler part of the house if the maximum time of flowering is to be enjoyed.

Modern Pianos Fit Any Home and Any Budget

One Built Like a Chest of Drawers Is Splendid for One Room Apartment.

"Making the Most of the Dinette," a booklet by Edith Weigle, tells how to furnish this small room so as to make it seem more spacious and attractive. Price 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

IT IS a far cry from the pianos of a few years ago to the ones of our present day. Until recently few changes had been made in the construction and lines of this musical instrument. It remained much as it had for a hundred years.

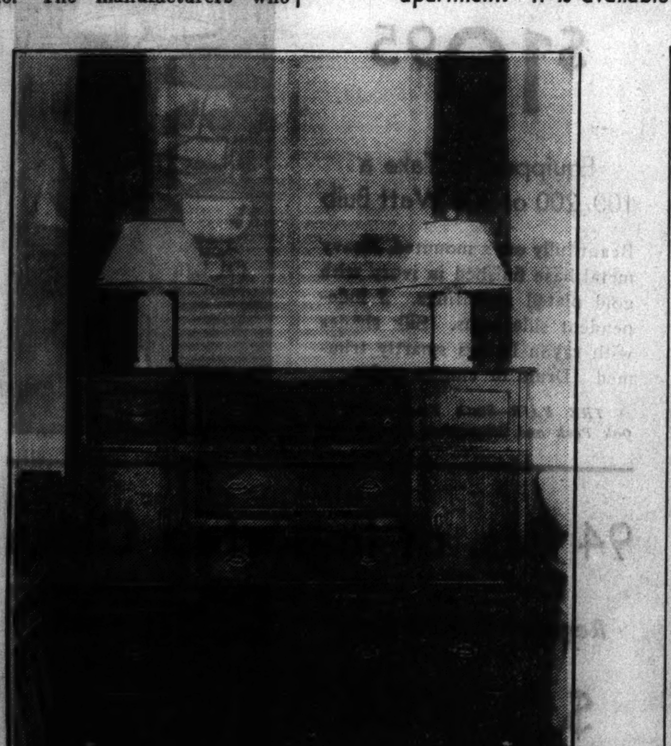
Then, in reply to the demands of small home owners and apartment dwellers, one or two manufacturers began to experiment with cases of less bulk and more style. There simply was no space for the large, massive upright or grand piano in the living rooms of thousands of American homes. Moreover, many families who wanted to own one could not afford to pay the old prices for a piano. The manufacturers who brought out styles suited to modern living conditions and to the average budget were so successful that soon many competitors tried the same thing.

Today you can choose not only from one line, but from half a dozen or more, and not only the mahogany cases but ones in walnut, ebony, and maple. There is a special piano for the early American room, for example—one that fits into the decorative scheme as neatly as a comb-back Windsor, or a shelf clock. There is another for the 18th century English, or the colonial mahogany living room, and still another for the frankly modern setting.

For the one-room living room about the neatest trick of the year is a piano built like a chest of drawers. Its keyboard is revealed when a front panel is lowered. The wood is walnut. The manufacturer of this instrument is known everywhere. This cabinet console is 55 inches wide, 45 inches high, and only 16 inches deep, so you can see it does not occupy much space in small quarters. A picture of this model, which is sold in a Chicago music store, is shown today.

An eastern firm makes the ultramodern spinet type of piano shown in the second photograph. It is sold at another Chicago shop. It has an unusually sweet, mellow tone for such a small instrument. In the picture you see it in ebony with pewter inlay trim. On the floor of the store mentioned you can view it in walnut. It is also available in mahogany with the pewter decoration. An instrument like this is ideal for the city home or apartment, and again, it occupies little space, yet has a beautiful tone and is excellently made.

A third style of case, not illustrated, combines desk and piano. The rack just above the keyboard can be lowered to cover the keys. When this is done the writing surface and pigeonholes for correspondence are made available. This instrument, in the lower price brackets, comes in maple, in walnut, and in mahogany, and incorporates the new feature of placing the strings in a vertical rather than a horizontal position, this section coming down to the floor. It has maximum string length and standard size keyboard.



There is room, even in the one room apartment, for a piano that looks like a chest and that occupies as little space as this one. The center panel opens to form the keyboard. This instrument is sixteen inches deep, fifty-five inches wide, and forty-five inches high. It may be seen in a Chicago music store.

FOR A SMALL ROOM

Made by a firm known for its good looking spinet grand pianos, this ultra-modern model comes in ebony or mahogany with pewter inlay, and in walnut, as well. It is ideal for the small living room of the average city apartment. It is available in a Chicago music store.

Modern Design Captures the Furniture Field

Contemporary Pieces Register Eleven Per Cent Gain in Recent Shows.

THE American Walnut Manufacturers' association send out scouts to cover the great furniture fairs here and in Grand Rapids each year. Their findings, which are in the practical form of percentages and charts, show definitly the way the style winds are blowing in this industry.

During the shows just ended they made a survey of all the bedroom and dining room furniture exhibited at the American Furniture Mart and the Merchandise Mart here, and at the showrooms in Grand Rapids and found that modern design had advanced by leaps and bounds. Last July, 24 per cent of the items they inspected were in the modern style; 22 per cent were 18th century English; 23 per cent were unstyled; 10 per cent were French; 5 per cent were American colonial and federal; 6 per cent were early American; 4 per cent were early English; 2 per cent were neo-classic, and less than 1 per cent Italian and Spanish.

Eighteenth Century Furniture Is a Runner-Up.

At these last shows, modern bedroom and dining room furniture represented 35 per cent of all the factories' output, a gain of over 11 per cent over the July markets. Following are the other styles, listed according to their quantity:

18th century English	24 per cent
Unstyled	9 per cent
French	8 per cent
American colonial and federal	7 per cent
Early American	6 per cent
Early English	4 per cent
Neo-classic	3 per cent
Italian and Spanish	.8 per cent

Walnut Most Popular Wood.

The survey also shows the popularity of the various furniture woods. Of all dining room and bedroom suites shown, 40 per cent were of walnut, 19 per cent of mahogany, 9 per cent of maple, 4 per cent of oak, 4 per cent of oriental woods, 2 per cent were enameled. All other veneers claimed 15 per cent, all other solid woods, 4 per cent.

Modern is becoming more and more in demand in low price ranges and is gradually taking the place of "borax," that conglomerate, impossibly styled, gaudy, cheap furniture found somewhere in every retail store in the country. If it eventually succeeds in driving out borax it should be awarded a crown by the American woman buyer.

The Scarlet Sisters Everleigh!

A Symbol of Vice in Chicago

The law is the last result of human wisdom acting upon human experience for the benefit of the public.—Samuel Johnson.

When the scourge
Inexorable and the torturing hour
Call us to penance. —Milton.

There is nothing so powerful as truth—and often nothing so strange.—Daniel Webster.

THE truth, then, is that Chicago has known three notorious periods of lawlessness.

In each instance the "scourge inexorable and the torturing hour" called us to penance. In each instance it was "the last result of human wisdom acting upon human experience for the benefit of the public."

In each instance it was the publication of NEWS!

It was NEWS that drove out the Scarlet Sisters Everleigh.

It was NEWS that drove out prohibition and Capone.

It was NEWS that drove out the labor rackets, the kidnapers, and the Dillingers.

It was the news, pounding pitilessly, that forced the Scarlet Sisters Everleigh so boldly into the limelight that only their extinction could be the result. While these symbols of the noisome, wicked, blaring, and public shame lighted up the horizon of the red-light district, those who lived by their light could see nothing else. They could not see that in the shadows were forming the battalions of "human experience for the benefit of the public."

It was years before the battalions could be fused into the scourge inexorable. But they were fused, and with that fusing came the obliteration of the wry, unwholesome, wretched, and smelly neighborhood which for years had stood as the Twenty-second street red-light district.

The Everleigh sisters.

Al Capone.

Dillinger and Touhy.

Three symbols of impudence toward the law. Three symbols burned into bold relief by publicity. Three struggles for public decency. Three battles won.

⁂

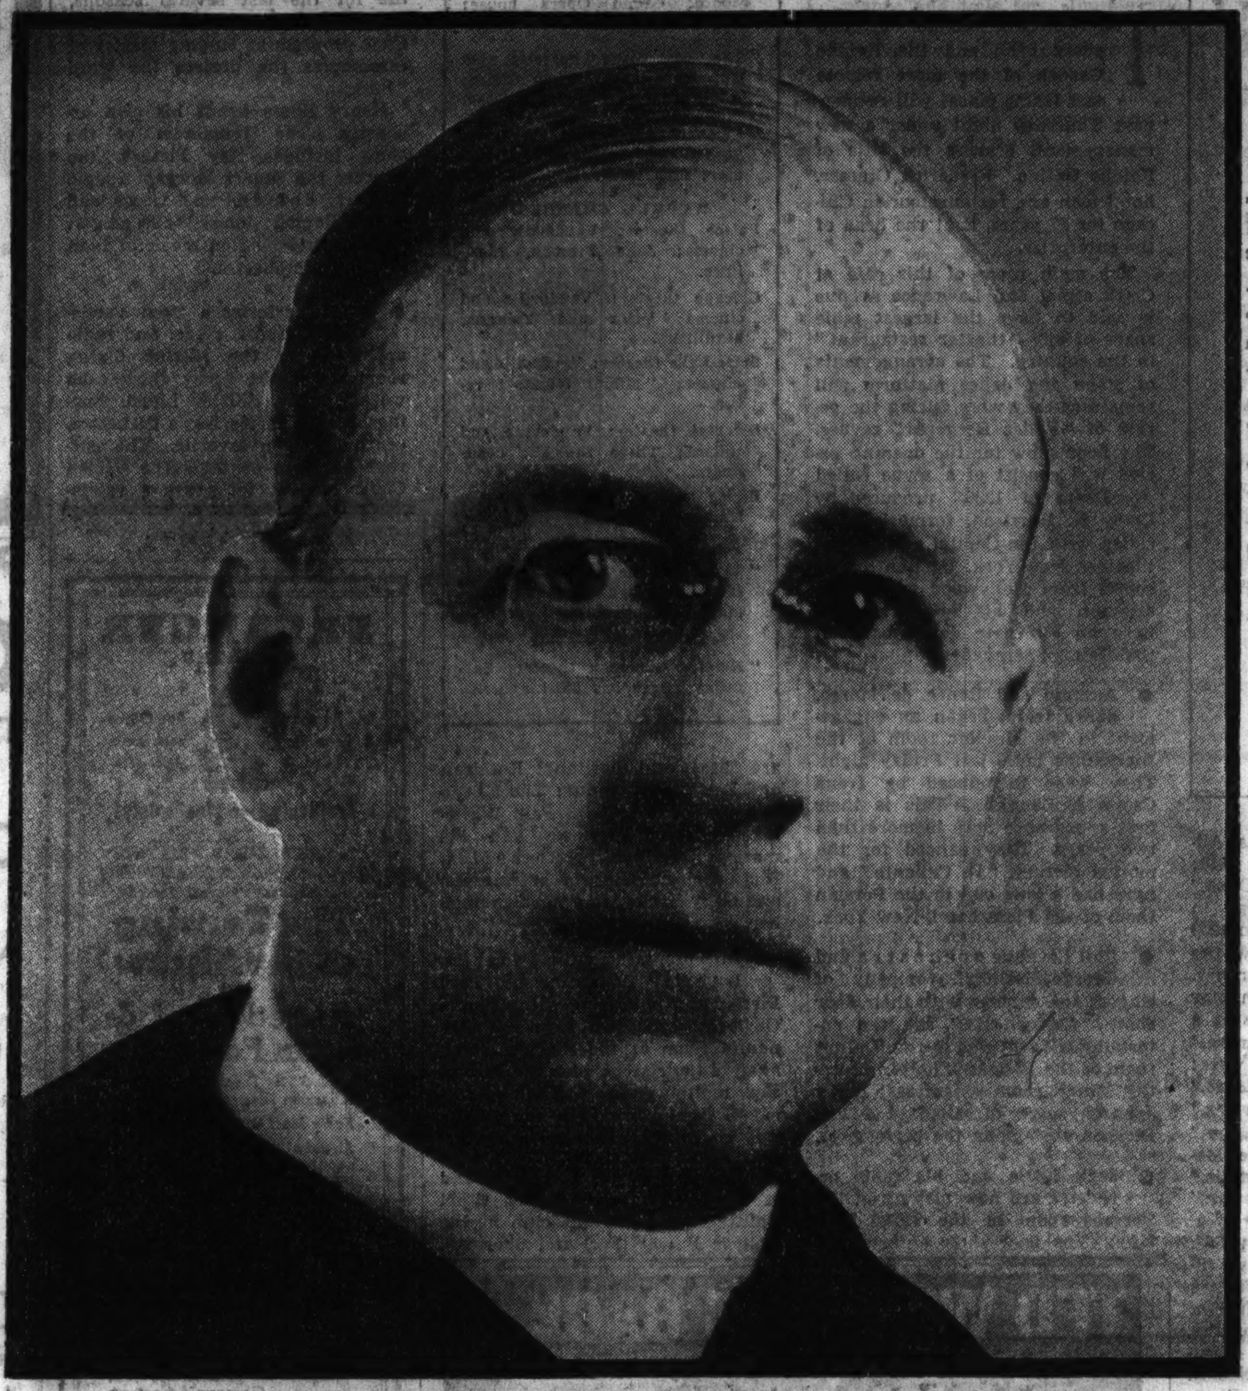
The first of the trilogy is the sorry epic of the Everleighs. It begins in the shaded and careless era of American life when all cities tolerated the woman of the street as a necessary and accepted evil. In her soiled train came hordes of macquereaus and thieves and grafters and white slavers and panders and pimps to strut in open immunity and mock the Sabbath dignity of respectable people.

Chicago always has reacted singularly to the witty and tongue-in-cheek symbolism. The World's Fair of '93 was a massive, gorgeous setting for the greatest industrial exhibit probably ever conceived. And yet it was symbolized after a droll fashion by Little Egypt, a flashy and writhing female who performed her dances in the Midway Plaisance. So Little Egypt and the Midway became the fair.

The World's Fair of '33 was a bewildering development in the modern style. And yet the Streets of Paris and Sally Rand, the fan dancer, became the jovial trademark of the spectacle.

The Everleigh sisters stamped the red-light era.

Capone stamped prohibition.



Dean Walter T. Sumner of the Episcopal church as he appeared at the time he headed a committee of citizens to investigate the social evil in Chicago

How the Red-Light District Roused Public Wrath

Touhy and Dillinger stamped the rackets and kidnaping and bank robbery and swift murder.

When the discouraging lawlessness of the prohibition period was at its height it was not at all uncommon for good citizens to complain of the sensational publicity attending the bloody exploits of the hoodlums. Letters came to the editors in swift succession urging an end of all printed things about the bootleggers, the killers, the grafters, and the bribers.

There was that same flinching during the period of the Scarlet Sisters. If we kept still about it no one could know about it. But the newspapers didn't keep still. The printed page kept dinning away at the red lights. Hardly a day passed that did not see the exposure of some astonishing iniquity. Whether in the old west side levee, in the Twenty-second street quarter, in South Chicago, or in North Clark street, each and every screaming evasion of the law got its crash of publicity.

⁂

It was publicity that made the Everleigh sisters. Because they were remarkable for their mode of dress and life, because they affected a certain distinction in manners, because they courted the patronage of the select, they shrewdly built up a capital of advertising. The Everleigh club was known in almost every slumbering hamlet. The out-of-town buyer could return to his home town with a salacious little morsel for his cronies. The city man slipped in and out and hoped he wouldn't get caught.

But the publicity which the Scarlet Sisters so shrewdly originated also built the bonfire. Its heat did not drive them out alone. It also drove out the whole wretched industry. And when the tawdry drama was unraveled it wasn't so romantic after all. The palatial quarters of the Everleigh club when put under the hard scrutiny of investigation turned out to be a common enough three-story brick adapted to the sluttish propensities of a pair of painted-up trollops. The gorgeous furnishings faded into the weary dejection of garish mid-Victorian. When the glittering sisters moved out under the impetus of a police escort a squalid brood of neighborhood ragtag and bobtail moved in and sniffed nothing aristocratic about it.

Ada and Minna Everleigh. These were the sisters. And still are. Today they are living remotely in New York. The usual romantic rumor says they have the income from more than a million dollars they took from their bordel in the old Twenty-second street district. Until recently their financial concerns were managed by a placid underofficer in a Chicago bank. That bank has since been wound up in mergers. The fortune of the Scarlet Sisters may have suffered, but perhaps not Chicago's notorious 22d street red-light district (1905-1911), last of the city's areas of vice, as reconstructed by the artist from information gathered from a number of sources. It was this district, symbolized by the Everleigh club, which in 1912 finally was wiped out by official action and because of public indignation. Virtually the whole of the region indicated here under a red tint was dedicated to commercialized vice and disorderly saloons. Only those dives that were especially notorious are located and named on the map.

Eminent Ibsen Actress Brings Revival of "Ghosts"

Alla Nazimova Leads Stage as Ibsen Woman

Star from Russia Came to Chicago with Paul Orleneff 30 Years Ago.

By Charles Collins.

THE greatest Ibsen actress of the American stage comes to Chicago tomorrow in the master dramatist's best known play. That, in brief, is the story that the announcement, "Nazimova in 'Ghosts,'" communicates.

Mme. Alla Nazimova has never claimed this title and to label her as only an Ibsen specialist would be a misrepresentation of her extremely active and brilliant career. But when one stops to think about the actresses who have identified themselves conspicuously with Ibsen's heroines during the past thirty years, it becomes apparent that Nazimova has been the leader. If one is inclined to vote for the late Mrs. Fiske, a glance at the records reveals only three titles on her record—"Hedda Gabler," "Rosmersholm," and "The Pillars of Society." If one thinks that Eva Le Gallienne should have the honor, because of recent achievements, a check-up gives her only three of the plays in the great Scandinavian's catalog—"The Master Builder," "John Gabriel Borkman," and "Hedda Gabler."

Nazimova leads these candidates with six notable characterizations of the women of Ibsen's imagination, as found in "Ghosts," "Hedda Gabler," "A Doll's House," "The Master Builder," "Little Eyolf," and "The Wild Duck." You can run the number up to seven by counting two rôles for "Ghosts"—the girl, Regina, acted in Russian [1905-1906], and the mother, Mrs. Alving, which she is now acting for the first time in advanced middle age. Moreover, stage statisticians concede her the world's record for consecutive performances of Ibsen.

Chicago Debut in Russian Company.

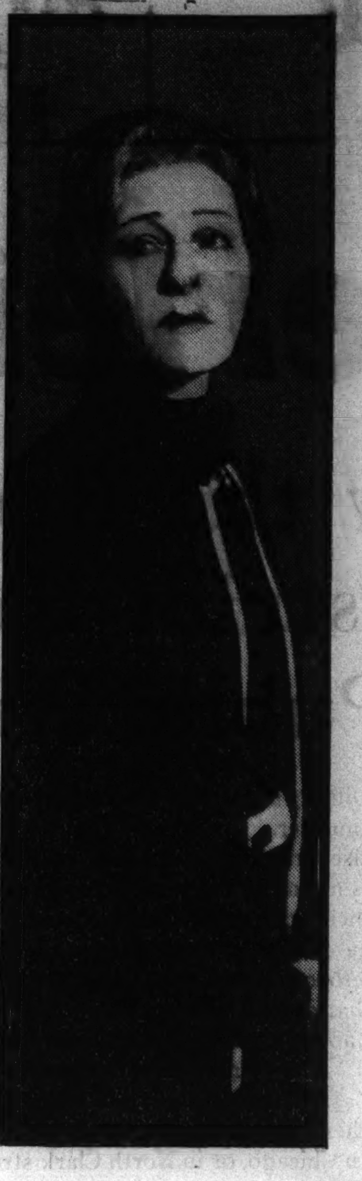
Chicago's first acquaintance with Nazimova dates back to Feb. 12, 1906, when a company of Russian actors, speaking their native tongue, began a two weeks' engagement in an extensive repertory at the Studebaker theater. The star was Paul Orleneff, whose blazing talent is still spoken of with awe by the few survivors of that generation who happened to see him. The leading woman, who looked like a slip of a girl although she was 26 years old, was programmed as Alla Nasimoff, and presently the intellectuals of the town were raving about her as well is about Orleneff.

The engagement opened with "The Chosen People," a drama of no international importance; the firstnighters groaned and wished that the management had been smart enough to supply them with librettoes or a synopsis in the program. The second bill, given on Feb. 14, was "Ghosts," with Orleneff as Oswald—the best in the lifetimes of those who remember him—and with Nazimova in the secondary rôle of Regina. Other plays in the repertory were "Zaza," "The Master Builder," "The Sea Gull," "The Inspector General," "Tsar Feodor," and "The Star." This was an international catalog; four of the plays were of Russian, two of Norwegian, two of French and one of German authorship.

A Mystery Woman Called "Mrs. Schwartz."

The critics praised; the intellectuals threw their hats in the air, and the general public refused to attend. The tour of the Orleneff troupe finally bogged down into financial collapse, as it had already done in London. They went back to Russia and were never heard of again—all except Nazimova, who was taken up by New York managers and groomed for English-speaking productions. Henry Miller, the actor-manager, was, according to tradition, her principal sponsor.

During this Chicago engagement a woman who called herself "Mrs. Schwartz" was active around the Studebaker theater as press representative and interpreter for the Russians. She was apparently an Americanized Russian, and wherever the players went, to teas, receptions, and soirées given by wealthy drama patrons, there "Mrs. Schwartz" went also.



FAMOUS AS IBSEN ACTRESS

Mme. Alla Nazimova, leading interpreter of Ibsen's heroines on the American stage, will begin a two weeks' engagement in the Erlanger theater tomorrow night in a revival of "Ghosts." She came to the American theater thirty years ago after training in Russia, and has been a star in films as well as the drama. [Rembrandt Studios Photo]

Emma Goldman Bores from Within.

The Russian consul in Chicago then was Baron von Schlippenbach, a mellow aristocrat whose personality had the atmosphere of court ceremonials at St. Petersburg. He might have stepped straight out of the pages of "Anna Karenina"; he might have been Vronsky in middle age. He gave a party for the Orleneff players in his apartment, with caviar, champagne, vodka, and other Russian refreshments served in high luxury. And there, consuming these offerings of the imperial burocracy and hobnobbing with the courtly baron, was this same "Mrs. Schwartz."

Now I come to the point of this story: "Mrs. Schwartz" was Emma Goldman, the revolutionist ["anarchist" was the label then in use], and worker in the underground social and political movements that eventually brought disaster to all the barons, princes, grand dukes and czars of Russia. Her presence at the noble Von Schlippenbach's party was an ironical incident which might have fitted into one of Joseph Conrad's stories of Russian revolutionists in exile.

Mme. Nazimova's Career in Ibsen's Dramas.

Nazimova's English-speaking début took place on Nov. 13, 1906, in the Princess theater, New York; the play was Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler." Her other Ibsen premières were as follows: Nora Helmer in "A Doll's House," Jan. 14, 1907; Hilda Wangel in "The Master Builder," Sept. 23, 1907; Rita Allmers in "Little Eyolf," April, 1910; Hedwig in "The Wild Duck," March, 1918; Mrs. Alving in "Ghosts," summer of 1935. In 1909 a theater in New York [now the 39th Street] was named after her.

In 1918 she became a film star and was active for five years as a personality of "the silent screen." Among her cinema titles were: "Revelation," "A Doll's House," "The Red Lantern," "War Brides," "Toys of Fate," "Eye for Eye," "The Brat," "Salome," "The Madonna of the Streets," "Camille," "My Son," "The Redeeming Sin," and "Heart of a Child."

She returned to the stage in 1923. Since then her activities have included appearances in Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard," with Eva Le Gallienne's repertory company, and an association with the Theater Guild, which includes rôles in Turgenev's "A Month in the Country," Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra," and Pearl Buck's "The Good Earth."

"Liliom" at Goodman.

The fourth drama of the Art institute "Member Series" will be offered at the Goodman theater tomorrow, for a week's performances. The play is "Liliom," by Ferenc Molnar, which was introduced to the American public by the New York Theater guild, with Joseph Schildkraut and Eva La Gallienne in the leading rôles.

New Play for Lunts.

"Idiot's Delight," Robert E. Sherwood's new vehicle for Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, will get its tryout in Washington or Pittsburgh in mid-March. It was temporarily slated, at first, for Chicago on March 2.

French Casino Takes Its Old Rainbo Name

Famous Uptown Cabaret Reopens Next Thursday as Rainbo Casino.

THE French Casino of two years back and the Rainbo Garden of the more remote past [same place] will re-open next Thursday night under a new management, bearing the title of Rainbo Casino. Frederick Cramer, hotel man and restaurateur in Chicago for 27 years, is at the head of the enterprise.

The main room of this café at Clark street and Lawrence avenue is said to have the largest table space of any "theater restaurant" in the country. The arrangements of stage and dance platform will remain as they were during the period of "Folies Bergères" revues. The floor show for the opening period will consist of a revue called "Eye-Dears of 1936," produced by Colby N. Harrison, formerly associated with the Capitol and Loew's theaters, New York. Carlton Kelsey comes from Hollywood as musical director, and his orchestra will have an alternate dance band in the Rainbo Serenaders.

● Antonio and Renée de Marco, dance team, began an engagement in the Mayfair room of the Blackstone hotel last Friday night. They were introduced by Irene Castle McLaughlin. This is their first appearance here in more than two years. They danced for the motion picture, "In Caliente" and have had a long run in the Persian room of the Plaza hotel, New York.

● George Olsen and his band and the singing comedienne, Ethel Shutta lead the night club in the College Inn at the Hotel Sherman. In addition, there is the ice skating show, starring Evelyn Chandler, world's champion woman figure skater, and featuring many other professional skaters.

● Libby Holman is now in her last week at Chez Paree, where her original two week contract was lengthened to four. She is singing several new numbers, including "Strangers in Town, "Don't Mention Love to Me" and "Lullaby" from the Gershwin operetta, "Porgy and Bess."

Benny Fields, veteran vaudevillian and a favorite in Chicago night life for the last several seasons, has joined Miss Holman in the Chez program as singing master of ceremonies [he prefers the word "host"].

Henry Busse heads his own orchestra. The remainder of the show includes Kay Picture, tap dancer; the Stuart Morgan Adagio dancers; comedians Grace and Nikki Romoff; Jonny Wells, singer, and the intermission music of Ivan Eppinoff's orchestra.

● With performers from vaudeville, pictures, stage, and radio appearing in the Marine dining room under the "new show each week" policy, Shirley Lloyd, singing star of Herbie Kay's orchestra, continues as a favorite. The current program contains the Vivian Claire review, for years a vaudeville comedy act known as the Parisian Four. Their dancing, singing, and tricks are topped off by a skit called "Moving In." Doreane and Douglas are featured as ballroom dancers. Their numbers include "Valse Triste," "Drumology," and an acrobatic waltz.

Hollywood Points to Gleasons as Proof It Doesn't Wreck Homes

Neatly Unite Fireside with Klieg Lights

Jimmie, Lucille, and Russell Charming Family of Successful Actors.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Activity in the Gleason family is always at fever heat. With writing, acting, directing, stage work, and the various hobbies in the family there's never a dull moment. Jimmie Gleason, Lucille Webster Gleason, and their son, Russell Gleason, are a group whose activities seem to know no limits of time or space. They are, in addition to this, one of Hollywood's few model families, at which every one points with pride whenever it is argued that it's impossible for people to be normal and happy with marriage and a family and live in Hollywood.

Lucille Gleason, caught on the fly in the midst of a busy calendar, had just come from addressing a number of students at a local high school on the matter of vocational guidance. The gist of her speech was that if one will view acting in pictures as a business proposition it is a profitable career to undertake. On the face of it this isn't exactly news, but as she talks Mrs. Gleason has a lot of pertinent comment on the subject.

Of Course You Need Pull, Lucille Tells Students.

"Do I need pull to get a job in pictures?" was one of the questions I was asked. I said of course you do; the more pull the better, and you'd better have something of talent and training to make good with or you're out. But you'll need pull these days if you're trying to get a job as clerk in a ten cent store. I told them, too, to remember when they got in films to turn around and give a pull to some other worthy young person trying to get started.

"I was amazed at the businesslike attitude shown in the questions asked me. No languishing idealists asked me about what sort of effect acting has on one's life, happiness, or spiritual development; nothing so soft as that.

"When I was a girl of 17, starting out in a stock company, Sarah Bernhardt came to town and our company suspended for the week that she was to stay. I watched her in 'Camille' and went home and stayed in bed for almost all that week. I was crushed by my realization that I could never be what she was. I realized I didn't have that something that makes such actresses as she. I lost all my illusions right then, but by the end of the week I dried my eyes, combed out my hair, and decided to take acting as a business and do as well as I could. It has made me a good living, as it has Jimmie, my husband, and Russell, my son. I've never had my head turned with the glamor stuff and all of that, thanks to Bernhardt.

Finds Actors Never Abuse Charity.

"Acting is one business in which you can earn as much when you're old as when you're young, if you are a good Thespian. Look at C. Aubrey Smith—he's 75 years of age and he's tops, lives in a beautiful house which he owns, and had a trip to England recently to see his grandchild. I see similar stories all around me in Hollywood. It's not the dissipated who achieve lasting success though."

As one of the active workers in the Motion Picture relief, Mrs. Gleason has had much experience as an investigator of charity cases among the colony's actors. "An actor to my knowledge never abuses charity; he'll take it if he's down, but when he gets a chance he's working in a benefit to help some one else. When the Dominoes, the women's dramatic club here, gave Christmas baskets we had a call from one man who said that the community chest had also sent him a basket and what should he do with it as he already had one of our baskets. The ego of the actor makes him prefer to be independent. Thespians regard charity as a loan till they're on their feet again.

Cowboy Begs for Just a Plate of Teeth.

"I had a most amusing experience. A cowboy sent in for help and I went out to investigate. He was living in a tent, one of a group where film cowboys live on the edge of town, and when the whistle sounded that announced a woman visitor on the grounds, 5,000 cowboys came pouring out of Bub's tent, just like a comedy cartoon.

"I found Bub had been kicked by a horse. What he considered a worse catastrophe than his injured back, however, was the fact the horse had stepped on his tooth plate and he couldn't eat. He wanted new teeth—and I'm not kidding when I tell you his wordls: 'All I've had to eat today is one itsy bitsy egg and if the relief will only reëmbrace me till I'm on my feet again I'll pay 'em back.'"

Lucille and Russell's most prized Christmas gift is a play written for them by Jimmie.

Russell is home from a long sojourn on Broadway. Since his return he has done four films. Nowadays he's quite a problem to his mother. He's made a hobby of taking motion pictures of operations, and it is mamma that has to help clear the ether fumes from his system after a prolonged medical photography session. His recent triumph is a complete film of the appendectomy of his pal, Phil MacDonald. He's making Phil a present of the film when he comes home from the hospital.

"He's doing them in color now," explains Lucille. "He has one of a gall bladder operation that will make you feel quite liverish, and another, also in color, of a Caesarean which is really thrilling. He sets his camera up on a pair of ladders over the operating surgeon and patient and is thus in a fine position to absorb plenty of ether fumes as well as to get good shots."

Jimmie's hobbies are less thrilling than his son's. He does wood carving and makes hobby horses which Lucille paints and makes wood manes and tails for. Jimmie also likes to go to museums and copy old cradles. He makes his reproductions in mahogany as gifts for friends who have babies. Lucille gave him a set of new tools he craved for Christmas.

"Mae West made my Christmas a highly successful and satisfactory one," chuckles Lucille. "When we came down Christmas morning there was a huge bundle of stuff under the tree, all labeled 'From Mae West.' There's a catch, of course. I worked seven weeks in Mae's last film and used some of the money to go out and buy myself every single thing I wanted for Christmas without bothering my family to do it for me.

"Funny how you tell people what you want and they say 'doesn't she say the funniest things'—and go and buy you something else. I wanted a gold thimble for twenty years and never got it till finally a little secretary of one of my friends went and bought it for me. She didn't know me well and thought I meant it, which I did."

Famous Plays from Athens to Broadway

Burns Mantle Co-Editor of Book Containing 34 Stage Masterpieces.

BURNS MANTLE, New York theatrical correspondent for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and veteran dramatic critic, is represented among the new books of the season by an impressive anthology of famous plays called "A Treasury of the Theater" [Simon & Shuster, publishers]. His co-editor was John Gassner, play reader for the Theater Guild.

This volume of 1,400 pages, handsomely printed in a form that is a safeguard against eyestrain, contains the complete texts of thirty-four notable dramas, past and present, representative of the theaters of America, England, Ireland, Italy, Austria, France, Russia, Germany, Sweden, Norway, Japan, India, Greece, and the ancient Hebrews. In addition there is a long general introduction by the editors, special introductions to each of the thirty-four plays, an annotated list of hundreds of plays which are of interest to the student but could not be included in the volume, an extensive bibliography, and a note on translations of plays.

This collection effectively reveals the whole theater, oriental, European, and American, from the earliest plays to those of the day before yesterday. The translations used, such as those by Gilbert Murray, Gilbert Seldes, Arthur Waley, and Constance Garnett, attain a high degree of distinction. The reader begins with "Of Thee I Sing" and ends with "Agamemnon."

Burns Mantle's name has been prominently associated with the American theater in journalism almost since the beginning of the century. He started his career by writing theater notes for the Denver Times, became dramatic critic of the Chicago Inter Ocean, went to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in 1907, and then to the New York Evening Mail. In 1919 he began his "Ten Best Plays and Year Book of the Drama." In 1922 he became dramatic critic of the New York Daily News.

John Gassner, born in 1903, was educated at Columbia university, receiving his M. A. in 1925. Emil Ludwig's "Versailles" is the best known of the plays he has translated or adapted. He has taught English and world literature at Hunter college and Brooklyn college since 1929. Since 1932 he has been with the Theater Guild in charge of the American play reading department.

Spies in Paris Are Heroes of a New Movie

'Escape from Devil's Island' Is Full of Adventures of International Agents.

"ESCAPE FROM DEVIL'S ISLAND." Produced by Columbia. Directed by Albert Rogell. Presented at the State-Lake theater.

THE CAST.

Dario	Victor Jory
Johanna	Florence Rice
Andre	Norman Foster
Steve	Stanley Andrews
Djikki	Daniel Haynes
Bouillon	Herbert Heywood
Python	Frank Lackteen
Commendante	Arthur Aylesworth
Bisco	Noble Johnson

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

Here's a movie with a smart start and a dumb ending.

Why story and director should have gone so completely haywire for the finale is beyond me!

The action starts in Paris, where Steve, his daughter, Johanna, and Dario, a long time friend who is in love with Johanna [who regards him as a brother], are having farewell drinks at a sidewalk café—for father and daughter plan to leave Paris that night.

Johanna departs to do some last minute shopping.

The men, left alone, reveal to you that they are spies—in the service of an unmentioned country. . . .

In the next few hours, while doing a final bit of work before Steve's departure, the police come in on them. Steve is captured. Dario escapes.

One Spy Knows Another Won't Desert Him.

Steve is sentenced to Devil's Island. He goes to the fearful life of the prison camp set in the jungles of French Guiana with a high heart. For he knows that the devoted and resourceful Dario won't rest until he has perfected plans for his escape. . . .

Johanna, up to this time ignorant of her father's real activities, is crushed. But she rallies and follows Dario's instructions. She is to rent a cottage near the prison and wait for her father to come to her.

Steve, in prison, is protected from a brutal convict by one Andre. . . . A warm friendship springs up between the old and the young man and when Dario, as a guard, appears to effect Steve's escape, why, nothing will do but that Andre come along. . . . Well. . . .

Wrong Man Gets the Girl, Critic Declares.

The father is killed. . . . Dario and Andre separate. . . . They meet again and the love both have for Johanna results in all sorts of complications. . . . So far as I'm concerned, the wrong man gets the girl. . . .

If you and I think alike you'll like Victor Jory and Florence Rice a lot—and find Norman Foster awfully hard to take. Such naiveté! Such sweetness! Whoosh! . . .

The picture is not without suspense. There are some pretty good players in the supporting cast. Too bad the thing had to flatten out so toward the end.

BitsaBOUTem.

SLIM SUMMERVILLE hasn't shaved for three months. Reason—he's staying "realistic" for the comedy constable rôle he plays in "The Country Doctor." He started the stubble for his part in "Captain January" with Shirley Temple and was asked to keep it on for his next release. . . . The freak animal business in Hollywood has jumped, we hear, to approximately $195,000 yearly. Following are some of the prices charged for the daily hire of birds and animals, according to Morris Braun, a rental department expert: A certified racer rates a $10 check; to film him running raises the price to $20. A rearing horse comes to $25 a day, and for the same amount you can get one that stumbles. The two sharks that snap at Warner Baxter in "The Prisoner of Shark Island" were bought from Japanese fishermen at approximately $200 apiece, or 20 cents a pound.

"Dogs are the easiest of all animals to get," says Mr. Braun. "The easiest to work with and the cheapest. Mongrels cost us $2.50 a day and trained hounds from $12.50 to $25. In 'Message to Garcia' are eight alligators which were rented at the bargain rate of $20 per day.

"The most difficult of all reptiles to obtain is a cobra," the rental expert asserts. "There are none available in the United States, and so when Director Frank Lloyd needed one for 'Under Two Flags' I did the best thing possible—secured the services of a blacksnake which has been trained to act like a cobra." [The owner simply fits a cobra-like hood on its head and that qualifies it for a daily check of $20.]

The camels used in this production cost $25 a day per head, and each must have a keeper who is paid an additional $10. Pythons come to $75 per diem, and the sea gulls used in the Shirley Temple picture, "Captain January," were purchased outright for $10 each, since they are hard to catch and practically untamable. No Hollywood establishment stocks trained insects, so when an assortment of these were required for Jane Withers' "Gentle Julia" Braun hired two small boys to gather a collection of cockroaches, spiders, field mice, crickets, and green, gooey worms. For "Captain January" the studio paid $25 a day for the only dancing crane in the world, and 50 cents each for 100 pigeons.

WILL ROGERS JR. has engaged Patricia Ziegfeld to work on the staf of his Beverly Hills newspaper. . . . CHARLES BOYER recently had a narrow escape from death when a pistol was accidentally discharged during the filming of "Invitation to Happiness," in which he is featured with Marlene Dietrich. . . . ANN SOTHERN can sing and act, and now we learn that she is the composer of several musical numbers. . . . PETER LORRE, co-starred with EDWARD ARNOLD in "Crime and Punishment," acted in a play before he had ever witnessed a stage performance. . . . GEORGE RAFT is said to be Hollywood's most enthusiastic detective story reader. . . . Recently an admirer sent GERTRUDE MICHAEL, who is recovering from an accident, 100 of the newest phonograph recordings.

ROBERT WARWICK has been signed to replace H. B. Warner in the cast of "The Return of Jimmy Valentine." The change was made because Mr. Warner was unable to finish work in "The Garden Murder Case" in time to start the Valentine production. . . . "SANDERS OF THE RIVER" has been awarded the annual gold medal presented by the Institute of Amateur Cinematographers, England's equivalent of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

See you tomorrow.

"NIGHT AT THE OPERA"

Well, well! Look who's here! Kitty Carlisle and Allan Jones—all prepared to be fast and funny in the new Marx Brothers opus, "Night at the Opera." It's at the Roosevelt.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fan Anxious for News of Loretta Young.

Dear Miss Tinée: I enjoy your column a great deal. I've been rather busy these past weeks, but I have been searching for some news of Loretta Young. How is she?

Will you please let us know as soon as possible?

I will be watching more closely than ever.

Yours sincerely,
MARGUERITE FREEMAN.

Editor's note: Miss Young has been quite ill, but she's better now and will soon start work on a new picture. I'm so glad you like the column!

The Dilworths Become Rather Entangled Over Gum Chewing.

Dear Mae Tinée: I thought you might be interested in a coincidence arising from an article in your column in THE TRIBUNE recently.

This letter regarding gum chewing was signed by H. P. Dilworth.

While my wife does not chew gum often, when she does indulge she has the annoying habit of "cracking" it loudly to the annoyance of persons with her. This habit led to a lot of good natured ribbing, some of which originated with me. As a result, when this article appeared signed by H. P. Dilworth many of our friends, knowing that Dilworth is not a common name and that my first initial is H. [H. E. D.] and also knowing of my wife's "cracking" habit kept the phone hot kidding my wife and ragging me on my literary efforts.

So I hope that, in the future, when your correspondent H. P. Dilworth writes for your column, he or she does not choose for a subject a matter that fits so well the pet peeves of this correspondent, H. E. D.

Very truly yours,
H. E. D.

Editor's note: If H. P. D. never blushed before, I'll bet he does when he reads this o'er. [Pome!]

DIETING TO REDUCE

Cut out fat meats—you don't need them—eat sensibly of lamb, lean beef, fish and fowl.

Go light on butter, cream and sugary sweets—eat fruit and vegetables in variety.

Gain in physical charm—look younger—feel younger.

Maryland lady writes: "I've lost exactly 21 lbs. and am so happy to get rid of that bulky fat. My skin is clearer and I feel so much better." Mrs. N. S.

Take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning for elimination of excess waste—add juice of half a lemon. Kruschen costs but a trifle and is sold the world over—try one jar—if not joyfully satisfied—money back.

Critic Discusses Three Young Musicians of Brilliant Promise

Three Young Musicians on Road to Fame?

Critic Discusses Futures of Templeton, Van Vactor, and La Antoine.

By Edward Barry.

IT is reasonable to believe that the privilege of addressing the world regularly in these columns may endanger the balance and sense of proportion of any but an experienced person. The fact that his words are multiplied several hundred thousand times can easily become confused in a writer's mind with the idea that several hundred thousand people read his opinions faithfully and believingly and adopt them as their own. Confusion of this sort may lead to an oracle complex.

This morning I should like to foreshadow dimly this last development by choosing three not too brilliant lights of present day music from among a dozen possibilities and trying to show cause for the claim that they may conceivably be among the major luminaries of tomorrow. This is dangerous business at best, so the self-appointed prophet has a clear right to devise as many safeguards as he can and to surround his conclusions with such a maze of conditioning circumstances that their force will be all but lost.

I have taken the auspices and found them fair. Alec Templeton, David Van Vactor, and Josephine Antoine will in 1946 be names to conjure with—whatever that hoary figure may mean. This statement is made with the proviso that such disturbing factors do not enter the calculation as public hostility or indifference, flash-in-the-pan talent, peril by land or sea or air, possible defects of personality—or downright poor judgment on my part. Do all of these conditions put together match in value the refuge of soothsayers of an elder day, who could always seek safety in the claim that the fowl whose entrails had been examined might not have been a first quality bird?

With two out of these three people I am simply playing hunches; Alec Templeton is different, and it should not be hard to make out a good case for the contention that he has a brilliant future as a composer stretching in front of him.

Templeton is the young pianist, blind from birth, whom Jack Hylton brought to America last fall for his radio program. Because of some obstacles of a legal sort which are not completely smoothed away he is not yet allowed to display more than a fraction of his real talents on the air and is confined more or less to so-called novelty playing. The great good fortune of three hours in his company last week provided most of the material for this sketch.

Has Developed Vivid Aural Outlook.

Alec [he insists on your calling him that after a few tentative "Mr. Templetons"] was born in Wales of Scotch parents about twenty-three years ago. His amazing aptitude for music became manifest before he was 4. An active and aggressive mind made it possible for him to secure an excellent general as well as musical education before he reached manhood. He has been playing the piano professionally for several years in England and composing regularly through all that time. The record of solo appearances includes one with the London Symphony orchestra and one with the Bournemouth Municipal orchestra. Augener of London, one of the most respected publishing houses of the old world, handles his compositions.

Recently one of Templeton's works was chosen by a conservatory of music as a contest piece for students. This miscellany of information may serve as background to the account of personal reactions that follow. I would rather let you form your own impressions of him and decide on the validity of this claim for a possibly brilliant future tnan to try to make every item of the narrative bear dirertly on the point.

The first hour with him was passed in conversation. He talked fluently on many subjects and betrayed an agile intelligence and a great power to assimilate impressions. He has traveled extensively and developed an aural outlook on the world remarkable for its vividness and accuracy.

Knows All of Beethoven's Sonatas by Heart.

In the course of a great deal of conversation about music it became apparent that Alec Templeton's preoccupation with his profession had had neither the withering effect on his general interests that you might suppose, nor the deadening influence on enthusiasms within the art that makes of some musicians priests of a faith in which they no longer believe. He has an immense passion for music and an intimate knowledge of the répertoire. To drive home a point he was making about Toscanini's tempos, he hummed a passage from the third movement of the Seventh Symphony. Not that there is anything especially remarkable about this, but he followed [or preceded] it with the admission extracted under questioning that he knew all of the thirty-two Beethoven sonatas.

He has definite and interesting ideas on the merits of the musicians of the day [executants, composers, conductors] and a sound background of knowledge that gives his opinions authority and force.

The meeting was moved to a place where a piano could be had, and what started out to be a few minutes of music turned into two absorbing hours with a talent that verges on genius. Templeton's natural gift for music is the most astounding of any with which I have ever had personal contact. Here is a condensed and not chronologically exact account of what took place in those two hours.

Catches Subtleties of Every Composer's Style.

He played some Beethoven, an excerpt from the spiritually rather than technically difficult Sonata in F sharp major, opus 78, and followed it with a succession of bewildering feats of one sort or another that depended as much on his humor and intelligence and powers of observation as they did on sheer musical virtuosity.

He asked for a theme on which to improvise, and proceeded to do strange things with it. You know the outworn trick of playing a given succession of notes in the style of various composers. This version of the trick had such delicacy and finish about it, and so many apt bits of characterization that stopped just short of caricature in the course of its generous length that you would be willing to swear that the whole device is as new as tomorrow. When you hear a man play Mozart and Ravel and Gershwin in a manner that catches their subtle as well as their obvious qualities, you are willing to believe that the noble passage in Beethoven's style is no mad bit of imaginative caprice but an authentic performance of a hitherto undiscovered manuscript.

Alec has a first rate musical imagination, and the marriage of his mind and fingers breeds offspring of a rare, fragile beauty. Even his improvisations have loveliness and truth. He bends an undistinguished theme to his own uses and glorifies it somehow in the process.

Welds Four Tunes Into Single Fantasy.

The chances are that you are less familiar with the following bit of sleight of hand than you are with the "as great composers would have written it" business. Four people were asked to suggest four tunes for the pianist to weld into a single fantasy. The most grotesquely assorted quartet in the history of music was the result, for the four things chosen were "Ole Man River," the Military Polonaise, "The Music Goes Round and Round," and Ravel's "Bolero."

Templeton took them without a protest [except a mild one at the second last] and set his integrating faculties to work. They were not only welded together successfully but handled in such a way that one seemed to germinate the other. A most amazing business, even if there had been three hours of preparation allowed him, instead of three seconds.

The boy gets interested in his subject and will not stop. He talked and played and played and talked, and his hearers watched one trick after another and concluded that they had never seen nor heard them before. There was the matter of imitations of various semi-musical and extra-musical sounds. He can do "Grandfather's Clock" so perfectly that the piano actually chimes [and I mean this literally, although it is impossible on the face of it [and brings the flat fields of Flanders before your eyes with a melancholy descending carillon. One of his caprices took the form of a mild disapprobation of the particular make of piano on which he was playing and a clever and unexplainable demonstration of its poorness. He made the instrument sound very much out of tune—how, I do not know.

Portrays Personalities with Harmony.

Just one more point, Alec Templeton's portraits. He is sensitive to personalities and is able to translate them into music after a short acquaintance. First of all, he will tell you what key you are in, and then produce out of thin air a penetrating and surprisingly accurate tonal description of your mental and spiritual vices and virtues.

Much of this is mere cleverness of a high order, and I cannot base any of the claim that young Templeton is due for some solid sort of fame on a bag of magician's tricks. Running through all of them, though, is a convincing undercurrent of enchanting imagination and humor, humor in its universal sense. He transmutes experience quickly and the resulting product has the freshness of life in it as well as the technical finish that his art requires. If you had to do anything as outrageous as finding a formula for creative effort, this would do nicely until something better turned up.

Now about the other two, who are admittedly hunches. The reader will agree, after seeing the slender evidence I have gathered, that the admission had much better be made before the presentation than after.

David Van Vactor plays flute with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. He is about 29 years old and was born in Indiana. In the course of this short life he has found time to master his instrument, to study intensively in Europe during two different periods, and to compose a respectable amount of music.

His Concerto Grosso was played Christmas eve by the orchestra for the first time. The man has a great deal of classical learning and has written a fugue for his concerto that the sons of Bach [and possibly the old cantor himself] could hear with beams of approval.

I think Van Vactor has something to say musically and that he has the scholastic background necessary to say it convincingly. His learning does not weigh him down, for his music seems to have inspiration and spontaneity in it. The whole of tomorrow evening will be devoted to a concert of his songs and chamber music in the foyer of Orchestra hall.

Personally, Van Vactor is modest and gentle. He wears his honors [and they have been many] with lightness and grace. He is in a good spot for a composer, and, if he has the ability I think, there is no reason why his music should not command a much greater audience ten years hence than it does now.

Antoine's Nervousness Makes Critics Cautious.

Josephine Antoine [and here is the wildest guess of all] is the 21 year old soprano who made her debut with the Metropolitan two weeks ago yesterday. She is an American girl, from Colorado, and before her big chance came to her before assembled Gotham she succeeded in corralling her share of the minor honors that go to make the climb toward the stage of the Metropolitan less discouraging. She won the Atwater-Kent prize one year, and the privilege of appearing in some Juilliard Foundation operas and the opera series of the Philadelphia orchestra.

When she faced the famous horseshoe two weeks ago and knew that the opportunity that sopranos dream of was hers at last, the excitement of the ordeal caused her no more nervousness than would be the portion of any one in such a position, but enough, apparently, to cause New York writers to withhold from her the full measure of praise that would classify the debut as a sensational one.

Lily Pons, of opera, movie, and radio fame, is scheduled for an Orchestra hall recital a week from Saturday.

Three Newest Plays Leave Broadway Cold

Zoe Akins' Drama Flops; Two Others Maintain Perilous Existences.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Broadway was not encouraging to dramatic art this week. Because, forsooth, or even egad, there was precious little dramatic art to be encouraging about. One pattern comedy called "O, Evening Star," which brought Jobyna Howland back from a considerable stretch on the Pacific coast. One serious drama of life on a western farm before and since the Supreme court did its stuff, called "Mid-West," and a little something intended to be serious, but which excited the first audience to snickers and even guffaws, called "Truly Valiant."

The Jobyna Howland play will probably reach you through the movies. It has been withdrawn from the theater. If it is done as a picture it should, I think, be played by either Henrietta Crosman or May Robson. It is a little too much for Miss Howland.

La Howland Played in Zoe's First Broadway Drama.

"O, Evening Star" represented, as reasonably as I can figure it, a gesture of friendship on the part of Zoe Akins, who wrote it, and a gesture of gratitude on the part of Harry Moses, who produced it.

The legend, if you are interested, runs like this: Back in 1919, when Zoe Akins was just emerging from St. Louis as a young writer of promise and a protégé of Will Marion of the St. Louis Mirror, a play of hers called "Papa" was produced in New York.

Jobyna Howland, who had made some little progress with a stage career after Charles Gibson had selected her as one of his early models, she being a tall girl, and as beautifully statuesque as Liberty herself, had a part in "Papa."

That was the beginning of an enduring friendship. Miss Akins went on from there to success as a playwright, with plays that included "Declassée," "The Greeks Had a Word for It," and "The Old Maid," which last year won the Pulitzer prize. Miss Howland went in for comedy of the lighter burlesque type, reaching her Broadway peak playing in support of Ina Claire in "The Gold Diggers" and Eddie Cantor in "Kid Boots."

Moses and Playwright Share Success of "Old Maid."

In 1922 Miss Akins wrote a comedy called "The Texas Nightingale" for Jobyna. The reviews were mostly favorable, but the business was terrible. Then both Miss Akins and Miss Howland found themselves, after varied experiences, headed for the movies in Hollywood. Miss Akins wrote "The Old Maid." Miss Howland played before the camera in such numbers as "Stepping Sisters" and "Once In a Lifetime."

"The Old Maid," on the stage, was a huge success, putting Miss Akins back in the Broadway limelight and bringing an underwear industrialist from Cleveland, O., named Harry Moses, into prominence as a producer. Mr. Moses was grateful. Miss Akins was in funds. Miss Howland needed a play. So . . .

Miss Akins wrote "O, Evening Star" for Miss Howland, basing it on the inspiration of the late Marie Dressler's experiences, seasoned with those of other actresses of similar sentimental trend. Mr. Moses took a part of his "Old Maid" profits and produced the play handsomely. And Miss Howland, given another chance at Broadway, gave everything she had to give to it. If I could add a happy ending by reporting the complete success of "O, Evening Star" that would be perfect. Unhappily that cannot be done.

Jobyna Can't Adapt Her Talents to Sentimental Role.

It was, as a matter of truth, a shallow play. And Miss Howland, whose training has been mostly in comedy, and pretty rough comedy, much of it, was not happy in this sentimental drama.

The story was of an Amy Bellaire who had been a great musical comedy star in her day. Bankrupt in 1917, she was forced to auction off the contents of her Riverside drive home. In 1931 she found herself broke in Hollywood, and subject to the insults and jeers of the upstart dictators of the screen.

Hired as extra for a western drama she filled in for a leading woman who lost her voice at rehersals. Instead of playing the part straight, Amy burlesqued it. Instantly she had the tired studio force laughing fit to kill, was caught in the act by one of the junior Strassbergs and was eventually made a star with a contract paying her $2,000 a week for life. Her support included Frank Conroy, viciously true to one type of director, and Merle Maddern, modestly helpful as a loyal friend.

If integrity of purpose and honesty of achievement could be converted into cash in theatrical New York James Hagan would be in for another money success with his "Mid-West." He is the lad who wrote a little comedy called "One Sunday Afternoon" a year ago and saw it zoom slowly into such favor that it played the better part of a year on Broadway and did fairly well on tour.

The new play is as direct, as simple, and as honest as was last year's comedy, but unfortunately it provides no more than static drama. A depressing, sad little story of an honest farmer who tried to live as a decent citizen should and rear a family on a western farm only to find himself defeated by about everything from drouth to taxes, not to mention the Supreme court.

Farmer Zanhiser Finds Life Has Been a Vicious Circle.

Of Luke Zanhiser's six children, only one stays on the farm with him, and this one is moved finally by a restless wife to try his luck in the city. Of the other five, two sons were lost in the war, one daughter died young, and another married and moved to California.

But, greatest tragedy of all, the most promising of the children, a brilliant boy for whom the family sacrificed everything that he might have an eastern college education, came home a rabid communist and got himself hanged by a group of neighbors who objected to his inciting their field hands to strike.

In the end Pa and Ma Zanhiser are left alone to pick up their lives where they find them at the end of a drouth and start all over again.

Honest drama demands emotional support. "Mid-West" is largely a statement of fact that gives an audience plenty of reason for serious thinking but none at all for partisan cheering. The youthful communist's protest is clearly stated, his father's argument is plain, common sense. There is a proper respect for both. The lynching is an off-stage effect and therefore of negative dramatic value, and when it is all said and done nobody cares much about anything that has happened.

"Mid-West" is as honestly played as it is written. Curtis Cooksey and Jean Adair are the afflicted farmer parents, Van Heflin the radical son, and Bernadine Hayes a restless daughter.

PLAYS IN "MR. HOBO"

And where did you get such great, big eyes, my dear? Wherever she got 'em, they're striking, aren't they? Their possessor is Miss Viola Keats, the English girl chosen to support George Arliss in the Gaumont British film, "Mr. Hobo." It's on the Apollo screen.

Notes of Music and Musicians

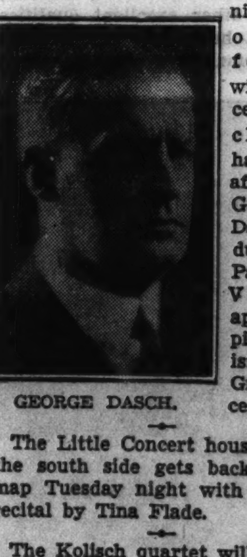
This is the week when visiting conductors begin drifting into the city. Eugene Ormondy will arrive with the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra for a Wednesday night concert at the Civic Opera house. Sir Hamilton Harty takes Frederick Stock's baton Thursday to direct the Chicago Symphony orchestra in the first of three programs.

EUGENE ORMONDY.

Additional interest attaches to Ormondy at the present time because of his recent appointment to the conductorship of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, succeeding Leopold Stokowski, who resigned his post to devote his talents to research on the subject of sound production.

◆

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra celebrates the fifteenth anniversary of its founding with a concert at Orchestra hall this afternoon. George Dasch conducts and Parthenia Vogelback appears as piano soloist in the Grieg concerto.



GEORGE DASCH.

◆

The Little Concert house out on the south side gets back on the map Tuesday night with a dance recital by Tina Flade.

◆

The Kolisch quartet will play in the Gold room of the Congress hotel on Jan. 27, but the Arts club of Chicago scoops the town by securing this famous organization for its first local appearance tonight.

◆

A gala benefit program has been arranged by the Chicago MacDowell Association of Fine Arts for the Chicago Woman's club theater tomorrow night. The benefit is to further plans originated by the late Mrs. Albert John Ochsner. In memory of Mrs. Ochsner a fund is being collected to create a fellowship at the MacDowell colony at Peterborough. Amy Neill, violinist, Agnes Connover, pianist, and the Chicago Symphonic choir provides the music.

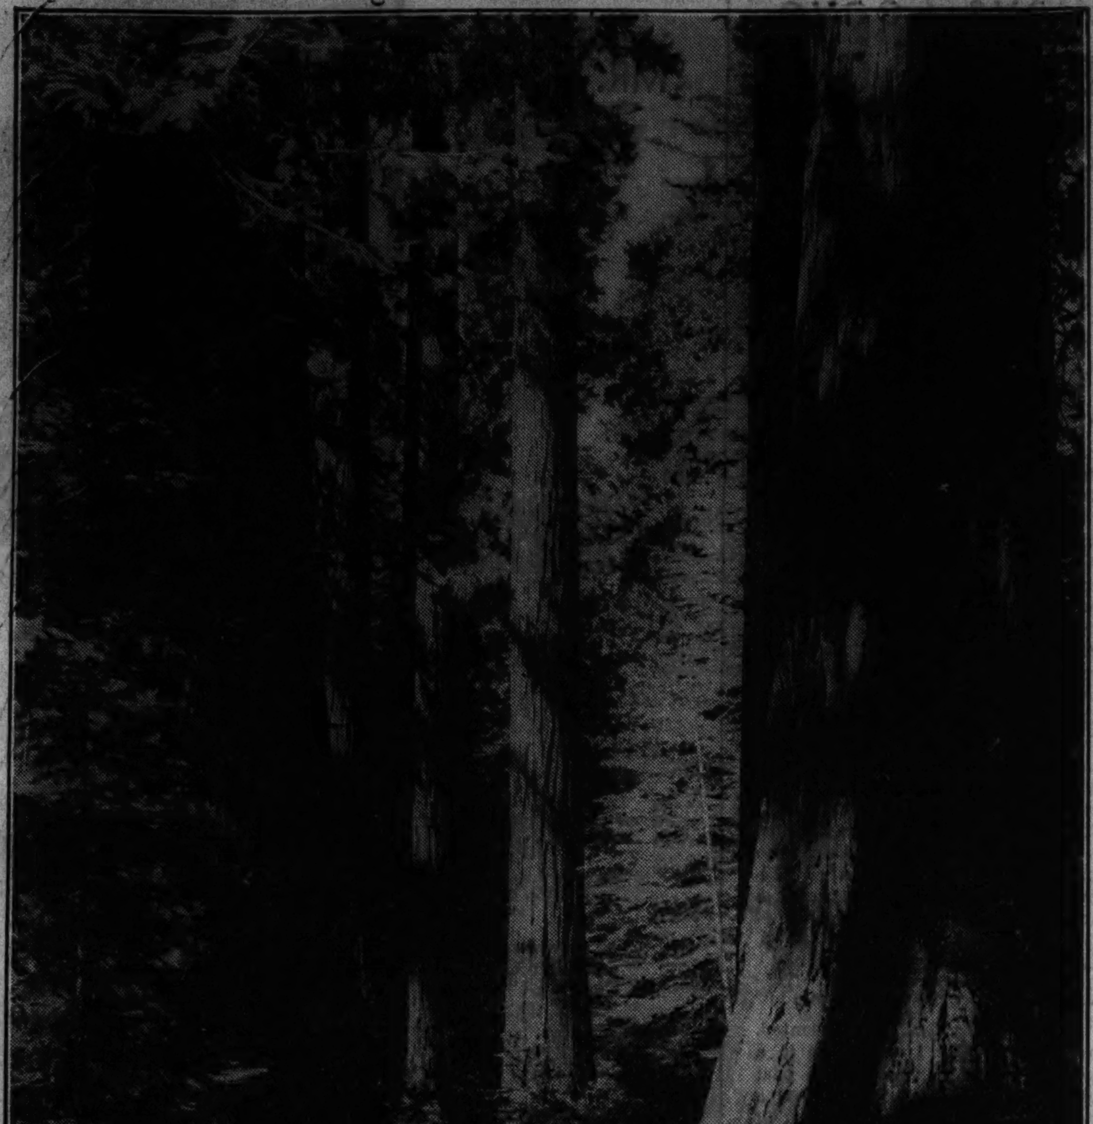
Food Divided Into Four Classes

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK



Trees and other plants convert carbon dioxide from the air into living matter by means of the sun's energy.

IN SPITE of what the gourmets may say, there really are only two reasons why we eat—to replace our flesh as it wears out, and to supply ourselves with energy. For these purposes there are four main classes of food, or, for what amounts to the same thing, of living tissue; these are carbohydrates, fats, proteins, and minerals. A fifth class, the vitamins, is required in only very small amounts and does not fall within the scope of the present article.

The minerals are the inorganic constituents of living matter. In the plant kingdom they constitute the ash left after burning. Among animals they appear as the main components of bones and teeth and also as the salts dissolved in the fluid tissues, such as blood. These minerals consist chiefly of relatively simple compounds of a number of elements, the chief ones in the human body being calcium, phosphorus, potassium, sodium, and sulphur.

Proteins make up the real living parts of our bodies. Our skin, muscles, nerves, and organs consist largely of protein material. Proteins are highly complex organic substances and, as might be supposed from the varied tissues that they make up, differ widely in their properties.

They may be solid or liquid; soluble in water or insoluble; acidic, basic, or neutral; or crystaline, waxy, or jellylike. In fact, about all that they have in common is a fairly constant elementary composition: about 52 per cent carbon, 7 per cent hydrogen, 25 per cent oxygen, and 16 per cent nitrogen. In a number of proteins there also is a per cent or so of certain other elements, principally phosphorus or sulphur.

Fats, which include oils, are too well known to be described. They can be consumed by the organism for the energy stored up in them, and they provide the agency by which energy reserves can be laid up in the body. Fats are fairly simple in chemical structure and constant in composition. They contain about 77 per cent carbon, 12 per cent hydrogen, and 11 per cent oxygen; just these three elements and no others.

≈

Like the fats, the carbohydrates are sources of energy. They include the sugars, starch, and cellulose (the last named is the fibrous material in plants; it can be digested by herbivorous animals but not by humans). Also like fats, carbohydrates consist of the same three elements. The analytical figures are 40 per cent carbon, 7 per cent hydrogen, and 53 per cent oxygen.

It will be noticed that carbohydrates contain considerably more oxygen than do the fats. Since the energy of both of these foods is released by combining them with oxygen, and since the carbohydrates contain more oxygen, it follows that the fats contain more energy. However, since sugar is soluble in water and fat is not, the carbohydrates make up for their lower energy content by a greater ease of assimilation.

There are certain differences in the distribution of these types of tissue in animals and in plants which imply fundamental physiological changes. Disregarding water and mineral contents, which vary greatly among different species, we find that in general animals consist largely of protein and fat, with practically no carbohydrate, while plants are preponderantly carbohydrate (largely as cellulose), with comparatively little of the other two groups.

Now, these three groups of foods do not originate spontaneously from dead material. Moreover, animals, whatever other excellent qualities they may have, are rather inept when it comes to creating the three groups. Let us take the human species as a typical example. We know that we can convert the proteins of plants and other animals into those of our own bodies; otherwise we would have to exist by cannibalism. We know, especially those of us who must watch our diet, that we can convert carbohydrates into fat. But these accomplishments represent the limit of animal capacity. We cannot synthesize our food out of simpler substances. We must fill our energy and protein requirements by eating plants or other animals which in turn have eaten plants. It is a little sad to consider, but in this respeot the animal kingdom is parasitic upon the vegetable.

Elementary Composition of Fats, Carbohydrates, and Proteins

	Carbon	Hydrogen	Oxygen	Nitrogen
Fats	77%	12%	11%	0
Carbohydrates	40%	7%	53%	0
Proteins	52%	7%	25%	16%

Chemical Composition of a Man and a Typical Plant

	Water	Protein	Carbohydrate	Fat	Minerals
Man	65%	15%	1%	14%	5%
Plant	70%	4%	23%	1%	2%

≈

On the other hand, most plants are quite capable of building up living matter out of quite simple starting materials found in the air and the soil. The fundamental process of plant metabolism consists of combining water and carbon dioxide to form sugar and oxygen. The large amount of energy required for this reaction is obtained from the sunlight. (Incidentally, animal metabolism is based upon the reverse of this reaction: the conversion of sugar and oxygen into carbon dioxide, water, and energy.)

By certain subtle processes the plant then proceeds to combine the sugar molecules with each other to form the bigger molecules of starch or cellulose. It may remove more oxygen from the sugar to form fats. Or it may combine the sugar with certain simple nitrogen compounds such as ammonia or nitrates to form proteins.

Thus we find that animal life is based entirely upon that of plants. But where do the plants obtain their raw materials? The question of hydrogen and oxygen is a simple one. These two elements are supplied in sufficient quantity by water, which, as a result of the climatic conditions peculiar to the earth, is constantly available over most of the planet's surface.

The amount of carbon available for vital processes is an entirely different matter. This element is a relatively rare one, there being only some sixty or seventy million billion tons of it present on the earth's surface. And, unfortunately 99.97 per cent of this, or all but a trifling twenty-five trillion tons, is combined with rocks and therefore unavailable for living matter. About two-thirds of this slight remainder is dissolved in the ocean, and the greater part of the rest is held in the coal deposits of the world. This leaves a mere two trillion tons of carbon, which exists in the form of living matter, atmospheric carbon dioxide, or carbon dioxide loosely held by the top soil.

It is upon this fragile thread of carbon that our lives depend. Fortunately the utilization of carbon dioxide by plants is not a one-way process. Instead there is a steady circulation of the materials. Plants convert the carbon dioxide of the air and soil into vegetable matter. Animals eat the plants and exhale carbon dioxide back into the air. Fire also restores this gas to the atmosphere. And life that survives being eaten or burned eventually dies and decays, thus returning its carbon to the soil or the air.

In short, there is a sort of equilibrium between living matter and the carbon dioxide contents of the atmosphere and the top soil. There happen to be certain geologic processes which tend to disturb this balance to a slight extent. Undetermined but relatively small amounts of carbon dioxide are absorbed beyond hope of recovery by the weathering of rock. Similar quantities are blown into the air from volcanoes. It is impossible to say definitly whether the net result of these two effects is a gain or a loss, but probably the latter is correct.

If this be true, then all life faces eventual extinction when there is no more carbon dioxide left. Such a gloomy prospect need excite no immediate concern, however. It is so far in the future that our descendants probably will be wiped out by some other cosmic catastrophe before the rocks can steal all of their carbon.

It will be recalled that nitrogen is an essential component of proteins. Like carbon, this element also passes through a cycle in its utilization by living matter. Plants convert the simple nitrogen compounds of the soil into proteins, and the nitrogen is returned to the soil by means of the decay of nitrogenous organic matter.

The future of nitrogen, however, appears happier than that of carbon. Nitrogen comprises about four-fifths of the air around us, thus providing us with an almost inexhaustible reservoir of the material. The fact that it is in the form of elementary nitrogen, which cannot be used directly by most plants or animals, is of minor importance. There are certain species of bacteria which grow upon the roots of leguminous plants and which are capable of converting atmospheric nitrogen into compounds which nourish the plant. In addition, lightning causes the nitrogen and the oxygen of the air to combine, forming assimilable compounds which are carried down to the soil by rain. Moreover, these two nitrogen increments have been augmented in recent years by human ingenuity, which has found ways of fixing atmospheric nitrogen into compounds capable of use as fertilizers.

Finally there are the minerals. Not being gases, they cannot be absorbed from the air, and if removed from the soil by exhaustive cultivation or by erosion they must be replaced by artificial means. Fortunately the elements of this class most needed by living matter (calcium, potassium, sodium, magnesium, phosphorus, and sulphur) are readily obtainable from mineral deposits sufficient in extent to supply the world's fertilizer needs for at least several generations to come.

Popular Fallacies About Dogs Corrected

IF ONE could successfully debunk some of the stories about dogs (and their care) that are believed by thousands of dog owners in the United States, the chances are that we would have a larger number of healthy dogs in this country. When you list some of the incorrect but widely believed funny ideas about dogs it's amazing to see how the list concerns names of dogs, feeding fads, and other interesting subjects.

A letter which we received from a dog owner a few days ago gives us a tip on the first dog myth that ought to be debunked in 1936. This correspondent said that she had just been presented with a ten-week-old puppy of pure-bred, registered stock. She wrote that she had heard that pure-bred dogs have "sensitive stomachs" and are very difficult to raise. Therefore she wanted every practical tip on dog care so that she could raise the pup correctly.

≈

Of course, there is no truth in this belief, which gets position number one on the list of dog myths that need to be debunked. A pure-bred dog does not have a more sensitive stomach than a cross-bred. As a matter of fact, nine times out of ten a pure-bred pup from a kennel that takes pride in the care of its stock starts out with a healthier constitution than other pups, because it has been wormed at the right age, has been given the best of food and the best of care. Breeders of pure-bred dogs naturally are anxious to raise the strongest, healthiest, and best-looking dogs they can. That is logical, because if their dogs are not good specimens they will not be able to sell them or win with them in the dog shows.

Another dog myth that needs debunking is that every dog needs worm medicine at frequent intervals. To see the way some owners dose their pets is to feel sorry for these dogs. Associated with this idea, which often injures rather than helps the dog, is one which specifies worm medicine every spring as a "tonic."

≈

Drugs to kill the round worms in dogs are not tonics. And just because the calendar says it is spring is no reason why a dog should be wormed. In adult dogs you give worm medicine only when the dog requires it. And the average dog owner should rely on a microscopic examination made by a veterinarian, not on the calendar or hearsay about the time to administer worm medicine to a dog.

We are fortunate in owning dogs of several different breeds. Since these dogs were wormed (when very young), not one of them has been given a worm capsule, for the simple reason that they have showed no signs of needing such medicine. About five months ago we had one of our hunting dogs examined by a veterinarian to see if it needed worming. It took just about five minutes of work by the vet to determine that the dog needed no medicine. And that was that. It is true that various kinds of worms are a menace to our dogs' health, but once the canine pets have been freed of these parasites and are kept under clean conditions, there is no need to keep dosing the dog with medicine every few weeks. And it is no exaggeration to state that thousands of dogs are killed every year by owners who give their pets too much worm medicine.

≈

Another widespread belief that needs to be exploded concerns the "police dog." Many believe that there is a breed known as the police dog. Such is not the case. The correct name for the dog usually called a police dog is German shepherd. This breed actually is a valuable aid in police activities in many cities. But it also is the breed honored by being trained to lead blind persons. If we call the German shepherd a police dog, then we also should call the Doberman a police dog, because the Doberman is so intelligent, quick, and courageous that it makes an ideal dog for police work. And it is being used as such.

Another dog myth that ought to be exposed as such is this: that female dogs will go blind unless bred. There is no truth in this belief.

Dog breeders also would be glad to see 1936 as the year in which this fallacious belief could be thrown into the discard: that puppies should not be given meat because it makes them vicious.

≈

This idea, still prevalent among some dog owners, makes it a hard life for the pets deprived of a food that they need. Dogs need meat from the time they are weaned. In fact, puppies start licking meat from their whiskers (rubbed on the whiskers by the dog breeder) before they are weaned. Meat in some form and in reasonable amounts makes for healthy, strong pups. So don't deny your puppy a suitable ration of meat in his diet.

THE QUESTION BOX

Can you give me some information about a dog called the Tipperary terrier? Is there such a breed, or is this a misnomer for some breed of dog? If you have a booklet on the care and feeding of dogs, please advise me, as I would appreciate having your advice on these questions.—J. E. A., Farmington, Ill.

The Tipperary terrier is a breed unknown to us. Possibly readers may have some clew as to this breed. Both the Kerry and the Irish terrier have their origin in Ireland, but we have not heard either of them spoken of as Tipperary terriers.

A leaflet on feeding dogs has been mailed to you. The only booklet on care and feeding that this department has is the Tribune handbook entitled "The Dog Book," which is on sale at the Tribune public service office, 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago. The cost is 30 cents by mail.

My veterinarian told me that the diet I had been using for my Scotty dog was all wrong and that as a result he has a touch of eczema. The veterinarian also gave me a new diet for the dog to be used until the skin condition clears up. What do you think I should feed him?—J. D. H., Chicago.

I recently sent you a free leaflet which will give you my idea of the correct feeding of dogs. However, this leaflet is for dogs which are in good condition. It is often necessary for a veterinarian to prescribe a special diet for dogs which are not well, the same as a physician prescribes special foods for persons who are ill. I suggest that you follow the advice of your veterinarian on feeding your dog while he is ill.

Some friends and myself have had a discussion about bulldogs, and I would like you to clear up a few points about them. First I would like to know if pedigreed bulldogs born with a kinked tail have to have their tails cut. Also, is it necessary to trim their ears?—Ralph L. S.

The bulldog standard specifies that the tail may be straight or "screwed" (to use technical American Kennel club term), but must never be short-curved or curly. If the tail is "screwed" the bends or kinks should be well defined. The ears of a bulldog never are cropped.

DOG NOTES

The Western Boston Terrier club is preparing for two events which it is to sponsor in the near future. The club will hold a puppy match at the Hotel Sherman Feb. 5, and its annual specialty show will be staged at the same hotel Feb. 23. Mrs. H. C. Hayhurst of Kankakee, Ill., will judge the puppy match, and Vincent Perry of Toronto, Ont., will officiate at the specialty show. Mr. Perry is well known among Boston fanciers as the author of "The Boston Terrier."

Further information regarding either of these events may be had by communicating with the club secretary, Paul Schwartz, 1330 Hyde Park boulevard, Chicago.

The American Kennel club recently announced that it would give cash prizes amounting to approximately $18,000 during 1936 to winning exhibitors in dog shows.

A prize of $50 is awarded to the owner of a dog which wins the title of best in show in an all-breed show, with $10 added if the winning dog was bred by the exhibitor. The best dogs in the variety groups are given $25, with $10 added if the dog was bred by the exhibitor.

There are various other cash awards, including $50 for best in a specialty show, $25 for best in American-bred class at a specialty show, and $50 to any dog winning a field trial championship.

The Northern States Amateur Field Trial association already has made plans for its spring trials, which will be held near Solon Springs, Wis., May 2 and 3 on a 20,000-acre game sanctuary which was dedicated last fall.

Included on the schedule is a members' puppy stake, a members' subscription stake, an open puppy stake, an open all-age stake, and a president and secretary event.

Sportsmen who like to hunt and fish will have a double attraction to this event. They will get a chance to see many hunting dogs in action and also can unlimber their fly rods in one of the trout streams in the area. The trout season opens May 1 in Wisconsin, and the Brule river is just a few miles from Solon Springs.

For further information about the trial write to the secretary of the association, Clare L. Wildner, Androy hotel, Superior, Wis.

Every so often we get requests from readers asking us to help them find their lost dogs, and almost every day we notice in the want ad sections that several perplexed dog owners have lost their pets and are offering rewards for their return.

There are several things that you can do to prevent the loss of your dog, and also several things which will make it easier to get the pet back if you do lose it. Every dog should have a nameplate on its collar, giving the name of the dog and the name and address of the owner, or name and telephone number.

If you have your dog inoculated for rabies the veterinarian should give you a metal plate certifying the inoculation. That always should be left on the dog's collar. Then if your dog strays away and happens to bite someone he will not be immediately killed by the police for fear that he may be rabid.

Another practical aid in this problem is to have a photograph of your dog in your possession, so that if he is lost or stolen you can prove your ownership more easily. Naturally the picture should be one which will show the dog's whole body so that the markings will be clear.

Of course, the most important thing to keep in mind to avoid the loss of a dog is to not permit the animal to roam around as it pleases. Although dogs that are carefully watched may be stolen in spite of all the precautions that owners take, animals that are permitted to run the streets at will naturally can be picked up more easily by dog thieves, or stray so far from home they go on the missing list.

Makeup Artist Tells How to Overcome Facial Faults

Stress Good Points, Says Jack Dawn

By ROSALIND SHAFFER

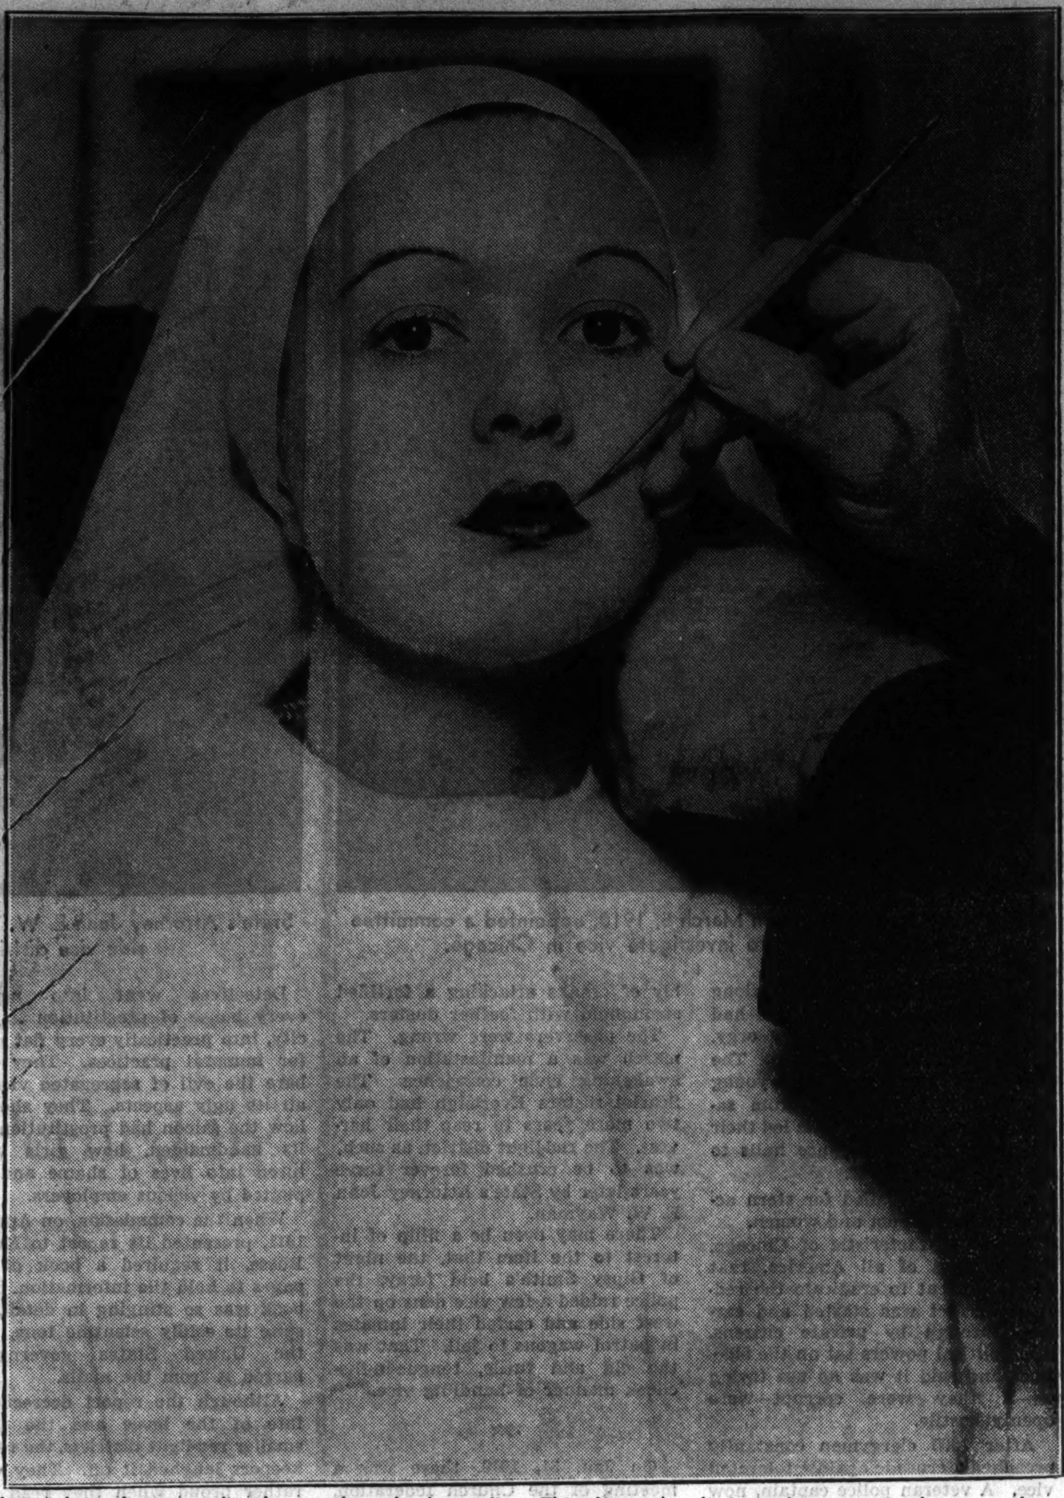
Hollywood, Cal.

"WHEN I see lovely women all around me doing the awful things they do to their faces I have a hard time to restrain myself from rushing up to them on the streets and saying: 'My dear lady, don't do it! Don't use any makeup at all until you know exactly what you're doing!' Just plain nature couldn't be as bad as the things I see done on every hand. We have made women cosmetic conscious, and now we'll have to try to get them to listen to reason," says Jack Dawn, makeup artist at M-G-M, who is responsible for the makeup of Norma Shearer, Jean Harlow, Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, and many more of the famous ones seen on the screen.

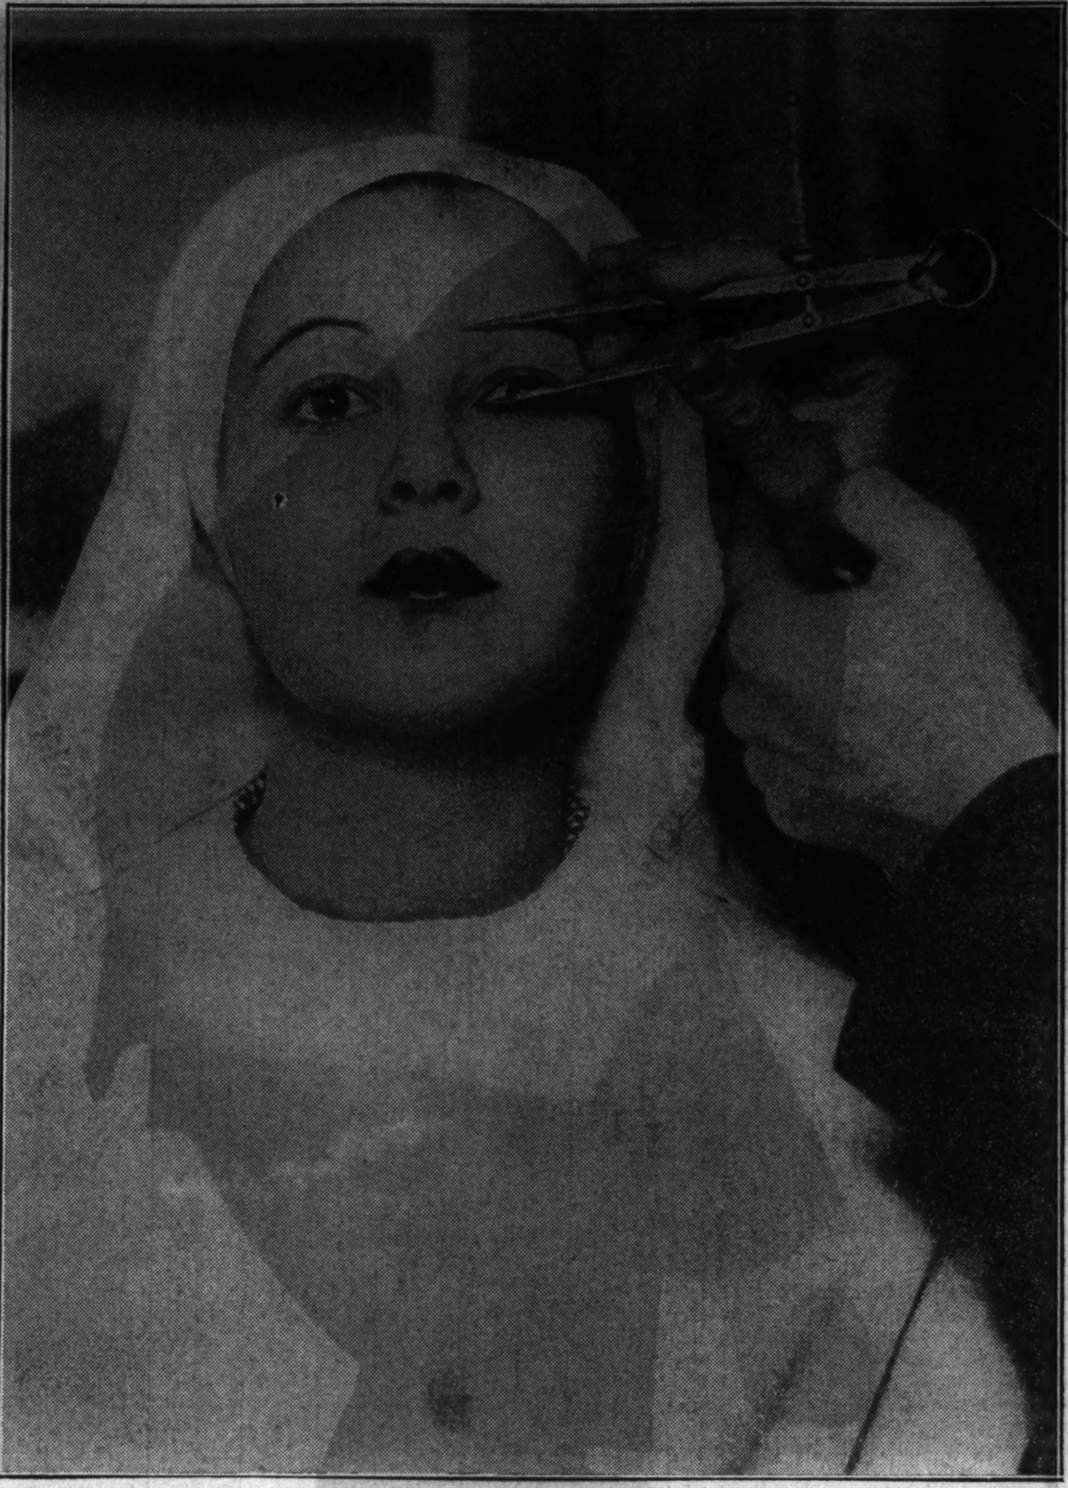
I said responsible, but that is hardly the right word. Stars are temperamental and inclined to have their own ideas about their makeup. They get into mental ruts just like other folks, and it is just as hard to jog them out of these ruts. It is Jack Dawn's duty to give them as much advice as they will take on the intimate problems of just how narrow the eyebrows should be, and whatever other makeup problems are putting tiny furrows of worry in the famous foreheads. He it is who labors over those famous features, preparing them for the searching eye of the camera. Just like other individuals, stars have facial faults, which must be balanced by clever use of the good features and the aid of intelligently applied makeup. In this Dawn is signally successful.

"Some of the most frequently wrong things I see done will be my subject in talking to your woman readers," said Dawn the day we found him at his studio workshop busily examining some model masks of stars, on which he was solving makeup problems. "I'd say first, don't make up your upper lip shorter in length than the lower lip. Carry the makeup to the end of the lip. Someone once broadcast the statement that to make one's mouth look smaller the makeup should not be carried to the end. This is wrong. In the first place, the small mouth is not fashionable nor pretty. A larger natural mouth lends vivacity to a face.

"Don't draw too wide a bow on the upper lip. This gives a hideous look. Keep it natural, with the bow as nature intended. The too narrow bow is just as ugly. Always try to follow the natural line of your mouth in makeup, and remember if you leave makeup off one part of your lip it attracts attention there and the effect is bad. If you have a really bad feature, and are certain of it, don't make it up at all. Makeup attracts attention and emphasizes. Take the emphasis to a good feature.



Never drop the upper lip shorter than the lower lip. This shows the dissipated expression due to such a fault in makeup.



Measurement with calipers determines the exact spot right above the inside corner of the eye where the brow should begin.

"I personally don't believe in very much rouge or lipstick. A little deftly done is best; one sees entirely too much of it on every hand, especially in daylight and on the street. Nothing is so ageing as heavy coloring.

"Another much abused feature is the eyebrow. Freak eyebrows are just that. They rob a face of naturalness and sweetness. Thin penciled brows are ugly, and out of fashion anyway. They are hard. Of course, they represented the rebellion against the thick, bushy, untamed eyebrow seen so much formerly. The medium-width brow is most flattering and at the present time much to the fore in the mode. Look at Jean Harlow's brows; since she has adopted a less extreme mode her face is softer, more winning, allowing the real personality to come through.

"If women would remember that all downward lines in the face give age they would not insist on dropping the outer and inner ends of their brows in sharp downward lines. Those huge arcs worn over the eyes for a time should be discarded. It was and is done by shaving or plucking out the natural brows and penciling a line on the face. It is better to confine yourself to raising and lowering your brows by the more natural expedient of plucking the hairs below or above and leaving plenty to give a normal look to your face. Nothing so robs a face of expression as an exaggerated brow.

"The natural perfect measurement between the brows is the length of the eye. The inner corner of the eye normally determines the beginning of the brow. Pluck and clean out hairs to this spot if you have any there. If your nose is broad, and you wish to narrow the effect of it, let the brow grow a little closer to the nose. If your eyes are set too far apart, and you have to minimize the space between, again let the brows grow closer to the nose, or pencil a bit lightly if there are none there.

"If the eyes are too close, or the nose too thin, slightly exaggerate the space between the brows, reversing the process described above.

Plain Sense and Mirror Best Guides

"The ideal height of the brow is one-half the width of the eye to the center of the nose. This distance, measured from the pupil, determines the maximum arch of the brow. If the nose is too long, set the brow down a bit by plucking the upper part of the brow along its whole edge. If the nose is too short, raise the brow by plucking the hairs on the lower border of the brow. In this case you must ignore the rule about the ideal arch of the brow.

"The rule of thumb for the facial proportions is this: Put your thumb point under your chin, with your hand held in front of you. The tip of your index finger should touch your nose. Put your thumb under your nose; the index finger will touch the bridge of the nose. Put your thumb in the bridge; the index finger will touch the hair line. Thus your profile should divide into even thirds.

"There is no set rule about dressing your hair as regards the hair line and whether to show it or not. You must decide this; but if you have a nicely formed forehead, by all means show it—it makes the face more interesting. After all, the hair is only a frame for the face. If you have heavy jawbones, watch how Constance Bennett dresses her hair; soft fullness in front of and below the ear minimizes a pronounced or square jaw.

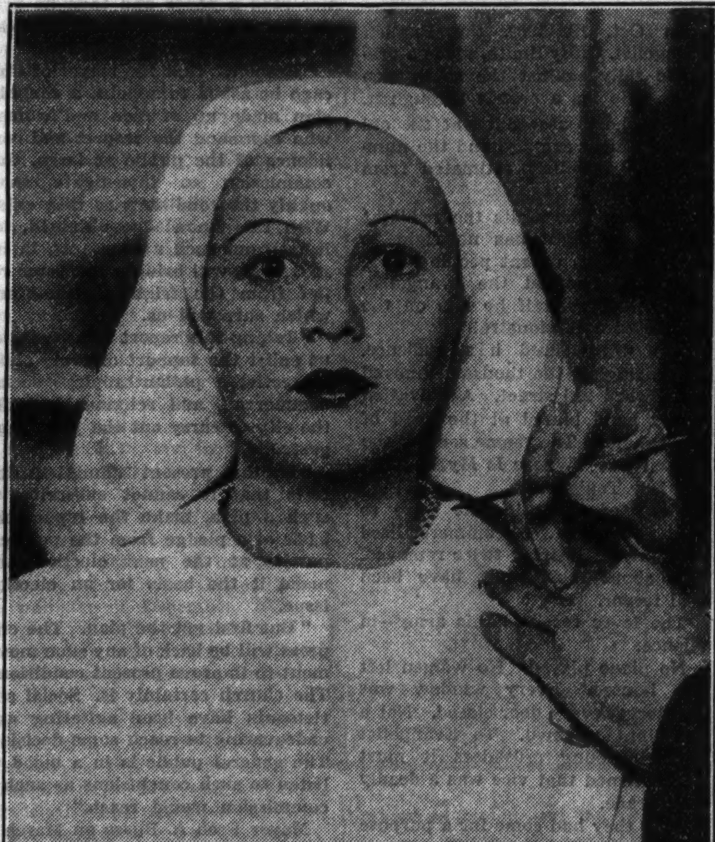
"If you have a wide forehead and a V-shaped face, dress your hair on the forehead if you find it pleasing. If you have a forehead with bumps over the temples, and like to wear your hair back off the face, arrange a slight draping or arrangement over the temples.

"Do not copy. Be individual. Find what suits you, and if you spend a little time experimenting, common sense and your mirror should be good guides.

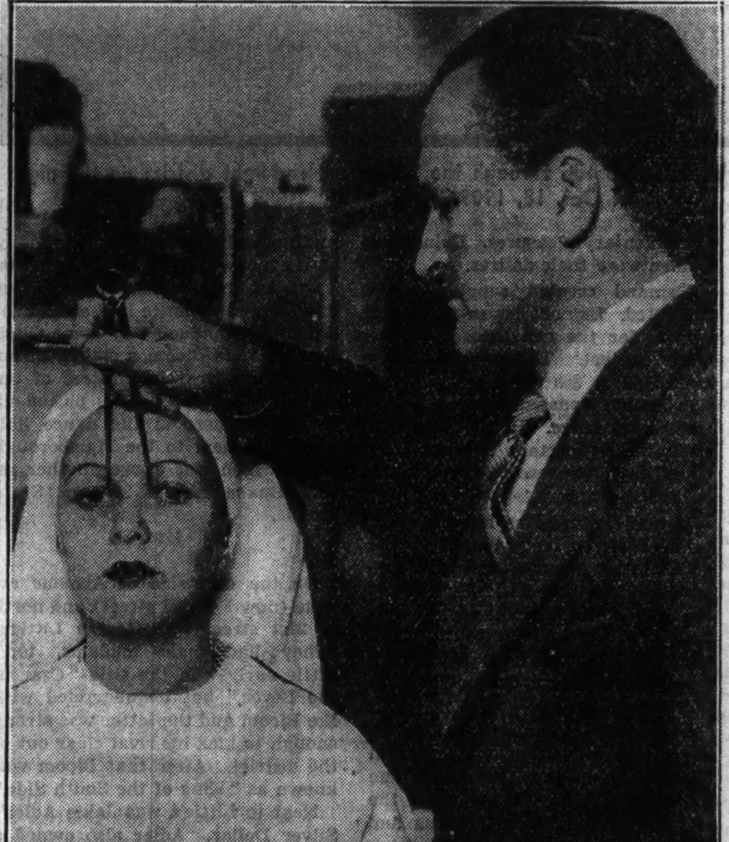
"Avoid much cheek rouge; use little if any in the daytime. This is one place where it's far better to underdo than overdo.

"Here's a trick to keep yourself fresh in the evening at a dance. I have so often seen women rushing in frantically and dabbing powder on damp faces and coming out with the powder caked on their perspiring countenances. No, it is not necessary to remove the whole makeup and put a fresh one on. Take a cold towel, wrung almost dry, and pat your face with that, avoiding the mascara or lipstick carefully. Then powder, and you will see a freshened face without that caked look.

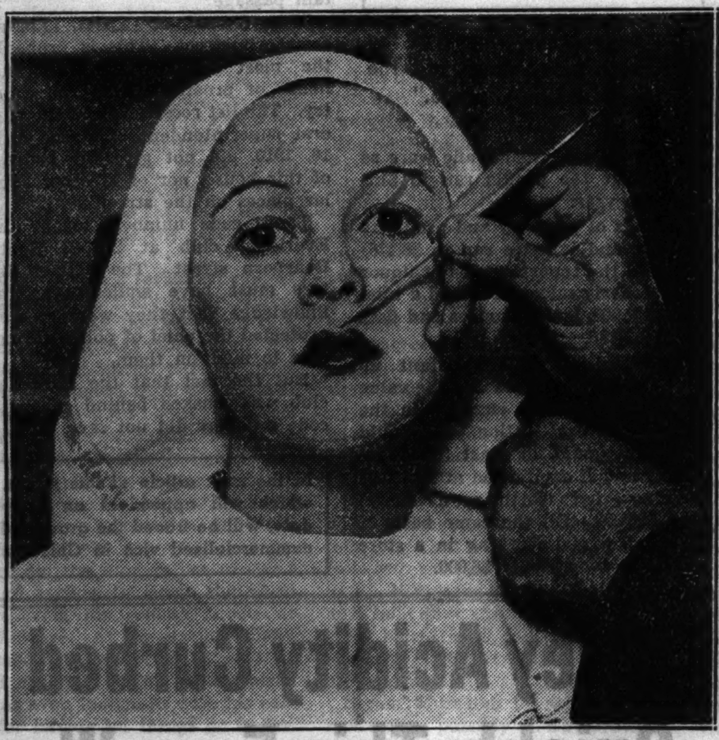
"Outside of the general rules I have given here, corrective makeup is impractical for social use. Only an expert can apply it, and there are few of them. The effect would not be satisfactory for the eye; it is only for the camera. Rely on naturalness, personality, and becoming clothes to overcome any fault you have, and remember there never was a perfect woman."



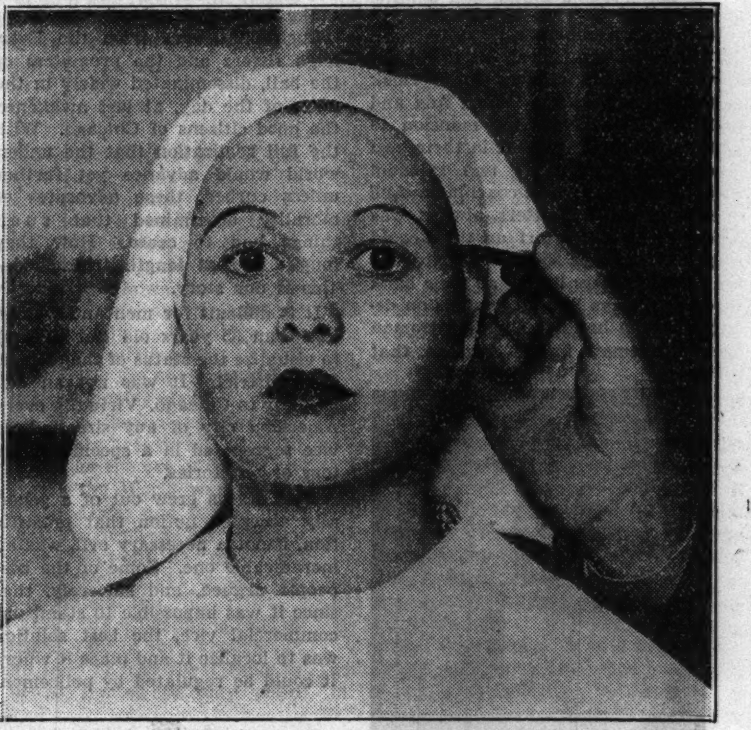
This illustrates the correctly made up mouth—sweeter, softer, and more youthful, and showing the face in best proportions.



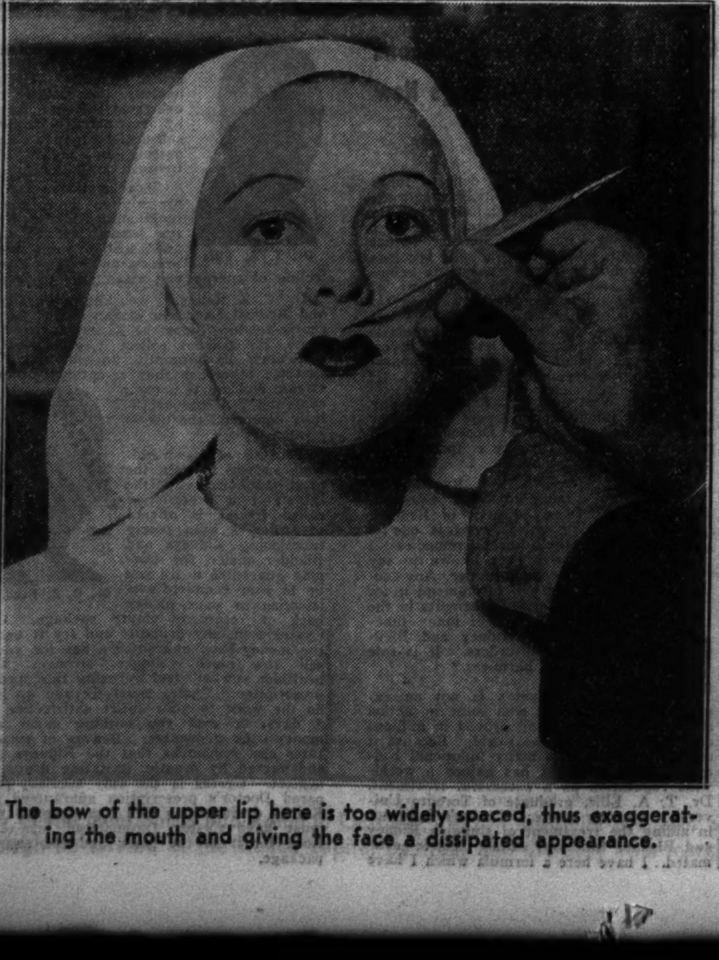
The width between the eyes normally is equal to the length of the eye, this measurement shows.



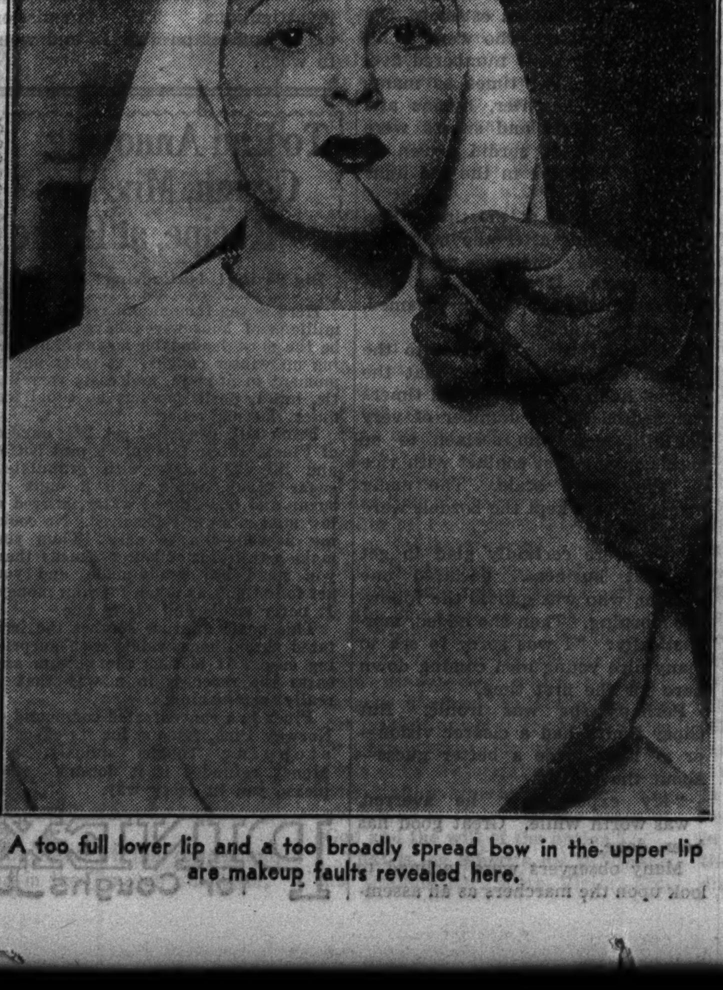
An exaggerated upper lip, with the curves of the bow too close together, produces dropped lines at the corners of the mouth, which give a look of age and hardness.



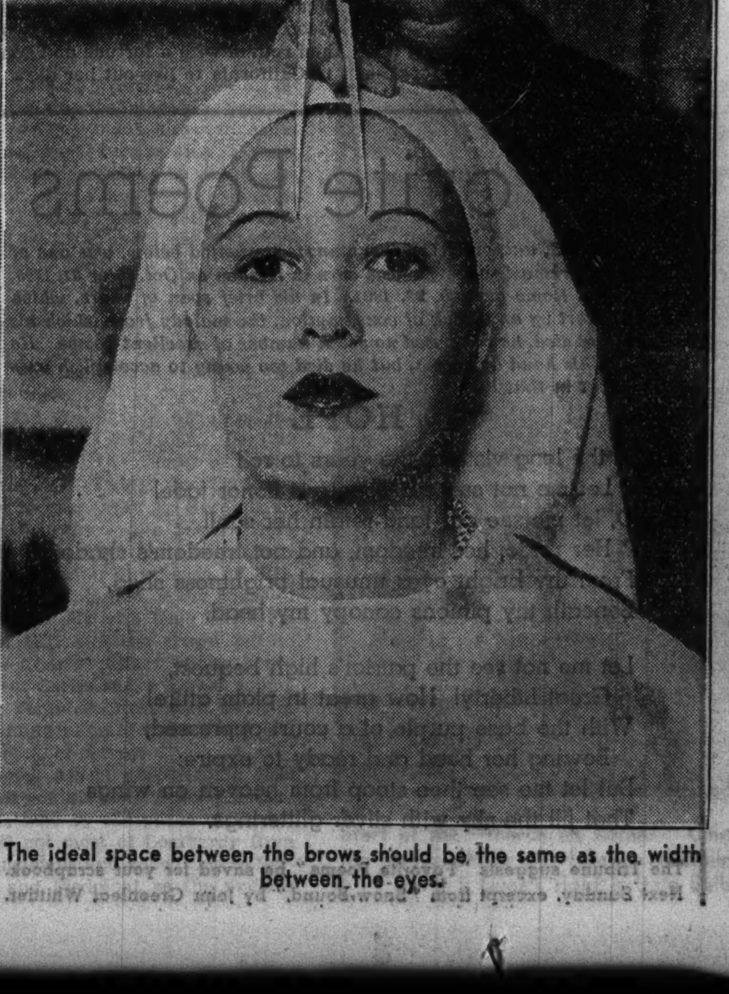
A brow dropped too low at the outer end ages and hardens the face. This is a mistake in makeup that should be guarded against.



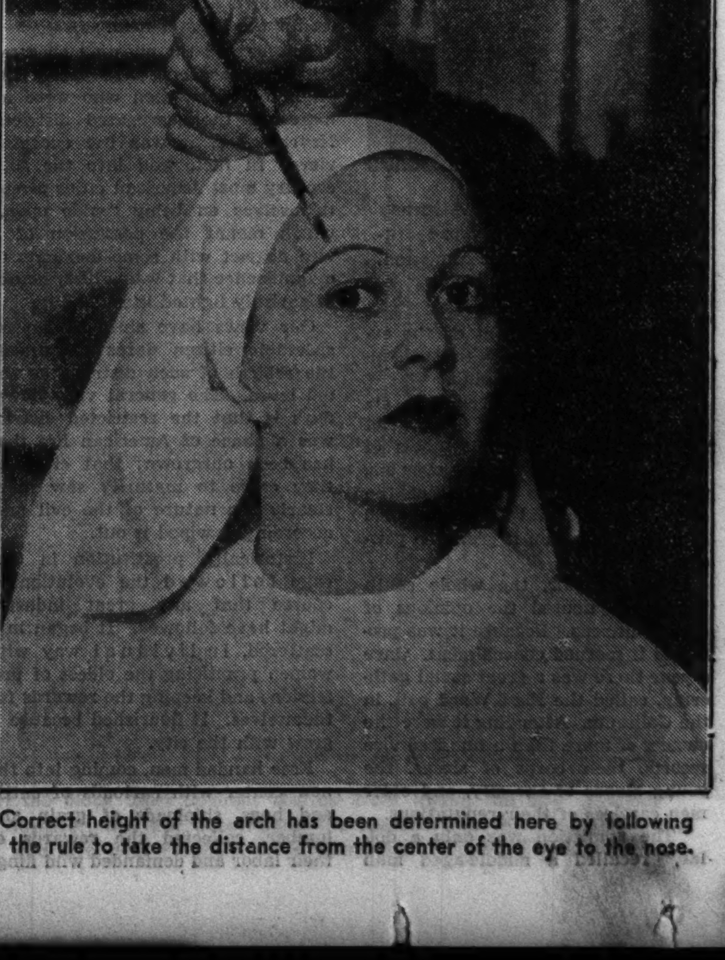
The bow of the upper lip here is too widely spaced, thus exaggerating the mouth and giving the face a dissipated appearance.



A too full lower lip and a too broadly spread bow in the upper lip are makeup faults revealed here.



The ideal space between the brows should be the same as the width between the eyes.



Correct height of the arch has been determined here by following the rule to take the distance from the center of the eye to the nose.

Everleigh Sisters—Symbol of Commercialized Vice

Gipsy Smith, famous evangelist, who led a parade through the 22d street red-light district on the night of Oct. 18, 1909.

How Levee Roused Ire of People

enough to interfere with the comfort of their declining years. At least there is room for speculation on what a couple of old women think about when at threescore and ten there is nothing in the future and the past has gone sour.

Everleigh was an assumed name. It had a kind of first family smack about it. Their real name never came to the surface, since no one took the trouble to make a point of it. Whatever it was, it was left in Texas, whence they hailed. There is a report their father had been a resident of Mexico, but the Scarlet Sisters didn't dwell much on family connections which passed under other names. There was also a report that they had a brother with eleven children and a sister who died respectably married.

The Everleigh sisters made their own way. In their teens they became attached to small répertoire companies and thus were able to present the misty and interesting background of the stage. But they were not important as actresses. They were above the average in height, not particularly good looking. They were brunettes. Minna loved to quote poetry. Ada affected a cool and dignified mien.

* * *

This disposition toward literature by Minna perhaps contributed more than any other factor to the downfall of the club. It was Minna who prepared an elaborate brochure, suitably illustrated, presenting a description of the club's interior. This booklet told about the Persian room, the Turkish room, the hall of a thousand mirrors, and the Japanese and other rooms in such a way as to arouse the anger of the most temperate citizen. At the age of forty the Scarlet Sisters were to find out the true value of publicity.

When the pair deserted the stage to take up the management of resorts they took with them a certain poise and a correct manner of speaking that were great assets. And when they purchased the Everleigh club from Lizzie Allen, who already had made a quarter of a million dollars out of the location, and decided to make it the grandest of all bagnios, they put the old professional training to good use.

They trained their girl "boarders" in deportment. They taught them how to walk, how to appear modest, how to charm men of the world. They insisted on low, gentle voices.

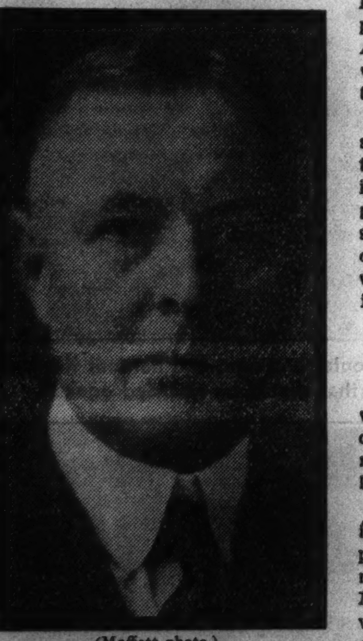
Prices were high. Liquors at the club commanded several times the value they had in a saloon. The patrons paid willingly.

* * *

The Everleigh club was held by the Everleigh sisters to be unique, and they strove mightily to hold its reputation for sybaritic comfort high, that the patrons might keep it long in memory.

Nor was the Chicago that did not visit the club allowed to overlook the Scarlet Sisters. When Ada and Minna left their stone mansion to take the air they went in their own carriage, drawn by two splendid horses. There was a coachman. And sitting with the sisters, always, was as handsome a girl as they could pick from their 25 or 30 "boarders."

If the sisters halted at their bank (they always had large sums on deposit) the handsome young woman would remain in the carriage, that all men might comment on the excellent taste in beauty that distinguished the Everleigh club.



(Moffett photo.)

United States District Attorney Edwin W. Sims, who was secretary of the vice commission. Photo taken in 1923.

That was a flouting of the respectable world. And if the Scarlet Sisters Everleigh were symbols of the gilt that can be spread over sin, they were no less symbols of the crude audacity that the underworld could display when it grew too powerful.

Like this pair, the whole south side levee flouted the opinions of decent citizens. Because it was protected it scorned concealment. Once a year there was a great social gathering, called the First Ward ball, in the Coliseum. Attending it were the owners of more than a hundred vice resorts, their corps of sirens, the young bloods of the city, and older men careless of their reputations.

"The admission was only a dollar," recalled a middle-aged man who went to several of these balls, "but each resort keeper decorated a box and served drinks free to all his recognized patrons. There was rivalry to see which house could make the best showing."

Such challenges from the Everleigh sisters and the promoters of the ball, disseminated widely in the news of the day, at last awakened the good citizens of Chicago. With the full realization that the underworld would advance yet further unless curbed, these advocates of morality determined that such things had to cease. How they fought and at length triumphed—this is our story.

It is difficult for men and women less than 35 years old (let us say) to visualize the status of the old red-light district. It was not an evil peculiar to Chicago. Virtually every American city of any size had its vice segregated in a specified territory or territories.

That status grew out of a generally accepted notion that prostitution, if not a necessary evil, was an ineradicable one. Some of the best people argued, and sincerely, that since it was impossible to stamp out commercial vice, the best solution was to localize it and place it where it could be regulated by policemen.

* * *

Respectable women, it was held, were safer from rape and other crimes if open prostitution was maintained and ordered as an outlet for the lusts of men.

This begged the question on some important aspects, particularly the plight of the women who were inmates of the segregated districts. Nevertheless, it was the accepted view. In fact, well into the 20th century most American cities prided themselves on being "wide open," which meant the possession of a vice district with some elements of magnificence that was a lusty center of garishly lighted life.

Our views have shifted. No respectable citizen dares to suggest the rebirth of such districts as the old levee. The general view nowadays is that the restricted district was a phase of American life that has been outgrown; that cities as they came to maturity saw more clearly the nature of the evil and, accordingly, wiped it out.

Historically, prostitution in Chicago followed the evolutionary course that any great industry might have followed. It began in a scattered, individual way with women practicing the oldest of professions and keeping the rewards for themselves. It flourished because it grew with the city.

Free handed men, coming into the new center with carloads of cattle and hogs, shiploads of grain and lumber, collected the rewards of their labor and demanded wild flings at elementary pleasures. Drink and women were their desires.

Demand created supply—concentrated. Saloons began to gather women for the convenience of the trafic in lust. Through the 1860s and '70s and '80s the city's prostitution industry passed through an intermediary stage. Rows of saloons grew up on certain streets, each with its vice resort upstairs or around the corner.

It was a system so subversive of good order, so inconvenient to the police, that segregation was suggested. Even that had its evolution, too intricate to be dealt with in this article. It is enough to say that after 1903 all the open and recognized resorts were concentrated in four districts.

One was on the west side, one on the near north side, one in South Chicago, and the fourth on the south side. The last one was the real levee, the most populous and the wealthiest, and the Everleigh club was its center and its symbol.

Roughly that levee was bounded by 22d street on the south, 18th street on the north, Wabash avenue on the east, and Clark street on the west. In it were 119 houses with a total of 686 women inmates, all registered with the police. The three smaller districts had 73 houses and 326 inmates. The police asserted that there were only 1,012 women in the city known as prostitutes. A citizens' group estimated the number at 5,000!

The map on the first page of this section shows the extent of the south side district and depicts many of the more widely known resorts.

One of the largest of the places was Freiberg's dance hall at 18 East 22d street, conducted by Isaac Gitelson, alias Ike Bloom, a political fixer and an autocrat in matters of underworld business. Girls picked up their customers in the dance hall and took them to the Marlborough hotel, which was above another resort, Buxbaum's, at 22d and State streets.

* * *

On the east side of Armour avenue (now Federal street) and north of 21st street was George Little's. (They had male madams, too.) Little early won the title "Czar of the Levee," but he quarreled with Ike Bloom and the latter was strong enough to kick his rival clear out of the district. After that Bloom was known as "King of the South Side."

Next to Little's was Jakie Adler's Silver Dollar. Adler also owned a share of the Marlborough hotel at one time. On the opposite side of the street from Little and Adler were novelties, Chinese and Japanese resorts. At 1833 Armour avenue was Frankie Wright's ironically named house, the Library.

South of 19th street, on Armour avenue, stood Bed Bug Row, a collection of brothels inhabited by Negro girls. At 2014 South Dearborn street was Vic Shaw's.

At 2127 South Dearborn street, adjacent to the Everleigh club, was Georgie Spencer's—Georgie, who had retired with a fortune and gone to California to live out her days.

Favorite Poems

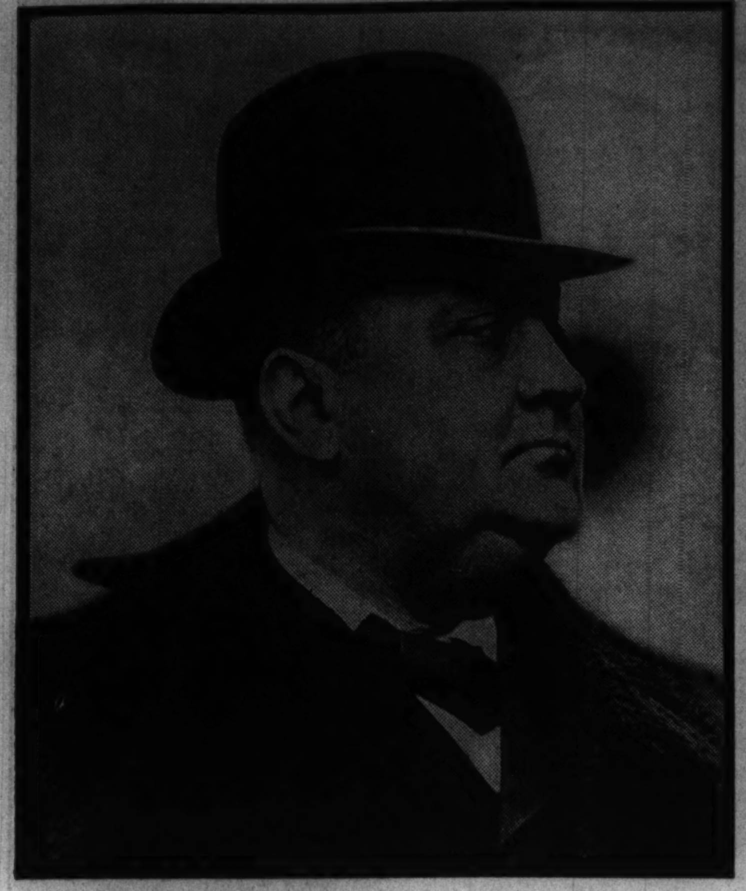
JOHN KEATS, author of the two stanzas presented below, was one of England's foremost poets. He was born in London on Oct. 29 or 31, 1795, and died in Rome on Feb. 23, 1821. In his brief span of years, which was cut short by an attack of consumption, the malady from which his mother had died, he composed no small number of excellent poems. He also tried his hand at drama, but he died too young to accomplish anything great in that line.

HOPE

In the long vista of the years to roll
  Let me not see our country's honor fade!
O, let me see our land retain her soul!
  Her pride, her freedom, and not freedom's shade.
From thy bright eyes unusual brightness shed,
Beneath thy pinions canopy my head.

Let me not see the patriot's high bequest,
  Great Liberty! How great in plain attire!
With the base purple of a court oppressed,
  Bowing her head and ready to expire:
But let me see thee stoop from heaven on wings
That fill the sky with silver glitterings.

The Tribune suggests "Favorite Poems" be saved for your scrapbook. Next Sunday, excerpt from "Snow-Bound," by John Greenleaf Whittier.



Mayor Fred A. Busse, who on March 5, 1910, appointed a committee of thirty citizens to investigate vice in Chicago.

Any lively night the scene along the levee's streets would have had its resemblance to a tawdry orgy. Noise blared from the pianos. The red lights gleamed. Men, young and middle aged, reeled from saloon to bawdy house. Girls led their customers from the dance halls to the ever ready hotels.

The situation called for stern action by decent men and women.

It was characteristic of Chicago, and perhaps of all America, that the movement to eradicate the red-light district was started and carried through by private citizens. The political powers sat on the sidelines and said it was no use trying or—if they were corrupt—were openly hostile.

After 1905 clergymen constantly preached a crusade against tolerated vice. A veteran police captain, now retired, recalled recently how the Everleigh sisters bore the brunt of the attack.

"The ministers thundered at them," he declared. "Those Scarlet Sisters got more mention than the other 4,998 women of ill fame in the whole city."

* * *

On Oct. 18, 1909, the English evangelist, Gipsy Smith, made a dramatic sally against the south side levee. He led a parade through it.

His cohorts assembled at the old 7th Regiment armory, and the number was variously estimated from 2,000 to 12,000.

"A man who visits the red-light district at night has no right to associate with decent people in the daylight," shouted the evangelist. "No! Not even if he sits on the throne of a millionaire!"

His words fired his audience. Then, singing, the thousands moved off toward 22d street. A Salvation Army band blared at the head of the column. The theme song of the march was "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?"

Many of those in line were so young they knew of commercialized vice only by hearsay twice removed. But about them must have been real fervor.

The levee received this army—in silence.

No piano played. No women left the houses. Every window was shuttered, every door closed. Not a red light gleamed. To Evangelist Smith's young crusaders it must have seemed that vice was a deadly dull trade.

Still, they had come for a purpose and they carried it out. They knelt in the street in front of the Everleigh club, that stately stone pile on which Lizzie Allen had lavished $125,000 long before it was sold to the Scarlet Sisters, and they prayed. They sang more hymns. And then they went away.

This is not the end of the story of that night.

* * *

Along with Gipsy Smith's earnest marchers had come another throng. If he had 6,000, at an estimate, the scoffers and idlers who went along just to see his show numbered five, six, perhaps eight times as many. Prayers and laughter, hymns and mockery, psalms and sneers were mingled in that sordid haven of harlotry. Religion in the red light was funny.

It did seem so at the time. For, fifteen minutes after the marchers had gone away, the levee was a different place. It was its real self. Doors swung open, lights gleamed, music resounded.

The night turned itself into the busiest one, by all odds, that the district had ever known. Old timers commented on the number of very youthful men who seemed to be making their first contact with vice on the grand scale. The smug mongrels who kept the bordels were delighted.

"We were certainly glad to get all that business," declared one madam, who was quoted the following morning. Then she added, moralistically: "I was sorry to see so many nice young men coming down here for the first time."

Perhaps she was ironic. But Gipsy Smith had a clearer vision—or at least made a better guess—about the results.

"My experiment," he averred, "was worth while. Great good has been done."

Many observers were inclined to look upon the marchers as an assembly of cranks attacking a fortified stronghold with feather dusters.

The observers were wrong. The march was a manifestation of an awakening civic conscience. The Scarlet Sisters Everleigh had only two more years to reap their harvest. The red-light district, as such, was to be crushed forever three years later by State's Attorney John E. W. Wayman.

There may even be a fillip of interest to the item that, the night of Gipsy Smith's bold foray, the police raided a few vice dens on the west side and carted their inmates in patrol wagons to jail. That was the old and futile, tongue-in-the-cheek manner of handling vice.

* * *

On Jan. 31, 1910, there was a meeting of the Church federation, representing 600 congregations of the city, in the Central Y. M. C. A. building. The purpose of the meeting was a discussion of "the social evil problem."

It was discussed. Among those present was the Very Rev. Walter T. Sumner, dean of the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul. Dean Sumner read a paper and then he presented a resolution, which was unanimously adopted. It read:

"Resolved, that the mayor of Chicago be asked to appoint a commission made up of men and women who command the respect and confidence of the public at large, this commission to investigate thoroughly the conditions as they exist. With this knowledge obtained, let it map out such a course as, in its judgment, will bring about some relief from the frightful conditions which surround us.

"Taking this report as a basis, let us enlist the support of every civic, protective, philanthropic, social, commercial, and religious body in the city to carry out the plans suggested.

"If the present administration feels that it cannot subscribe to such a plan, make the report the basis of a pledge from the political parties at the next election and make it the basis for an election issue.

"But first get the plan. The city press will be back of any sane movement to improve present conditions. The church certainly is. Social settlements have been agitating and endeavoring to reach some decision. The general public is in a mood to listen to such conclusions as such a commission would reach."

Mayor Fred A. Busse on March 5, 1910, appointed thirty persons to act on what was designated a vice commission. Dean Sumner was made temporary chairman. Exactly four months later the city council passed an ordinance, giving the commission official status and appropriating $5,000 for its expenses during the year 1910.

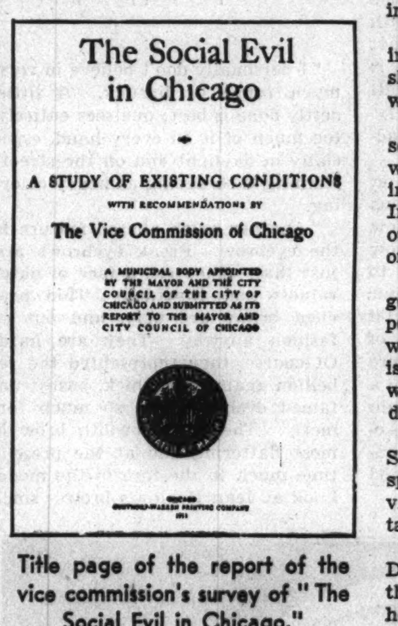
Dean Sumner became permanent chairman, United States District Attorney Edwin W. Sims was made secretary, and George J. Kneeland was chosen executive in charge of investigations. The commission opened offices on July 15 and went to work.

State's Attorney John E. W. Wayman, under whose orders the south side vice district finally was wiped out.

Detectives went into nearly every house of prostitution in the city, into practically every flat used for immoral practices. They laid bare the evil of segregated vice in all its ugly aspects. They showed how the saloon had prostitution for its handmaiden, how girls were lured into lives of shame and exploited by vicious employers.

When the commission, on April 5, 1911, presented its report to Mayor Busse, it required a book of 399 pages to hold the information. That book was so stinging in detail, despite its coldly scientific tone, that the United States government barred it from the mails.

Although the report decreed the fate of the levee and the three smaller red-light districts, the resort keepers laughed it off. They were rather proud when they read that the proceeds of their trafic were so great that the profits ran to $15,699,499 a year.



The Social Evil
in Chicago

A STUDY OF EXISTING CONDITIONS WITH RECOMMENDATIONS BY
The Vice Commission of Chicago

A MUNICIPAL BODY APPOINTED
BY THE MAYOR AND THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CHICAGO AND SUBMITTED AS ITS REPORT TO THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CHICAGO

Title page of the report of the vice commission's survey of "The Social Evil in Chicago."

Rentals of property and profits to keepers and inmates ran to $8,476,689, said the report. Sales of liquor in disorderly saloons reached a total of $4,307,000, and in houses and flats to $2,915,760.

Kneeland and his assistant investigators even estimated the value of a young woman engaged in the business of prostitution. She could earn, they said, at least $1,300 annually and if capitalized at 20 times earnings, her worth as a chattel was $26,000. On the same basis of figuring, a girl working in a store would be worth only $6,000.

The madams showed the girls that bit of statistical work to prove to them how well off they were.

Chicago's levee roared on.

In the Everleigh club a young millionaire gave a gala party. He "bought out the house" for a group of friends. The evening cost him $1,400 and he gave Ada Everleigh his I. O. U. for the amount. Ada, the business woman of the Scarlet Sisters, accepted it.

A few days later the millionaire sent an agent to the house with $1,400 in currency. This agent was a stranger to the sisters. When he proposed to redeem the I. O. U. they sweetly informed him there was no I. O. U. and that the millionaire had never even been in the club. The millionaire had to redeem his own informal note.

That was one of the merits of the Scarlet Sisters—they protected the indiscretions of their clients.

About this time Ada granted an interview in which she told how she recruited the young women who decorated her household.

"I talk with each applicant myself," she asserted. "She must have worked somewhere else before coming here. We do not like amateurs. Inexperienced girls and young widows are too prone to accept offers of marriage and leave.

"To get in a girl must have a good face and figure, must be in perfect health, must understand what it is to act like a lady. If she is addicted to drugs, or to drink, or we do not want her. There is no difficulty in keeping the club filled."

It is easy to picture the Scarlet Sisters Everleigh, after such a speech, taking up the report of the vice commission and reading a certain passage:

"The [X523], at [X524], [X524a] Dearborn street. This is probably the most famous and luxurious house of prostitution in the country. The list received from the general superintendent of police Aug. 16, 1910, did not give the address of this house, nor of 11 other similar places on the street."

Those code numbers meant the Everleigh club at 2131-33 South Dearborn street. The Scarlet Sisters must have smiled over the knowledge that they were so well protected the chief of police did not care to mention them.

But the fact that the Everleigh club was masked behind cabalistic code numbers did not save them.

In the next article of this series, which will appear at an early date, will be traced the growth of commercialized vice in Chicago.

To End Annoying Cough, Mix This Recipe, at Home

Big Saving! No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up winter coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils and tastes fine.

This home mixture soothes the irritated throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the phlegm and eases the soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its effect in stopping coughs quickly. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Kidney Acidity Curbed Quickly This Easy Way

Doctors Praise Cystex—Brings Quick Help

Cleans Out Acids and Poisons —Purifies Blood—Brings New Energy in 48 Hours

There are 9 million tiny, delicate tubes or filters in your Kidneys which must work every minute of the night and day cleaning out Acids, Poisons, and Wastes from your blood. If your Kidneys or Bladder do not function right, your body gradually becomes poisoned, you feel old and worn-out before your time, and may suffer from any of these energy-killing symptoms: Getting Up Nights, Loss of Vigor, Leg Pains, Nervousness, Lumbago, Swollen Joints, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Dark Circles Under Eyes, Headaches, Frequent Colds, Burning, Smarting, Itching, and Acidity.

But you need not suffer another day from poorly functioning Kidneys or Bladder without the benefits of a Doctor's special prescription called Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex).

Dr. T. J. Rastelli

Dr. T. J. Rastelli, famous Doctor, Surgeon, and Scientist of London, says: "Cystex is one of the finest remedies I have ever known in my medical practice. Any doctor will recommend it for its definite benefits in the treatment of many functional Kidney and Bladder disorders. It is safe and harmless."

Cystex is not an experiment—it is quick and sure in action and has been tested and proved in millions of cases throughout the world. Because it combats and corrects many functional Kidney disorders, Cystex has gained a world-wide reputation as a successful treatment. Dr. T. A. Ellis, graduate of Toronto University, recently wrote: "Cystex's influence in aiding the treatment of sluggish Kidney and Bladder functions cannot be over-estimated. I have here a formula which I have used in my own practice for many years with excellent results. Cystex hastens the passage of over-acid irritants, thereby overcoming a frequent cause of burning, itching, getting up nights and frequent urination."

Dr. T. A. Ellis

Because it is a special prescription for poorly functioning Kidneys, Cystex works fast to tone and soothe sore membranes, and brings a new feeling of energy.

Dr. C. Z. Rendelle, well-known Physician and Medical Examiner of San Francisco, recently wrote: "Since the Kidneys purify the blood, the poisons collect in these organs and must be promptly flushed from the system; otherwise they re-enter the blood stream and create a toxic condition. I can truthfully recommend the use of Cystex."

Dr. C. Z. Rendelle

Because of its world-wide success in even the most stubborn cases, the Doctor's prescription called Cystex is offered to sufferers from poorly functioning Kidneys and Bladder under the fair-play guarantee to fix you up to your complete satisfaction or money back on return of empty package. Get Cystex from your druggist today and try it under the money-back guarantee. See for yourself how much younger, stronger, and healthier you will feel by using this special prescription. Cystex must fix you up and do the work to your entire satisfaction in 8 days, or cost you nothing under the money-back guarantee. Beware of substitutes and remember that the Kidneys are endangered by drastic, irritating drugs or neglect. Cystex is the only specially prepared Doctor's prescription guaranteed for Kidney dysfunctions. Tell your druggist you must have Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex). Look for it in the black and red striped package.

Italy's Crown Periled by Past and Present

By DAVID DARRAH

London.

POSSIBILITY of Italy's return to a constitutional monarchy in the true sense of the term in the event of the collapse of Premier Mussolini's Fascist dictatorship is causing considerable speculation as to what part the king would play in such a proceeding. This speculation not only looks into the future but weighs carefully the events of the past, especially those of thirteen years ago.

Did King Victor Emmanuel III. write the doom of his own dynasty—the house of Savoy—and undermine the foundations of the monarchy in Italy when on the morning of Oct. 28, 1922, he refused to sign Premier Facta's decree of martial law calling out the armed forces to suppress the Black Shirt hordes clamoring at the gates of Rome?

There are Italians who in secret believe that the king, by identifying himself with the Fascists and by passively violating his coronation oath in allowing his ministers to violate the constitution he had sworn to defend, has definitly compromised the throne.

Writers like Salvimini, who suffered grievously at the hands of the Fascists, declare that the king feels the disrepute into which he has fallen and suffers from it. "He still hopes, perhaps, that some occasion will present itself opening a way for the return to the constitution," and Salvimini, continues, referring to the king, "He is a machine for signing decrees. He is the roi faineant [idle king]. He is the last of the Merovingians."

Politics is still a forbidden subject of discussion in Italy under Mussolini. Italians do, however, still talk in secret. And that morning of Oct. 28, when the official Stefani news agency announced at 10 o'clock that martial law had been declared, meaning that the troops would be used against the Black Shirts, and then shortly after noon announced that the decree had been withdrawn, still provokes speculation and various explanations.

Why did the king refuse to sign? He had arrived in Rome the night before from his summer home at San Rossore. At the station, where he was met by Facta, he said he would not yield to the Black Shirts. He was even indignant with his cabinet for having let things go so far. Why, then, did he change his mind the next day and allow an unconstitutional force to seize his government? There are several reasons given. One is that the king was supine and afraid. Another that he had been in consultation with the army chiefs, who told him that the army would not respond to orders to fight the Black Shirts. Still another was that the duke of Aosta, his cousin, who was with the Fascists at Perugia, was only waiting to take up his crown should he let it fall. There has long been a story, in fact, that Victor Emmanuel was warned by the Fascists that he would be forced out and his cousin Aosta put in his place if he did not conform.

At the same time it is probable that Victor Emmanuel did on that fateful morning receive promises that should the Black Shirts gain power they would not interfere with the monarchy. Mussolini shortly before had declared for the monarchy in his Naples speech, although previously he had been republican. And it seems probable that the army chiefs, when they advised Victor Emmanuel not to sign, had previously procured this condition from the Black Shirts, who were afraid up till noon on Oct. 28 that they would be confronted with the regular army.

⁂

This dark chapter, which probably will only be cleared up years hence, exercises those who believe that the king could have easily prevented the Black Shirt seizure of Rome without much risk of civil war had he signed the decree, for the Fascists were uneasy about what the army would do and only flocked to Rome in numbers when they knew the king had refused to sign. There were also political intrigues. Count Sforza even suggests that Facta himself, at the time he presented his decree for signature, advised the king not to sign it, because he (Facta) was to have been made a minister in the new cabinet to be formed under the Black Shirts.

Whether or not the foundations of the monarchy have been undermined by that decision and by what followed remains to be seen, perhaps. Whatever the position, many now hold that the monarchy is the chief bulwark of political and government continuity under the present régime.

Signor Mussolini by retaining the monarchy possibly has provided against the main danger of all dictatorships—the vacuum following the disappearance of the dictator. When Mussolini's day is done a smooth transition to a constitutional monarchy should be a possibility, some political observers hold, believing that the throne will for many years be Italy's best political instrument and symbol of unity. The duke of Aosta now is dead. The king in recent years, anyway, seems more assured about the house of Savoy's future. In opening the twenty-ninth parliament in 1934 Victor Emmanuel reasserted his kingly prerogative with an unusually vigorous speech and said that the Italian people were continuing their upward march "under the lictorian emblem and under the emblem of the house of Savoy."

But the fact that Mussolini threatens to abolish parliament and replace it with a sort of corporative guild council also brings up the question of how that will fit in with the monarchy and the throne, for the latter is inextricably bound up with parliament and the statuto of 1848, granted by Victor's great-grandfather, Charles Albert, setting up a constitutional monarchy in Sardinia and Piedmont, and which was applied to all Italy as unification was realized.

This statuto, or constitution, has undergone many important modifications through passage of ordinary laws, among which is the law of the prime minister of December, 1925, which gives Mussolini extraordinary powers, but it is still even today the only valid legal basis of the Italian state.

King Victor Emmanuel's position being that of a constitutional monarch based on this statuto, which establishes a parliament and defines how legislative and executive power shall be exercised, the question arises, at least juridically, if that position will not be changed through the abolition of parliament and the setting up of a state guild, as Mussolini says he will do.

Many political thinkers were of the opinion that the above-mentioned law of the prime minister extending Mussolini's powers was in violation of the statuto and had effectively reduced the king to a figurehead. It certainly leaves many points ambiguous. While proclaiming that the prime minister was responsible to the king, it stated at the same time that the prime minister was head of the government. A parliamentary bulletin of May, 1927, explaining this law, which Mussolini described as the most revolutionary of the Fascist régime, says:

"With this law the relations between the government and the crown remain the same as they were defined in the statuto. The king, who embodies in himself the unity of the state and is the head of and participates in the three powers, is also supreme head of the executive power (statuto, article 5). But through the constitutional irresponsibility which accompanies his acts, by which all his decrees must be countersigned by a responsible minister (statuto, article 67), he exercises this power through his ministers. Justly one talks about the 'government of the king.'

"And exactly article 1 of the law declares, showing absolute fidelity to the statuto, that the government of the king is constituted by the prime minister and by the ministers and that the prime minister is head of the government. This law establishes that Mussolini is not the mandatory of a parliamentary majority, but is invested as the head of the state through great political, economical, and moral forces existing in the country."

But while the king may base his right to rule on the statuto of his great-grandfather, which has been largely changed by Mussolini and his powers under it clipped, he also perhaps claims his right to rule from other historical circumstances. The Italian almanac declares that he is king of Italy "by the grace of God and the will of the nation."

That is, he inherits his title from his grandfather, King Victor Emmanuel II., who was declared king of Italy by the first joint Italian parliament which assembled in Turin, capital of Piedmont, in March, 1861. This was supposed to have completed the work of unification of Cavour, the great Italian statesman, and of Victor Emmanuel II. But here again comes up the point: Since the dynasty of the house of Savoy in Italy came into being with the parliamentary declaration of March, 1861, what happens to that dynasty if Mussolini abolishes parliament, which he has already reduced to nothing but an instrument for ratifying his decrees?

Victor Emmanuel, however, could also base his tenure as king by right of conquest as well as by act of parliament, for some of the former parts of Italy were actually conquered by his grandfather and Garibaldi, as Naples and Sicily, for instance. In fact, the unification of Italy is also the story of the aggrandizement of the house of Savoy, a brief word about which is required here. The family dates back to the middle ages.

In 1418 the Savoys acquired the principality of Piedmont. In 1713 they obtained the island of Sicily, with the title of king. In 1720 Sicily had to be exchanged for Sardinia, of which henceforth the Savoys were called kings. The Genoese territory was added after the peace of 1815. The direct male line of the house of Savoy died out with King Carlo Felice in 1831 and the crown fell to Prince Charles Albert of the house of Savoy-Carignano, a branch founded by Tommaso Francesco, born in 1596, younger son of Duke Carlo Emmanuel I. of Savoy.

Charles Albert abdicated in 1849 in favor of his son, Victor Emmanuel II., who by the peace of Zurich in 1859 got most of Lombardy from the Austrians and added this to Sardinia and Piedmont as the nucleus of the newly shaping kingdom. The other smaller states revolted, overthrew their governments, and voted to join up with Piedmont. On March 11, 1860, annexation to Sardinia and Piedmont was voted by plebiscites in Parma, Modena, Romagna, and Tuscany; on Oct. 21, Sicily and Naples and part of the papal states, which had been conquered by Garibaldi's men; and on Nov. 4 the Marches and Umbria. Then in March of the next year the first parliament declared Victor Emmanuel king of Italy. Mantua and Venetia were added to the kingdom in 1866, and finally Rome and the rest of the papal states, having been taken by an Italian army, were annexed to the kingdom by plebiscite on Oct. 2, 1870, and the unification was complete.

Victor Emmanuel III., on whose shoulders the mantle of this unified kingdom now rests, was born at the height of his grandfather's power, a year before the historical taking of Rome and the making of it the capital of unified Italy.

Who is this little man, whose feet do not touch the floor when he sits on his throne in parliament, about whom so much political controversy has raged among his countrymen?

Despite the fact that he has been pushed into the background politically, and despite the embarrassing position which any monarch must have under a dictator, Victor Emmanuel works assiduously at his job, and he knows much about foreign affairs. Every morning he drives from his palace in the Villa Savoia to his offices in the bigger and more stately Quirinal palace, where he gives interviews and audiences. Mussolini in these later days often consults the king about matters of state. Romans on those occasions may see the Duce's car parked out in front of the Quirinal palace.

But the king prefers the distance and obscurity of his palace at San Rossore, near Pisa, to Rome and the cars of state, and he spends as much of his time there as possible.

Trouble Dates Back to March on Rome

There are kings and princes who like to show themselves off to their people in all the glory of their purple. But neither the king nor the queen of Italy belongs to that category. Previous kings of the house of Savoy, such as Humbert, the king's father, and especially his grandfather, old Victor Emmanuel II., Garibaldi's sovereign, liked a luxuriously lavish display of kingly show and pageantry. But Victor Emmanuel III. dreams always of living far from the world of pomp and far from those aspects of his job in which he has no interest.

The king always has expressed his desire to live retired and quietly, and shortly after he ascended the throne thirty-five years ago he said one day: "While being king, I do not lose the right, which I have like any other Italian citizen, to live quietly in my own house, free from the indiscretion of others."

The ceremonial palace in Rome is the Quirinal, a stately pile on top of the Quirinal hill, overlooking Rome across the Dioscures and fountain of the piazza in front of it. But neither the king nor the queen likes the Quirinal palace, nor its grand ceremonies. They exercise their business of being sovereigns with a sense of duty and receive and render protocolar visits when they are required. But they do not seek occasions for such ceremonies.

⁂

They live the simplest sort of life. The royal family lives in the Villa Savoia, situated almost on the outskirts of Rome, five or six months of the year. This is simply a big villa without much pretense as a royal palace, but with, however, a magnificent park. There are no military guards around it, and through the high wall that surrounds it little of the quiet family life of its occupants filters to the outside world.

In the Villa Savoia the king had his famous conversation with D'Annunzio on the eve of Italy's entrance into the World war on the side of the Allies, and it was here also that he received the military leaders on the eve of the "march on Rome" and decided not to sign the decree of martial law.

The king's life is simple as that of his citizens. He is very abstemious and the food on the royal table is said to be limited to only plain dishes. Although rich, the king is also very economical, and there are many stories in Rome about his parsimoniousness. Only rarely the king and queen receive friends or some artist of renown at the Villa Savoia. And every morning the king gets in his car and drives to his office in the other palace at the Quirinal. But he avoids seeing any more politicians than he can help. He studies the documents which are put before him to sign, interesting himself especially in foreign affairs.

The king also works carefully on his daily journal, or diary, which he has kept up for many years and in which he notes and comments on events every day.

But especially he gives his time to his favorite occupation, that of stamp and coin collecting. His collection of Italian money, which includes more than 100,000 pieces, is said to be the most complete in existence.

Perhaps the king's daily journal, when it becomes a historical document some day, will explain and shed light on his life as a sovereign and whether he quailed before the responsibilities of his post at some moment in his career or whether his seeming failure to act came from his wisdom and astute appreciation of the politics of his country.

On some occasions he has not hesitated to speak his own mind. Against the opinion of his ministers, he pronounced for Italy's entrance into the World war on the side of the Allies. After the crushing defeat at Caporetto he refused, as commander of the armies, to retreat farther than the Piave, as some councillors advised. And then his much-disputed opposition to the proclamation of martial law against the Black Shirts. His defenders say that he always has sought to act as an arbiter between the parties. "When the ministers are strong," he said one day, "the crown can be weak. But when the ministers are weak the crown must be strong."

There is no festival in Italy which Victor Emmanuel more religiously observes and which Mussolini more scrupulously avoids than that of Constitution day—June 6, the anniversary of the granting of the statuto by Charles Albert, the king's great-grandfather.

And that perhaps summarizes concretely the monarchical situation in Italy.

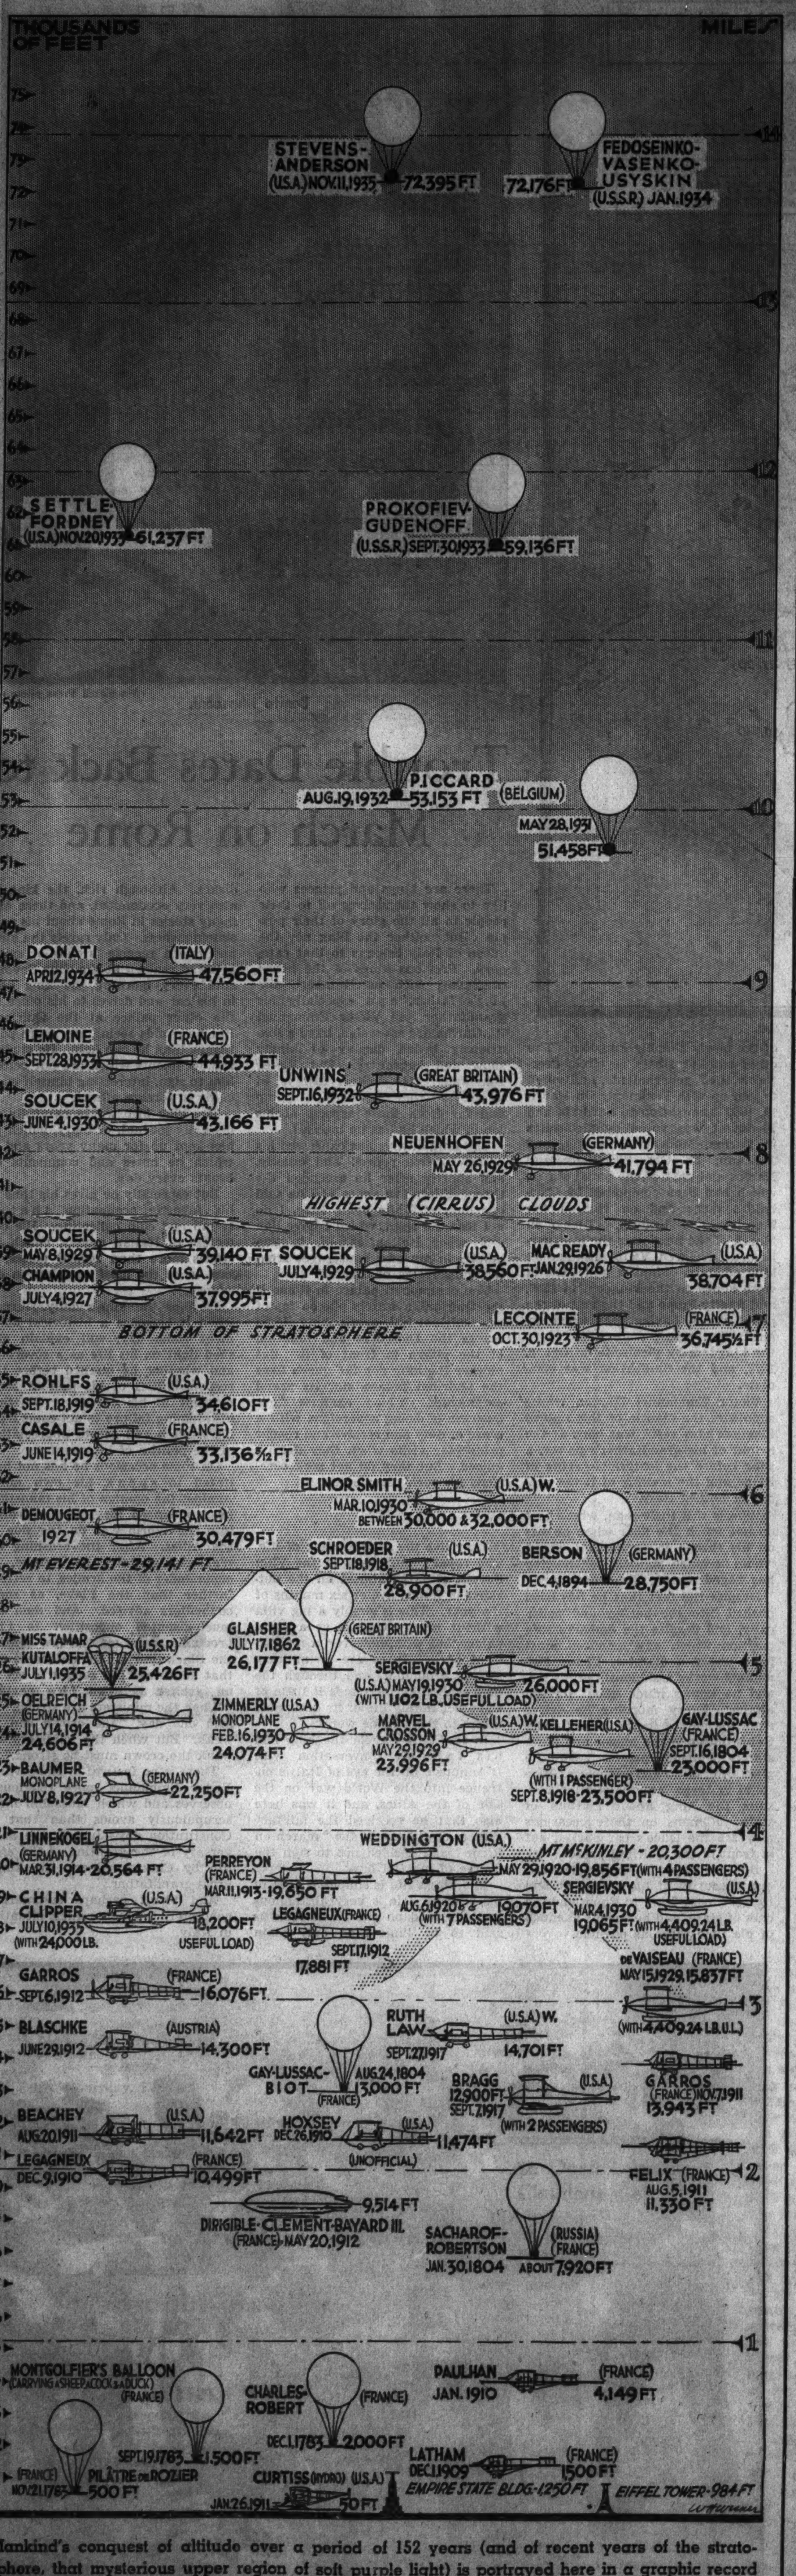
Airplanes and Air Transport



Mankind's conquest of altitude over a period of 152 years (and of recent years of the stratosphere, that mysterious upper region of soft purple light) is portrayed here in a graphic record of notable flights of balloons, dirigible balloons, and heavier-than-air aircraft. The initial W indicates achievements in that line by women. It will be noted that many records (indicated by U. S. A.) were made by American citizens.

Films Capture Chicago's Little Sally

The little tike behind the wheel of the automobile is Sally Martin, the newest child movie discovery. She plays her first movie role in the adaptation of Kate Douglas Wiggin's story, "Timothy's Quest."

EVER since Shirley Temple's rise to fame the entire movie industry and movie fans all over the country have been wondering if another child could be found to equal little Miss Temple's popularity. Of course, they've had any number of children who have been given screen contracts and who are ace performers, but none that has so completely won the heart of every movie-goer.

John Balaban, vice president of Balaban & Katz, was visiting Burr Oaks summer camp for girls at Mukwanago, Wis., last summer, and while watching a show given by the camp dramatic club he noticed what seemed to him exceptional talent displayed by a four-year-old tot named Sibylle Matisse. She performed with as much ease as any youngster he had ever seen.

The child had been studying dramatics, singing, and dancing, and he was sure she would have great possibilities in Hollywood. He arranged for little Sibylle to meet several Paramount executives early last fall. The results of the meeting were so favorable that the child, her mother, and the director of the camp were immediately sent to Hollywood to have screen tests made of the child.

The little miss was given a seven years' contract a week after she arrived in the film capital and will star in pictures for Paramount studio. Her name has been changed to Sally Martin, and the studio executives and all who know her have the greatest confidence that she will creep into everyone's heart as charmingly as has the other little girl.

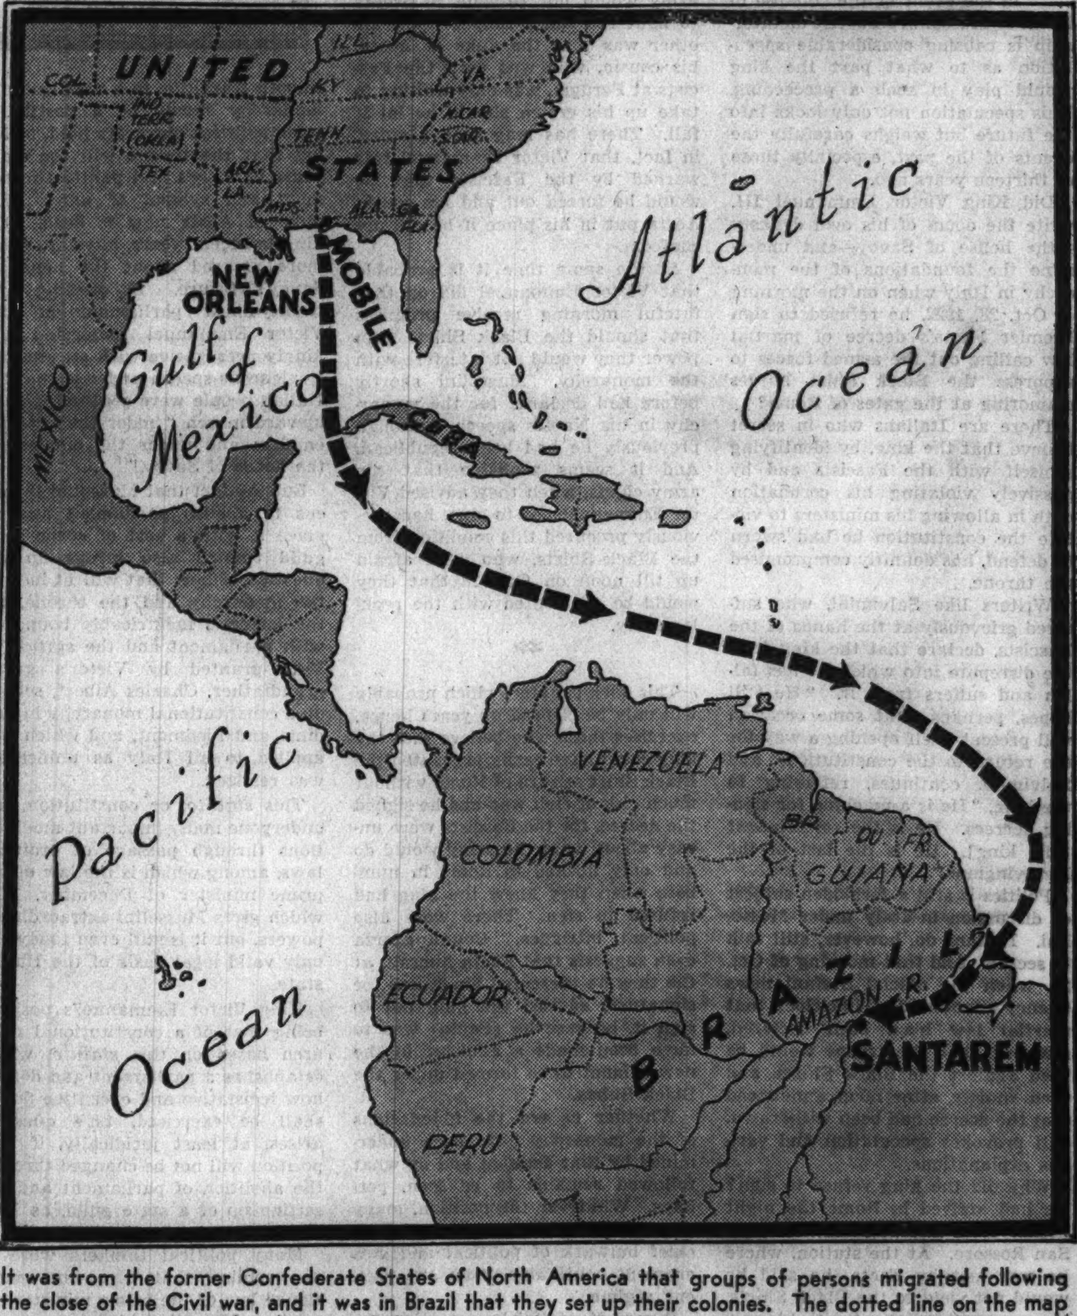
Her first film is "Timothy's Quest," in which she is to have a very important rôle. Eleanor Whitney, a young woman known as the world's fastest tap dancer, also is very much in evidence in the picture, as are Dickie Moore, Tom Keene, Virginia Weidler, and Elizabeth Patterson. The child finds pleasure in acting before the camera, and if she continues to forget herself and doesn't become camera-shy it's possible that she may become one of the great child stars of the day.

If she does achieve film fame, Chicago can have another movie star to claim as its own, as Sibylle (now Sally) was born here — only four years ago.

A Bit of Dixie in Heart of Brazil

Story of Colonization in South America

By GUY MURCHIE JR.



It was from the former Confederate States of North America that groups of persons migrated following the close of the Civil war, and it was in Brazil that they set up their colonies. The dotted line on the map represents the route taken by one of these groups that sailed from Mobile for Santarem, Brazil, in 1866.

WHAT would you do if your country were defeated and devastated in a terrible war? And your government was in collapse, your business and your home hopelessly deranged, and you didn't know where to turn—and then along came an agent from a friendly foreign land, offering you financial assistance to come and take a new home on free soil, to start again at scratch and carve a fresh life for yourself under the most promising of circumstances?

This is precisely the situation in which many citizens of the Confederate States of America found themselves in the years immediately following the Civil war.

Their lives were in turmoil. Their slaves were on the loose. There was a very dubious market for the products of their plantations. The whole future was a grisly mirage of uncertainty. And then along comes a cheery-eyed gentleman who introduces himself as a special representative of the government of Brazil.

"Do you know that slavery is still legal in Brazil?" asks the optimistic agent of the weary planter. "Do you know that land is free there, and that you can grow cotton and sugar and most anything much more easily than here? Do you know that slaves in Brazil cost about one-tenth of the pre-war price here, that you can buy a fine young slave there for around twelve dollars? Furthermore, do you realize that our government will take care of your transportation to the Amazon and will finance you until you are thoroughly established on your new big plantation?"

Such talk in '65 and '66 was too much for many a disheartened southern planter and many an opportunistic share-cropper whose future looked as emptly as his stomach. Hundreds accepted the propositions of the Brazilian agents and flocked aboard the boats for South America. Proud southern gentlemen were some of them, bringing along two or three of their most faithful slaves. But the great majority were adventure seekers, lazy bums, "offscourings of the army and vagrants of Mobile."

Out of Mobile in 1866 came one shipload of more than 200 persons under the leadership of a Major Hastings, bound for the town of Santarem, 600 miles up the Amazon. Others went to other parts of Brazil, most of them to the inland plateau country along the watercourses south of the Amazon itself.

Major Hastings' band of colonists were received enthusiastically by the dusky people of Santarem, and the Portuguese-blooded agents escorted them through the surrounding jungle to the land that was to be theirs. Santarem is on the southern bank of the Amazon at the point where it is joined by the Rio Tapajoz. The soil is red clay in this region and so acid that no grass grows even in the cleared spots. There are low, gnarled trees in some less fertile places, but usually the trees are tall and covered with dense masses of creepers and vines which hang downward in the sultry darkness below the treetops. This is the "edge of a tableland which extends over all the country to the south and rises in bluffs along the Tapajoz and below Santarem."

From five to ten miles out of Santarem, the immigrants choose their future homes. They scatter about so as to get more land. Most of them are disappointed in this unfamiliar wilderness after their florid dreams based on the ravings of the agent back in Alabama. What they did not know about the agent was that he was paid, not so much per day, but so much per head for each immigrant lured to Brazil. This commission system inevitably lent a silver lining to his innately eager tonsils.

Faced with the very real and immediate problem of establishing themselves in the wilderness, the more ambitious of the settlers hasten to clear a space in which to build some sort of cabin, cut a path to some nearby stream, and climb the steep trail to the top of the 500-foot bluff called montanha, where they plant sugar cane and gaze on the Amazonian flood plains and the faraway blue highlands of Monte Alegre. Some plant cotton, there being more reliable demand for that crop than for any other that could be practicably grown in this climate. Having no horses to use on their farms, and few if any tools, the men have to lug homemade wooden plows up the bluff by hand and plow as best they can by pulling each other's in turns.

All this applies to the few serious and responsible settlers. The majority of the immigrants, being opportunistic bums and vagrants seeking adventure, retreat from the uncomfortable jungle back to Santarem. There they buy drinks with their remaining money, and beg when they have none left. Drunken, quarreling among themselves, pursuing the Portuguese girls, and making a general nuisance, they soon earn a bad name for the whole colony, with the result that all Americans in this part of the Amazon valley are generally despised by the natives.

Shortly the Brazilian government, hearing of the bad behavior of the immigrants, withdraws all financial and other aid from them. Things begin to look really serious for the colonists. The tramps and shiftless rifraf wander off, in one way or another getting aboard the boats that occasionally pass down the river. After a year or two almost all the lazy and depraved are gone.

A terrific uphill fight is in store for the hardy handful of Americans remaining. Their cotton does not grow well, the climate being too moist. Their sugar cane does better, but no one will buy it. They get sick with fever and weak from working with ineffective tools, and there is no one who will give them sympathy and assistance. As they shiver in their crude hamocks during the cool damp nights, and sweat in the sultry cane fields during the day, life looks dark indeed.

Little by little headway is made. Fields are leveled out, pennies are saved up. At last there is enough to send for a few metal tools from New Orleans or Mobile, or to buy a colored slave from down the river. With the passing of years the native people of Santarem realize the mistake they have made in lumping all the immigrants together. They begin to appreciate the character and determination of the Americans who were strong enough to remain.

And so, with its blessings of freedom and moisture, and its curses of isolation, lack of market, and general tropical tribulation, the American colony at Santarem lives on. When visited recently by Dr. W. H. Haas, of the geology department of Northwestern University, while on an Amazon expedition, the population of the colony was about 300. In describing one old woman who was among the original settlers in the 1860's, Dr. Haas said, "She was living in the past with nothing left but tradition. As I talked with her she seemed to forget her bedraggled clothes, her bare feet and primitive surroundings. She recalled her father's extensive plantation back in Alabama with slaves singing and working in the cotton fields."

According to Dr. Haas, the remaining Americans at Santarem work out their existence by raising cocoa, beans, pumpkins, squash, brazil nuts, and manioc among other things. The present descendants of the original immigrants, knowing little of the outside world or of the descendants of settlers farther south in Brazil now living in the coastal cities, are content to stay where they are on the Amazon.

INSTALMENT I.

COL. LEE RIPPLE sat on the porch of his ranch house in eastern New Mexico, facing that famous fan shaped scene that lay between the great timbered escarpments stretching down over the green and gray terraces to the vast rolling plain below through which the Old Trail followed the shining way of the Cimarron into the purple distance.

It was the grandest scene in all New Mexico and the sad blue eyes of the cattle baron lingered long there before shifting round to the west, where a splendor of range empire unfolded to his gaze. A million acres swept and waved on all sides to the silver slopes, and these in turn sheered up to the black belted mountains with their snowy peaks.

"Wal, Kurnel, I heahed you, shore, but I'd like to get oot of takin' you serious," said Britt, the rancher's foreman, who sat on the porch steps.

"Cap, you must take me seriously," replied Ripple in slow, grave speech. "Another spell with my heart like this last one will kill me."

"Aw, I cain't believe it," rejoined Britt stubbornly, despite the something convincing in his employer's tone and look.

"I know, Cap. I thought this second attack would do for me. My heart has acted queer for a long time. But that spell in San Antonio was the first bad one. I consulted a doctor. He told me to make my will and get ready. But scared as I was, I didn't obey. I went on to New Orleans after Holly and fetched her home without tellin' her aboot it. I just couldn't tell her."

"No wonder, boss. Thet would have been plumb hard on the lass," replied Britt, wagging his lean, hawk-like head. "You sent her to thet school when she was 8 years old. An' you went to see her half a dozen times in the eight years she's been gone. An' when you was fetchin' her heah to Don Carlos' rancho, the only home she ever had —to tell her you was aboot to die —Aw! Thet would have been cruel!"

"You're right," agreed the colonel, bitterly, as he spread his hands with a hopeless gesture. "That mawnin' when I met her and told her I had come to take her home she was so happy, so radiant. I couldn't kill her joy. . . . But now, Britt, she must be told at once."

"Why, boss? You know how onsartin life is. Quien sabe? You might live long yet."

"Yes. It's possible. But not probable. And I want her to make her choice while I am living."

"Choice of what, Kurnel, if I may make bold to ask?"

"Whether or not she will live heah or go to her mother's people in Santone."

"Holly will never leave Don Carlos' rancho," said Britt quickly.

"Did she say so?" asked Ripple eagerly, his gray eyes full of soft warm light.

"No. But I'd gamble on it. These few days Holly has been here she's been plumb loco aboot the ranch. Why, she has been wild with joy. Boss, she's like a freed bird. An' she loves it all, particular the hawses. She's crazy aboot hawses. An' she's never been in a saddle yet. Think of thet, Lee Ripple. Heah's a girl of 16, granddaughter of old Don Carlos, the greatest of all the old hawse breedin' dons—an' she's never straddled a hawse."

"I know—I know, Cap. Don't rub it in. I always meant Holly to have all the west could offer. But first I wanted her to get an education. The years have slipped by. . . . So my lass loves horses! What did she say?"

"Wal, the lass has yore blood in her, same as thet of the Valverde. She asked me how many hawses we had. An' when I told her aboot four hundred thet we knowed of she squealed with joy. Swore she'd ride every one of them. . . . Lord, I see my troubles. But I'll teach Holly to ride. I shore won't leave thet to these saddle rowdies."

"Britt, you make me hope," returned the colonel, feelingly, as he lay back in the great rocker. "I always wanted a son. But I never loved Holly the less for that. . . . If she lived on heah and learned to run this ranch under your wise eyes and some day married one of these saddle rowdies—I could die happy."

"My Gawd, boss!" expostulated Britt heatedly, "what'd you ever send Holly away to make a fine lady oot of her if you wanted her to marry one of these firebrands?"

"Cap, could Holly do better? I mean if this lucky cowboy is one of the breed we know so well. Not a Texan! Holly is half Spanish and you know Texans will be long forgettin' the Alamo. . . . He must be of good family and have some little schoolin'. For the rest I don't care so much. Holly could make most any cowboy take his place in the makin' of the west. . . . They are the salt of the earth, these wild range riders. Without them there would never have been this cattle business growin' by leaps and bounds, destined to tame the frontier. You know, Britt, even better than I do. For five years you've handled these hard ridin', hard drinkin', hard shootin' devils of mine. And you have loved them."

"Wal, mebbe I haven't loved them like I ought to have," rejoined Britt regretfully, surprised into feeling. "But, Kurnel, it just makes my blood run cold to think of Holly alone on this big ranch."

"Nonsense, old timer. My girl has loved you all her life. It was you who nicknamed her Holly. You danced her on your knee and helped teach her to walk. You can't go back on her now. You must take my place as her dad."

"Kurnel, I'll do my damndest. . . . But lookin' ahaid, in the light of this lovely lass growin' up heah into a woman, I don't like the times."

⁂

COL. RIPPLE made a slight, violent gesture as if a motive prompted by passion had been quenched by will.

"Nor do I. That is somethin' I have put off, and like this other must now be talked over. Yet the reason is simple. . . . Look there to the south, old timer. That is the grandest outlook in the west, if not in the whole world. Kit Carson sat right there and said so. Look down over the Old Trail and the Cimarron. Peaceful, lonely, eh? The Kiowas and Comanches are my friends. Look at the buffalo. All those black patches down there are buffalo. . . . And now look around to the west, Britt. No range like that in all this broad New Mexico. Look at the cattle. Do you remember when we drove in heah first? It seems long. But it's only seven years. Seven years! They were heaven compared to the years of the war, and long before. . . . You know my story, Britt. How I came through heah in 1855 with a caravan on the way to Santa Fé. How I won Carlotta Valverde and took her back to Texas with me. How old Don Carlos cast her off and did not forgive her for many years. . . . Look at my herds of cattle dottin' the range. Like the buffalo. Fifty thousand head, so you say. I could sell ten thousand head—twenty thousand head and be rich. A new day is dawnin'—the day of the settled west."

"Shore. But a hell of a lot can happen in a day, Kurnel. Yore hope is father to yore belief. . . . This heah year of our Lawd, 1872, seems fine an' fair to you, Kurnel. But I say, fer you if you live, an' fer all of us who live heah, the hardest an' bloodiest, the wust times air yet to come."

"Kit Carson said that years ago. But I never believed it. And his prophecy has not been verified."

"Yes, Kit swore thet, settin' right heah where I set now. . . . Kurnel, I reckon men like you an' Maxwell an' Chisum know more aboot cows than anythin' else. It's men like me an' Carson who have vision. We never was blinded by great possessions.

"Wal, it's as simple as when Carson seen through it. But only been long in comin'. . . . Fust, take the buffalo. The huntin' of buffalo fer their hides has begun. We old Texans always feared this. It means such war with the Indians as has never been seen on this frontier. They live on buffalo. It will be a fight to the finish between the buffalo hunters an' the Indian tribes."

"I gather that, Britt. All the same I'd say the hide hunters will break the power of the allied tribes and drive them off the plains."

"My guess, too. When this hide huntin' movement gets goin' strong there'll be many thousands of hunters. An' all keen, hard fightin' men armed with heavy rifles an' with wagon loads of ammunition. They'll do fer the Indians, I reckon. But it will be a hell of a fight with the chances not all agin the Indians."

"Agreed. We'll pass, however, on to that future period when the red men's power will be gone. What is the next great catastrophe you predict?"

"Wal, no less than the heyday of the rustler."

"Right, Kurnel, so far as you go," drawled the foreman. "Listen, boss, an' I'll tell you how I figger. Durin' the last year a lot of tight lipped, cold eyed strangers have rode into New Mexico. Mebbe you haven't seen this much. But I have talked with men who have seen it an' who didn't like it. Jesse Chisum is one. Some of these may be what you called the cowboys—salt of the earth—but the most of them air bad. Thet is to say hawse thieves, rustlers, bandits, desperadoes, the genuine bad men an' genuine fourflushers, ootlaws, all of them, an' thet ain't countin' the rifraf from the east an' the ruined rebels from the south. Cattlemen like you an' Chisum air goin' to grow powerful rich in cattle. In three years the Ripple brand will show on the sides of eighty thousand haid of cows. Think of thet! An' thet ain't countin' what you sell. Wal, this will give rise to such rustlin' of cattle as was never dreamed of before on the ranges. It is inevitable."

"You are right!" ejaculated the rancher in concern. "Heyday of the rustler. . . . Britt, you have seen ahead to an unprecedented and dubious future for the cattleman who operates on a large scale. . . . All right, suh! If you see that clearly you will be equal to meetin' such a situation when it comes. I'll never see it, worse luck. But Holly will be in the thick of it—perhaps unmarried. That freezes me inside. . . . Britt, you've been Texas ranger and trail driver, both of which callings, peculiar to the great Lone Star state, should fit you to deal with bad men at a bad time. You have always been a genius handlin' cowboys. . . . How do you aim to meet this situation?"

"Wal, I'll admit thet's been a stumper," replied Britt with a dry laugh.

⁂

WHEN he looked at the cattle empire he was actuated by mingled feelings of pride, of achievement, of dismay, and over all a sense of fatality in the sublime reach and sweep of the range.

But all that had only a momentary charm for Britt. He saw the raw wildness of Hays City, Dodge, and Abilene enacted on a smaller scale, yet with an equal lawlessness. And lastly Britt saw, with something of a grim and sardonic humor, dark slack forms of men, terribly suggestive, swinging from the cottonwoods in the moonlight.

"Wal, Kurnel," he said finally, "I reckon there's only one way to meet what's comin'. An' it is to scour the country fer the damndest ootfit of cowboys thet can possibly be found."

"Britt, I agree you can handle cows and men. Your idea is great. There's only one drawback. My daughter. Think of that young girl, lovely, like an unfoldin' rose, innocent, full of fire and joy, as mistress of the hardest outfit of cowboys ever thrown together in the west. . . . My God, Britt—think of it!"

"I been thinkin'. It'd been better fer us, an' Holly, too, if she hadn't had them years in school. But that cain't be helped now. If you are keen to have Holly live her life oot heah, keep up the great house of Ripple; thet's the way to do it—an' the only way."

"She shall choose," shot out Col. Ripple, strung with emotion. "We will tell her the truth and let her decide. I have been tortured between the devil and the deep sea. I want her to live here. Yet, if she prefers San Antonio or New Orleans, I shall not let her see my disappointment."

"Holly!" called the colonel, his rich voice ringing.

As there was no answer from the house, Britt arose to go in search of the girl. All the rooms in the front of the wonderful old Spanish mansion opened out on the arched porch. Britt went through the wide hall to the patio, where his spurs clinked musically upon the flagstones. But the girl was not to be found near the sunny fountain, or among the roses, or in the hammock under the dense canopy of vines. Britt went into the living room and halted a moment in the shadowed light. Then from the porch came a gay contralto voice. He went out, lagging a little.

Holly stood beside her father's chair. And Britt had a tingling recurrence of the emotion the girl had aroused in him when he saw her first after her arrival from New Orleans: a strange yearning to be young again.

"Howdy, Holly," he drawled. "I was oot lookin' fer you."

Holly Ripple had a regal air. She looked her aristocratic Spanish lineage. Her great dark eyes and her exquisitely pale skin came to her from the Castilian Valverdes. But Britt had only to hear her to know that she was American, and Lee Ripple's daughter, and that she belonged to the west.

"You both look like owls," said the girl, and she slid on to the arm of her father's chair.

"Holly, dear, it's only fair that you learn at once the serious side of your homecomin'," replied the colonel.

"Serious?" she asked, with a puzzled smile.

"Indeed it is. Back me up, Britt."

"Wal, lass, I reckon it's nothin' to make you feel bad," said Britt, feeling his way and meeting squarely those compelling eyes. "You're oot west now. You've been heah three days. An' it's just sense to tell you pronto what we air up against."

"Ah, I see," Holly rejoined soberly. "Very well. Tell me."

"Holly, look down there," spoke up her father, pointing to the grazing lands below. "All those black dots are cattle. Thousands of cattle. They are mine. And all I have to hold them is a wavy brand from shoulder to flank. A ripple! . . . Times are changin'. We expect the wildest years this section of the west has ever known. When we came back from Santone by stage you saw Indians, soldiers, cowboys, pioneers, rough men galore. You saw buffalo by the million, and cattle and horses almost as many. In short, you rode across Texas and you saw wild life. . . . But nothin', my daughter, compared to what you will see heah in New Mexico the next decade—if you stay."

"If I stay?" she echoed, with a curious intentness.

"Yes. Because I mean it to be a matter of your own choice," he went on swiftly. "Rustlers—that is the western name for cattle thieves —and a horde of hardened men of different types will ride into New Mexico. There will be fightin', Holly. . . . Now, for instance, suppose I happened to be shot. What——"

"O, dad!" she cried poignantly.

"Holly, the chance is remote, but it might happen. Suppose I were shot by rustlers. What would you do?"

"Do!—I'd hang every rustler in this country," exclaimed the girl hotly.

Britt met the piercing eyes of the rancher.

"All right," went on Ripple, a little huskily. "Now, say for example that I—I didn't get shot, but just passed—on, you know. . . . Died. . . . Holly, listen. That, too, might happen. It's natural. I'm gettin' on in years, and I've led a strenuous life. . . . Well, suppose that happened. . . . Would you want to stay on heah at Don Carlos' Rancho?"

"Yes, dad," she answered quietly.

Britt saw the long, dusky lashes close over tear-filled eyes. Ripple bent over to kiss the lustrous dark hair. Under his tan a pallor showed, and his jaw quivered. Britt turned away to gaze down the valley. Holly had seen through her father's attempt to disguise the truth.

"Then — that is your choice — Holly?" the rancher resumed presently.

"Dad, there never was any choice. There was only—home. My west! I have never forgotten a single thing."

"My beloved—I am ashamed," so turned the colonel, with agitation. "I should have known you would be like Carlotta. I imagined you might. . . . Well, never mind what, since it can never be. . . . Holly, in the days to come you will learn how I run my ranch—how I keep open house for all. Never have I turned away any one from Don Carlos' Rancho. Indians, outlaws, wanderers, travelers, all have been welcome heah. That is why no white or red hand has ever been against me yet. . . . When the time comes, Holly, will you preserve my open hand to all?"

"I will, dad."

⁂

RIPPLE clasped her in a close embrace, then turned a working visage and beaming eye upon his foreman.

"Britt, you old rebel, you know my child. And I'm thankin' God that when I have to go you will look after her. . . . There, Holly, our serious talk is over."

"Not yet, dad," she murmured. "I have my turn. There are some questions I want to ask you."

"Ah!—Fire away, daughter," he replied, gayly, but it was easy for Britt to see his perturbation.

"Dad, I know hardly a word of Spanish," said Holly, softly, with her eyes downcast. "It was forbidden me at school. I did not realize until I got home. Your Mexicans speak Spanish to me. The living room I remembered so well has all been done over, refurnished. The beautiful rooms you have given me —the same. Everything new, beautiful, costly. But not a trace of Spanish color or design."

"Holly, that is easy to explain," returned her father frankly. "I wanted you to be American. That is why I kept you away at school so many years. If I had brought you up heah, in the Spanish environment which pertained until recently, you would have been all Valverde."

"Dad, was that any reflection upon Don Carlos Valverde?" queried Holly, with proud, dark eyes upon him.

"No. I had a high regard for Don Carlos and these early Spanish families. Both Kit Carson and Lucien Maxwell married into them."

"Did you love my mother?"

"Holly, I think I may say yes with an honest heart. But, dear, when I met Carlotta I was a wild young Texan, a gay blade in love with every pretty face I saw. It is hard to confess to you that when I became infatuated with your mother I did not go to Don Carlos honorably and ask for her hand. I knew only too well that he would have raged and thrown me out. Carlotta was hardly more than 15. . . . I —I ran off with her. But I married her in San Antonio. As I grew to love her more I regretted havin' been the cause of estrangement between Carlotta and Don Carlos. She was an only child. In time he forgave her. You were born soon after that. Then followed the happiest years of our lives. Don Carlos left Carlotta the ranch. After the war I drove a cattle herd up from Texas and have prospered ever since."

⁂

BRITT liked that frank discussion of the colonel's, and when he saw Holly's reaction he thought it was well. If there had ever been any brooding doubts in the girl's mind they were dispelled then and forever. She embraced her father.

"Thank you, dad," she whispered. "It's all right now—except you mustn't frighten me again."

The moment seemed sweet and far-reaching for Britt. All was well that ended well. This homecoming of Holly Ripple had been fraught with dismay as well as dread. She had been an unknown factor. But now the old ranger reveled in the faith he had doggedly held in the girl he himself had named.

"Lass, I never told you how I come to call you Holly," he said, as the girl sat up again, to smile with wet eyes. "I had a sweetheart once an' thet was her name."

"Sweetheart?—Cappy, you used to call me that when I was little. I'm horribly jealous. What was she like? Did you—run off with her as dad did with my mother? Please tell me."

"Some day," replied Britt, rising, and he patted the glossy head. "Kurnel, I've seen a few happier days than this, far away an' long ago. But not many. Shore you will be long heah with us. What fun you'll have teachin' this big-eyed lass to handle hawses, to shoot an' rope, to run the cowboy ootfits ragged, to be mistress of this great house an' do honor to yore name! An' I—wal, I'll go ahaid with my plans."

"Plans! What plans, Cappy?" queried the girl. "Do your plans include a party to celebrate my return?"

"Holly, that shall be my job," interrupted her father. "I will give such a party as was never seen heah in New Mexico. And every year thereafter on the anniversary of that date you must repeat it."

"O, glorious!" she cried rapturously. "My first party."

"Britt, bring on your wild outfits!" sang the colonel, keen and glad-eyed. "Bring on your riders, rangers, cowboys, outlaws, desperadoes, gunmen, and killers! Don Carlos' rancho shall flourish many a year!"

"Wild outfits! Cowboys—desperadoes—killers?" echoed Holly, mystified, her great eyes like dark, glowing stars.

"Holly, it is Britt's plan to surround you with the wildest and most dangerous outfit of men ever gathered on a western ranch," announced the colonel.

"O—O! But why?"

"Wal, lass, the idee is to save you an' yore cattle when the times grow bad," interposed Britt.

"How perfectly wonderful! . . . Dad, I shall fall in love with every single one of them. That is the penalty you must suffer for penning me up with books. Eight long years! And I was born on the range! . . . Cappy Britt, henceforth Old Hawkeye, you will need your keen sight. Bring on your wild cowboys!"

Britt paced his slow, clinking way down the flowered path toward the bunkhouse. Hard upon his excitation followed a pensive sadness. Only he realized what lay in store for Holly Ripple. Let her enjoy the girlish freedom she had been denied. Let her ride and laugh while her father was with her and the days burned with all the glamor of a New Mexican summer. For the shadow on the horizon would soon loom into dark groups of horsemen, strange, silent, formidable, and the languorous serenity of Don Carlos' Rancho would be gone.

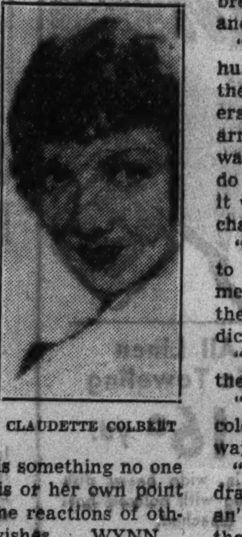
An Open Letter to Claudette Colbert



CLAUDETTE COLBERT

Dear Claudette: You can make 1936 and the first part of 1937, at least, good and constructive, with pleasant rewards added to those you already have merited and received. But please note I have not said these years, nor the positions of planets during this period, will bring you anything on the proverbial platter. Avoid temptations to seem temperamental —you know this is something no one ever sees from his or her own point of view; watch the reactions of others. With best wishes, WYNN.

Opera Again Agitates Local Social Leaders

Start Movement to Give New and Exquisite Opus; Sponsor Search Is On.

By Cousin Eve.

MIMOSA! With its scented, feathery flowers! Here already, a bit ahead of schedule. Battalions of white hyacinths, too, which belong to February, as do subtle crocuses. If all these forerunners of spring came in December, should we love them so well?

And news that the wife of a British cabinet member is about to lecture among us. And more vital still, that we may have in due time a most exquisitely given opera, something heretofore not spoken of. Seems there are still people who believe that opera has a present and a future if given with musical taste and due regard for the American sense of humor.

There is a project by which four or five cities might share this beautiful opera, whose promoters were met at tea chez Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swift one day last week. Here again money is the question. Who has faith to promote these good musical works, and start something new in Chicago of beauty and distinction?

Guests of Honor Crowd Carpenters' At Home.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Carpenter were at home Saturday afternoon for a houseful of guests of honor. They were five, or was it seven? First, Mrs. Carpenter's sister-in-law, Joyce Borden, now Mrs. Zlatko Balokovic, and her charming husband, who is a Jugo-Slav from Zagreb. He has sense of humor and is also a musician, a violinist. Mme. Balokovic has changed little since she was a girl in Chicago. Tall and slight, she has a fascinating, slow smile. Recently she and her husband made a yachting trip round the world.

Secondly, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dillingham of Honolulu, on their way home from a world giro which began last February. Mrs. Dillingham was Louise Gaylord of Chicago, a first cousin and co-belle with Italia Blair, daughter of Chauncey J. Blair. The girls came out the same year and were a ravishing pair of debs; Louise a slim blonde, Italia an equally slim and beautiful brunette. The latter married a Spanish marquis, Ricardo Soriano de Ivanrey, and has lived mostly in Spain and southern France. Louise Gaylord saw Walter Dillingham only four times before she married him. She has lived a romantic life, mostly in Honolulu. There her husband's position is one of effulgent power and glory.

Marquesa d'Ivanrey is also of this house party, although she sleeps chez her aunt Mrs. Chauncey Keep up the drive, and was pouring coffee at the tea Saturday afternoon. So were Mrs. George Langhorne and Mrs. William Odell. Fragrant mimosa everywhere. Never did Mme. d'Ivanrey look handsomer, black hair in smooth curls, cameo features, slim figure, brilliant smile, distinction. Mrs. Dillingham was stunning and gay as ever. Mrs. Carpenter's guests were many—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamill, Count and Countess Giulio Bolognesi, Robert and Mrs. Hutchins, Mrs. Paul Welling, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, the John Storrs, Marquis de Veyrac, Henry J. Patten, Mrs. William Nitze, Mrs. Hugh McBirney, Mlle. Guitou Knoop, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Miss Alice Rouillier, Dr. Frederick Stock and Mrs. Stock, Harold F. McCormick.

Russian Trio Arouses Excited Comment.

Earlier that afternoon many had heard the Russian trio in Mrs. Raymond Redheffer's drawing room, 1430 Lake Shore drive, in the second of three marvelous concerts. The trio takes its name from Anina Mesirow-Minchin, the pianist of the group, who is a Russian and a superb artist. The men, a violinist and cellist, are a Pole and an Italian. They have played with Toscanini, Stokowski, Rodzinski, and other great conductors up and down the land, and produce an ensemble that is more than exciting. It is gorgeous. Mrs. Rudolph Ganz, who was there, was amazed that she had not heard the Russian trio yet in the foyer of Orchestra hall. It is, however, quite a new thing, dating only since last season. Mrs. A. C. Callahan, Mrs. Theodore Robinson, Mrs. Sewell Avery, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Edward Litsinger, Mrs. Frederick Haskell, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stark were present.

Late that same afternoon the newly married Count and Countess Antony Potocki were receiving at 1500 Lake Shore drive with the bride's mother, Mrs. Moissant Griffiths. They had eloped the week before.

In these modern and enlightened days there is no longer a question of stern parents and family forgiveness. The young elopers are forgiven before they start. Mammas do not have to kill themselves over the bridal trousseau and establishment, or the minor details of wedding cards, receptions, and church ceremonies. Elopement is regarded as a happy dénouement to romance.

McWilliams Call Our Skyline "Whistler Nocturne."

On Friday after the symphony concert, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamill were at home informally in honor of the strangers within our gates, including Roy and Betty McWilliams, here from Biarritz to spend January. Guests fell upon both John and Ellen Carpenter with congratulations for the beautiful cycle of his songs just played by the orchestra. Mina Hager, a gifted contralto of New York, as always, interpreted them with a special art. She came out for the event. The Hamill apartment is high, high in the Drake tower, and Roy McWilliams, always an artist, was carried away by the northward view of gray mist and purple towers in which lighted twinkled. "Whistler Nocturn" he called it. Not such a large party. Mrs. Dillingham, Marquesa d'Ivanrey, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee, Col. and Mrs. George Langhorne, Mrs. Charles Goodspeed, Henry J. Patten, Zlatko and Joyce Balokovic, Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Marquis de Veyrac, Mrs. Ogden West.

The Arts club has a musical tonight preceded by dinner at half after seven. One rather imagines it will be a gleaming event, possibly highbrow. John Alden Carpenter said a fortnight ago that it would be musically one of the high moments of the winter. Last year Mrs. Frederick Coolidge brought the Kolisch quartet to Pittsfield, Mass., from Vienna. Now they have returned and will play a Chicago première of "Lyrische Suite" by Alban Berg, who died, it seems, in Vienna on Christmas eve.

Mimosa Helps the Arts Club's Programs.

The Arts club's program this year is unusually pleasing. I mean that when I go there things please me, even the exhibits. I did not really find fault with Picabia's new manner of painting, which is the signboard manner as we know it. Perhaps he can get away with it, being a Spaniard and, well—much publicized. The reason I felt kindly towards Picabia and, indeed, all mankind, was that upon the long center tea table was a high vase of mimosa, feathery and golden yellow. Mimosa does something to me, radiates sunshine into my soul. Thoughts come of warmer climes, the Riviera, perfumed southern gardens—spring is here somewhere, and winter already on the run. And mingled with the mimosa, huge jonquils. Jonquils in mid-January!

Everybody looked beautiful to me, Olive Bennett, Mary Langhorne who were pouring tea; Helen Harvey in incredible plaid tweed, purple, red, and white. And there were the Bodmans, Harold and Ysabel, just returned from their Florentine house for a whiff of good, old, American heat and some delectable hot bathing. It seems that there is a limit to the amount of heat one can have in Italy at the moment. The Bodmans looked in magnificent health, however, and reported that Florence was, as always, a heavenly spot to live.

Walter Kirks Greet Friends with Travel Diary.

One of my most interesting New Year's remembrances was Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kirk's, a tea rose pink booklet, a short diary of a last year's Mediterranean cruise made under romantic circumstances. "A Rosary of Roseate Days" say golden letters on the pink cover. On the flyleaf are the profiles of the travelers like a medallion, delicately etched. The subject matter is amusingly personal and intimate, Louisa's and Walter's reactions to people and things seen and felt. Thus we have them walking in the old walled city of Rhodes and thinking about the crusaders. They cross the Nile at Luxor, and we sense the peace of the evening hour.

We find them with some old friends in Rome, Paris, and in London; Lady Huntly, Lady Davis, the Ray Athertons; or dancing at the Howard de Walden's in Belgrave square. Or going to the play on some hors d'oeuvres and a cocktail, London style, and winding up later at a night club for supper. The little pink New Year's book is delightful reading, and so chic and pretty withal.

Bernadotte Schmitt Discreetly Doesn't Name Names.

Saturday was another wild day. One started out at noon to hear Bernadotte Schmitt at the foreign relations luncheon, returned to change for dinner, and called it a day only after Sunday had long arrived. There was a great excitement over hearing the erudite professor of history at the University of Chicago. His topic was "American Foreign Policy Seen from Abroad." His books have been exciting, too. There was that fat one, "The Coming of War—1914," and "England and Germany." Prof. Schmitt said he had been traveling around the world for seven months, and had meant to talk about the soviets and Japan, England and the far east. But finding Dr. Sam Harper and Edward Price sitting at the speakers' table had cramped his style. In an access of discretion he used no names, and was so impersonal that the lecture was not exciting. Hair raising have been the foreign relations earlier lectures this season. So when an erudite professor chats in a mousey way of this and that, and all his lay figures are anonymous, it is hard to keep smiling.

We have excellent newsmen in the orient and learn all these shifts in Japan and China with morning coffee. Prof. Schmitt should dramatize himself the way Sam Harper does. People flock to hear him on soviet Russia whenever he opens his mouth and call it a good show.

A fashionable audience at the foreign relations luncheon. Everybody has not skipped off to Florida and Arizona. Col. and Mrs. George Langhorne, Mrs. Frederick Haskell, Graham and Dorthy Aldis, the Clay Judsons, Adlai Stevenson, president; Helen Bell, Russell Tyson, Mrs. Ernst Freund, Mrs. Frederick Woodward, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Max Epstein, Robert Hall McCormick, and Harry Wilmerding.

Robert Lee Eskridge Recreates Enchantment of South Seas.

On Wednesday afternoon Robert Lee Eskridge wove a spell over "Les Jeunes" of the Alliance Française in Mrs. Edward Bennett's drawing room. With quaint maps of the South seas behind him, he told of Tahiti and of the cannibal isle of Manga Roma and the thirty-one tombs of the cannibal kings on a lone atoll in a waste of waters.

Mrs. Edward B. Smith gracefully introduced the lecturer, the president, Fanny MacPherson, being away.

A spell of romance hangs over "Les Jeunes" always. Love and marriage seem to come automatically to all the young officers of this association, formed some time ago by Mrs. Charles S. Dewey.

Mrs. John Storrs thanked Robert Eskridge in her inimitable way, and in poetical language spoke of the beauty of the hour and the miracle by which we could sit happily in the beautiful atmosphere of the Bennett house, in frosty January weather, enjoying the adventures of a hardy voyageur among exotic peoples. Louise Dewey Smith referred to Mr. Eskridge's early study with Boutet de Monvel, and his recent painting of the murals of Government house, Hawaii.

Terribly flattered to be present were a dozen guests not in their first youth. Among them, Consul General René Weiller of France and Mrs. Weiller, Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Donald F. MacPherson, Mrs. Robert Orr, Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Miss Sara Hinde, and Mrs. Dudley Root.

Meekers Have At-Home for Parents of Boys.

At 5 the same bright afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Meeker were at home in their new residence, 1350 North State street. In their cheerful white living room and adjoining dining room, Mrs. George Meeker and Mrs. David Cooke Jr. were doing the honors. The long white table was spread with ruby brocade. Otherwise all was white. Guests were asked to meet Dr. George St. John, head master of Choate school, and his nephew, C. Wardell St. John. One was supposed to have sons in the offing to be at this party, but I got under the wire by being with a young mother who had thoughts of entering her son, Martin Stevenson Jr., a husky lad of 2 months.

He has been engaged in business in Chicago for the last two years.

Betrothal of Earl of Shrewsbury Is Topic in London

LONDON An interesting engagement is that of the earl of Shrewsbury to Miss Nadine Crofton-Atkins. The earl only recently celebrated his coming of age, although he has carried the 473 year old title since he was seven. He is the son of Lady Winifred Pennoyer, English wife of the California diplomat. At the age of 14 he "gave away" his sister, Lady Ursula Chetwynd-Talbot, when she married Hector Stewart.

A girl from Minnesota is the heroine of the latest American engagement. Miss Alice Dean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William John Dean of St. Paul, is to be the bride of Robert Brown Fleming of Dumbartonshire.

Miss Constance Robinson, the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Luke Robinson of Winkfield, Windsor, is the English bride chosen by Mr. Peter Gerritson Wyckoff, the eldest son of the late Clarence Wyckoff and Mrs. Wyckoff of New York.

Burrill-Hill Wedding Bells Startle N. Y.

Romance of Former Evie Loew and Denver's Rich Son Surprises Society.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK

Life is real, life is earnest and pretty dull in Manhattan at the moment. Every one who's been able to buy, beg, borrow, or steal a ticket is on his way south. For six weeks it's been impossible to reserve accommodations on any cruise ship out of New York. Mr. and Mrs. William Goadby Loew are still in town, and with plenty to keep them busy. Their daughter, Mrs. Evie Loew Burrill, is to be the heroine of society's most important event this week. On Friday she's marrying Crawford Hill at her parents' new English mansion in East 93d street. The buxom Evie's engagement to Mr. Hill caught society napping. No one suspected that she was involved in a new romance.

Since both the prospective bride and bridegroom have been through the divorce mill, Friday's wedding will be a quiet affair. Only the ubiquitous "members of the family and a few close friends" will witness the ceremony.

Evie's social connections are with New York's most conservative strata. She is a granddaughter of the late George F. Baker, one of the last great titans of Wall street. She is, of course, a niece of the present George F. Baker, who's inherited his father's mantle and millions, and of Mrs. Howard B. St. George of London.

In 1923 Evie was married to Edward Livingston Burrill, whom she divorced eight years later. Mr. Hill and his first wife, the former Ann Kaufman [a daughter of the Louis G. Kaufmans] were divorced six months ago.

Original Hill Homestead Built Before Revolution.

This will be the second remarriage in the Loew family in recent months. Last summer Evie's sister, Mrs. Barbara Loew Post, married that blond and charming Russian, Nicholas Holmsen.

The other Loew daughters are Mrs. Bobby Strawbridge Jr. and Mrs. Richard Trimble.

Crawford Hill was born in Denver when Colorado was the wild and woolly west and every mountain was a potential bonanza. Mr. Hill's grandfather was the late Senator Nathaniel P. Hill, an eastern financier who went west to erect mills to treat complex ores. The original family homestead, built before the revolutionary war, was in Orange county, N. Y.

Evie's father will be a picture of what the well dressed man wears on such an occasion when he gives her in marriage Friday. Annually the tailors of two continents vote Mr. Loew the best dressed American man. And Rue de la Paix couturiers to the contrary, this department's candidate as the best dressed American woman is Evie's always stunning mother, "Queenie" Baker Loew.

America's Best Dressed Woman Faces Grave Social Problem.

It will take more than the book of etiquet to iron out the ticklish problem that has just been tossed into the Four Hundred's lap by the beautiful and best dressed Mrs. Harrison Williams.

For the wife of the famous Wall street financier is acting as hostess to Prince Otto von Bismarck, grandson of Germany's iron chancellor and one of Herr Hitler's right hand men. The prince's pretty, slim, blonde wife, as well as his brother, Count Albrecht von Bismarck, are also members of the party now sheltered in the Williams' villa on North Palm Beach avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams, who spent the holidays in Palm Beach, flew north several days ago to meet their guests at the boat.

Once upon a time, Mona would have been credited with a first class coup in snaring as her guests such important foreign notables as a prince and princess, particularly a prince descended from the famous German chancellor.

Guest Lists Must Be Combed for Nazi Haters.

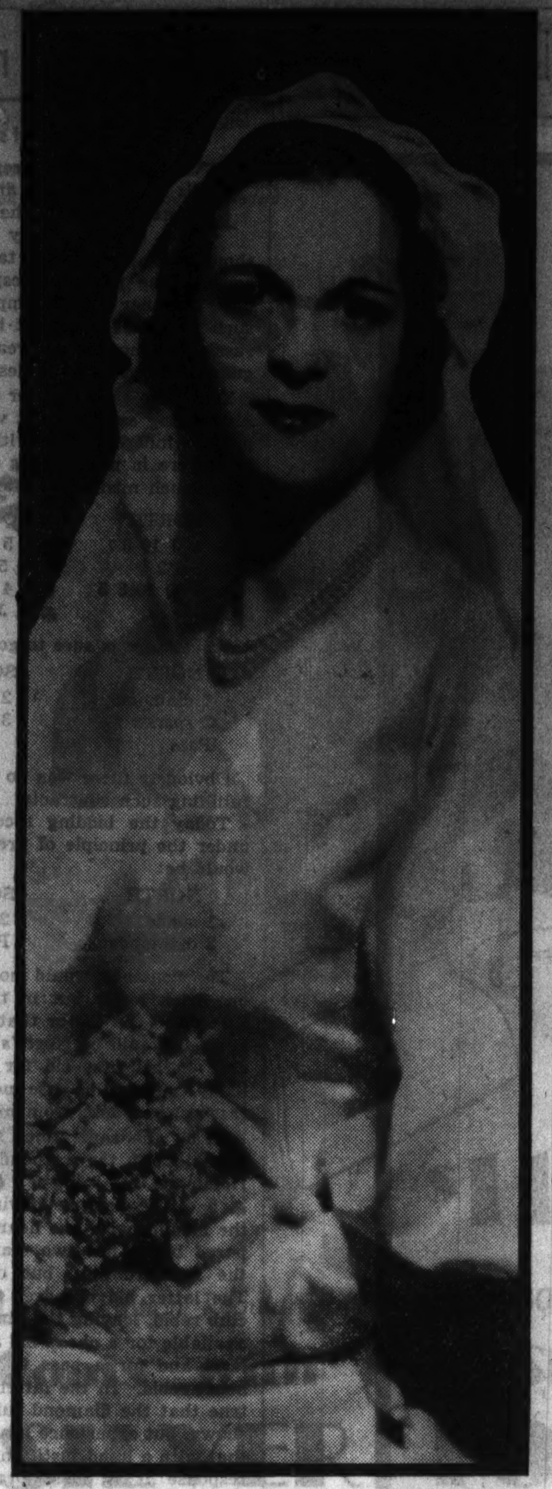
But in these days, when the world is so sharply divided on the subject of Nazi philosophy, such guests cannot but offer a pretty problem to any one who attempts to sponsor them in American society.

The Williamses or any one else who entertains for the Bismarcks will have to go over their guest lists with extreme care before scattering invitations. The Dolly Gann-Alice Roosevelt row is but child's play compared with the possibilities offered by the present situation.

The piano-playing Herr Ernst Franz Sedgwick Hanfstaengl is the last Hitler aid widely entertained by American society. He came here in June, 1934, for his Harvard class reunion, and remained to attend the Jack Astor-Tucky French wedding. But at that time public opinion was not yet so divided on the German question.

Mona Williams usually manages to hang up one social coup during the Palm Beach season. Last year she had as her guests the ultrafashionable Lord and Lady Brownlow. Then, too, she flew up from Palm Beach to greet her guests at the gangplank when they arrived in New York.

Joe Ryle is a serious contender for the hand of Medora Roosevelt. Joe, society publicity-man-about-town, has been a constant caller at the George Emlen Roosevelt home for three or four years. He courted Peggy Roosevelt before she met and married Signor Alexander Pallavicini, and then transferred his orchid orders to the younger Roosevelt daughter.



HONOLULU HONEYMOON

Famed French Boniface Will Visit Chicago

Victor Rey of Paris' Ritz, Expert at Art of Hospitality, Tours America.

By May Birkhead.

PARIS

America—and more specifically Chicago—where he will arrive about Jan. 20, is soon to be visited by Victor Rey, for many years manager of the Hotel Ritz in Paris. M. Rey has a wide reputation for his gift of hospitality and his expert knowledge of the delights of the table and of hotel management generally. For a generation, indeed, since before the turn of the century, he has helped to make the Ritz an international institution.

Like so many of the most successful hotel men in Europe, M. Rey is a Swiss, and had his training in that country, famous for gathering, imparting, and utilizing the secrets of hotel hospitality. This is his first voyage to the United States and he is looking forward to it with keen anticipation, leaving this week on the Ile de France.

Duchesse de Talleyrand [Anna Gould] Entertains.

Among the hostesses who have given dinners recently is the Duchesse de Talleyrand [Anna Gould], who had with her Violet de Talleyrand, her handsome daughter by her second marriage, and Jay de Castellane, her son by her first marriage.

Jay spends most of his time on his farm near Toulouse, and rarely comes to Paris or goes out much socially. The duchesse took her guests, after a dinner that was a poem, to the Châtelet, to see an operetta with a Mexican setting, and then on to the Café de Paris.

Songs from "Fritzi" Repeat London Success in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gade were guests at a tea given recently by Mrs. Pitts Duffield. Anton Bilotti played and Victor Prahl sang. Some of his selections were the songs put to music by Carl Tucker, the American composer. These have had a great success in the London production of "Fritzi," an operetta with a Viennese background. Mrs. Duffield wrote the words of these songs. Among those who had the pleasure of hearing their wit and tunefulness were Lendall Pitts, the painter, and his wife, also a dabster with the brush, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Mackay, and Mr. Pitts' sister, Mrs. Parker of Detroit, who is spending the winter with the Pittses.

Comtesse de Gramedo, the daughter of Mrs. Harry Spenser Brown of Chicago, gave a party a few evenings ago at her house in Neuilly. The hostess' daughter, who was recently married, was in the group, and so were Mrs. Henry S. Lehr, who has recently been in Rotterdam, and Princesse de Wagram.

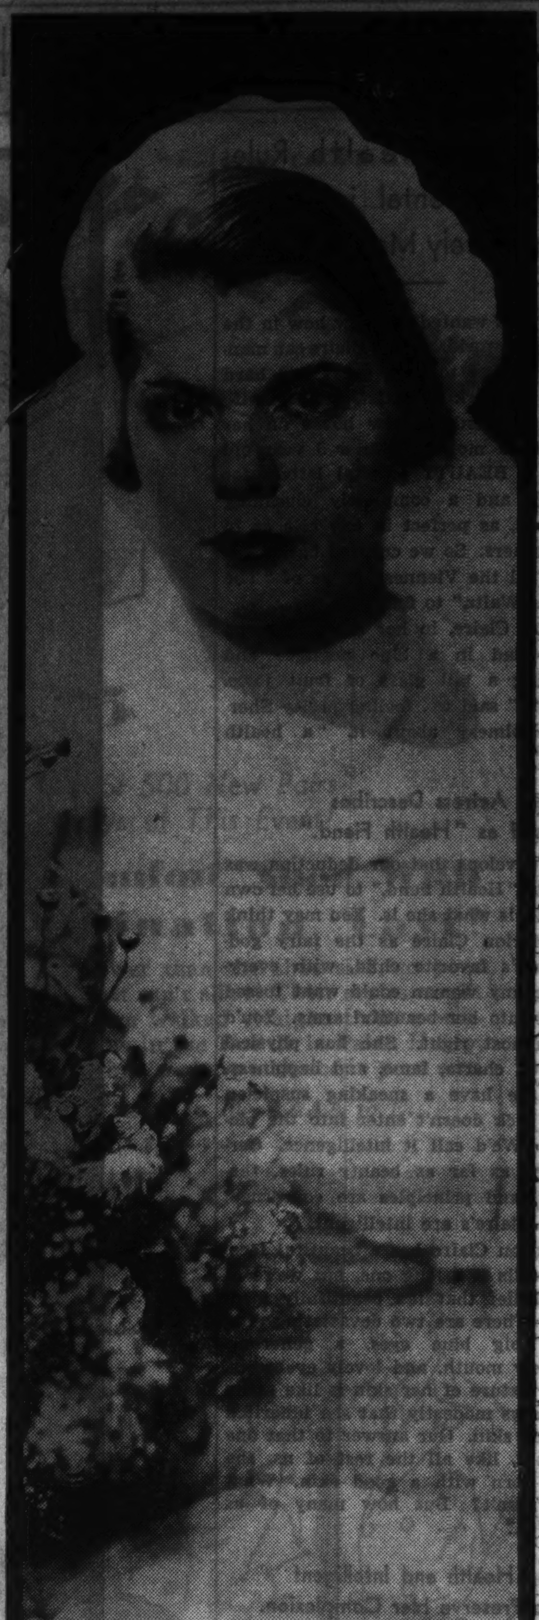
BRUSSELS.—(AP)—Unemployment still is acute among the middle classes in Belgium. More than 1,500 applications were received for ten vacancies in the police force of a Brussels suburb. They included those of many college graduates.



HONEYMOON AT SEA

Mrs. Jackson DeWitt Waterbury is the former Eleanor Barrows, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stanhope Barrows of Kenilworth. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Waterbury of Rome, N. Y., took place on Jan. 8 in the evening in Christ church, Winnetka, with a reception at the Barrows residence. Mr. Waterbury and his bride sailed on a Caribbean cruise and will be at home after March 1 in Evanston.

Intelligent Health Rules Fundamental in Beauty of Lovely Marion Claire.

Marion Claire, one of Chicago's most beautiful and famous women, believes that beauty and health are virtually synonymous. Miss Claire guards her own health and beauty with simple, sensible care, yet she has a full life.

[James Hargis Connelly Photo.]

WE wanted to know how in the world Marion Claire can manage to be a great and hard working artist, a busy wife with a spanking new house on her hands, a mother with a 3 year old son, a BEAUTY [capital letters for that], and a completely charming woman, as perfect in one rôle as in the others. So we crawled backstage, past all the Viennese props of "The Great Waltz," to find out.

Miss Claire, in her dressing room, was clad in a blue negligee and sipping a tall glass of fruit juice. "A ha," said we, feeling pretty Sherlock-Holmesy about it, "a health fan!"

Lovely Actress Describes Herself as "Health Fiend."

It develops that our deduction was right. "Health fiend," to use her own words, is what she is. You may think of Marion Claire as the fairy godmother's favorite child, with everything any woman could want tossed right into her beautiful arms. You'd be almost right. She has physical beauty, charm, fame, and happiness. But we have a sneaking suspicion that luck doesn't enter into the picture. We'd call it intelligence. Certainly, as far as beauty rules, theories, and principles are concerned, Miss Claire's are intelligent.

Marion Claire has a beautiful face. She calls it a long one, but we're of the belief that it's beautifully modeled. There are two devastating dimples, big blue eyes, a generous, shapely mouth, and lovely eyebrows. The texture of her skin is like satin. She says modestly that she inherited a good skin. Our answer to that one is that, like all the rest of us, she was born with a good skin. What baby isn't? But how many of us keep it?

Good Health and Intelligent Care Preserve Her Complexion.

Trust Miss Claire to keep her lovely complexion, just as she keeps her figure [we could grow lyrical about that], her health, and her voice. Not that she takes milk baths or has trick beauty secrets we lesser creatures don't get to know about. It all goes back to her favorite theme, good health plus the simplest, most intelligent sort of care.

We all could take a leaf from Miss Claire's beauty and health notebook. There's no self-indulgence. It's an almost Spartan life, and that goes for everything from the food she eats to the parties she doesn't attend.

Sane Eating and Exercise Keep Weight at 125 Pounds.

If you're getting a dowager's hump, or a figure that bulges, consider Miss Claire, who is 5 feet 6 and weighs 125 pounds, no more, no less. That's the weight at which she feels best, looks best, and sings best, so she keeps it. It's easy, she says.

Her ordinary eating routine is something like this: In the morning, cups and cups of weak, warm tea with a bit of cream in it. Then stretching exercises, good for the voice, the figure, and pep in general. For lunch, a pint of milk and a pint of fruit juice. She's mad about fruit juice. Her dinner is a good one, but plain, thank you. No lobster Newburg or rich rum cake for her. Meat, potatoes, lots of vegetables, plenty of green salad, and probably fruit.

Miss Claire Believes in Keeping Rules She Sets.

Miss Claire believes in keeping the rules she sets for herself. During the New York run of "The Great Waltz" she didn't miss one of her 250 performances. She kept to her simple rules of the sane life and in addition went once each week to a beauty establishment where she had the whole wonderful routine of a complete treatment that included exercise, massage, and relaxation. Under the pressure of such fearfully hard work she knew she needed to conserve her energy, so she did something about it, which is exactly like her.

She worries more about keeping her skin immaculately clean than about makeup, but her idea of a good makeup is one that isn't obviously a makeup. The more time she spends making up, the less she expects the beholder to be conscious of the fact that she IS made up. There, we might say, is one of the best makeup rules we've ever heard expressed. Rouge presents the greatest makeup pitfall, she thinks. Bright lipstick and plenty of it is all right nowadays accepted, but too much rouge never is right.

Bronze Gold Hair Gleam as Result of Being Well Brushed.

Miss Claire's hair has the well brushed appearance, the gleam that only regular brushing gives. It's a bronze gold, lustrous and thick, and worn in a center part that does justice to a smooth, high forehead. The center hair part is high hair style at the moment, but Miss Claire decided on it more than a year ago, when she went into her period rôle.

Her favorite clothes are tailored, and she worries rather a great deal about being overdressed in the daytime. She thinks fluff or too many eye striking touches are fatal to daytime chic. But in the evening she's just an orchid—loves her gowns to be glamorous. We might add that when we've seen her they invariably have been.

Miss Claire Likes Idea of Wide Variety of Perfumes.

Miss Claire has perfume passions. Her idea of luxury is to own hundreds of bottles of precious fragrances, one for every mood, every color, every type of costume. Using one perfume for all occasions and all clothes doesn't seem to her to be the right rule. She can't be said to have a favorite, but she does have one special pet sent regularly from Paris, a rather heavy but charming one that she loves because it's luxurious—and there are times, as every woman knows, when feeling luxurious does wonderful things for the spirits.

Miss Claire rides horseback, swims, and walks for outdoor exercise. When she manages we don't know. Between being social as Mrs. Henry Weber [her husband is musical director of W-G-N], "careering" as star of "The Great Waltz," supervising a home in Lake Bluff, and being mother of a sprightly son, wouldn't you agree that she is one woman making the most of life?

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in the Chicago Tribune.

"Beauties Ball" Gala Event of London Season

LONDON Mrs. Roland Robinson was one of the tableaux in the "Beauties Ball" held in London on Jan. 16. The duke of Gloucester consented to attend and the proceeds went to help crippled children.

This dance was one of the highlights of the early spring season, and although it may be hard for Chicagoans to realize, it is early spring in England.

There was a decided American flavor to this, as there is to many other big society affairs. The chairman was Mrs. Robin d'Erlanger, daughter of the chief of the clan Farquharson, and she was assisted by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Leo d'Erlanger, who was Miss Edwina Prue of New York. Lord Carnovan was the treasurer; his wife is Catherine, the daughter of the late Mr. J. Wendell of New York.

Other "beauties" of the ball, besides Mrs. Roland Robinson, were the American, Mrs. Ormonde Lawson-Johnson, and the American by marriage, Mrs. Charles Sweeny.

Club news and the weekly club calendar will be found in the Women's Section this week.

ENGAGED TO MARRY

Bring LIFE, LUSTRE and COLOR to YOUR HAIR—this harmless, odorless vegetable rinse will do it

Attractive hair can be made doubly beautiful by giving it lustrous, gleaming highlights. And dull, faded, streaked hair can now be made radiant and colorful . . . without risk of harm to the scalp or hair, without a lot of trouble and fuss.

HOW? By using Lovalon after each shampoo. Lovalon is the hair rinse approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and used by beauty shops throughout the world. Lovalon does not dye, does not bleach—affects the hair in no way except to make it more beautiful. And certainly Lovalon is cheap enough to use—five rinses costs but 25 cents!

Try Lovalon. It takes but a minute to use. And you will be amazed at the sparkle and silken softness it gives your hair. Lovalon comes in twelve shades.

Get the 25 cent size Lovalon at any drug or department store, or a trial size at any ten cent store. Or, have any beauty shop give you a Lovalon rinse.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

THE principle of preparedness is an interesting and important feature of the Culbertson system. Very few bids should be made without taking into account the probable responses of one's partner—with emphasis on such responses as might be embarrassing. (There is no great need to guard against what is desired.)

Years ago each partner expressed his holding as though it were completely independent—with results that were in many cases appalling. Given such misfit hands as:

NORTH	SOUTH
♠ A J 10 6	♠ 9 5
♥ 7 6 2	♥ Q 5 3
♦ A Q 10 8 5	♦ 9 4
♣ 8	♣ A J 9 4 3 2

the bidding was sure to go:

NORTH	SOUTH
1 diamond	2 clubs
2 spades	3 clubs
Pass

Obviously there was no chance of fulfilling such contracts.

Today the bidding recommended under the principle of preparedness would be:

NORTH	SOUTH
1 spade	2 clubs
2 diamonds	Pass

The contract would not only be one trick lower but in the proper suit. And the factor that would so guide it would be North's preparedness on his first bid for the most likely (and in this case most embarrassing) response from his partner.

Along the same lines have gone the bids of the responding hand. Holding ♠ K J 9 3 ♥ 6 2 ♦ Q 9 7 5 2 ♣ 5 4, the partner having opened the bidding with one heart, the prepared bid is not two diamonds, on the five-card suit, but one spade. The latter bid prepares for a two-club rebid, leaving the diamond suit available for a cheap bid at the two level and for a pass to a possible heart rebid. In the latter case it is true that the diamond suit is never shown, but experience has taught us that with a hand justifying only one response it is most profitable to show the major suit.

Preparedness prohibits a take-out double of one spade on such a holding as ♠ 7 ♥ A 3 ♦ A K 9 5 2 ♣ K 10 8 6 4. We are not prepared for the two most likely responses of partner: (1) A leave-in of the take-out double, and (2) a heart bid. So we overcall rather than double. Conversely, if we rearrange the same cards as follows: ♠ K 10 2 ♥ A 8 6 3 ♦ A K 9 5 4 ♣ 7, we now have an excellent take-out double, suited to any action that partner may take, since we would welcome a leave-in and be able to rescue a club response with diamonds.

Average players and experts alike will do well to apply the acid test of the preparedness principle to ticklish bidding situations.

We are all familiar with the type of player who is wonderfully alert where nonessentials are concerned and fast asleep on the really fine points. The sort that invariably pounces on a lead from the wrong hand, insisting that his own partner's honor be led through instead of up to, thereby earning for himself a glare of pure hatred from said partner, who was fully capable of protecting himself.

Recently I witnessed an amusing example of this "wide-awakeness." The opponents had just played a hand at three no trump, in which the dummy had held, among other cards, all four of the aces. The declarer announced, not unnaturally, "Four no trumps and 150 aces." Whereupon a howl came from the alert defender and the indignant protest: "What! Why, the dummy had an ace!"

And he didn't know why the other three players and the kibitzers became convulsed with laughter.

≈

When a player can determine just how he will play to the eleventh trick before he has embarked on the third trick he can afford to stretch a hand in the bidding to the breaking point. The East player in the hand which follows should have realized that with an expert as declarer the set would be at most one trick—and that the hand might actually be made. South's optimism stood him in good stead, while East's questionable double served only to point out declarer's proper play.

	NORTH
	♠ A K 10 3
	♥ A 10 8
	♦ 7 3
	♣ A K 5 3
WEST		EAST
♠ 8 6 5 2		♠ Q J 9
♥ —		♥ J 6 4 3 2
♦ A Q J 9 8 6 2		♦ K 4
♣ 10 8		♣ Q J 7
	SOUTH
	♠ 7 4
	♥ K Q 9 7 5
	♦ 10 5
	♣ 9 6 4 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣*	Pass	1 ♥	2 ♦
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
Pass	Double (final bid)

---

*North's first bid should have been one spade.

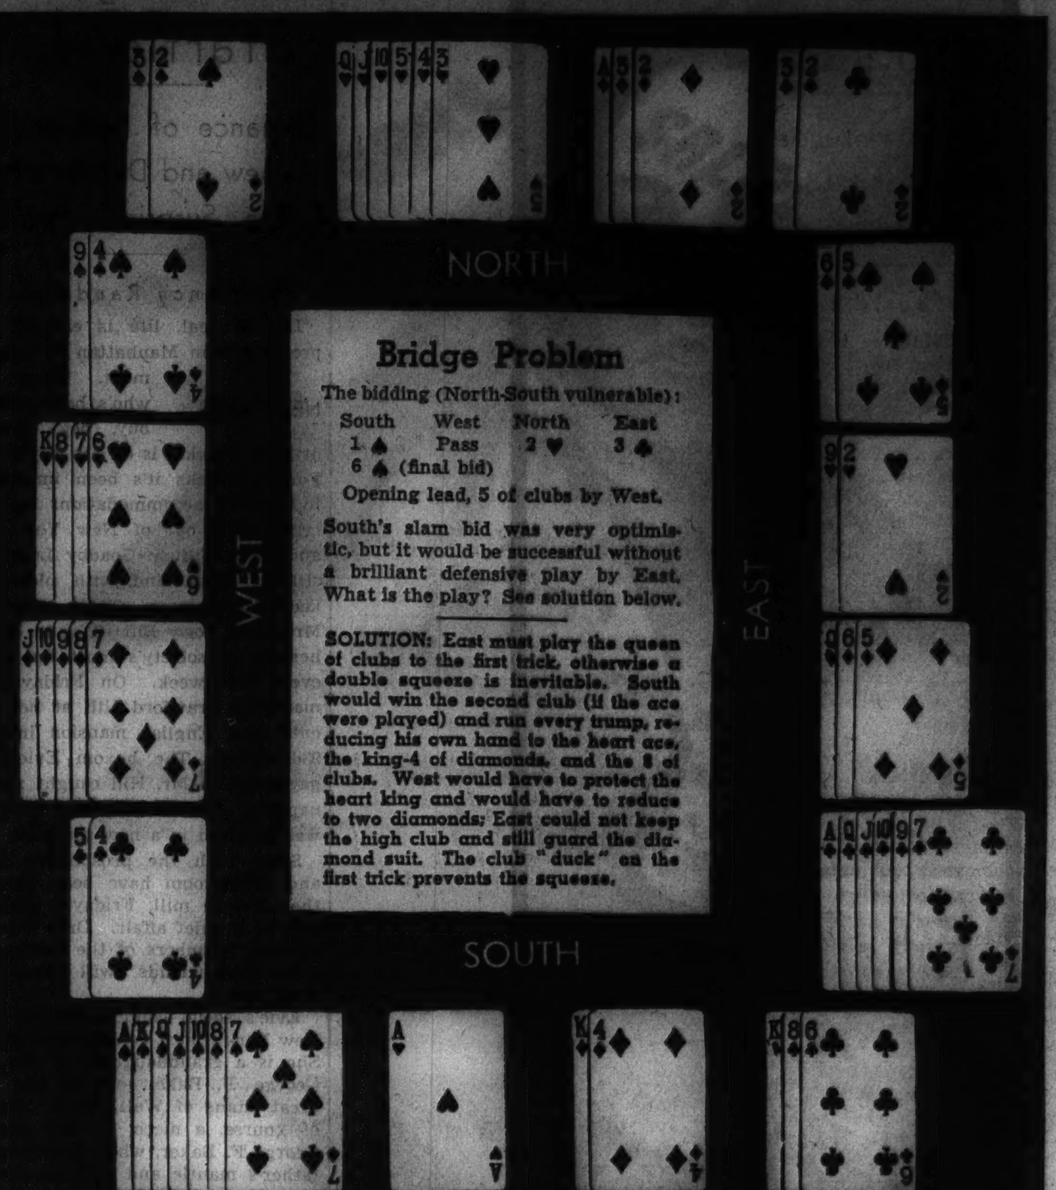
West opened the fourth-best spade, not wishing to give up a possible diamond tenace. Dummy won with the ace, and the ace of trumps was laid down. South's suspicions were confirmed when West failed to follow suit. A long pause ensued while South went over the entire sequence of plays necessary to guard against the best defense.

The hand seemed hopeless unless the clubs broke three-two, so the ace and king were led from dummy and a low club surrendered to East. That worthy cashed the king of diamonds and continued the suit, West winning with the jack. A spade return at this point would have made things very easy for declarer. All South would have to do would be to win with the ace, pick up East's trumps by leading the ten and eight through the jack, after which all of his cards would be winners.

But West led with a third round of diamonds, and South needed all of his skill to pull the hand out of the fire. He ruffed with the eight. East dared not overruff, so he discarded a spade and South discarded the club. The ten of hearts was next led and held the trick. Dummy's club followed, and if East ruffed, South would overruff, pull the trumps, and cash the ace of spades. East therefore discarded his last spade and South did likewise. Dummy's next lead was the ace of spades, completing the trump pick-up. South could overruff any trump East played and thereby make his contract.

(Copyright: 1936: By Ely Culbertson.)

Each Monday in The Daily Tribune Mr. Culbertson writes a bridge article especially for beginners. Articles for more advanced players on other days.



Bridge Problem

The bidding (North-South vulnerable):

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	3 ♣
6 ♠ (final bid)

Opening lead, 5 of clubs by West.

South's slam bid was very optimistic, but it would be successful without a brilliant defensive play by East. What is the play? See solution below.

SOLUTION: East must play the queen of clubs to the first trick, otherwise a double squeeze is inevitable. South would win the second club (if the ace were played) and run every trump, reducing his own hand to the heart ace, the king-4 of diamonds, and the 8 of clubs. West would have to protect the heart king and would have to reduce to two diamonds; East could not keep the high club and still guard the diamond suit. The club "duck" on the first trick prevents the squeeze.

Today's Questions

Question: What is the best opening bid as dealer, both sides vulnerable, with the following hand:

♠ A K J ♥ A K Q ♦ A J 10 6 ♣ K Q 10

Answer: Bid three no trump. This bid admirably expresses both your distribution and your approximate seven honor tricks.

Question: What is meant by the term "trump echo"?

Answer: When a defender indicates an original holding of exactly three trumps, by playing first his middle trump and then a lower one, he is using the trump echo. This convention is often invaluable in informing the partner that the echoer has another trump for ruffing or forcing purposes.

Sundry Topics Occupy Etiquet Column Today

Miss Bartlett will be glad to answer questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior. For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your letter.

By Helen Bartlett.

QUESTIONS of the week!

Mrs. L. S. writes the following question: "When a person receives a formal invitation to attend a church wedding ceremony, is she permitted to go to the bride's home afterward to greet the parents and congratulate the newly married couple?"

No, indeed. An invitation to the church entitles one only to attend the church ceremony. Under no conditions should one go to the bride's home uninvited. To do so certainly would be stretching the invitation.

Miss D. M. has this problem: "I have been invited to attend a supper party and requested to bring whomever I like for my partner. The young man I have invited is not acquainted with the hostess, nor with any of the guests. Is it my responsibility to see that he is introduced to all those present?"

You, of course, will have to introduce this young man to your hostess when you arrive at the party. But it is the hostess' duty to see that he meets the other guests whom he does not know.

From Miss K. L.: "Does the fact that a young man or woman happens to be married, or perhaps divorced, exclude him or her from being invited to act as attendants at one's wedding?"

It is perfectly proper to invite a married man to act as best man at a wedding ceremony, or a married woman as matron of honor. In the case of a divorced man or woman occupying this rôle there might possibly be some question. Find out if there is any rule of the church which would prohibit this. If not, there is no other reason why it would not be permissible.

And, finally, Mrs. A. T. inquires: "Does the man or the woman precede when seeking a table in a restaurant when there is a hostess or a head waiter?"

Upon entering a restaurant there should be a hostess or a head waiter to meet you at the door. The man indicates how many there are to be in the party, and then the head waiter leads the way to the table. The woman follows immediately behind, preceding her escort. If there is no head waiter in evidence, the escort steps forward in order to find a table, with his woman companion following a few paces behind.

Survey Reveals Attitudes of Stenographers

Report Shows Tendency of Drifting and Discontent True of Other Careers.

By Doris Blake.

ANOTHER one of those surveys, probing the depths of human emotions, puts the stenographer under scrutiny. The survey report indicates that stenographers are not a uniformly contented lot. Indeed, there is much dissatisfaction and unhappiness to be found inside that efficient appearing young woman who responds promptly to the buzzer.

The survey was undertaken by Columbia university with 124 members of the stenographic guild studied for happy and unhappy reactions to their chosen work. Half of the 124, it is reported, were decidedly dissatisfied and unhappy.

Drifting in Work Without Aim Breeds Dissatisfaction.

Why?

Perhaps the discovery under the psychological test that 73 per cent is just drifting and doesn't know where it is going, explains the dissatisfaction. It's the common trait of all people just drifting, without an idea of where they're going, to be troubled and downcast in spirit. The drifting stenographer has no prerogative in this connection. We would point to housewives, in fact, with their many current discontents as peculiarly marked victims of the drifting way of conducting a career. One does not have to put hardy pressure on the imagination to visualize the woman in the home, mother and so-called manager of the household, who drifts with the tide, making no effort toward self-improvement, knowing not where she and her family are going and caring less. Lines of discontent, sour speech inflections, bitterness toward fate, and a slovenliness toward home and her person mark these discontents.

Beauty, Salary, and Education Have Little Part in Attitude.

But to get back to the stenographer survey: The baffling discovery was made that the homely, poorly paid, uneducated, fat, thin, and dull were just as likely to be happy, where happiness was found among the office careerists, as the good looking, better paid, better educated, and more perfect Venuses.

Recreation, pulchritude, and money apparently have not so much to do with the look of contentment on the stenographer's face as the inner life of the individual. Transfer the theme to another walk of life and the survey report would show likewise that a Palm Beach season, getting one's slim silhouette into roto sections, and all the money in the world to play with do not make a countenance glow with contentment unless the inner life brings that glow to the surface.

Findings of Survey Equally Applicable to Other Groups.

What we note about the recent stenographer emotions survey is that the findings are equally applicable to any group or individual.

What makes the stenographers unhappy?

They are unhappy because they are ambitious. They never wanted to be stenographers in the first place!

Here you have another peculiar phase of human nature in general: Misfits vocationally. Incompetents, in a way, with the incompetence that comes from merely wishing but not working to bring the wish to fulfilment. It may be assumed that among the girls who expressed distaste for their stenographic careers, marriage, and a home were in the back of the mind, as they normally should be. Or, like a good many of our young folks today, who deign to take a position of inferiority because that is all that's open to them, they feel they should be running the job for which it has taken years of experience to fit a superior. We have them come to newspaper offices, confiding that they're willing to begin as dramatic critics or movie critics or conducting some feature department. They go to department stores hoping to get buyers' jobs right off, and feel cheated that their great ability isn't respected before it has been exhibited.

Ambitions Out of Proportion to the Talent Involved.

In other words, the ambitions are all out of proportion to the talent and experience. These young people do not want to put in the long, grinding toil of those whose high places they would usurp. "What makes the happy ones happy?" we find in another query anent the stenographers.

They are happy because they can bend to authority gracefully. They do not expect every moment of the working day to be a high adventure. Or so we would word the survey results, although we find the surveyists reporting on the contented ones as "seeming to be women who have carried into their twenties attitudes of childish submission to parental authority."

Probing farther into the backgrounds of the happy stenos, it was found that they are devoted to their families, like to live at home, and were calm and peaceful children who were not torn with striving for recognition either in scholastic or social fields. Which indicates the socializing effect of a large family group and the emotional balance that a woman gets only from a home life that is agreeable to her.

Every day there is presented, in the feature columns of the Chicago Tribune, a stimulating article by Miss Blake, who lends friendly counsel on a wide variety of common problems.

January Architect

By Eleanor Jewett.

I built a lovely house of snow
  And made the windows with my hand;
I built it wide and built it strong
  So on it many kings might stand.

I built my house of whitest snow
  And made the roof tree long and flat,
And rounded every corner sharp
  With kitchen spoon and mittened pat.

I built my house and played inside,
  The only worry that I felt
Was not of wind nor ice, but sun—
  I'll hate to watch my snow house melt!

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

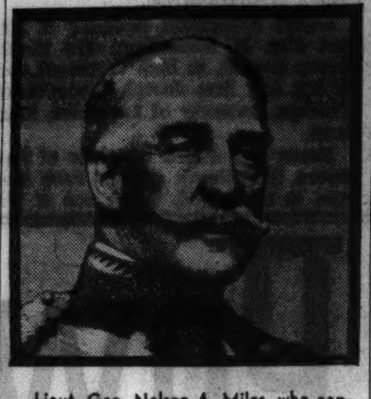
By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, September 11, 1886.

DEAR JULIA: The news from the Indian country is quite thrilling, isn't it? Gen. Miles' reputation will be made with his capture of the terrible Apaches, Geronimo and Natchez. There seems to be some question about the terms of Geronimo's surrender. I saw one statement that he stipulated that he was not to be tried in Arizona, but, on the other hand, Gen. Miles' report announced his unconditional surrender.

At any rate, Will says, a military commission will probably be established to try him, and military commissions are appointed to convict, not to acquit. The country will breathe more freely when Geronimo is no more. I thought I felt that he should be shown no mercy, but when I read today of some of his heroic exploits I wavered a bit in my belief and felt he had some manhood in him.



Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who captured Geronimo, married a Chicago woman, Miss Laura Williams.

The Indian commissioner, Mr. Atkinson, thinks there has been no such warrior since the days of Rob Roy. Did you read what Mr. Atkinson said of him? He has subsisted for nearly two years on the roots found in the desert, and on serpents he caught in the mountains. Yet he has worn out an army and has kept a vast region of the country in terror.

The escape of Geronimo from Fort Apache in May a year ago must have been most mortifying to our army officers. He got away in company with more than thirty men, eight boys, and ninety-one women. I remember how interested Will was in the account of that band of Indians traveling 120 miles before camping. Their pursuers were hot on their trail, but didn't get sight of them. For hundreds of miles the chase was continued, but finally Geronimo attained his goal . . . the mountains.

A desperate campaign . . . and again he was captured by Gen. Crook, but was held only one night, when he escaped. A few days later he returned to the fort, seized a white woman and threatened to kill her if she didn't point out his wife's tent. Finding his wife, he bore her off triumphantly, and was again at large, having accomplished one of the most heroic deeds on record.

Will, looking over my shoulder, says: "You make me sick! The idea of glorifying an Apache, the cruelest Indian ever made. The west will never be secure in its homes until such Indians are put out of the way." Which, I suppose, is true, but Geronimo has qualities that make an appeal to the imagination.

I am glad you had a pleasant visit in Long Branch and met Mrs. Pullman. You confirm what I had been reading in the society news from that resort, that she is one of the belles of Long Branch. She is a handsome woman, and is, as you say, extremely hospitable. Mr. Pullman is indulgent with his pretty wife, and she has everything that heart could wish. I don't think she has been spoiled by her riches either. Hoping to see you soon in Chicago.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Geronimo [1834-1909]. Apache Indian, was chief of the Chiricabua band. In 1884-'86 he became the ringleader in harrying Arizona and New Mexico. After his capture he was interned at Fort Pickens, Fla., and later at Fort Sill, Okla.

Dr. Edwin J. Kuh, Chicago, writes: "Your article on Franz Liszt recalls a personal reminiscence. During my student days abroad our home was in Bayreuth, where I studied music with Anton Seidl, who, in one of his sarcastic explosions, declared that my playing sounded like pouring cold soup down a man's back. [It has warmed up since.]

"One day while I played the overture to Cherubini's 'Les Deux Journées' for my private diversion there was a knock at the door, and when I opened it Franz Liszt walked in, asking whether the Grafin Schleinitz lived in the apartment. You can imagine my embarrassment! It is one of the regrets of my life that I didn't drag that genius to the piano and beg him to touch the keys with his blessed hands."

WILLIAM B. OGDEN.

Here was a leader of men. You would choose him at once in a thousand.
But thirty-two were his years, when Chicago made him first mayor.
As Healy has painted his portrait, his eyes were clear and his features
Firm and determined, but generous. Brown was his hair; his complexion,
Ruddy; his figure symmetric. This was the man who shouted,
When depression invaded the city and fear made its citizens cowards:
"No misfortune is there so great, as that of your own dishonor.
Many a gallant fortress has saved itself by the courage
Of those within, who refused to reveal its weakened condition.
Quit you like men, I say! Remember, a contract is sacred!
And, above all," he cried, "I pray you never to tarnish
The honor, the fair bright honor, of our infant city, Chicago."

Ogden avenue is named for the first mayor of Chicago.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you! If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

By Sally Joy Brown.

HOW about parting with that old sweater to which you've been clinging? If you have one that's worn at the elbows, too heavy or light or the wrong color, don't let it hang uselessly in a closet to be devastated by moths. A woman who is, at present, engaged in teaching classes for people who are exceedingly poor has appealed to me for old sweaters or other knitted garments which no longer are wearable but could be ripped and made into new, warm garments for needy children. One man made sweaters for four of his children, all of reconditioned yarn. Most of these adult pupils haven't sufficient income to obtain materials and are finding it difficult to get old knitted goods. They are a particularly needy group and will benefit greatly if you care to contribute your discarded garments.

A case worker has appealed to me for assistance for the C. family on the north side. There are three children in the family, all of them in rather delicate health. Their mother is suffering from a heart ailment and the father, who has been incapacitated for a long time, recently fell and has since been confined to bed. He has lost the power of speech. The family is living on a minimum income provided by a charitable organization and has no amusement of any kind. A radio would bring a great deal of happiness to this family, particularly to the invalid father.

◆

A community house in one of the poorest and most desolate districts of the city would appreciate assistance with its program. It has two groups of mothers coming to the settlement house for sewing lessons. Due to the fact that there is but one usable sewing machine the work in the classes is hampered. Has any reader a sewing machine she would like to pass along to aid in this good work?

The organization also has inaugurated several modeling classes for the younger people, who have little proper recreation. In the drying of the forms made from the clay an air tight box, such as an old icebox, is needed. Such an icebox is well adapted and can easily be made air tight, thus insuring the safe drying of the forms.

Many of the people in this community have little or no opportunity to hear music of any kind. A good phonograph for use in the recreation rooms would be immensely popular with the members.

Such organizations as this have an immensely good influence upon the needy people they serve. They help lift them from the dreariness and drabness of every day life and open new fields of education and recreation. Mr. B., the case worker, will be glad to arrange transportation of any articles offered. The center is close to the loop district.

"Dear Miss Brown: I am expecting a baby next month and feel that unless you and your readers help me I shall be utterly unable to supply clothing for it. My husband finally has obtained work after being without a job for three years, but his wages are so small and we are so far behind on everything that it is impossible to buy any of the needed articles. We also have been unable to buy any other clothing and my husband is much in need of a suit and overcoat, size 38. We have one other child, a girl 12 years old, and I would appreciate dresses for her. This seems rather a lot to ask, but I can see no other solution to our problem."—Mrs. L. G.

Mrs. A. L. has been wearing a borrowed coat. She wears size 48. Her husband tries to support them by selling from door to door, but they are unable to obtain enough money to purchase a coat.

Hoosier Salon Pays Tribute to Gaar Williams

One Room Exhibit Will Be Devoted to Works of Late Tribune Cartoonist.

By Eleanor Jewett.

ONE of the most interesting events of the year occurs this week—the opening of the annual Hoosier salon in the Marshall Field galleries. The opening will be on Saturday night, Jan. 25. This is the twelfth in the succession of salons. The Saturday evening opening is by invitation and is really a formal preview. Starting the following Monday the exhibition will be open to the public. It will continue two weeks, with the possibility of a third.

The distinguished one room guest exhibit this year is devoted to the work of Gaar Williams, the late TRIBUNE cartoonist whose sudden death was such a great shock to his many friends and wide reading public last summer. Mr. Williams left a void in the ranks of cartoonists. His casual, friendly humor was irresistible. "A Strain on the Family Tie" found one laughing at one's self more often than not. "Among the Folks in History," another popular series of cartoons, is already taking its place as a classic on the book shelves of those who want to remember the gay nineties. Mr. Williams gathered a number of these cartoons into book form before he died and their publication this Christmas has met with universal approval.

Wit Never Dipped Into Vulgar or Risque.

His wit winged a clear course with never a dip into vulgarity or the risqué. Nor was his work ever commonplace. Mr. Williams' personal point of view was priceless, his originality unique, his conscientiousness in the detail of his drawing beyond rubies, and his craftsmanship unexcelled. There was only one Gaar Williams.

Meanwhile all lovers of his cartoons and all doubting Thomases [if any there be] of his genius are invited to spend an amused hour among the collection of his cartoons which has been assembled in the little gallery at the Hoosier salon to do his memory honor.

The jury this year for the Hoosier salon consisted of Karl Buehr, Elizabeth Haseltine, Holger Jensen, Walter Krawiec, Gaspar Ruffolo, Ralph Fletcher Seymour, and Mrs. Lawrence J. Lindsay, lay member. Prizes totaling almost $3,000 will be distributed the night of the preview.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

Dale Nichols, Chicago painter, whose "The End of the Hunt" is reproduced this morning on the color page of the rotogravure section of THE TRIBUNE has been honored by receiving an invitation for the showing of this same canvas in the Texas Centennial exposition next June. Robert B. Harshe, director of the Chicago Art institute, is advisory director of the Texas Centennial art exposition, and he writes Mr. Nichols: "We are anxious to include your work entitled 'End of the Hunt' in this exhibition."

◆

The Fortieth Chicago Artists' exhibition will open in the east wing galleries of the Art institute Thursday, Jan. 30. The jury this year is entirely collegiate material. Dr. Oskar Hagen comes from the University of Wisconsin, Bailey LaForce is associate professor in art at the University of Illinois, and Jean Paul Slusser is professor in the college of architecture at the University of Michigan.

◆

Louis Kronberg writes from Seville, Spain, that he is busy there painting Spanish gypsies and that the weather is fine and warm.

◆

Carl Hoerman, one of the ablest painters in the middle west, has gone to Arizona and California for a winter of painting. He says: "I will do some painting toward spring. The rest of the time I expect to spend on an old and much deferred hobby—writing and illustrating a book on the southwest. I think our headquarters will be the Mission inn, Riverside, Cal.

◆

The Scammon Fund lectures this month are of particular interest. Dr. Oskar Hagen [one of the jurors for the Chicago Artists' show] spoke on "The Three Phases of Rembrandt's Art Evolution" on Jan. 7. George Biddle followed him the next week with a lecture on "Art Tendencies in America." This Tuesday, Jan. 21, Dr. Meyer Schapiro, Columbia university, will speak on "The Content of Modern Art." The last lecture, Jan. 28, will be on "Henri Rousseau and Picasso," by Stephan Bourgeois of New York.

◆

At the Brevoort hotel may be seen the famous painting "Samson and Delilah" by M. Jakinei, insured for $40,000.

◆

The Katherine Kuh gallery, Diana Court building, is showing several beautiful abstractions by Raymond Jonson. Mr. Jonson has a gift for color and rhythmic pattern that is probably unequaled anywhere. These panels of his are hauntingly lovely. His color sequences are among the most fascinating developments that cubism has given us. Miss Kuh is showing three small bronzes by Maillol which are extremely worth while. Her exhibit is modern in tone and interesting.

◆

Dr. Ludwig Bachhofer of the University of Munich and Dr. Ulrich Middeldorf of the Institute of Art Research in Florence, Italy, have joined the University of Chicago faculty as assistant professors of art, according to an announcement of President Robert M. Hutchins. Their classes started last Monday. Dr. Bachhofer will lecture on Chinese art. Dr. Middeldorf will lecture largely on Italian sculpture.

◆

The Davis Store eighth floor gallery has shown paintings by Carl Krafft this month. The exhibit closed Wednesday. The paintings, prints, etchings, and lithographs made the show one of the most diversified and most colorful in town. Mr. Krafft had a stunning exhibit in the Chicago galleries earlier in the winter and his present exhibit was equally fine.

◆

One hundred original lithographs by Toulouse-Lautrec compose the new exhibit in the Roullier galleries, Fine Arts building. The exhibition opened last Tuesday to continue through January. Portraits, original drawings, paintings, and sculpture by John Storrs may also be found in this gallery.

◆

Again it is borne in upon us that no two people look at pictures alike. Marguerite M. Miller writes glowingly of the Aston Knight landscapes in the Marshall Field galleries, an exhibit that I found monotonously pretty. She writes: . . . "Forty paintings, each one an artistic achievement . . . such a preponderance of beauty is positively breathtaking. 'Diane's Cottage' is a perfect example; it fairly oozes that same deep, restful beauty which seems to symbolize this artist's work. Flowers everywhere—so alive that you are aware of their fragrance. The charming cottage . . . and the trees, redolent with beauty, and the unbelievable beauty of those French skies and streams." And she continues at some length detailing the obvious charms of the paintings. Aston Knight has a sincere admirer in Miss Miller. He has been honored for his painting by the French government and wears the red rose of a commander of the Legion of Honor.

"The Doctor was RIGHT!"

Women should take only liquid laxatives

THREE STEPS TO RELIEVING CONSTIPATION

I Measure-out a cleansing dose of liquid laxative, regulating the amount to suit the age, condition and individual need.

II Tomorrow, take less; let the regular muscular action of bowels do part of the work—

III Use less each time until bowels require no aid at all.

SOME say there's no relief from constipation on account of the things we eat and the way we live, today. It isn't true!

Many believe any laxative they might take only makes matters worse. And that isn't true.

Do what doctors do to relieve such a condition. They use liquid laxatives, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all.

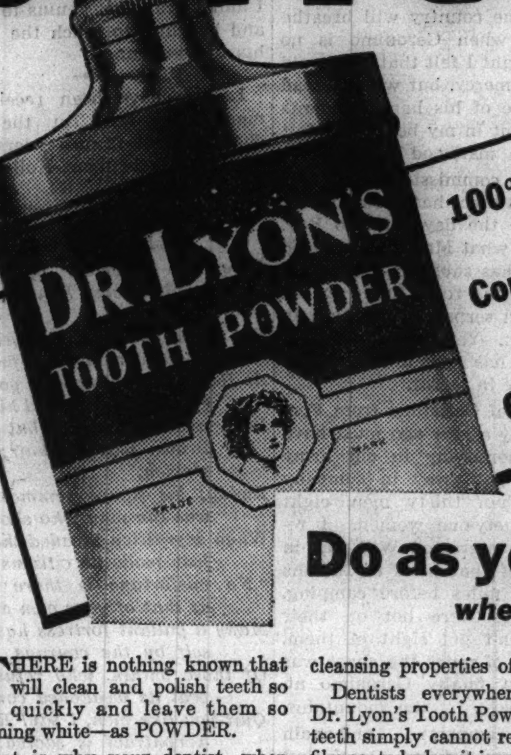
Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why your laxative should be in liquid form. A liquid dose can be regulated to the drop.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that form no habit even with children. It's the nicest tasting, nicest acting laxative you ever tried. You'll never go back to fixed doses of strong cathartics that act with such violence!

Ask your doctor. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. Or get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if it doesn't give you absolute relief, if it isn't a joy and comfort in the way it overcomes any sluggishness or biliousness due to constipation, return it and get your money.

Try Syrup Pepsin! Just take regulated doses until Nature has restored regularity.

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN



USE POWDER

100% Cleansing Properties
Twice that of tooth paste
Contains No Grit or Pumice
Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel
Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

Do as your dentist does—
when he cleans your teeth

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used. Dr. Lyon's cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay.

Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure. Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. People by the thousands are changing daily.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

Let your family live
SOUTH
this winter!

Your family will enjoy spending the winter in the warm, cheerful southland. Why not lease a cottage for them? Or, better still, buy one for use year after year.

Southern resort property, for lease and for sale, is offered in the Southern Property and Resorts column in the Chicago Tribune want ad section. Consult this column now for opportunities to buy or lease a winter home for your family.

DOMESTIC TRAVEL

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

FOREIGN TRAVEL

Travelers Find New Worlds to Conquer in East

Orient Draws Them with Its Strange Mixture of the Ancient and the Modern.

By Alan Irwin.

UNLIKE Alexander the Great, who is said to have wept because there were no more worlds to conquer, travel minded Americans, to whom Europe is often more familiar than Yellowstone National park or the Grand canyon, are finding themselves new worlds in the orient.

Long before the difference of opinion between Mussolini and Haile Selassie had brought about the disruption of tourist schedules, travelers were seeking out new commodities to purchase with their travel dollars. The steamship lines operating between North America and the far east report an increasing volume of travel to Hawaii, Japan, China, and the Philippines, both by individual travelers and organized conducted tours.

The lure of the east lies in its antithesis to costumes, ways, manners, and appearances of the occident. There is no doubt that, having absorbed the culture of Europe and reveled in the architectural gems to which American artists and architects owe much inspiration, a change in travel is as important as a change in diet to a gourmet whose table has been loaded with French cooking.

Modern Japan Is Still Old.

Japan, despite the little empire's well earned reputation for modernity, is at heart the courteous, tradition-bound country of the days before Commodore Perry. Even in Tokio, where there are department stores that would do credit to those in Chicago and New York, 90 per cent of the customers served are still dressed in kimonos and wear wooden pattens. At Beppu, a little city noted for its hot springs, there is encountered a simplicity on the part of the natives that is equaled only by the simplicity of the restaurants and tea-houses, where native foods are served. Nara, with its deer park and Buddhist temple, is reached by an ultramodern electric express train, but is itself little changed from the days when the herdsmen's bugle first called the creatures of the forest to their bounty of chopped turnips and rice cakes.

Everywhere throughout Japan, even in the modern cities of Tokio, Yokohama, Kobe, and Osaka, the personality of the nation is apparent, and to feminine travelers exquisite workmanship in lacker and fabrics makes the islands a traveler's delight.

The Unforbidden China.

Mention of China usually brings three great centers to mind—Hongkong, Shanghai, and Peiping. Hongkong, Shanghai, and Peiping. Each of these cities is distinct and distinctive. Hongkong, with its twin city Kowloon, is the great Canton river port and British admiralty base, through which for many years the vast trade of South China has found its way to all parts of the world. Hotels in both cities fully justify Hongkong as a center of operations for the traveler in South China, and good motor roads, railways, and airlines open up a large area of surrounding country. Carved woodwork, linens, furniture, and jewel boxes are among the bargains offered by the merchants.

Shanghai outdoes New York and Chicago in one respect. It is the city of 700 night clubs. Probably the most cosmopolitan city in the world, it harbors virtually every race and is looked upon as the shoppers' heaven. Women who have been there remember it chiefly for the exquisite embroidered underwear, which can be picked up for very small sums.

The Willow Pattern tea-house and the Mandarin's Garden, both to be found in the native city at Shanghai, are visited by rickshaw. Following such a rickshaw ride, it is commonplace to taxi to the airport for the Peiking plane or to leave from the railway station for the same destination in a train as luxuriously appointed as the famous Blue train from Paris to Monte Carlo.

Characters Out of Pearl Buck's Novels.

The journey to Peiping, no matter what manner of transportation is used, is through or over a country peopled with the characters who came alive in Pearl Buck's four novels. They are still living as their ancestors did thousands of years ago.

Peiping itself, although graced by the foreign legations and several big hotels, is still in every essence a walled city only a few miles from the Great Wall of China. Strings of shaggy dromedaries are familiar sights in its streets, and caravans from across the Gobi desert and Outer Mongolia arrive so frequently that their progress through the city is practically unmarked.

Among the attractions of Peiping are the streets of goldsmiths, silversmiths, coppersmiths, glass workers, crystal makers, and jade carvers, the magnificent palaces, the once Forbidden city, the summer palace a few miles outside the wall—and, a few hours by train, the Great Wall itself.

Bringing the Two Together.

Transportation companies linking occident and orient have long since refuted Rudyard Kipling's dictum that "never the twain shall meet." Regular and luxurious ships cross the Pacific, trains, motors, and airplanes patrol China and Japan, and everywhere the traveler finds himself safeguarded.

In the last few years tourist associations, governments, and other public bodies have campaigned successfully for new hotels and the improvement of previously existing accommodations. Air lines shorten oriental distance as they have destroyed distance in America.

Pacific crossings by steamer have been cut down in time so that a first visit to the far east may be made in the length of time taken up by an extensive visit to Europe.

CHICAGO OFFICE WINS TROPHY SECOND YEAR IN SUCCESSION

In recognition of the fact that in 1935, for the second successive year, the Chicago office of the French line showed a larger gross increase in business than did any of the other of the company's general agencies on this continent, Henri Morin de Linclays (left), general manager for the line in the United States and Canada, last week presented this trophy to James F. Nolan (center), middle western manager, while Marcel Delapotte, passenger trafic manager, looked on. The ceremony took place at the annual general agents' conference aboard the Ile de France at New York.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

THE late Will Rogers once said: "I always told you there are just three towns in the whole of America that are different and distinct—New Orleans, Frisco, and San Antonio. Each has got something that even the most persistent chamber of commerce can't standardize."

New Orleans, often accorded the title of America's most interesting city, becomes even more so for one week of the year. That, of course, is the week of the Mardi gras. Other cities have had carnivals, have observed Mardi gras. But, as far as most travelers are concerned, New Orleans can lay claim to having invented the festival and obtained on it a patent in perpetuity. City and event are inseparable.

Each year, just before they turn to the forty days of Lenten solemnity, Orleanians indulge in a season of gayety, dancing, parading, and merry making. This year the celebration is to take place from Feb. 21 through Feb. 25.

● More than a century has passed since a band of exuberant young Creoles of old New Orleans, just back from their studies in Paris, donned fantastic costumes on Shrove Tuesday morning and startled the colonial guard with a street procession. There were probably not more than a dozen of them—sons and grandsons of the companions of Jean Baptiste Lemoyne de Bienville, who had landed on the Mississippi's shore in 1718 to found the city.

Could those youths come to life today, they would see their frolic of a dull pre-Lenten morning transformed into a world famous festival. They would see their little community of 40,000, nearly half of them slaves, turned into a metropolis of 500,000, spread over 200 square miles. In place of gumbo mud, open ditches, kerosene street lanterns, plank walks, and impenetrable swamps, they would find modern streets and skyscrapers.

● But not everything would be changed. Like all other visitors, the boys who started Mardi gras would be taken to the Vieux Carré, or Old Quarter, and there they would find the city they once knew. The iron-wrought balconies, the secluded patios, the Place d'Armes, the St. Louis cathedral, and all the rest would still be there. This quarter, more than anything else, serves to give New Orleans its air of distinction.

Drama in Java Based on Dolls of Ancient Day

Actors Use Grotesque Masks, Fiery Red Beards, Tusk Teeth, Wry Mouths.

By Mason Warner.

SOLO, Java, N. E. I.—By common consent and general usage the sultanate of Surakarta is known as and referred to as Solo. Surakarta and Djokjakarta are principalities, where native rule, long established, is continued under Netherlands' sovereignty, but the sultans have power of life and death in their kratons and are honored and revered by their native subjects.

Djokjakarta, by applying the same shortening process called Djokja, is larger in area, has more population, produces more of what the world wants, and is richer in the wealth possessed by its inhabitants than is Solo, but the sultan of Solo ranks higher in the church of Islam than does the sultan of Djokja, and therefore is rendered more homage, honor, and veneration than is the latter. Perhaps it is because he is a much older man, and his age adds to the spiritual prestige of the sultan of Surakarta when measured against the ruler of Djokjakarta.

The Native Drama of Java.

Those who know Java from end to end say Solo is the place to witness the best the Javan theater has to offer.

The drama in Java takes the name of "Wayang" and dates back to the year 400 A. D. It has passed through seven stages of development to its present artistic fulfilment. Five of the seven stages from shadowgraph to "appearances in person" survive, and the earlier types are produced throughout Java today in almost their original forms.

Away back in the beginning Wayang was a sort of religious ceremony, as was the early drama of the Greeks and Hindus. It told the stories of the gods, heroes, kings, and deified forefathers of the people by means of shadow plays. Always at a performance incense was burned, and meanwhile the story of the play was narrated by a "dalang," who also produced primitive sound effects to accentuate the dramatic moments in the unfolding of the plot.

The action on the screen was portrayed by reflections of cutouts of lether representing the astral bodies of the heroes—strange, grotesque images which every Javanese recognizes instantly upon appearance on the screen.

These shadow images are accepted as reproductions of the astral bodies of the heroes and heroines of the drama—long arms, exaggerated hands and feet, thin middles, sharp noses—altogether impossible when considered as representations of living men and women.

From Dolls to Men and Women.

From the lether cutouts shadowed on the screen the Wayang progressed to the shadows of dolls, with movable arms and legs. A great step forward was taken when the screen was dispensed with and the dolls were presented in action to the audience, à la Punch and Judy. Then came the marionettes, with accompanying dialog by the dalang.

The Wayang Golek is still a popular attraction in Java. It is the marionette show of the Javanese. The dolls are composite structures, with elaborately carved and painted wooden heads and bodies, the bodies sometimes clothed, and wooden arms, jointed by lether thongs, but entirely without legs, the dolls being clothed in sarongs which drape down over the central body on which the head is set.

The first Wayang in which living actors took their places on the stage to displace shadows on the screen and to supplant the dolls of the Wayang Golek was the Wayang Topeng. But the change could not take place too abruptly. Masks were necessary to ease the way from the symbolical to the realistic.

In portraying the heroes of the Panji cycle, masks were considered essential to play the parts of the immortals, for Panji was a prince of Jenggala, and his adventures in love and war were just a bit beyond human achievement. Then, too, the players had to represent the animals that were a part of the animal cult of Java. Christmas productions also called for traditional makeup, costumes, and pantomime.

The Drama in Java Today.

Last of all comes the highest development of the drama in Java, the Wayang Orang, in which actors and actresses dress and make up to play the characters in the dramatis personæ. The costumes and headdresses are based on the old and conventionalized dolls with necessary modifications and are ornate, costly, and elaborate.

At Solo the Wayang is produced on an adequate stage, under a roof supported by slender pillars and without side walls, in a fine public park, the Tamen Stri Wadarie. Most tourists are unaware of the attraction and no effort is made to inform them.

The foremost actors are members of the royal family, princes and princesses of the blood who devote their time and talents to portrayal of the national drama. The costumes are extremely beautiful. The scenery is simple in construction but effective.

Actors Wear Grotesque Masks.

The drama I witnessed was one of the usual classic plays, and, judging from the enthusiastic applause and indications of approval from the large native audience, was well done.

The comic characters were similar in makeup and gestures to those in the Shakespearean tradition, and the "business," too, was strangely reminiscent of the Elizabethan drama.

During the action of the play some of the actors wore masks of ingenious design and construction. They were grotesque in shape and character, but the upper half of the face was uncovered, leaving the eyes visible and capable of expression, while the lower part of the face was made up of bushy black or fiery red beards, tusk teeth, and wry mouths. The effect was to convey a mixed impression of the real and the unreal, the natural and the artificial.

I think most travelers witnessing the Javanese drama feel as I did, that it is a good representation of true art, and regret that ignorance of the language makes impossible a deserved appreciation of the play and players. The costumes were so colorful and delightful to the eye that they made up to a degree the loss of the auditory sense and pleasure.

The performance began at 9 p. m. and lasted until 3 a. m. Not more than one-fifth of the audience that witnessed and listened to the play paid admission, the greater part standing outside of the roofed but wall-less theater.

The action of the play was interspersed with native dances. The Javanese dances were interesting. The costumes were truly gorgeous. Time and action were slower than those of the Balinese, but it seemed to me that the choreography and the pantomime could be more readily interpreted by a foreigner.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

We wish to go to Europe this spring and don't feel we have enough money to travel first class and neither do we wish to go tourist third. What would you suggest?—F. H. E.

Try the cabin liners. Their rates are somewhat lower than those of first class and their accommodations are often superior to those of tourist class.

How long are the days and nights in the northernmost towns?—N. K.

The world's northernmost town is Norway's Hammerfest, 300 miles within the arctic circle. There the summer day lasts from May 13 to July 29—eleven weeks. The night begins Nov. 20 and ends Jan. 21.

Winter Carnival to Be Held on Mt. Hood Next Sunday

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Some 25,000 persons will gather on the slopes of Mount Hood near Government camp, 55 miles from Portland on the Mount Hood Loop highway, Jan. 26 when the queen of the fifth annual winter sports carnival will be crowned and the title decided in the Pacific northwest ski jumping tournament. The Oregon state highway commission keeps that section of the highway leading to the heart of the winter playground open throughout the winter.

For those who are not expert, but like to snowshoe and ski over the open snow fields, down steep slopes, and through white draped forests, Mount Hood is a paradise. Many other events in the field of snow sports are scheduled during the next two months.

West Coast of Florida Is Haven for the Weary

St. Petersburg Abounds in Outdoor Sports for the Health and Rest Seekers.

By Hal Foust.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 12.—[By Mail.]—"When we play here, lad, it's for pure sport," said the retired locomotive engineer from Minneapolis. He hitched his suspenders with a thumb, adjusted his false teeth with his tongue, pitched another horseshoe, and added: "You must not have been here before."

His indignation was over a proposal to wager a good cigar against a package of cigarets on the next game. Acceptance would have been a cinch for him because he was, and probably will continue to be, one of the thousands who come to this city each winter to play horse shoes, shuffleboard, checkers, hearts, and bridge under the banyan, palm, and Australian pine trees.

This peninsula between the Gulf of Mexico and Tampa bay was first explored in the 16th century in a spirit of adventure and greed by Pamfilo de Narvaez and by Hernando de Soto, but the city had its beginning in 1875, when Gen. John C. Williams, a Detroit railroad builder, came here for his asthma. The resort colony retains more of the characteristics of the health and rest seeker than of the earlier gold seekers.

Games Not Too Strenuous.

Fishing, boating, golf, tennis, riding, and, on warmer days, swimming are enjoyed through the winter here, but the games that typify St. Petersburg are the less strenuous pastimes. A large portion of the visitors are middle aged or elderly, with no desire for the night clubs, horse racing, and dressy social events found on the east coast of Florida.

Highly distinctive of this city of 47,000 population, with accomodations for 150,000 vacationists, are its benches. On the wide sidewalks of the downtown district are 10,000 green benches with a simultaneous seating capacity of 40,000. In every hour of sunshine, hundreds if not thousands of visitors sit, chat, and sun.

Also on this bay is the city of Tampa, which is more of a commercial than a tourist town. However, it has an interesting suburb, Ybor City, with a Spanish and Cuban population employed in cigar factories.

Across the bay is Bradenton, on the Manatee river, a popular fishing center. It was on this river that Judah P. Benjamin, Confederate secretary of war, took to hiding at the close of the rebellion before his escape to England.

700 Originals of the Masters.

A little more than fifty miles south on the coast is Sarasota. There, in the John and Mabel Ringling Museum of Art, open to the public for a fee, is one of the most valuable collections of art in this hemisphere. It includes 700 originals of the great masters, such treasures as Rembrandt's "Descent from the Cross," Carlo Dolci's "Holy Virgin," and several Ruben tapestries.

On the other side of Sarasota, geographically and perhaps esthatically, is a tourist camp dubbed the T. C. T. C. It is the Tin Can Tourist capital, where between 1,500 and 2,000 highway nomads hold an informal convention each February.

Farther south on this west coast of Florida is Fort Meyers, a city of 9,100 population noted for its long avenues of royal palms. Henry Ford has a winter home there, next door to the former residence of the late Thomas A. Edison.

Racing Season Opens at Miami

MIAMI, Fla.—With flags flung to the resort breezes—including the pennants from the masts of Hialeah park, which opened on Thursday—the winter season is racing through a round of social events and sports activities.

Estimates from transportation agencies, hotels, golf courses, and other rendezvous of the sun seekers stamp this as the best mid-January gathering in Miami's history.

To minister to the recreational interests of the thousands now mobilized here all of Miami's attractions—golf, tennis, racing, boating, fishing, and flying—are in full swing.

Man Attacks a Volcano for the First Time

Dares to Answer to Nature's Fiery Forces, and Pele Is on the Defensive.

By G. Frederick Shepherd.
[Technical Assistant in Geology, Museum of Science and Industry, Chicago.]

ON DEC. 27, 1935, Chicagoans heard a unique radio broadcast. Microphones placed within 30 feet of a surging, hissing laval flow announced to the world that man for the first time in history was attacking a volcano. Heretofore man has bowed in awe and has tried to escape the fiery forces of nature. He has worshiped and respected Pele's whim. Now he has dared to answer back, and Pele is on the defensive.

On Nov. 21 a terrifying tongue of molten rock broke through the retaining crater walls of Mauna Loa, a hundred feet below the summit of the Island of Hawaii. The tongue grew to a seething, white hot river, and the course taken threatened the city of Hilo, second largest in the Hawaiian Islands. The 20,000 inhabitants have had their warning, and no lives should be lost even though the city should be overwhelmed. Less fortunate were the residents of St. Pierre, where in 1902 an eruption from Mont Pelée destroyed the city and annihilated its 30,000 people in some eight minutes.

The eruption from Loa was foretold many months ago by the veteran scientist in charge of the United States volcanological observatory at Kilauea, 20 miles distant from Mauna Loa. Dr. Jaggar's prediction was based on his quarter of a century of experience at Kilauea, where his keen observation and scientific skill have won for him a high reputation as an authority on volcanoes. His predictions are not based on "hunches," nor does he confuse "triggers" with underlying casual factors. During these twenty-five years he has made many similar predictions, several of which have prevented great property damage and loss of life. Only a few years ago he announced in advance the occurrence of a tsunami, or earthquake-caused "tidal" wave, which would threaten a Japanese port. Authorities ordered all removable objects taken away from the danger zone. The wave came within a few hours of the designated time, and the estimated damage prevented was in the neighborhood of a million dollars.

Predicted Eruption 18 Months in Advance.

About eighteen months ago Dr. Jaggar announced that Loa was due to erupt, that the crater wall would break on the east side, and that Hilo would be in danger. Not long ago others claimed, from the same data as used by Dr. Jaggar, that the break could be expected on the west side. Jaggar was right, however, for Pele has sent her fiery tongue toward Hilo.

The flow of 1935-'36 is following a route used on many previous occasions, but never has a flow broken through with enough force or volume actually to reach Hilo. The great eruption of 1881, which lasted for nine months, came the nearest to destroying the village. [Hilo census returns in 1920 showed the town incorporated as a city; previous returns were from the village of Hilo.] Lava came within a mile of its limits. Three major streams issued from the summit and moved down in an easterly direction. The Kea flow was the most northerly and stopped on the intermont plateau east of Kalaieha after flowing for nearly 12 miles. Kau stream was nearly as long and took a southeasterly course past Red hill. The Hilo stream moved on farther than either of its neighbors and for several miles was a continuous belt of fire. In 1852, 1855, 1880, and 1899, Loa likewise spilled her molten entrails down the mountain side toward Hilo, but the flows came to rest before the present position of the 1935-1936 flow had been reached.

How long the flow will continue is a matter of conjecture. Similar ones have lasted from a few weeks to nearly a year and a half, according to records which date back as far as 1832. Dr. Jaggar has estimated that the current flow may last for five months. The lava broke out of the crater walls in November and began to spread out on the flat plateau northeast of the crater summit. The stream has several ill-defined distributaries, one of which approaches on the north the Puu Oo ranch and the Waikoloa ponds. These ponds have been converted into reservoirs, which supply Hilo with its water supply. The water feeds into small tributary valleys of the Waikulu river, less than a mile away, and through this system the water reaches the city, 18 miles away in a straight line.

Ready Path Offered by Valley.

This situation has been the chief cause of alarm. With the lava within three miles of the reservoirs there was imminent danger that the city's water supply would be converted into steam and disappear. Further danger existed in the ready path to the city the Waikulu river valley would offer to the advancing lava stream.

Two methods of checking the molten river were tried. The crater wall was bombed in an effort to fracture the slopes of the volcano and thus produce a new channel for the escape of the lava. The second method was to bomb the stream itself. Only an intimate understanding of the mechanism of a lava flow could dictate such an attempt.

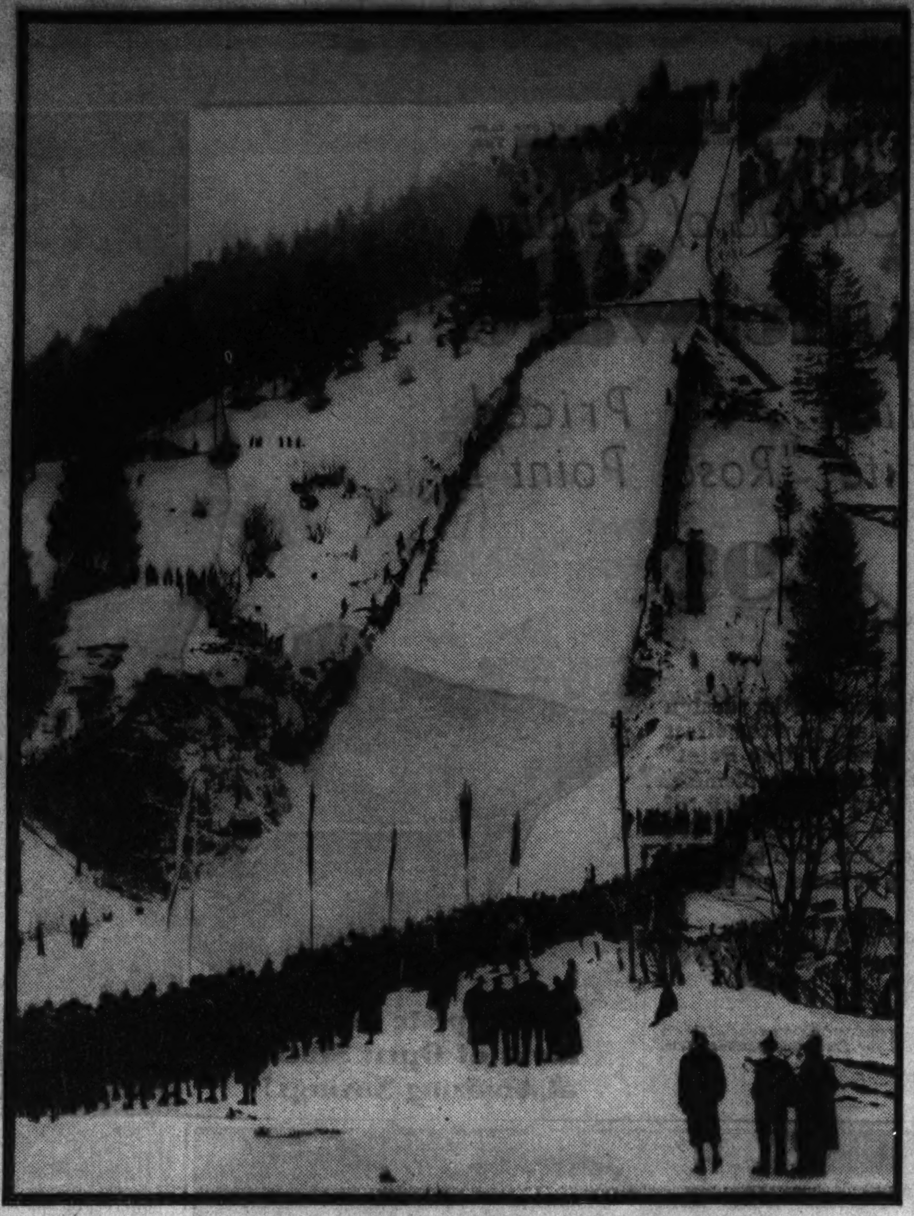
Hawaii has given us the two principal types of lava, characteristic of molten basic rocks such as are found in the Hawaiian Islands. Aa is a rough, blocky lava that is shoved ahead and can hardly be said to move by flowing. Pahoehoe is a smooth, billowy or ropy lava that congeals and hardens while the rock is actually in motion. This type can truly be said to move by flowing.

The present lava stream is of the second type and has been moving freely out on the high plateau, spreading its fiery tongues forward and onward with undiminished force. Dr. Jaggar's theory was to convert part of the pahoehoe lava into aa, thus forming an obstacle in the path of the mobile stream. Nature has many intricate and delicate ways of performing this task, and pahoehoe lavas are frequently seen to change over into the rough type. This is abundantly seen among the fresh lava flows of the Craters of the Moon in central Idaho, where recent lavas of the Hawaiian type have been expelled and exhibit many features common to the islands.

Twenty Bombs Dropped Into Stream.

To convert pahoehoe into aa, however, unaided by natural agents was a different task. Pahoehoe flowing over moist ground may do the trick. Dr. Frank A. Perret, famous volcanologist now at St. Pierre, says he expects aa lava when the material issues under some pressure and is well charged with gas already existing in masses large enough to have mechanical power to lacerate and contort the material and cool it by expansion. Many other factors could be cited which contribute to the conversion of pahoehoe into aa. On the basis of his knowledge of these processes, Dr. Jaggar directed the army airmen to drop their twenty large bombs into the stream of pahoehoe lava.

The explosion of these bombs would tend to release the included gases, would throw great masses of the melt into the air where it would harden, and would in other ways disturb the natural flow so as to form hard angular blocks of frozen lava, thus producing an aa flow. These solidified masses would in turn check the stream and cause more lava to harden. The process would be expected to repeat itself until sufficient aa lava had been formed actually to dam the molten river and divert the flow. This would save Hilo's reservoirs and in turn diminish the danger threatening the city itself. Latest reports indicate that the battle will be won.



ALL SET FOR THE WINTER OLYMPICS

The new Olympia ski jump at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, in the Bavarian Alps of southern Germany. The twin villages will be the scene of the Fourth Olympic Winter Games Feb. 6 to 16. The jump has been built on a scientific basis to permit the best possible results.

Time of Florida Train Is Changed

BEGINNING today the Dixieland, crack Florida train out of Chicago over the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway and the Dixie route, will have a new departure time. It will leave at 9:05 a. m., instead of 8:30. It will given even faster service after this change, since it will arrive at Florida points at the same time as before.

Bar Licenses Costly.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa.—(AP)—The price of liquor licenses at Nigel, a new municipality in the Rand and center of a rich new goldfield, has been set at $25,000.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

"STEP into the past with Natchez, where the old south still lives," read the invitations issued last week by the club of Natchez, Miss., in connection with its forthcoming fifth annual pilgrimage.

In order to reconstruct life in the deep south of a hundred years ago and make it live today, the club each spring sponsors the opening of before-the-war houses and estates to the public. The houses are furnished and intact, and some of them were built as early as the 1780's. Women in the hoopskirts, laces, and jewels of their grandmothers welcome the pilgrims. Winding roadways and old Indian trails, arched with moss-hung live oaks and magnolias, lead the visitors from one woodland estate to another. In the evenings there are historic tableaux, Confederate pageants, Negro spirituals, and old fashioned candlelight balls.

The dates for this year's festival are March 27 to April 5, inclusive.

◆

Nalin S. Yen, educator and traveler, will deliver an illustrated travelogue on "Enchanting India" on the seventh floor of the Fair store at 11 a. m. Friday. The lecture is one of a series being held this winter under the auspices of the Fair, in coöperation with steamship and travel agencies in Chicago. Mr. Sen, a native of India, was educated in Calcutte and London.

◆

Miss Clara E. Laughlin, widely known author of books on travel, will talk on "France Revisited" at the Chicago College club at 5 p. m. next Sunday. This is the first of several lectures to be given under the Dorothy Sardeson Clark memorial fund. The Misses Nettie A. Baumann, Josephine T. Allin, and Sarah B. Tunnicliff will act as hostesses.

Winter vacationists whose time is limited are imitating the birds this season by flying southward. Middle westerners bent on seeing New Orleans and the Gulf coast are taking to the planes of the Chicago and Southern Air lines and making the trip in ten hours. The schedule provides an option of a daylight journey or one overnight.

Harvey Olson, president of Campus Tours, Inc., announced last week that Eugene L. de Rosa had joined his organization as sales manager. Mr. de Rosa, formerly with the Chicago office of the Italian State railways, has recently returned from an extended stay in Europe. He plans to conduct a party of travelers leaving on the second eastbound sailing of the new Queen Mary, June 24.

◆

The success of the New Year's cruise to Bermuda aboard the Manhattan has led to the decision of the United States Lines to send the same ship on a similar cruise over Washington's birthday. Coöperating with the Hubbell tours, the line has arranged for an all-expense trip lasting nine days, with the travelers leaving Chicago Feb. 18.

◆

All expense circle tours to the southwest, "where it's springtime this winter," are being conducted this season over the Illinois Central, St. Louis-San Francisco, Missouri-Kansas-Texas, and Southern Pacific lines. The principal objectives are San Antonio, Galveston, and New Orleans, and the trips last twelve days. Departures are made daily from Chicago.

These 2 Things Combat Cold
IMMEDIATELY

1.

Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN Tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

2.

If throat is sore, crush and stir 3 BAYER ASPIRIN Tablets in ⅓ glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness instantly.

Now Relieve Your Cold
"Quick as You Caught It"

The pictured directions above show perhaps the quickest, simplest and most modern method yet discovered to combat cold and sore throat.

Your own doctor will approve this way. Millions of people have discarded "cold killers" and patent nostrums for this modern way. It relieves the average cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Note that all you do is this.

Two Bayer Aspirin tablets with a full glass of water.

Three Bayer Aspirin tablets, crushed and dissolved in ⅓ glass of water as a gargle. Gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back to permit this medicated gargle to reach the irritated membranes of the throat.

The Bayer Aspirin you take internally acts to fight a cold almost instantly. AND—eases the aches and pains that accompany most colds.

The gargle acts instantly like a local anesthetic to soothe pains in the throat and to ease throat irritation.

Try this way. You will be amazed at how quickly you can ease a cold. Be sure, though, to get Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN Tablets. They dissolve almost instantly in the stomach. Hence start working almost instantly. And also, dissolve thoroughly enough in water for use as a gargle.

Why BAYER Aspirin Works SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water.

By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.

In 2 Seconds by Stop Watch

A Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach — Genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

WANTS SMART-LOOKING CAR BUT REFUSES TO WASTE MONEY

Ginger Rogers

Selects big, new Dodge Beauty-Winner for economy, luxury, and style

"WHEN I found that the new Dodge combined such remarkable style and beauty with real economy I was surprised," says Ginger Rogers, fascinating cinema star. "After my first ride I was sold. Now that I own one I am satisfied."

Ginger Rogers' great popularity has made it possible for her to afford a much more expensive car, but, like thousands of others, she drives a big, new, Money-Saving Dodge because of its rare combination of brilliant beauty with record-smashing economy. Owners in all parts of the country report Dodge gives them 18 to 24 miles to the gallon of gas and saves up to 20% on oil.

Yet, with all this, Dodge is now offered at new low prices, now only $640 and up, list prices at factory, Detroit.

Drive this new Dodge—today! Enjoy the comfort of its Airglide-Ride . . . the sense of security provided by its safety-steel body and genuine hydraulic brakes. Prove to yourself how much extra value Dodge gives you for only a few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars!

You will soon have an opportunity to again see Ginger Rogers. This time it is "Follow the Fleet," new R K O Radio film musical, which she is currently making with Fred Astaire as co-star.

YOU WOULD CERTAINLY REMOVE A TACK IN YOUR TOE

and end the pain ... being careful to avoid INFECTION!

A CORN hurts in the same way and should be removed safely by this scientifically proved method.

Blue-Jay Stops Pain Instantly—Removes Corn Completely in 3 Days Without Danger of Infection

● To 30,000,000 former corn sufferers the name "Blue-Jay" means foot comfort. It brought them a blessed new sense of relief—added zest for work and play—because it removed their corns safely, and scientifically. Here's how it works:

The safe Blue-Jay medication gently undermines the corn. In 3 days the corn lifts out easily—completely. Soft felt pad lifts shoe pressure—stops pain instantly. Pad is held firmly over corn by exclusive Wet-Pruf adhesive tape (waterproof—won't cling to stocking). 25c at all Drug and Department stores.

Why a Corn Hurts—A corn has a tack-like point that presses against tender nerves and flashes pain throughout the system. That's why a corn "hurts all over."

How to Stop the Pain—Soft felt Blue-Jay Pad stops pain instantly. Fits snugly, firmly (without showing through shoes) ... while mild Blue-Jay medication undermines the corn.

How to Remove the Corn—After 3 days, remove the Blue-Jay, soak foot in warm water, and you lift the corn right out.
